Election Experts To Testify

Pro-LaRaia Poll Workers Take Blame For 50-Vote Mistake

By TOM HENSHAW

It appears to have been a simple error of reading or writing but it has meant more than four months of mental anguish for Mrs. Arlene Merrill of 47 Revere Rd, Quincy.

Mrs. Merrill was a counter last Nov. 4 at Ward 3 Precinct 1 in the Cranch School, where a mistake saw 50 votes for Joseph J. LaRaia credited to Mayor Walter J. Hannon.

It happened while Susan Norton of 44 Utica St., Adams Shore, was reading from a stack of 50 LaRaia ballots to Mrs. Merrill, who was writing the figures down on a tally sheet.

Mrs. Merrill was quick to assume responsibility for the mistake.

"The error was mine, I'm sure," she testified at Judge Albert Kramer's inquest into the November city election in which 500 votes in blocks of 50 switched from Hannon to LaRaia in a recount.

"You feel badly about, don't you?" said Judge Kramer.

"Yes," said Mrs. Merrill.

"Even like a criminal?" the judge went on.

"Yes."

"Do you know what an error is?"

"What?"

"An error is a mistake. Do you know anyone in the world who has never made a mistake?"

"No," said Mrs. Merrill. "But it spoiled my Thanksgiving and Christmas just the same."

"Did you work in the last [primary] election?" asked Judge Kramer.

"Yes."

"Do you know what the word, masochist means?" he asked.

One Reporter Target

No Gag On Press Says Mayor's Office

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia is upset by a story that quoted him as saying he would "abide" by a federal decision to go ahead with the controversial South Quincy MBTA station.

But he's not so upset that he won't talk to the press anymore.

"We simply lack confidence in one reporter," said John Salenius, executive secretary to the Mayor. "He will still receive any information we have only it will be in printed form so that we cannot be misquoted."

"Any reporter of The Quincy Sun and others from the Ledger can still speak with the Mayor."

Salenius mentioned no names but it was apparent the reporter he was referring to was a Patriot Ledger reporter, who quoted LaRaia as telling a group of businessmen he would "abide" by a federal decision which has not yet been made.

Events in what turned out to be a pretty hectic week for politically sensitive people as far away as Washington, D.C., went something like this:

LaRaia met with 20 members of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce March 10 in a room on the third floor of City Hall to discuss the progress of his administration in its first two months and its future plans.

The Ledger reporter who apparently walked in on the meeting quoted LaRaia as saying that a federal decision on the South Quincy project would be announced in the near future and he would "abide" by it.

Those present at the meeting agreed LaRaia did say that. But Salenius said the reporter was not invited to attend the meeting. He noted that The Ledger, The Sun and WJDA were all represented at the meeting anyway to participate in the discussion of Quincy matters with the Mayor.

He contended the headline on the story was misleading in that it caused some people to think the Mayor had changed his mind about opposing the station.

One by one, legislators, councillors and other public officials from Quincy and some surrounding towns stepped up to express concern over LaRaia's statement and reiterate their opposition to the station.

Congressman James A. Burke fired off telegrams to South Shore politicians asking them if they still opposed the station, implying that perhaps Mayor LaRaia had changed his mind.

"In the past few weeks," said Burke, "I have received both written and verbal assurances from Mayor LaRaia, every Quincy city councillor and every state representative who serves

Foy Reappointed

Robert Foy, one of the rare holdovers from administration of ex-Mayor Walter J. Hannon still in his city office, has been reappointed treasurer by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia. Foy has been treasurer since 1972 when he was named by Hannon.

Borden To Return To City Work

Putnam S. Borden, who was fired as director of the Council on Aging six weeks ago, is going back to work for the city - for a couple of months, at least.

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia announced that he has signed a contract between the sub-regional Council on Aging and Borden, effective from March 1 through April 30.

The contract calls on Borden to develop a comprehensive home-care proposal for the elderly; to research, collect and catalog information pertaining to the establishment of such a home care program proposal; and to establish relationships among the 11 South Shore communities in coordinating services relating to home care."

John Salenius, the Mayor's executive secretary, said the job is funded by the state.

"Mr. Borden will get it started, at least," said Salenius.

I Just Don't Have The Interest

Who's Running For Mayor? Jim Sheets Isn't!

By TOM HENSHAW

Jim Sheets is not going to run for mayor of Quincy - not in 1977, and maybe never.

"I've heard a lot of talk about it lately," says Sheets, the school teacher who became the hottest thing in Quincy politics by winning a City Council seat and a State Rep's post in little more than two years out of the classroom.

"Quite frankly it bothers me. I'd just as soon not hear it. It's nice to know that there are at least some people who feel you are qualified but, honestly, I have never been tempted by an executive position."

Sheets explained his reasons in an in-depth taped interview with The Quincy Sun, an interview that touched on many points in his personal and political philosophies.

"I don't think people in the city realize what a mayor goes through," he said. "I've had the opportunity to be a city councillor under two mayors. I've been able to observe both men [Walter Hannon and Joseph LaRaia] in some instances under trying circumstances."

"I don't think the public realizes the price that these men pay. I don't think the public realizes the price their families pay. It takes a certain kind of man to be mayor, a person with a certain desire."

Does he have the desire ever to be mayor?

"No," he said flatly. "I just don't have the interest in being mayor. I just don't."

"I'd have to say right now

Sheets Seeks Patrolman For Lincoln-Hancock Area

City Councillor James A. Sheets has appealed to Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia for a foot patrolman to protect the neighborhood of the new Lincoln-Hancock Community School from vandalism.

Said Sheets in a letter to the Mayor:

"It is my belief that unless a foot patrolman is assigned to that area on a permanent basis the new Lincoln-Hancock Community School and the surrounding area which is so beautiful will be permanently defaced and marred.

"I also believe there will be growing vandalism of neighboring homes and property and the area will be much less safe this summer than last."

Sheets noted that there was a foot patrolman in Southwest Quincy last summer and "his presence there made a tremendous difference in the reduction of vandalism and in providing for a reduction in noise and general disruption."

PRESIDENTS DAY -- Gov. Michael Dukakis signs proclamation declaring March 17 "COUNTY OF PRESIDENTS DAY". Witnessing the signing are Norfolk County Commission Chairman James J. Collins, John C. Nourse, director of Planning and Development for Norfolk County, and John J. Sullivan Jr., executive director of County Operations. Norfolk County is the only county in the United States where three presidents were born. They were John Adams, second president, and John Quincy Adams, sixth, both born in Quincy, and John F. Kennedy, 35th president born in Brookline. Appropriate programs have been scheduled to honor the three presidents during the Bicentennial.

Brownell Favors Eliminating 4 Associate MDC Commissioner Posts

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] has spoken out in favor of a bill that would eliminate the four posts of associate MDC commissioner and save the taxpayers of Massachusetts more than $9,000 a year.

Brownell, in a statement made before the Committee on Urban Affairs, called the jobs "a vestige of a bygone era" the function of which "is nothing but bureaucratic red tape."

"It is my understanding," he said, "that the four commissioners of the MDC are paid $9,217 a year for not more than 10 hours of work a week."

"In these times of austerity I believe it is incumbent upon us to eliminate positions of these kind in state government where there is no justification for them and where they are a duplication."

Brownell said the only duties of the associate commissioners are to approve contracts before they are executed by the commissioner. At least two of them must okay the contract.

"I am sure this duty does not justify the payment of over $9,000 to the commissioners," he said.

Rev. Leonard Hoar Returns From 300-Year 'Exile'

Rev. Dr. Leonard Hoar has come back from his 300-year exile and has at last gone free.

Dr. Hoar was a president of Harvard who was forced to resign that prestigious post by the General Court of the Massachusetts Bay Colony at the instigation of jealous colleagues for permitting the college to "languish and decay."

Broken by the calumny, he died at 45 in November, 1675, eight months after his resignation, and was buried with his mother and daughter in Hancock Cemetery next to the Quincy City Hall.

It was the epitaph on their tombstone, written by an unknown friend in the haunting, enigmatic phrases of a 17th Century English poet, that led to the official rehabilitation of Dr. Hoar.

The epitaph attracted the attention of Mrs. Elsie Berry-Jacques, once of Washington, D.C., but now of 35 Russell Park, Quincy, one of whose ancestors married into the Hoar family long, long ago.

The epitaph reads: "Three precious friends under this tombstone lie "Patterns to aged, youth and infancy,
"A great mother, her learned son, with child,
"The first and least went free. He was exiled.
"In love to Christ, this country, and dear friends
"He left his own, cross'd seas, and for amends
"Was here extoll'd, and envy'd, all in a breath,

"His noble consort leaves, is drawn to death,

"God grant some names, O thou New England's friend,
"Don't sooner fade than thine, if times don't mend."
Intrigued, Mrs. Berry-Jacques sought out the story behind the strange epitaph and quickly discovered the Harvard president who was hounded from office and driven to an early grave by envious associates.

She took the matter to Sen. Arthur H. Tobin, who has an ear for injustice even if it's 300 years old, and the

Tobin Proposes 300-Foot Limit On Peddlers At Schools

City Council President Arthur H. Tobin has proposed a ban on peddlers within 300 feet of a public school or licensed restaurant and within a quarter mile of a parade route on the day of a parade.

"School officials and undercover police have found that some trucks which pull up in front of schools do not necessarily dispense what is good for the children," said Tobin in support of his proposal to the City Council.

He declined to elaborate on the nature of the substance being dispensed.

"I don't want to upset the many decent people who sell things in Quincy," he said, "but there are specific vehicles the police have been watching."

Later, Tobin told The Quincy Sun that the ordinance probably should apply also to peddlers who set up shop in automobiles outside industrial plants, like the General Dynamics Shipyard.

"I have seen vehicles with Rhode Island plates pull up outside the plants and the drivers open up the back of the vehicles and start peddling things when there is a legitimate tax-paying store right across the street," he said.

Tobin said many of the hawkers who show up along parade routes on parade days "are outsiders who take money away from local people and then dirty up the streets for the taxpayers to clean up."

His ordinance proposal specifically exempted from the ban "those person representing non-profit organizations approved by the License Board for the sale of specific wares."

Mrs. Richard Burton Honored By Camp Fire Girls

The South Shore Council Camp Fire Girls recently presented Mrs. Richard Burton the Hiitani Award, a national award in recognition for extensive and innovation service to girls and the community. It is named in honor of Mrs. Luther Halsey Gulick.

A Camp Fire Girl herself, Mrs. Burton has served as a leader for the past 19 years, has been serving as an advisor to two groups simultaneously.

In 1968, she was awarded the Charlotte Joy Farnsworth Award for her contributions to town and district administration. She has recently been secretary of the Council and is now a member of the board of directors and chairman of the board Camp Committee.

ERA East Norfolk Committee Organizes

The East Norfolk Committee to Ratify the Massachusetts Equal Rights Amendment held its first organizational meeting recently at Temple Beth Am, Randolph.

Janice Davignon of Quincy and Barbara Magovsky of Randolph will be area coordinators for the pro ERA campaign.

Through the formation of subcommittees on education, publicity, election day activity; and a speakers bureau, members will concentrate efforts on educating people about the Amendment.

The Equal Rights Amendment, which will be a referendum question on the November ballot, reads: "Equality under the law shall not be denied or abridged because of sex, race, color, creed, or national origin."

Its passage will not only aid in eradicating discriminatory laws against men and women; but will ensure that laws which benefit one sex will be extended to the other.

Those interested in helping the campaign may call 773-7119.

Kathleen O'Donnell Sees Voters More Aware Of Her Office

Kathleen O'Donnell of Quincy, looks upon her election as a Democratic state committeewoman as indications of "a better awareness on the part of the voters for an office that is usually one of the most obscure at the grass roots level."

Miss O'Donnell won the post over Barbara M. Keefe of Braintree and Santa Fareri of Quincy.

"The blanks in the race were half those of the 1972 election," she pointed out, "and the turnout was larger than it was four years ago. This is an indication that the committeewoman's race was finally taken to the people."

"I think the voters of the district are looking for a change in politics."

"They are looking to take the state committee positions out of the back room and bring it to where it rightfully belongs, representing the interests of the rank and file Democrats at the local level."

Stay Alive!

UNEASY RIDERS

More than 2,300 motorcyclists were killed on our highways last year. Motorcycles are basically hazardous machines. They compete with automobiles for the roadway, but they are far smaller and more defenseless. A small car comes out the worse in an encounter with a larger one. A motorcycle runs a poor third.

Anyone who rides a motorcycle [driver or passenger] should wear a protective helmet. You can also increase the chances of your being spotted after dark by applying to your helmet triangles of retroreflective sheeting.

A second protective step is to wear goggles with impact-resistant protective lenses which should be kept clean and free of scratches. Such goggles not only guard eyes from injury, which can occur when small rocks are tossed up by cars, but also keep out vision-blurring dust.

Third: outline your cycle's wheel rims, fenders, and entire frame with retroreflective tape. This simple step means quick, accident-preventive pinpointing by automobile drivers.

Scorpio Influence

Q. I was born on Dec. 27, 1937 between 8 and 9 p.m. in Cambridge, Mass. I know practically nothing when it comes to astrology but I do read whatever I can. My friends always ask me what my horoscope sign is and what the position of the planets, Moon and Sun were when I was born as they are interested in Astrology.

Please tell me a little about my Sign, particularly if Scorpio has any positive or negative influence on me. What was happening in the sky on the night that I was born?

M.F.

A. Your Sun Sign is Capricorn and your Moon Sign is Scorpio. The Moon in Scorpio in it's positive manifestation indicates a keen inner drive, a fine sense of your capabilities and personal importance. It intensifies the ambitions and endows you with the ability to feel and understand the problems of others. Because you desire to be influential and important you are apt to be critical of all that you do.

The negative side of the Moon in Scorpio cautions against permitting the intense inner feelings and desires to exert an undue influence.

The planet Uranus was in Opposition aspect to your Moon indicating an individualistic attitude especially in emotional matters. Others are likely to consider you somewhat independent and eccentric due to your unconventional thoughts and actions. In romantic matters beware of first impressions they are likely to be deceptive. You may be attracted by the unusual and get mixed up with strange or odd folks.

You have an original, progressive mental outlook capable of grasping total results. You can organize facts and undertakings, seeing things as a whole. You are inquisitive, eager to learn and able to absorb knowledge quickly. You are articulate but will only reveal as much as you feel is necessary, always keeping something in reserve. You are apt to do better depending on your clever intellect than by following your hunches or feelings.

For questions to be answered through this column, mail the year, month, day of the month, city of birth, time of day if known and question to Ask Oscar, Box 114, Canton, Mass. 02021. Please sign your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered in this column.

Quincy Heritage Planning 'Olde Country Faire'

Quincy Heritage announces plans today for an "Olde Quincy Country Faire", to be held the end of June.

The event, a recreation of a country fair found in New England in the late 1700's, will be set in a yet unnamed outdoor setting, reminiscent of early Quincy. The atmosphere will be heightened with the wearing of colonial outfits.

The fair will center around the demonstration of crafts worked from 1700 to the early 1900's. Crafts people from New England will demonstrate wood carving, quilting, smithing, weaving, bee-keeping among others.

The items may be purchased. Quincy Heritage is seeking craftspeople interested in participating. The crafts involved must fall within the period of 1700 to early 1900's and must be demonstrated while merchandising the craft objects.

Those interested may receive applications by calling Quincy Heritage, 472-1776 or writing Quincy Heritage, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy, Mass. 02169.

QUINCY COOPERATIVE BANK WOULD LIKE TO GIVE YOU THE KEY TO THE CITY.

Or the suburbs, if that's where you want to live. After all, over the years, we've given the keys to thousands and thousands of home owners. Helping families to buy their homes is one of the many ways QCB serves the community.

As a cooperative bank, we offer you more than just a place to keep your savings and checking account. We offer you a full range of banking services and the opportunity of being a partner with us. It's not a new idea. Actually, we got the idea from Josiah Quincy, Jr., over one hundred years ago. Josiah was the founder of cooperative banking in Massachusetts, and his ideas and principles were so impressive, we named our bank after him.

Call it a spirit of concern, or humanistic attitude. What really matters to us is that we've lived and done business on the south shore for nearly a century. We've seen the area grow, and we've seen ourselves grow. Because we've never lost sight of Josiah's ideas that a cooperative bank should be a tool to help the community grow and prosper. We know for certain . . .

JOSIAH WOULD HAVE LIKED THAT.

'Who's Who In Local Politics'

By HENRY BOSWORTH

The Presidential candidates hogged the spotlight in the recent preference primaries here but local politician watchers also found the Democrat and Republican ward committee races quite interesting.

Winners of the ward committee contests become a sort of "Who's Who In Local Politics" and members of the local political-social register.

And because of the large number of candidates running, the results are looked upon by many as a recognition barometer: what names are easily identified by the voters, and what new ones could go on to become major figures on the local political scene.

Most of the interest seemed to be on the Democrat side where the bigger local political names are these days and where most of the voters are, too.

For example, in their home Ward 4, City Councillor-Rep. James Sheets topped Mayor Joseph LaRaia by 119 votes. Quick question: Could he top LaRaia in a city-wide run for mayor? [Appropriate question despite the fact Sheets has told The Sun he will not be a candidate for mayor. People do change their minds.]

Behind them in the top five in Ward 4 were, in order: former Ward 4 Councillor Albert Barilaro, Norfolk County Commissioner [and former councillor] George McDonald and former Fire Lt. Nicholas Malvesti long active in youth programs at Morrisette Legion Post.

Top five in Ward 1 were: Senator-City Council President Arthur Tobin, freshman Councillor Paul Harold [just 73 votes behind], Councillor Leo Kelly, Rep. Thomas Brownell and former School Committee member Harold Davis.

Interestingly, to some observers, former Mayor-Senator James McIntyre didn't make the top five. He was sixth—544 votes behind Tobin.

McIntyre's operations base was Ward 5 for many years and this may be reflected in his Ward 1 vote. Or, wonder some observers, is this an indication the once magic McIntyre name is losing some of its luster now that he is no longer politically active as a candidate?

In Ward 5, Dist. Atty. William Delahunt led the parade among the top five. Behind him were Atty. Gen. Francis Bellotti [224 votes behind], Rep. Joseph Brett, Councillor John Lydon and Councillor John Quinn. Out of the top five the winners were: former Dist. Atty. George Burke, Councillor Warren Powers and James Ricciutti.

In Ward 6, a well known name set the pace: Richard Koch, founder of the Koch Club and Park-Recreation Board executive secretary took top spot and son, Richard, Jr., making his political debut, nailed down fourth place.

Former Councillor Vincent Smyth was second, leading by 160 votes, current Councillor Dennis Harrington who finished third. Fifth spot went to Joseph Lydon, former Park board member.

Questions here: Will Koch [Sr.] or will Koch, Jr. be groomed as a future candidate. Also: Will Smyth consider a comeback bid against Harrington for the Ward 6 council seat?

James Papi, newly appointed assessor, topped the Ward 2 lineup with City Clerk John Gillis second—79 votes behind. Also in the top five in order were Raymond Dunn, Robert [Beau] Page and John Tropea. Gillis' son, Mark, was in the top 10. Maybe he will follow in his father's footsteps.

Assistant City Clerk Thomas Burke was top man in Ward 3, followed by Paul Ricca, head of the Quincy CETA program; Leo Burke [Tom's brother] Joseph Ciccolo and Charles LoFresti.

Twenty or so years ago, the big political names were on the Republican side. Names like Hedges, Della Chiesa, Burgin, McIntosh, Jenness, Gilkerson, Keith, etc.

They held the major offices and the Democrats were on the outside looking in. Now it's the other way around.

Looking through the Republican ward committee winners, you see only a handful of familiar names.

Ward 1: School Committee member Francis McCauley who topped that ward, David MacIntosh, son of late Mayor David McIntosh, Atty. Stephen T. Keefe, Atty. Paul Marini, Arthur Jaffe.

Ward 2: Guy Faiella, chairman City Board of Registrars, John Allegrini. Ward 3: Peter and Norma Gacicia, Kendall Mills. Ward 4: School Committee member Francis Anselmo, Thomas Blacklock, Leo Meady. Ward 5: Joyce Baker, Ted and Anita Ashby. Ward 6: No standout political names.

The only two elective office holders in the entire Republican ranks are McCauley and Anselmo. Times certainly have changed.

JOSEPH BRETT, the "dean" of local legislators, will seek his 10th consecutive term this fall in the House of Representatives. His campaign slogan: "Nine Good Terms Deserve Another." His service goes back to 1959—one year before John Kennedy was elected President.

Sheets Prefers Teaching To Career In Politics

that I have no thoughts of going beyond being a city councillor and a state representative. I'm not sure you work for the public good by bouncing from one elected position to another.

"I feel that to make a contribution you have to stay in an area until the job is done. There are some things in Ward 4 that I still haven't accomplished. I want to accomplish them.

"I can rationalize and say that if I became a councillor at-large or mayor of the city I could do all of these things. But if you take on those jobs then there are a lot more things you have to work on as representative of the whole city.

"From my point of view, when you're elected to a position, it's necessary to stay until you feel you've done the job. When you feel it's been fulfilled then you have to move on and make other decisions."

The next big personal decision, Sheets indicates, will involve his leaving politics to return to his classes in government at Quincy Junior College, where he is on leave of absence to serve in the State Legislature.

"Basically I don't see myself as being in politics indefinitely," he said. "First of all, I have a profession that I love. I just love teaching. I want to go back to teaching.

"Secondly, I have a family. I have four children and a wife who is a tremendous woman simply for putting up with being the wife of a city councillor and state rep.

"I feel I can take only so much of my time out of their lives by being in politics. They pay a toll, too. The guy's not home in the evenings and when he is home he's on the phone and a lot of people are stopping by to visit.

"I don't mind that but I just can't spend the time with my boys.

"My 7 and 8 year olds are playing basketball now and I sneak down and watch them play on Saturday afternoons and I see them making mistakes.

"Maybe if I had an hour or two or three a week to spend with them I could help them correct those mistakes and they'd be better basketball players and they would enjoy the games more.

"I just feel that I have to consider my family. That's why I don't believe that I'll be a career politician."

Sheets, who ran for City Council for the first time in 1973 at the urging of the students in his class and won with their help, was a reluctant candidate for state rep, again at the urging of his young people.

"Quite frankly," he said, "I didn't want to run, to be very honest.

"First of all, I was a teacher. I enjoyed very much teaching and being a city councillor. The relationship allowed me to have my home and my family and an income that was livable.

"I like very much being a city councillor. I like the contact with people. I like the fact that four or five times a day I get a call from someone in Ward 4 who has something that needs to be done. I enjoy going out and doing it.

"I didn't want to become a state rep and jeopardize my role as a city councillor. And there was also the question of my future as a teacher. I have to say once again it was the young people who more than anything else motivated me to run.

"I suppose that when I made the decision to run I was pretty much placing my faith in a lot of what the young people had to say.

"I wasn't as certain that I should run for state rep as I was when I decided to run for the City Council. I think that showed up in the primary. I don't think my heart was really in the primary.

"I'm not a politician. I know that all politicians say that. I just believe I'm here to serve for a while. I think soon I'll have to make a decision about going back to being just a teacher and a private citizen.

"But that was a tough decision to run for state rep."

Sheets thinks of himself as a teacher "who just happens to be in politics for a while."

"There are two reasons for my being in politics," he said, "and both come out of the teaching profession.

"First, of course, was the young people.

"We were sitting out in front of the old courthouse one summer day and we were talking about Watergate. The kids said, 'You know, today you can't get an honest person elected and sustained in office.'

"I told them that wasn't true and that there were a number of good men in office right in the city of Quincy.

"They challenged me to run and I said, 'If you'll work for me then I'll run.' They said, 'Okay' and our campaign began right at that point.

"Second, I think when I go back into fulltime teaching I want to have something different to say to the young people because I've been through the fire. I've been in the City Council and I've been in the State Legislature.

"I've been there when some very important decisions have been discussed and fought over and I've seen the turmoil through which mayors of cities go when they make decisions. 'I've seen all of that and I've felt the exultation of victory after a hard campaign and I've felt the hurt of having people say things about me that just weren't true.

"I've gone through all of the experience I would assume a public official can go through and I think somehow that has to be translated into language that the young people can understand.

"I don't think anyone ever has done that because the people who teach and the people who write books about politics aren't really the practitioners.

"I hope when I go back into fulltime teaching, and I intend to do some writing, too, I will be able to tell the young people how it is, like it is.

"I don't think they want to be taught the theoretical or the ideal. I think they want to know how the system works and they want to know precisely how. They want to know what the truth is.

"I hope I am able to translate what I've learned and what I've gone through into something that will make every student in my class a more meaningful citizen of the Commonwealth."

A number of times during his two years, two months and two weeks in public life, Sheets has had to resist an urge to chuck it all and "go back to the classroom and hide," as the interviewer put it.

"Sometimes it's discouraging," he said, "but if you have a feeling of public responsibility you realize almost immediately that there's no place to hide. You can't hide from your conscience or from your obligation to the people.

"If I went back to the classroom I certainly couldn't hide from the young people and their penetrating questions.

"But sometimes I have wished that I could get up on a given day and go to school and lecture a couple of times and sit down with the kids and have a cup of coffee and talk about politics."

The most recent time when Sheets felt "it would be just great to be a teacher again" came during the flap over a possible investigation by the Council's Oversight Committee into Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia's appointments.

Chairman Sheets of the oversight committee, citing "ugly rumors" in the city about one appointment, first recommended an investigation, then changed his mind when new information came to him. His moves, of course, satisfied no one.

"The one thing that sustained me was the belief that I was right and my motives were sincere," he says. "I wasn't making any decisions based on my own political interests or my own personal interests.

"I didn't ask to be chairman of the oversight committee. I was appointed chairman. When I become chairman I assume responsibilities and if I assume responsibilities then I'm going to make the decisions.

"You don't run back to the classroom just because there is a tough decision to be made, a decision that some people might not understand. When I go back to the classroom it will be because I feel I have done a job.

"One of the things that concerns me is that when you make a decision people immediately classify you as pro or con Hannon or LaRaia.

"I took the Mayor [Walter J. Hannon] to court on the question of combining garbage and trash. I got a very strong reaction from the people who had faith in Walter Hannon. But I had to do that.

"It wasn't that I was pro or con and this was true also in the question of the appointments. It is not that I was opposed to any one individual or mayor. It is simply that I was the man responsible for making the decision.

"In the final analysis, when we look back on it in historical perspective, I think a lot of people who were concerned about the decision will realize that it was made in the best interests of everyone concerned."

Sheets said he feels that growing animosity between Mayor LaRaia and the City Council can be settled with a little patience on both sides.

"I see no reason why the Mayor and the Council cannot work together in harmony," he said. Harmony doesn't mean that you always agree either. Disagreement is a very healthy thing. It means men are thinking for themselves.

"I would like to see a real effort on the part of everyone to build harmony. I think the city has been divided and it's a very sorrowful thing. There are 10 men — the 10 elected public officials — who can turn the whole thing around.

"I think it's time that all of us showed the kind of maturity

QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS

March 18-24, 1929 -- 47 Years Ago This Week

Downtown Merchants Start Free Bus Service

By TOM HENSHAW

Downtown Quincy merchants began a free bus service on Saturdays to lure shoppers to the Square from such outlying precincts as South Braintree, Lincoln Square in Weymouth, West Quincy and East Milton.

The move was protested by merchants in Quincy Point and North Quincy, who saw hundreds of potential customers riding by, leaving not a nickel behind.

WNAC GOES ON AIR

When Radio WNAC went on the air at 6 o'clock Sunday morning, it announced proudly that the programs were now coming "from the new transmitter located at Squantum in the City of Quincy, Massachusetts."

Some Quincy residents feared that moving the transmitter from Boston to Squantum might interfere with their enjoyment of Radio WLOE.

WLOE was extremely popular in the city of Presidents since it featured the Quincy Hour, between 6 p.m. and 7 p.m., which included five minutes of the latest Quincy news.

WHAT'S THE USE?

Frank Gacicia, an amateur bantam weight boxer from Quincy, lost a pair of close fights during an invasion of New York City -- but it didn't get him down.

His bout with Mose Butch of Pittsburgh at the Crescent AC in Brooklyn was so close at the end of three rounds that officials ordered a fourth round. Butch took the decision.

The fight with Ray Meyers of New York in Madison Square Garden was such a hometown decision that the crowd rose en masse to roar its disapproval when Meyers was announced as the winner.

"It's all in the game," shrugged Gacicia. "What's the use of crabbing?"

KING TO SING, CHEER

Delcavare King, president of the Quincy Council of Boy Scouts, agreed to act as morale officer for the annual conference of Region One, Boy Scouts of America, at the Hotel Kenmore, Boston.

King, whose Quincy council had more boys participating in the program than any other -- until, was down to lead the singing and cheering at the opening luncheon and banquet.

SQUANTUM-HULL BRIDGE?

Application was pending in the State House for incorporation of the Boston South Shore Bridge Co. which planned to build a bridge either from Boston to Hull or from Squantum to Hull to facilitate travel to Nantasket Beach.

One of the incorporators was Chester I. Campbell of Quincy.

GLASS FACTORY DELAYED

The Quincy Point Board of Trade complained that delay by the City Council in authorizing a railroad grade crossing between the Fore River yard and the old Thomas estate on Washington St. was holding up plans for a glass factory.

The factory, it was said, would employ 2,000 workers.

BUDGET OKAYED

The City Council approved a $3,183,746 budget for 1929, up $168,000 from the previous year.

The only revision made by the Council in Mayor Thomas McGrath's original proposal was a cut in the auditor's salary from $3,705 to $3,000.

QUINCY-ISMS

Walter Ferguson, son of former Quincy policeman Tom Ferguson, was mentioned prominently as the next superintendent of police in Washington, D.C.... Walter made his reputation as a secret service guard for former President Calvin Coolidge... The Strand Theater ["The Home of the Talkies"] was showing a thriller of carnival life, "The Barker", starring Milton Sills and Dorothy Mackaill... Also Fox Movietone News ["It Speaks for Itself"]... Building Inspector Warren S. Parker issued a permit to United Market Inc. for construction of a three-story market building on Chestnut St. next to the Strand... Ruth Bell of North Quincy Junior High School won the safety poster contest, beating out 700 youngsters in the finals... Photos taken by former Mayor William A. Bradford were on exhibition in the Art Gallery of the Boston City Club... Howard D. Johnson Co., 93 Beale St., Wollaston, opposite the Wollaston Depot, offered seven flavors of ice cream for sale... Dr. Elmon R. Johnson was re-elected president of the William B. Rice Eventide Home on Adams St.... Lt. George W. Levander's Shoe Store, 21 Granite St., was selling boys' and girls' shoes for $2 to $4.50 and promised "a Twinkie book free with every pair of Twinkie shoes"... The Rev. D. H. Murphy, curate of Sacred Heart Church in Atlantic, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Condon of Wollaston were planning to accompany Cardinal O'Connell on a pilgrimage to Rome... Carrots were eight cents a bunch, lettuce nine cents a head, and sirloin steak 55 cents a pound at First National Stores... John R. Copeland was elected president of the Men's Bible Class at First Presbyterian Church in South Quincy... The will of Jonathan S. Swingle, prominent Quincy granite dealer, was probated in Dedham court.

Mrs. Merrill said she worked at the polls in the March 2 primary because "I felt I had done something wrong. I went back to get it out of my system. I thought it would help."

"Are you going to do it again?" inquired Asst. Dist. Atty. Charles Hely.

"I don't think I'll even vote again," said Mrs. Merrill bitterly. Ironically, both Mrs. Merrill and Miss Norton said they favored LaRaia over Hannon in the election.

Mrs. Merrill's testimony highlighted last week's day-long inquest session, the last in which information will be taken from people who actually worked at the polling places where the errors occurred.

The inquest will continue tomorrow [Friday] at 10 a.m., taking up a complaint by Joseph C. Harvey of irregularities involving the American Party ballot in a special state rep election last fall. Asst. Dist. Atty. Hely said five to 10 witnesses will be called.

Mrs. Rita Brooks of 28 Woodward Ave., Quincy, the warden at the Ward 3 Precinct 1 polling place, testified she saw no irregularities but complained that the polling place was so small even voters were annoyed.

She said the clerk, Elmer Anderson, 67, of Pagnano Towers, 109 Curtis Ave., Quincy Point, went to lunch and brought back little souvenirs from Hannon headquarters which he distributed to some of the women at the polling place.

Anderson agreed that he had passed out the souvenirs to the women because, he added, "they were getting rid of them. I brought some back home to Pagnano Towers too."

Anderson said that he was the man Timothy Cardwell, a LaRaia worker, charged with smiling when he reported Hannon ahead in Ward 3 Precinct 1. But he denied showing happiness.

"I said maybe he happened to be ahead," said Anderson. "What have I got to gain by it. I'm not looking for a job."

"Being a senior citizen naturally I thought Walter did a good job. I leaned toward him. But I also helped Joe with his wine and cheese thing at Pagnano Towers."

Miss Norton, who teamed with Mrs. Merrill in transferring the vote from the ballots to the tally sheet, sought to assume some of the responsibility for the error.

"The place was very crowded," she said. "Some people were calling ballots right beside me at the table. There were times when I wasn't sure who said what."

Judge Kramer asked her if she intended to work any more elections.

"If they'd pay me more," Miss Norton replied, "The pay is low."

The inquest also heard workers from Ward 2 Precinct 2, where another error in transposing a block of 50 votes occurred.

Mrs. Mary Kelly of 26 Sumner St., Quincy Point, the warden, testified she read from the tally sheet to the clerk who wrote the figures down on the total vote sheet.

"I presume I read it correctly but who can say?" she said.

The clerk at Ward 2 Precinct 2 reportedly had a nervous breakdown that precluded her from testifying. Her testimony was given by State Trooper James O'Connor, who interviewed her during an investigation in December.

The inquest also took time to attempt to clear up some charges that were unrelated to the errors in recording vote blocks.

One witness, John Kodak of 256 Sea St., testified that when he voted at Ward 2 Precinct 2 in the Pollard School he saw a police officer open a ballot box, take out some ballots and walk away.

Robert Wilson, who identified himself as the officer at Ward 2 Precinct 2, said he opened the ballot box several times, put an elastic band around the ballots and placed them back in the box.

"The Pollard School is one of the largest polling places in the city," he said. "The boxes jam up. When the count reaches 50 on the meter we put rubber bands around the ballots to pack them down."

Charges that a police officer from the Squantum School disappeared for nearly an hour with the ballot boxes on his truck, were answered by Patrolman Ronald Heggblod, relief officer at Squantum and Parker Schools.

He said he kept the empty ballot boxes and unused ballots from Squantum in his truck and then drove to the Parker School to pick up similar materials there.

"I was there about 35 minutes," he said. "They had a mistake on the ballot box. The count on the meter did not match the tabulation. When they were through I put all the stuff in the truck and went to city hall."

He said the Police Department had already investigated the incident on charges brought by a LaRaia worker who said he trailed Heggblod from Squantum and lost him at the lights at East Squantum St. and Quincy Shore Drive.

THE READER SPEAKS OUT

'Why Dad' Huh Why?'

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I am writing to obtain information concerning the celebration of the Chinese New Year. Each year, about this time, we are regaled with pictures and news items of our citizens of Chinese ancestry welcoming in their New Year with parades and other activities.

One part of the celebration that confuses me and my children is the shooting off, by the children, of fire crackers to "dispel evil spirits". We can understand a controlled fire works display for a fitting climax by a knowledgeable pyro-technician as prescribed by law, but if we were to celebrate our Independence Day with the shooting off of fire crackers we would all land in the pokey.

Perhaps some of your readers, including Law Enforcement Personnel can explain to us the difference between Chinese children celebrating their New Year with firecrackers and mine only being allowed to celebrate the 4th of July with cap pistols and sparklers.

I certainly do not advocate or condone the indiscriminate and very dangerous use of fire works by children, which could result in serious and/or painful injury, but I would appreciate an intelligent answer to be given in response to the question, "Why Dad, Huh Why?"

Sincerely,
William B. Kennedy

Tips On Submitting News Items

Here are a few tips to readers and publicity chairmen who submit social, church, fraternal and veterans organizational news items to The Quincy Sun for publication.

Deadline for all such items is Monday noon. This means they should be in the Sun office, 1372 Hancock St., by that time.

Because of the heavy flow of news into the office and a space problem affecting all newspapers these days, we cannot guarantee publication in that particular week's issue. But items in first will be given priority.

News releases should be typed double spaced. If no typewriter is available, they should be printed. This is to avoid misspelling of names and garbling of information.

The name and telephone number of the person submitting the item should be included in case there are any questions pertaining to the information.

We are sorry but we cannot handle social-church-fraternal news items on the telephone.

Information should include the name of the organization, the event to be held, the date, place and time, name of speaker if there is one, full names of committee chairmen and committee members.

The Sun's policy is not to use nicknames.

Since The Sun is a community oriented newspaper, items concerning happenings in the city are given priority. But we are also interested in events outside of the city in which Quincy residents are participating.

We encourage you to submit news items regarding yourself or organization. That is what The Sun is all about.

But following the above tips will make it easier for us to do a better job for you.

Thank you.

ONE COUNCILLOR'S

OPINION

By Paul Harold
Councillor-at Large

Freedom Park: People Politics

The Dedication of Freedom Park, Saturday, will mark the preservation of open space in Quincy Center, and at the same time will culminate efforts of a number of community leaders, Dr. Donald MacLeod in particular.

Freedom Park will certainly rate a footnote in the political history of Quincy, because it's evident that you can fight City Hall and win. When the idea of setting aside the parcel of land was first suggested - official reaction was against it. Some business leaders added their support in opposition, and it looked like the parcel would be developed for condominiums.

But by organizing a number of civic groups from across the city, by perseverance and hard work, a good idea started to look even better.

Public opinion was translated into political action in less than a year's time and the proposed park not only won approval of city officials, but was designated to be one of Quincy's lasting memorials of the Bicentennial celebration.

MONEY TALKS What's Silly About Charging For On-The-Cuff Buying?

By Philip J. Lawrence, President
Colonial Federal Savings
And Loan Association

of Quincy, Holbrook and Wareham

8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

The managing editor of Barron's, the national business and financial weekly, in his recent front-page column denied the Federal Reserve's proposal that retailers be permitted to lop off up to 5 per cent for cash and tack on as much as a 5 per cent surcharge for users of credit cards.

"We see it as a sinister plot to discourage on-the-cuff buying [and eating and what-have-you]," wrote columnist Alan Abelson.

Describing this as a dastardly attack on freedom to fly now, pay later, Abelson concluded: "One might have thought the Fed would be too busy for this kind of silly stuff."

We don't find anything silly in making those who use credit pay for it. For too long the prudent person who prefers to pay cash and avoid the high cost of installment buying has had to help foot the increased bill on goods caused by credit-card users. It's about time that only those who use the credit cards should pay for whatever convenience or prestige they get out of them.

A final ruling on the proposal was expected prior to its going into effect on October 28.

We have to agree with one comment in the Barron's article. Says Abelson: "We have too much faith in the addition of most Americans to go into hock one way or another to really believe that discounts or surcharges will prompt them to kick the habit."

This is a sad fact. It helps account for the plight of this wealthiest of all countries, which is capital-poor because its citizens have been brainwashed with the notion that it's "good for you, good for the economy."

Some of the frugality of bygone generations has to be recaptured fast if we are going to store up the reserves the nation needs to build for the future.

Atty. Nicholas Barbadoro Named Superior Court First Assistant Clerk

Atty. Nicholas Barbadoro of 170 Harvard St., Wollaston, has been appointed first assistant clerk of Norfolk County Superior Court.

The appointment made by the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court fills the vacancy created by the retirement of Clint Kellogg.

Barbadoro, a practicing Quincy lawyer for more than 30 years, was second assistant clerk appointed by Norfolk County Clerk of Courts John P. Concannon.

NICHOLAS BARBADORO

Barbadoro is a member of the Norfolk County Bar Association, Quincy Bar Association, Massachusetts Trial Lawyers Association, and is a former member of the Quincy Board of Appeals.

Barbadoro and his wife, Natalie, are the parents of four children, Mrs. Natalie C. Pearson of Quincy, Mrs. Linda A. Delaney of Florida, Peter and Paul of Quincy. They also have a granddaughter, Katie Anne Delaney.

NQHS Addition To Take 18 Months

The North Quincy High School addition will be completed in 18 months Mayor Joseph LaRaia told members of the Atlantic Association at a recent meeting.

He said the original estimate was that the construction would take three years.

LaRaia also re-affirmed to the 60 members present his opposition to a proposed Navy trailer park at Squantum Gardens. He said he would pursue efforts to have the site obtained by the city.

Members informed the mayor they believed foot patrolmen were needed in certain sections of North Quincy and that street lighting should be improved.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon will be invited to a future meeting to discuss double sessions resulting from NQHS addition.

LEO WEINER, proprietor of Hancock Fish Market, displays his wares to Mrs. Natalie Nobile. Hancock Fish Market reopened recently at 12 Beale St., Wollaston, after the original site had been destroyed by fire.

Over '6 Million Growth

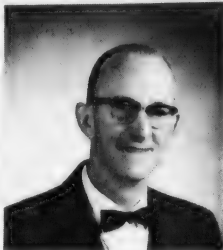

George Thompson Re-elected Weymouth Savings Bank President

At the 143rd annual meeting of the Weymouth Savings Bank held recently George H. Thompson of Weymouth was elected President and Norman J. Reilly and Thomas K. Brydson, both of Weymouth, were elected vice presidents.

Maynar W. Allard of Braintree was elected clerk of the corporation. Re-elected for a three-year term as trustees were Thomas K. Brydson and Frank Lagroterria, both of Weymouth and Dr. Vincent Pattavina, of Braintree. Three new trustees elected for a three-year term were John M. Dean of Norwood, treasurer of Weymouth Savings Bank; Dorothy G. Delano of Braintree, president of Girl Friday Services Inc.; and Kenneth F. Parry, architect, of Weymouth, president of Kenneth F. Parry & Associates Inc.

Raymond C. Warmington of Harwichport, formerly of Quincy, former treasurer of Norfolk County, retired as vice president and trustee of Weymouth Savings. He had served since 1963. He was elected honorary trustee.

President Thompson reported the bank had a growth of more than $6 million. Its deposits exceed $53 million and its assets $58 million. Approximately $3 million in dividends was paid to depositors.

GEORGE THOMPSON

A highlight of the year was opening of the new Bicentennial branch office at 295 Washington St. and the official opening of the Girl Friday 24-hour automated bank teller service.

At the quarterly meeting of trustees, the following were re-elected to the Board of Investment:

Thomas K. Brydson, president of Electric Switch Corp; Elton B. Given Jr., president of E. B. Given & Sons, Inc.; Frank Lagroterria, Weymouth town engineer; Ivan A. Nelson, retired Weymouth building inspector; Norman J. Reilly, president of Reilly's Laboratories; and George H. Thompson, president Weymouth Savings Bank.

Atty. Frederick J. Sheehan of Weymouth, was elected as a new member to the Board of Investment.

Elected to the auditing committee were Arthur J. Bilodeau, Edgar S. Cook and Atty. Richard C. Monahan.

Five new corporators were elected: Kenneth H. Almquist of Weymouth, president of Almquist Flowerland, Inc.; Eleanor T. Cooney of Cohasset, Weymouth town head librarian; Irving Gordon of Milton, president Weymouth Auto Sales; Atty. Russell A. Lucid Jr., of Norwell; and David S. MacCoy of Marshfield, assistant treasurer Weymouth Savings Bank.

Elected as honorary corporators were Ovidio D. Chiesi and Lester R. Fulton, both former members of the Board of Trustees.

The Weymouth Savings Bank now has three women corporators: Ruth P. Bosien, Dorothy G. Delano and Eleanor T. Cooney. And has for the first time in its history, elected a woman, Dorothy Delano, to the Board of Trustees.

Tribute was paid to Fred Belyea, civic leader and retired vice president of Weymouth Savings Bank, who died Aug. 22, 1975. He had been associated with the bank for 39 years.

N.E. Telephone Declares Dividend

New England Telephone directors have declared a quarterly dividend of 59 cents per share payable Thursday, April 1, 1976 to shareholders of record at the close of business Wednesday, March 10, 1976.

Alley Kats, Woodshooters In Women's Candlepin Showdown

The defending champion Alley Kats, and Woodshooters will clash in the finals of the 21st Annual South Shore Women's Candlepin Bowling Tourney Sunday at 12:30 p.m. at the Merrymount Daylight Alleys.

The stage was set Sunday as The Woodshooters defeated the Hi-Nooners 1480-1452, and the Alley Kats edged the Rag Dolls 1420-1418 in the tourney semi-finals.

June Hillier captained the Woodshooters triumph with a

Sandy Burke was top scorer for the Hi-Nooners with a 319-high three for the day, while Pat Chiavaroli followed with 290, Barbara Santry 282, Jeanette Touchette 281, and Barbara Gilfeather 280.

Pacing the Alley Kats was Leslie Levine with 306, followed by Roseann Donahue 294, and Mal Nestor 291. Tops for the losing Rag Dolls was Gail Dillon with 298, Dru Madigan 296, and Marie Tidwell 278.

Twenty-six teams were entered in the tourney. The championship team will be presented a $50 check and each girl on the winning team will be presented a trophy from tourney director Dick Koch. Awards will also be made for the tourney average, high three string total, and high tourney single.

The tourney has been sponsored each year for the past 21 by The Koch Club of Quincy as part of its winter athletic and recreation program.

Marsters, Cullen Babson Standouts

Two Quincy residents are making major contributions to the Babson College basketball team this season.

Ken Marsters of 40 Estabrook Rd. and Mike Cullen of 40 South Walnut St., both play guard and are largely responsible for Babson's winning record.

Marsters, a 1973 graduate of North Quincy High School, has started nearly every game for Babson. He is the Beavers' fourth leading scorer with an average of 7.7 points per game. Babson's leading playmaker, Marsters is averaging 5.3 assists per game.

Cullen, a converted forward, is a 1974 graduate of Quincy High School. A fiery competitor, Cullen has started some, but generally plays the sixth-man role. One of the top defensive players on the Babson team, he is averaging 6.0 points per game. Babson coach Bill Olson calls both players "hard workers who play aggressively. Both are winners."

Two weeks ago, Marsters received honorable mention on the ECAC's weekly all-star team. In a game that week against Rhode Island College, the 5-11 point man scored a career high 22 points.

Both Marsters and Cullen are dean's list students at Babson.

● Cranberry League

O'Brien Club, Hotshots

To Clash For Title

The Cranberry Basketball League playoff championship is now between Quincy's two entries, the O'Brien Club and Palmer Pub Hotshots.

The O'Briens, who finished tied with the New Bedford Continentals for first place during the regular season, stayed alive last Saturday and eliminated New Bedford, 99-87, at New Bedford.

The two Quincy teams had expected to play Sunday but the game had to be called off as the Hotshots had a prior commitment in the TARO League. Attempts were being made to play this week and a Hotshot win will give them the playoff title. A win by the O'Briens will necessitate still another game to decide the issue.

In Saturday's game at New Bedford the O'Brien Club, playing one of its best games of the year, opened up an 18-point lead in the final period. Jim O'Brien had 24 points, Gary Bowen 18, Bob McNamara 15, Rico Cabral, Mike Dunn and Allan Dalton 12 each and Gene Walcott, returning following an injury, had six points and was outstanding on the boards.

Earlier last week the O'Brien Club edged the Hotshots, 85-81.

at Boston Garden in a preliminary to the Celtics-Lakers game.

Dalton scored 20 points, Brian Hamell 17, McNamara 14, Mark Raterink 10 and Bowen nine. Ken Boyd led the Hotshots with 25 points, Ron Bradley had 14 and Jim Garvin, 12.

The O'Brien Club will be playing in two tournaments over the weekend. Friday night and Saturday afternoon it will seek its third straight North Shore Tournament title at Lynn Classical High School. The club has also entered a team made up of Quincy players from Quincy, North Quincy and B.C. High schools in the high school division. The team includes Rich Mahoney and Jay Nelson from North Quincy, Jack Uhlar, Steve Connelly and Chuck McDermott from Quincy and John McElaney and Pete Forbes from B. C. High.

Saturday and Sunday the O'Briens and Hotshots will play in the second annual Plymouth A.A. Tournament at Plymouth's Memorial Hall. In first round games Saturday the Hotshots will meet the Rise Club of Cambridge at 2 p.m. and the O'Brien Club will face Liberty Cafe of Rockland at 7. Another Quincy team, the Nets, will take on the Brockton Huskies at 4.

Criminal Justice Degree Program At QJC Planned

Quincy Junior College will begin a new Criminal Justice Associate Degree Program in September, announces Dr. Edward F. Pierce, President of the college.

A year in planning, the new program will be simultaneously instituted in both the day and evening divisions of the college. Upon completion of the program students will be awarded the Associate in Science Degree.

Designed for students interested in police work, probation work, and other criminal justice careers, the program can also be transferred to four-year schools where students can go to earn a Bachelors Degree in criminal justice.

Instrumental in planning the Criminal Justice Program has been Richard T. Mula, Dean of Continuing Education, John Mahoney, Social Health Coordinator for the Quincy Public Schools and QJC adjunct instructor and attorney, Paul A. M. Hunt, who is also Chairman of the QJC Criminal Justice Advisory Committee.

Also on the committee is Dennis S. Bartow, QJC Academic Dean, Captain Roy Cavicchi, Quincy Police Department; Edward Hannon, Director of Adult Education, Quincy Public Schools; Lt. Francis E. Mullen, Quincy Police Department, and adjunct QJC instructor, and Atty. George E. Shire.

The core curriculum for the Criminal Justice Program includes the following courses:

Introduction to Law Enforcement, Criminology, Criminal Evidence and Investigation, Police Work with Juvenile Offenders, Criminal Law, and Police Organization and Management. In addition, courses in Psychology, Communications, and the liberal arts are required to complete the 60 credits needed for an Associates Degree.

For additional information about the program contact Dean Saluti, 471-2470.

New Yoga Classes At Quincy YMCA

New Yoga classes, under the direction of Berta Nota, will be held from March 17 through May 26 with no class scheduled for March 24.

Beginners will be from 10:45 - 11:45 A.M. and 7:30 - 8:30 P.M., and continuing students will be from 9:30 - 10:30 A.M. and 8:45 - 9:45 P.M.

Classes are limited. Contact the Quincy YMCA, 479-8500 for further information. Registrations are now being accepted at the Quincy YMCA main desk 79 Coddington St., Quincy.

Colonial Organ To Present Glenn Derringer In Concert

Glenn Derringer, internationally known organist, will be in concert sponsored by the Colonial Organ and Piano Studios, 1546 Hancock St., Quincy and North Easton next Thursday (March 25) at 8 p.m. in the Canoe Club Ballroom, West Bridgewater.

Derringer, who began his professional career on the Jackie Gleason Show at the age of 9 and appeared as soloist with the Philadelphia Symphony at 10, will present a program of pop, theatre, jazz, rock and classical selections.

A graduate of Temple

University, where he compiled the third highest scholastic record in the school's history, he played for the convocation of famed cellist Pablo Casals when the latter was given an honorary degree by Temple.

Equally at home with organ or piano, Derringer has been playing Wurlitzer instruments exclusively for the past 15 years.

He has appeared on the Perry Como, Bob Hope and Ed Sullivan shows on television and once entertained a former president and vice president of the United States and members of Congress at a dinner.

Troop 186 Brownies Visit Quincy Sun

Brownies in Troop 186 of Houghs Neck visited the offices of The Quincy Sun to view the production of a newspaper firsthand.

The brownies were:

Lori Knopf, Karen Whalen, Laurie Kohut, Kelli Keefe, Audrey McManus, Nancy Mellynn, Susan McDonald, Nancy McDonald, Karen Hurley, Paula Frenette, Kathleen Frenette, Lisa Steen, Susan Browning, Sharon Steen, Michelle Smith, Denise Loud, Tracie Allan, Stacy Barsanti, Shelly Silcox. Absent from the tour was Catherine Brill and Christina Rimovite. Mrs. Rosemary Frenette, troop leader, and Mrs. Madelyn Knopf, assistant troop leader, accompanied the girls on their tour.

The girls first visited the editorial and advertising departments on the street-floor of the office. They then toured the lower level of the office where they saw a new story telling of their visit to The Quincy Sun being set by our IBM computer system. They also saw news headlines being set by a Compugraphic 7200 photo typesetting machine.

The finished story and headline were then transferred to the production department where they saw a paste-up artist fix the story into proper position on paste-up boards.

Before leaving the office, each scout received a complimentary copy of the current Quincy Sun issue.

Norfolk County Sheriff's Department Dinner April 2

The first annual Norfolk County Sheriff's Department Dinner and Ball will be held Friday, April 2, at Lantana's, Randolph.

A social hour will start at 6:30 p.m. and dinner will be at 7:30. There will be dancing until 1 a.m. Tickets are available by calling 326-7271.

Law enforcement officials, and members of the Norfolk County police departments are expected to attend. Invited guests include Atty. Gen. and Mrs. Francis X. Bellotti, Dist. Atty. and Mrs. William D. Delahunt and sheriffs from other counties.

Squantum Association Exercise Series

The Squantum Community Association is sponsoring an exercise night for women and girls once a week for 10 weeks.

The series will begin Thursday, March 18 at Mary Hall in the Star of the Sea Church. Exercising to music will be from 8 to 10 p.m. with a rest break. There will be a minimum donation. All proceeds will go to the Fourth of July Fund.

Bing Crosby, Liza Minnelli In Salute To Telephone

BING CROSBY and LIZA MINNELLI will host a musical-variety special saluting the 100th anniversary of the telephone March 26. Guests will include JOEL GREY, BEN VEREEN, MARVIN HAMLISH, ROY CLARK and STEVE LAWRENCE and EDYIE GORME. One of NBC's new television-movie projects is "Attack on the Lusitania". McLEAN STEVENSON has finally gotten a green light from NBC as far as a weekly series goes. He's set to star in a half-hour comedy called "The Prime of Life". CBS is adding a new selection of Warner Brothers cartoons to its Saturday morning line-up under the title of "Sylvester & Tweety". The network is also bringing back THE HUDSON BROTHERS after a year's hiatus... WLVI-TV [Ch. 56] will be hosting this year's Easter Seals Telethon March 27. JESS CAIN will be the local host in the Boston area. WAYNE ROGERS of "City of Angels" is National Chairman. Stars to be seen nationally during the 20-hour telethon will include TELLY SALVALAS, LUCIE ARNAZ, JAMES CAAN, BOB HOPE, ROBERT YOUNG, BETTY WHITE, PETER FALK and DESI ARNAZ JR., the first full-length "Peanuts" feature, will be shown next month on CBS... HENRY WINKLER will be back in the 50's again next week when ABC presents the film "Lord of Flatbush"... SANDY DUNCAN and DANNY KAYE's "Pinocchio" will finally be aired by CBS March 27... WBZ's PAT MITCHELL will be among those presiding over the "Summerthing" benefit on March 29 to raise funds for the recreational program... CBS has scheduled its four-hour made-for-TV movie, "Helter Skelter" for two consecutive nights in April. The film involves the Charles Manson gang... DEAN MARTIN "Roast" regular FOSTER BROOKS has been penciled in for an engagement at The South Shore Music Circus. Also destined for the Cohasset tent in the summer ahead is MITZI GAYNOR who roared through the 20's in a sizzling special last week on CBS... TOM KENNEDY is returning to a new game show called "Break The Bank"... WNAC [Ch. 7] has bought DAVID KIVEN'S new syndicated series of half-hour adventure shows narrated by the actor and shot on various locations around the world... Will TONY RANDALL have a new series soon? Randall and MTM Enterprises camera crews were shooting background shots in Philadelphia recently. The proposed ABC series would star Randall as a Philly lawyer-turned-judge... CLIFF ROBERTSON will portray astronaut BUZZ ALDRIN in ABC's "Return to Earth"... HAL HOLBROOK returns as Abraham Lincoln next month on NBC... LUCILLE BALL will star in a CBS special within the next few weeks. And speaking of Lucy, she's the most popular television star in India. The country televises very few American shows, but one of the exceptions is Lucy. Her show has become the highest-rated series in the nation, and set-owners are talking about her the way Americans did in the 50's when she was having DESI, Jr.... Group W will present "Flowers from Horseback", a 60-minute documentary drawn from film taken during a trip to China by American Congresswomen... WILLIAM CONRAD will host "The Sport of the Century" for CBS early next month. The special celebrates the 100th anniversary of baseball's National League... NBC has finally seen the last of its logo dispute. In a settlement with the Nebraska station whose logo resembled theirs, NBC is donating television equipment to the station, including a mobile van. They are also throwing in the costs of wiping out the Nebraskan logo and paying for the designing of a new one. Total cost? $500,000!

'The Overworked Miracle' On Ch. 2

By the time today's babies are middle-aged, there's a strong possibility they will have to do without one of the surest medical safeguards of all time - antibiotics. Today we take antibiotics for granted, and by doing so are steadily eroding their medical value. First considered a medical miracle, they are now losing ground to a bacterial counterattack called resistance. "Nova", on Channel 2, Sunday, Mar. 21 at 8 p.m., will discover what is being done to help solve the problem in "The Overworked Miracle". "Nova" examines the 1972 epidemic of typhoid in Mexico, one of the worst on record. Fourteen thousand people died because the drug normally used to control typhoid suddenly lost its power. Here, where drugs are cheaper than doctors, antibiotics are sold over the counter without prescriptions.

The Mexican case is one dramatic example of what can happen if some sort of rationality is not applied in the use of antibiotics. And the problem is becoming an increasingly urgent one. Because whoever you are, wherever you are, the failure of antibiotics will affect you.

2 P.M. Ceremonies

Ground To Be Broken Saturday For Freedom Park

Ground will be broken Saturday at 2 p.m. for the long-awaited Freedom Park, a strip of green between Upland Ave. and the MBTA tracks in Quincy Center.

"We would like all the many citizens of Quincy who attended the many hearings and meetings to take part in the ground-breaking," said Dr. Donald C. MacLeod, president of Freedom Park Association, which worked 2½ years for this day.

After the ceremonies, there will be a social hour at the Quincy Historical Society in the Adams Academy near the park.

Dr. MacLeod said it was decided during recent meetings with Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia, Council President Arthur H. Tobin, Councilor John J. Lydon and Rep. Thomas Brownell [D-Quincy] to complete the park by July 4, 1976.

The park, 1,200 feet long by 90 feet wide, is designed to be a link in a "green necklace" connecting Adams Academy to the Adams National Historic Site, two of the most historic locations in the city.

Said V. Michael Weinmayr, the landscape architect who laid out the park:

"Frederick Law Olmsted is known to many as the father of great urban parks in America.

"Were he with us today, he would be proud to work with Quincy's citizens in rescuing a bit of urban real estate and nurturing it into a portrait of natural beauty.

"The casual stroller through the new Freedom Park will have his hurrying and work-a-day life calmed and refreshed by the beauty which nature can amply provide."

The park is to be buffered from the busy subway line by a stand of 200 evergreen trees, representing 200 years of freedom.

Civic groups that have been involved in Freedom Park include:

The Quincy Women's Club, Wollaston Garden Club, Wollaston Women's Club, Squantum Seaside Gardens, Quincy Historical Society, League of Women Voters, St. Moritz Association, Quincy Veterans Council, Quincy Taxpayers Association.

South West Community Council, Quincy Citizens Association, South Quincy Civic Association, President's Cranch Hill Association, Wollaston Park Association, Quincy Heritage and Freedom Park Association.

200 YEARS LATER -- South Shore 'militiamen' reenact their role in the siege that drove the British from Boston on March 17, 1776, during Evacuation Day ceremonies in Squantum Saturday. Similar demonstrations took place in Dorchester and South Boston.

Sheets Proposes '250 Fine For Illegal Dumping

Illegal dumping in the city disposal area will bring a $250 fine if City Councillor and State Rep. James A. Sheets has his way.

Sheets has a bill before the State Legislature that would permit the city to boost the penalty from $20 to $250.

"A $20 fine is certainly not a deterrent," Sheets told the City Council Monday night.

And the Council agreed, passing a resolution that urged approval of the bill.

Quincy that they wholeheartedly oppose the station."

Backed by that unanimity, Burke said he personally asked the head of the Urban Mass Transportation Administration to take another look at the agency's position.

Since then, said Burke, he has "received indications that local opposition to the station is less than unanimous."

"Before I take any further action," he added, "I am asking each official to reiterate his or her stand on this issue."

And reiterate they did.

City Councillor Paul Harold called Burke's Washington office to assure him that he was still opposed to the station. He added:

"The more time I've had to consider this issue and the more information that is made available, the more convinced I am that construction of a station in South Quincy is not justifiable."

Meanwhile, Mayor LaRaia, through Salenius, was frantically reiterating his own position.

"Mayor LaRaia's stand on the South Quincy station has not changed," Salenius told anyone who would listen. "He is still opposed to the station. He will continue to oppose it."

Former Councillor's Son

Stephen Anderson Appointed Assistant Hospital Director

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia has announced the appointment of Stephen Anderson, 34, son of former City Councillor Carl W. Anderson, to the post of assistant director of professional services at City Hospital, effective Monday [March 29].

"With the problems we have been having up at the hospital," said LaRaia, "we need strong control to be exerted by the administration. It requires managerial talent. Mr. Anderson has it."

Anderson, 34, who lives with his wife and two children at 11 River St., Quincy Point, has a long background in hospital administration.

His last post was with the Hospital Corporation of America in Nashville, Tenn.

Prior to that he was administrator of the Carlsbad, N.M., Regional Medical Center, associate executive director of the King Faisal Specialist Hospital in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, administrator of the Jamestown, N.Y., General Hospital.

Assistant executive director of the Jersey City Medical Center, assistant administrator of Martland Hospital College of Medicine and Dentistry in Newark, N.J., and associate director of St. Luke's Hospital, New Bedford.

He began his career as an orderly and later chemistry technician at Quincy City Hospital.

Anderson is a graduate of Thayer Academy in Braintree and Eastern Nazarene College and has a master's degree from Xavier University in Cincinnati.

A Victory In Quincy Court

They're Now A Little More Aware Of American Party

Joseph C. Harvey is a short, slightly rumped man who lives in West Yarmouth and devotes his spare time to the American Party and gets a little flustered when judges and lawyers throw their legalisms at him.

But he is a stubborn man with a strong sense of injustice and, as a result, he and the American Party won a minor victory in Quincy District Court Friday as Judge Albert Kramer's inquest turned to a special jury election of last Nov. 18.

It didn't change the results of the election in which James A. Sheets won the Democratic and Republican nominations for state rep and Democrat Joseph E. Killion won the spot on the final ballot reserved for the American Party candidate.

But it made a few people a little more aware of the American Party and it made a lot of election workers a lot more aware of their responsibilities at the polls on election day.

It was the first time that the American Party had a ballot of its very own in a primary election and its own candidate, Joseph Higuera, in the race to succeed William D. Delahunt as representative from the First Norfolk District.

Unfortunately, Higuera's name was not on the American Party ballot because the party did not have a single enrolled member in Quincy, not even Higuera. The ballot was blank for write-ins, leaving the spot up for grabs.

Killion wound up winner with 15 American Party votes to 17 for Sheets and four for Higuera.

There were 40 American Party ballots given out to voters and Harvey wondered why 20 of them were passed out in Ward 5

Legislators Concerned

S. Quincy MBTA Opposition May Be Wobbling

By TOM HENSHAW

Is the solid front of South Shore public officials allied against the proposed South Quincy MBTA station beginning to wobble a little bit?

Eight members of the State Legislature, supporters of a bill that would specifically ban construction of the station, appear to be concerned about it.

They fired off letters last week to Congressman James A. Burke and Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia, the Quincy City Council and Braintree officials asking for a show of force in lobbying for the measure, known as Bill 790.

"We shall be forced to interpret the failure of any elected official to show up as indicative of a vacillating stand on the issue," the letter said.

It was signed by Reps. Thomas F. Brownell, Robert A. Cerasoli, Joseph E. Brett, James A. Sheets, all of Quincy, Elizabeth N. Metayer of Braintree, Andrew H. Card of Holbrook, Daniel J. Hendemon of Hull, and Joseph Manning of Milton.

"I'll appear and speak for the bill," said Mayor LaRaia. "I told Mrs. Metayer that. But obviously my purpose in being there will be to oppose the South Quincy station. That's all. Where it goes beyond that is up to the Urban Mass Transit Administration [UMTA] to decide."

Where it goes beyond that is worrying other people too.

The master plan for the MBTA's Red Line calls for a station in South Braintree near where the Southeast Expressway [Route 3] crosses Union St.

One section of Bill 790 authorized and directed the MBTA "to construct a rapid transit station after the Quincy Center Station on land abutting Union St. and Route 3 in the town of Braintree in that area known as the dump site."

That section of the bill was deleted at the behest of Braintree selectmen, and the deletion upset Congressman Burke, who declined to appear to lobby for the bill.

In letters to the state representatives, Burke said:

"In my 17 years of service here in Washington, I have never interfered with the deliberations of the General Court [of Massachusetts], and I certainly have no intention of violating that policy."

"My position on this matter has been clear and consistent from the very start, but I will reiterate it: the decision as to where the station is located must be made locally."

"If there is truly unanimous opposition to the South Quincy location, I will back that decision with the UMTA."

"I firmly believe, however, that mass transit must continue southward and it is for this reason that I am interested in recent action that was taken at the State House on Bill 790."

"It would appear that the Foot Patrolmen Assigned To S-W Quincy Areas

Foot patrolmen have been assigned on a permanent basis in the areas of Dobie's and Brewer's Corners in South and Southwest Quincy as a result of a joint effort by Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets and Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia.

The foot patrolmen have been assigned on a permanent basis. It is hoped, LaRaia and Sheets said, that the new security will reduce breaking and entering incidents in the Dobie's Corner area, vandalism in the area of the Lincoln-Hancock School, and drinking in the Kincaide Field area.

Precinct 3 at the Wollaston Methodist Church and 10 in Ward 4 Precinct 3 at Morrisette Legion post.

When he asked to see the voting list to discover the identity of his fellow party members, he was told by City Clerk John Gillis, correctly, that it had been sealed for 30 days with the ballots. State Secretary, Paul Guzzi, backed up Gillis.

It was not until after the final election, won by "Democrat-Republican" Sheets over "American" Killion, that Harvey got the voting list and, with it, something else to wonder about.

Most of the "Americans" he contacted had no idea they were writing the names of Sheets or Killion on an American party ballot.

State Police Lt. Gordon Clarkson, who later investigated Harvey's complaint, testified that he contacted 29 of the 40 voters who took American Party ballots and 22 of them said they neither asked for nor wanted them.

One of them, Mrs. Joan Lemieux of 15 Albion Rd., Wollaston, who voted in Ward 5

MORE LNG'S -- Two more liquefied natural gas tankers will be built at General Dynamics Quincy shipyard, under a partnership agreement among GD, Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co., and Moore-McCormack Bulk Transport, Inc. The shipyard has eight others under construction or awaiting construction.

Brings Total To 10

General Dynamics To Build Two More LNG Tankers

General Dynamics Corp. has entered into an agreement not only to build two more liquefied natural gas (LNG) tankers but to retain 40 per cent of the business when the ships begin transporting gas between Algeria and Louisiana.

GD's partners will be the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co. [40 per cent] and the Moore-McCormack Bulk Transport Inc. [20 per cent], which will operate the ships for the partnership.

The ships would be built at General Dynamics Quincy shipyard under a federal ship construction differential subsidy with bond guaranteed by the United States government under the Merchant Marine Act of 1936.

Deliveries of 165 billion cubic feet of gas a year to Lake Charles, La., under a gas purchase contract completed in Sept. 1975 between Panhandle and Sonatch, the national oil and gas company of Algeria, are expected to begin in 1980.

The two Quincy-built tankers will handle about 40 per cent of the annual volume with the rest coming in ships provided by Sonatch.

The ships, identical to the eight others under construction or awaiting construction at the Quincy shipyard, will have a capacity of 125,000 cubic meters of gas each and will be more than 900 feet in length.

Panhandle supplies natural gas to customers in Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan.

Over 200 At Freedom Park Ground Breaking

More than 200, including Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia and State Secretary Paul Guzzi, attended ground-breaking ceremonies Saturday for Freedom Park, a strip of land along Upland Rd that is to remain forever green.

The park, scheduled to be completed by July 4, 1976, is 1,200 feet long by 90 feet wide and designed to be a link in a "necklace of green" connecting Adams Academy and the Adams National Historic Site.

Mayor LaRaia and Secretary Guzzi were among nine speakers on the program, which included Lola Dickerman of Quincy, secretary for consumer affairs, and Lawrence Gall, historian for the National Park Service.

Other speakers were Sen. Arthur H. Tobin, Rep. Thomas Brownell, who is also vice president of the Freedom Park Association, City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr., and Rep. Joseph E. Brett, representing the Massachusetts Bicentennial Commission.

Also present were former Mayors James McIntyre and Thomas Burgin, V. Michael Weinmayr, the park's architect, and Pasquale Calicco of Quincy, contractor for the first phase of work on the park.

Bids will be opened March 31 to determine a contractor for the second phase.

Dr. Donald C. MacLeod, president of Freedom Park Association, coordinated the 30-minute ceremony.

Koch Resigns From Municipal Credit Union Board

Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Quincy Recreation-Park Board, has submitted his resignation as a member of the Quincy Municipal Credit Union.

Koch said he resigned because of a too active schedule of meetings of other organizations to which he belongs.

The resignation, was made in a letter to Union President John M. Bille, was effective March 19.

Koch was elected to his first three-year term in 1972 and re-elected to a second term last year. His term has two years to go.

The Automatic Auto Loan.

Picking out a brand new car these days is no simple task. Not with the wide range of domestic and foreign models from which to choose.

But selecting an auto loan that suits your budget and convenience is a whole lot easier than it used to be — thanks to Norfolk's Customer Option Auto Loan.

You select the new or used car you'd like to buy and determine exactly what you want to pay for it. Then stop in at any Norfolk office for the amount you need. Approval will be given promptly. It's that simple.

An Auto Loan from Norfolk is the best way to finance your auto for a number of reasons.

For one thing it's based on simple interest — which can save you money in the long run.

What's more; you can take a Payment Holiday and skip a payment from time to time without paying a penalty. And the payments on your loan can be made any day of the month you wish.

You can also earn a preferred rate by having your payments automatically deducted from your Norfolk checking account.

Now that you've decided on a new car, wouldn't you rather have a Customer Option Auto Loan?

'Women And Assertiveness' Workshop Topic Thursday

Topic of the third "Workshop for Women" tonight (Thursday) sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women and the Quincy Public Library will be "Women and Assertiveness".

Women have traditionally assumed a passive role in relationships with the world.

The concept of self-assertion enables women to overcome feelings of helplessness, anger, and depression, and evolve an active orientation.

The public is invited to learn some techniques of self-assertion. The workshop will start at 8 p.m. at the Adams Shore Branch, Thomas Crane Public Library, 516 Sea St.

Helpful Hints On Dieting Via Diet Workshop

Anyone who has ever been overweight has hoped somehow to effortlessly, magically become instantly thin.

However, for most mortals, losing weight involves no magic—just a good deal of patience and perseverance along with the hard work of giving up many of our favorite treats.

Lois Lindauer, founder and International Director of The Diet Workshop, has some dieting tips designed to make losing weight a lot easier. The following suggestions have been excerpted from the April issue of the "Ladies' Home Journal" which is featuring the first in a series of articles on dieting by Miss Lindauer.

● Beware of the deceivers—a tossed green salad isn't dietetic when it's dressed in 260 calories of oil and vinegar.

● Tunafish mixed with mayonnaise at 102 calories a tablespoon is no calorie bargain. Use tuna packed in water with a low-calorie dressing.

● Be stingy with your calories when you contemplate butter, sour cream, cookies, candies, cake, etc.

● Being a dieter means you should not have to feel deprived. Splurge calories freely on vegetables at lunch and dinner or as between-meal snacks.

● Fresh fruits and diet sodas assuage a troublesome sweet tooth.

● Occasionally treat yourself to ice milk at a one-third calorie saving over ice cream. For every high-calorie item there is usually a low-calorie substitute.

● Reward yourself often with something other than food, such as a trip to the movies, a new outfit or an afternoon off.

For free recipes featuring low-calorie food, send a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope to The Diet Workshop, 11 Riverside Ave., Medford, Ma. 02155

Louise Forsyth Elected ASCA President

Miss Louise B. Forsyth of Quincy has been elected president-elect of the American School Counselor Association (ASCA), defeating candidates from Idaho and Virginia.

Miss Forsyth, who is the coordinator of testing for the Quincy Public Schools, served as head counselor at Atlantic Junior High School, counselor at North Quincy High School, and teacher-counselor at South [now Sterling] Junior High School.

She has been active in professional affairs and currently is coordinator of public relations for ASCA, the national professional association for counselors working from elementary schools to college level.

She is a past president and former executive secretary of the Massachusetts School Counselors Association (MSCA) and also has been secretary and treasurer of the state organization. She is a past president of the South Shore Guidance Association and has held leadership roles in the Massachusetts Personnel & Guidance Association and the New England Guidance Conference.

In 1973 she was honored at the national level as School Counselor of the Year, Guidance Administrator of the Year and for excellence in professional writing. The same year she received the Distinguished Leadership Award of the Massachusetts School Counselors Association and the Outstanding Leadership Award of the South Shore Guidance Association.

In 1974 she was the recipient of the Woman of Achievement Award of the Business and Professional Women's Club.

As ASCA's coordinator of public relations, she has been involved in conducting public relations workshops for counselors in many states including Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Florida, North Carolina, New Jersey, Louisiana, New York, and Maine. She is the author of the ASCA Public Relations Workshop Kit which is used throughout the United States by counselor groups.

Locally, Miss Forsyth has held leadership roles at Bethany Congregational Church, serving as church clerk and as moderator; in the latter role she was the first woman in the 140 year history of the church to hold that office.

She will serve as a member of the ASCA governing board for three years: 1976-1977 as president-elect; 1977-1978 as president; and 1978-1979 as past president.

She is the third Massachusetts person elected to the presidency of ASCA, others being Dr. Edward Landy, former director of guidance in Newton; and Dr. Henry Isaacson, at one time director of guidance in Lexington and professor at Boston University.

Kathleen Pucci Marketing Rep.

Royal-Globe Insurance Companies announce the appointment of Mrs. Kathleen Pucci of Quincy as marketing representative for the Massachusetts territory which consists of Norfolk and Northern Plymouth counties.

She will be headquartered in the Boston office.

Mrs. Pucci joined Royal-Globe in 1975 in the Boston office.

Sister Mary Louise Morgan Aquinas Junior College President

The Trustees of Aquinas Junior College have named Sister Mary Louise Morgan President of Aquinas Junior College, Milton.

Sister Mary Louise Morgan is a member of the Congregation of the Sisters of St. Joseph of Boston. She has been acting president for the past academic year.

Sister received her degrees from Regis College and Boston University. She has been associated with Aquinas for many years as a teacher in the secretarial science program, serving part-time in an administrative capacity, as Director of Admissions for four years during a turbulent era in college admissions, she had an excellent opportunity to recognize the contribution of the junior college in the educational world of the 21st century.

SISTER MARY L. MORGAN

Sister Mary Louise sees her primary task to be one of a catalyst for the expansion of the career-oriented programs that are both growing and changing at Aquinas. She envisions Aquinas as an institution that seeks new ways of educating for the 21st century. Sister believed that an educational institution has a responsibility to aid the individual student to acquire knowledge and develop those values by which she can shape her personal and professional future.

Sister Mary Louise holds membership in the following organizations:

Delta Pi Epsilon, Epsilon Chapter, Pi Lambda Theta, both Boston University; New England Association of College Admission Counselors; New England Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admission Officers; National Business Education Association; Massachusetts Business Education Association; New England Business Educator Association; Member, Executive Board Massachusetts Association of Business Schools.

'Emerging Awareness: Woman Becoming' NU Chapter Topic

"Emerging Awareness: Woman Becoming" will be the topic of Dr. J. Patricia Marsh, Department of Staff Development, Boston Public Schools, at an open meeting of Nu Chapter, Delta Kappa Gamma, April 1, at 8 p.m. at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School.

Dr. Marsh, who is also an assistant professor at Emmanuel College, is speaking at the second annual educational lecture sponsored by the local chapter of the honorary society for women in education which includes educators from Quincy, Milton, Braintree and Weymouth. The meeting is open to the public.

Chairing the committee planning the program is Miss Ruth Waring assisted by Miss Ruth Abbiatti, Miss Mary DiBartolomeo, Miss Florence Reed and Mrs. Jeanette Ziegler. President of Nu Chapter is Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, Director of Pupil Personnel Services, Quincy Public Schools.

AFS Seeking Host Families for Foreign Students

American Field Service is seeking families in Quincy who are willing to share their homes with a high school student from a foreign country for the next school year. The students come to the United States on AFS International Scholarships and, for the past 10 years, youngsters from Quincy have been spending a school year abroad. Host families, the AFS points out, need not have "money, status or influence - only love, a concern for people and a willingness to share."

Information on the program is available by calling Quincy High School, 471-4025, extension 379.

Students Attend Safety Seminar

The conference, moderated by Francis X. Colleton, director of the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau, was designed to form a youth oriented group to help in highway safety efforts.

Three seniors, Joanne Cirino, Carol Campbell and Elaine Cirillo, represented Quincy High School at the recent Governor's Highway Safety Bureau Youth Seminar at the Statler Hilton Hotel in Boston.

Can Blaze Trails

Q. I was born on August 17, 1939 at 12:05 a.m. in Providence, R.I. I am presently employed as a computer technician and have been doing this work for twelve years. I pride myself on being able to do well at all I attempt and yet I do not feel that I have and possibly will accomplish much.

I would like to know if your interpretation of my stars and planets can give me a hint on what course to take. I feel I should be blazing trails and yet I cannot sustain direction or purpose. Is this the way I am or is it a matter of discipline and sacrifice?

R.H.

A. Your intellectual talents should enable you to achieve your greatest success. Deep down inside you tend to permit your feelings to undermine your faith in yourself. Take your cue from Muhammad Ali, current Heavyweight World Boxing Champion. He is fully aware of his ability. He does not permit any negative feelings or thoughts to weaken his desires and ambitions.

Your Sun Sign is Leo indicative of your being sensitive to the effect you make upon others and therefore a desire to "blaze trails". Your Ascendant, Sign of the Zodiac rising in the east at the moment of your birth, was in Gemini and it's ruler Mercury was also in Leo.

This indicates your creative urge is strong. Subliminate your dreams of adventure towards intellectual endeavors. Concentrate on such and your highly original ideas should find new uses and methods that will accomplish much and be recognized.

Both planets Saturn and Uranus were in your Twelve House. These positions warn that poor sleeping habits and a lack of sufficient relaxation could seriously affect the achievement of your objectives.

Finally there are indications you are hypersensitive. Disassociate yourself from things. You are apt to take offense at imagined as well as real slights. In time you will be able to sustain direction, have your intellectual capabilities recognized and will be rewarded.

For questions to be answered through this column, mail the year, month, day of the month, city of birth, time of day if known and question to Ask Oscar, Box 114, Canton, Mass. 02021. Please send your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered in this column.

Ronald Iacobucci

B.C. Undergraduate President

Ronald P. Iacobucci of 10 Hyde St., South Quincy was recently elected president of the Undergraduate Government at Boston College.

A junior majoring in political science and speech communication he will serve a one-year term working with 8,400 undergraduates and a $200,000 budget.

Iacobucci is a 1973 graduate of Quincy High School where he received the Reuben A. and Lizzie Grossman Leadership and Service Award and the Massachusetts Elks Leadership Award. He was also the president of the student council.

While in high school, Iacobucci was the first student in the history of Massachusetts to draft legislation that was signed into law. He is the author of the voter registration law which allows students to register to vote in their high schools and vocational schools. He drafted the legislation while interning with Sen. Arthur H. Tobin. The bill was signed into law on July 2, 1973 by former Gov. Francis

W. Sargent.

Iacobucci interned in Washington, D.C. with Congressman James A. Burke during the summer of 1974. He has also covered the State House and elections for The Quincy Sun. Last summer Iacobucci worked on the staff of Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill III, where he handled various constituent services.

100th Birthday Feature

Quincy Telephone Office Hosting

Open House Party At 1070 Hancock St.

New England Telephone is celebrating the 100th birthday of the telephone - and the public is invited to the party.

The company will hold open house Thursday, March 25 at 1070 Hancock St., from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. The event commemorates the 100th anniversary of the first telephone "call", transmitted by Alexander Graham Bell to Thomas Watson in Bell's Boston attic workshop.

Local telephone manager Donald Buron said, "This is a historic year for the telephone and our country, and we are holding the open house for all interested visitors so that they can meet our employees and see the development of the telephone and the role it has played in our nation's history in the past 100 years."

Buron said that highlights of the evening's program will be a demonstration of the switching equipment which speeds customers' calls.

Among the other displays are:

- A special presentation of the show "Science is Not Magic", demonstrating how sound is transmitted over a beam of light - or by light carried through glass fiber. This technique was developed by Bell Laboratories, the research and development unit of the Bell System.
- A film, "Second to None", providing a fast-paced behind-the-scenes look at the nationwide telecommunications network, its systems and services, and the people who keep it running.
- An exhibit showing how telephone cable is spliced.
- A centennial display depicting 100 years of progress, showing early telephones, some of the newest phones available today, and color photos of what Bell Laboratories scientists envision for the future.

TELEPHONE OPEN HOUSE - Transmitting sound over a beam of light will be one of the displays at New England Telephone's open house Thursday, March 25. The event, which marks the 100th birthday of the telephone, will be held at the company's switching center at 1070 Hancock St., Quincy, from 6 to 9 p.m. The public is invited to visit the phone company that evening to tour the building, see films and exhibits on the development of the telephone and the role it has played in the nation's history, and meet local telephone employees.

"We hope that many people will want to bring their families and be our guests for this special evening," Buron said.

Massachusetts Legion Honors Congressman Burke

The Massachusetts Department of the American Legion held a Congressional Luncheon recently in honor of Congressman James A. Burke of Massachusetts' 11th Congressional District.

In a dining room in the U.S. Capitol Building, Commander John P. Comer, of Quincy, and Adjutant John Swift, on behalf of the Massachusetts American Legion, presented Burke with the annual Award of Merit, signifying the Congressman's continued association and support of legislation benefiting all American veterans.

Congressman Burke said the award was "certainly one of the most distinguished accolades" he has received in his years of Congressional service. He praised the Massachusetts American Legion for its leadership and community action.

In addition to members of the Massachusetts Legion who were in Washington for their annual Convention, Burke was honored at the luncheon by Massachusetts colleagues of both the Senate and House of Representatives.

George Santry Elected

George Santry of Quincy, was recently elected secretary of the Massachusetts Maritime Academy Alumni Association.

Francis G. Scully of Dorchester was elected president, Ralph Church of Marblehead, vice-president, and Richard Covel of Braintree, treasurer.

'Grandpa Moses' Art Exhibit At N.Q. Library

Art work by Gideon Cohen is on display at the North Quincy branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library for the remainder of the month during regular library hours.

Cohen, 82, recently displayed some of his work in Washington, D.C., and plans are being made for a show in Symphony Hall in the near future.

Cohen started his career in art when he retired from the fur business at age 70, and still walks from Arlington to the DeCordova Museum, Lincoln.

In a recent feature article in the Christian Science Monitor, he was named the "Grandpa Moses" of Arlington.

Hi, Quincy!

We're having an Open House!

Won't you come and call on us?

We're marking the Centennial Year of the telephone; and you're invited to help us celebrate. You'll see just how your telephone system works... how sound is transmitted on a beam of light... how telephone people splice wire so your voice will go anywhere in the world... a display of 100 years of the telephone... and all kinds of interesting things.

Please come, with your family and friends. Light refreshments will be served. We're looking forward to seeing you! Won't you "call on us"?

Ruth In The Raw! (?)

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Ruth Gordon, Quincy's First Lady of the Theater, shocked local friends in a recent Earl Wilson column.

Wilson reported she confided to him she briefly considered going nude for a centerfold to publicize a movie. He quotes her:

"One reason we didn't was it was damned cold and then Garson Kanin [her husband] stepped in and said, 'What's going on here?'"

"I said, 'Let's wait a while and we can get more money for it! My price is going up.'"

Though a young looking 79...we hope she was only kidding. Tell us you were, Ruth.

AND, MEMBERS OF the Quincy Historical Society aren't going to be too happy if they catch up with a recent feature in the Providence Sunday Journal.

The story concerns the Peter Flint house in Foster, R.I. that "plays" the role of the John Adams birthplace in the highly acclaimed TV series, "The Adams Chronicles."

In the first segments of the series, it serves as the early home of the newly married John and Abigail Adams.

Ed Wittstein, production designer for the series, is quoted in the article as saying that "the original Brintree farm inherited by John Adams" from his father was impossible to use because:

"...there's a lot of highway traffic around it now and it has not been preserved. Peter's house is actually in much better shape and looks like what John Adams would have had."

Them's fighting words, Ed, ol, boy. True the real house in Quincy does sit close to the street but it's in good shape and well preserved and cared for by the Quincy Historical Society.

The Flint house actually only resembles the John Adams birthplace [and John Quincy Adams birthplace]. And there's one boo-boo wrong with it: It's shingled while the Adams houses have clapboards.

But that's show biz.

SEEMS TO BE a second generation political movement underway in Quincy. Last week we noted that Richard Koch Jr., son of the Koch Club founder and Mark Gillis, son of City Clerk John Gillis, were elected to the Ward 2 and Ward 6 Democratic City Committees respectively.

But looking the names over, we later discovered another familiar one: Charles L. Shea, III elected to the, Ward 1 Democratic Committee. He, of course, is the son of City Auditor Charles Shea, a former city councillor and state representative. Young Shea, incidentally, portrayed the Easter bunny in last year's downtown promotion that jammed wall-to-wall people along Hancock St.

AND DID YOU notice that Lillian McIntyre won a Ward 5 Democratic Committee seat as a write-in candidate? She's the mother of former Mayor-Senator James McIntyre.

SPEAKING OF KOCH, Sr. he might have a new political dynasty in the making. He topped the Ward 6 Democratic Committee field. Son, Richard Jr., 20, was fourth. Daughter, Mrs. Linda Bowes, 22, also finished a strong winner. And young, Tom, 13, looks like a comer. He was recently elected president of his grade seven homeroom at Sacred Heart School, North Quincy.

Incidentally, another son, S/4 Joseph Koch, assigned to Fort Bragg, North Carolina is also politically oriented. And he didn't miss the chance to vote for Pop, brother Dick and sister, Linda, by absentee ballot.

TIM BARROW, former mayor of Phoenix, Ariz., and former speaker of the Arizona House of Representatives, attended last week's City Council meeting as a guest of Councillor Paul Harold. Barrow is presently a fellow at the Kennedy Institute of Politics at Harvard where Harold is enrolled in his seminar on city government.

REP. JOSEPH BRETT has been elected president of the Massachusetts Legislators Association. He'll be installed at ceremonies in the House Chamber, May 19.

NOW WE'RE REBELS: D. D. Gladstone of Haviland St., Wollaston, sends along an item in a recent issue of Engineering News-Record, the McGraw-Hill Publication:

"Undoing the Boston Tea Party—
The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is considering a 10-year, $800-million plan to clean up Boston's seriously polluted harbor, but the program is running into opposition from a group of rebels from the Quincy Bay area. They fear that 26 acres of the bay may be filled in to create a site for a secondary sewage treatment plant. No firm engineering decisions have yet been made, but the program was scheduled to begin by September, 1977."

So, you're a rebel, Leo Kelly, Dennis Harrington, Tom Brownell, Arthur Tobin, Joe LaRaia, etc.

American Party Wins Victory

Precinct 3, said she learned for the first time that he had been an American Party voter when a State Police sergeant called to ask her about it.

"I consider myself an independent," she testified, "but I had a person in mind to vote for."

"They handed me a ballot with no names on it. I thought that was strange but it was a special election and I thought that was why. So I just wrote in the name of the man I wanted."

Mrs. Lemieux said she had never voted in a primary before and that she had "heard the American Party mentioned but I didn't pay much attention to it."

Mrs. Marion Sulger of 24 Briggs St., Wollaston, an inspector at Ward 5 Precinct 3, testified she gave American Party ballots to independent voters "for several hours" on primary day.

"We had no instructions," said Mrs. Sulger. "I wondered why there was a third ballot. I never knew about the American Party and I've been a poll worker for almost 20 years."

She said shortly after the polls opened Guy Faiella, chairman of the city Board of Registrars, brought around a woman from the State Secretary's office and, as they were leaving, the woman told her "if no one asks for a Republican or Democratic ballot, give them one of these [American ballots]."

She said she did so until the precinct warden, Mrs. Helen Gallahue of 3 South Central Ave., Wollaston, came back from lunch and told her that the American Party was indeed a party, a fact she learned in conversation with her son.

They called City Clerk Gillis, Mrs. Sulger said, and he came down to the polls and straightened the matter out.

Mrs. Betty Parnes, supervisor of election information in the State Secretary's office, identified herself as the woman Faiella brought around to the polls but she denied telling workers to give American Party ballots to independents.

She said in one precinct she found workers giving American Party ballots to unenrolled voters and she reported it to Gillis who said he would go out immediately and correct the procedure.

Similar confusion existed in Ward 4 Precinct 3 where an inspector, Mrs. Viola Rose, testified that a lot of people thought the American Party ballot was for the unenrolled.

"There should have been specific instructions about it," she said.

Harvey pointed out to the inquest that Killion accepted the American Party spot on the ballot in the final election while denying the party's principles and rejecting its support.

But, Harvey added, he had no evidence that the errors were made deliberately to favor Killion.

"The small number of votes makes it look insignificant," he said. "But our ballot was given to a man [Killion] who did not earn it, who did not want it. And our man, Joe Higuera, was denied it."

Both Asst. Dist. Atty. Charles Hely, who presented the case, and Judge Kramer, agreed with him.

"It may seem like an insignificant party," said Hely, "but the American Party does have a right to have its primary fairly and honestly determined free from error that takes away the impact of those who intend to vote."

"Those who intended to vote were overwhelmed by those who did not intend to take part in the primary."

"There are two reasons why a party wishes to be on the ballot," said Judge Kramer. "One is to try to win the election; the other is to present a platform so that the issues can be discussed by placing a candidate on the ballot."

"Members of the American Party were deprived of their opportunity to discuss the issues. The voice of the American Party was stopped and it cannot be retrieved. This is a denial of freedom of speech."

"It is also possible that 30 voters may have given up their cherished right to vote in the Democratic party. Their vote went to a party they never intended to vote for."

Judge Kramer noted that Sheets defeated Killion by less than 200 votes in the Democratic primary.

"The difference could have been 15 votes," he said. "That means that these errors in handling American Party ballots would have determined who the state representative would be in this community."

deletion of the provision for a station in South Brintree would effectively preclude continuation of the Red Line past Quincy Center—a situation that would be disastrous for mass transit on the South Shore.

Rep. Metayer's reply to that was that Brintree selectmen wanted the section removed because "it would tie the town down to a specific site when in fact the MBTA is considering four sites, one of which is not in the dump area."

Mayor LaRaia, too, expressed concern about the deletion of the South Brintree section of Bill 790.

"As far as I'm concerned," he said, "the issue is not opposition to mass transit. It is where the next station is going to be."

"We definitely have to get the terminal of the Red Line out of Quincy Center. Obviously, the whole concept of mass transit will be defeated if it doesn't go farther south."

"It will have to go beyond in order to satisfy the requirement that it move people in and out of the hub city and reduce traffic on the streets and congestion around the bottleneck in Quincy Center station."

"That is why I will appear and speak for the bill but only to oppose the South Quincy station, that's all."

The bill, as it now reads in its entirety, says:

"The Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority shall not construct a rapid transit station in the area known as South Quincy."

It has been reported favorably out of the Committee on Transportation but no date has been set for floor debate in the House.

One of Congressman Burke's considerations in playing down his support of Bill 790 may be the opposition of organized labor, which has reacted strongly in favor of the South Quincy station.

One of Burke's bastions of support in the 11th District is organized labor.

Carmine D'Olimpio of the Building Trades Council, in testimony before the Transportation Committee, warned that not all proponents of Bill 790 are against only the South Quincy station.

Noting deletion of the South Brintree station section of the bill, he added:

"Some people and the officials in the town of Brintree opposed the South Quincy site and said they supported a South Brintree station at the dump site."

"Now they think they have the South Quincy Station licked, they are withdrawing their support of the South Brintree station."

Navy 'Scuttles' Cruiser At Fore River

By TOM HENSHAW

The U.S. Navy announced plans to cease work on the cruiser USS Manchester, which was 90 per cent completed at the Bethlehem Steel Co.'s Fore River Shipyard. Nearly $25 million had been spent on the ship.

Other victims of the post-war cutback in naval construction included the cruisers USS Salem and USS Dallas, on which the Navy had spent some $10 million.

Rear Adm. Felix X. Gyag, retiring commandant of the First Naval District, said the Navy can do nothing to halt cancellation of the contracts "because the Navy just doesn't have the funds."

"The Navy is not building anymore," he said. "It is picking out the ships that are the least far along and scrapping them."

"It may be that the Fore River yard may have to be used for other purposes rather than shipbuilding."

'DEATH ALLEY' SCORED

Mayor Charles A. Ross ordered an immediate police survey of a section of Sea St. in Merrymount and Adams Shore that had come to be called "Death Alley" because of numerous auto and street car accidents.

The Eastern Mass Street Railway Co. served notice that it will discontinue its trolleys from Quincy Sq. to Houghs Neck since many persons have been injured crossing the street to board the street cars.

HOUSING FOR VETS

The city received a contract from the federal government to provide 150 temporary dwelling units for veterans in Quincy to relieve a critical housing shortage.

Mayor Ross said the units would probably be constructed on Canal St. in the rear of the Stop and Shop Supermarket and on the Monroe Playground near Pond St.

He said the average rent probably would be $30 a month.

"I guess I'm your accomplice in crime," she said Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower told her.

A REGIONAL ECONOMY

Growth Policy Should Reflect Economics

By ERIC SWIDER

The process of developing growth policy at the local level should be a primary concern of all straight thinking people.

From the little I've seen, I'm afraid that not enough proponents of economic prosperity are signing up to work on their local groups. The end result, if economic understanding is not a part of the process, would be a non-growth statement.

The Wetmore-McKinnon Act charges each community to form a Growth Policy committee [by January 22] and have their final report into the State [that's optional, we believe] by May 22. No guidelines for their operations have yet been established so most groups are pretty much playing it by ear.

Chamber members in Hingham were invited to present their ideas to the Growth Policy committee recently. At a meeting beforehand, they decided that I should attempt to articulate some of their concerns and ideas about the community's future.

After it was over, our members in attendance told me that I had presented a sensitive and reasonable case as it relates to economic and business development, for the town.

Two days later I learned that certain members of that committee were twisting many of the statements I made. I think you'll "enjoy" the twists because they point out how anyone who really wants to hear what they've already preconceived the speaker to be saying, can hear precisely that.

It was reported that I referred to the residential section of lower North Street as a pile of ramshacks that should be replaced with businesses. What I did say was that the commercial activity on North Street appears to be having a blighting influence on the residential area, and that the community should not let further deterioration occur. One acceptable solution might be to re-zone the entire area commercial, but that that would not necessarily be the only answer.

It was also reported that the Chamber of Commerce supports running a sewer line through the entire town and turning "the whole community into an Industrial Park." What I did say was that the South Shore Industrial Park should be encouraged to achieve its maximum contribution to the community by being fully developed and that necessitates sewerage. It is possible that those sewers could be connected to the MDC line that extends from South Weymouth, therefore, not making it necessary to sewer the entire community.

I supposedly represented our Hingham members as not caring about what type of future development occurred in the community, especially residential development. I did say that it was my opinion that the business community had a "no position" on the future residential development of Hingham. That type of development is a decision the whole Town should collectively make.

It was also reported that I placed the South Shore Chamber in support of the re-institution of the Green Bush line and commuter rail. I did indicate that, with thousands of people from Hingham daily commuting to Boston, the community should work towards more viable mass transportation options, but that re-institution of the Green Bush line was not only impractical because of some 37 grade crossings between there and Quincy, but that with current laws the way they are, the environmental impact study on such an extension would take several hundred years.

I'm not certain why somebody in that group has decided to make the business community out to be "black hats" but in a way, I'm delighted it happened. It allows me to graphically point out to my friends and members that if you don't participate in these growth policy sessions, your parking lot could end up being a playground and your office a "work ethic" museum.

LIVING TODAY

Let's Trade Partners

By DR. WILLIAM F. KNOX

I just don't know what I'm going to do ... I'm so starved for a little attention and affection," Jim was saying in our therapy group. "She just won't respond to any of my friendly gestures."

"That's my problem, too ... cold and aloof. If I touch him he immediately pulls away from me. I don't know what's wrong. He didn't used to be this way."

"Maybe we should trade partners," said Jim jokingly.

Such trades are going on constantly ... only less openly. Why? Why these affairs? Is it that these people want to violate the code they were raised by ... the vows of their wedding commitment? Not at all. Many suffer great guilt when they start an affair. The problem is that human needs are being denied. Some can't function well in the affair because of the guilt they feel. The problem is that human needs are being denied. If love is shut off in one channel, it will probably break out in another.

Why do husbands and wives deny affection and attention to their partners? One reason is that anxieties and responsibilities weigh so heavy upon people that they just don't feel sexy. Men's business ... employees problems ... deadlines take a toll. Women's concerns for a sick child ... or the unpaid electric bill with a shut-off threat ... such do not turn a woman on to warm affection. Anxieties concerning the heavy responsibilities of life often thwart a couple's affection for each other.

But those are usually temporary obstacles ...

when the bank note is met ... when the child's crisis is over ... when the electric bill is paid, affection normally will return.

A deeper reason for lack of affection is a lingering unresolved conflict between them. This was the problem of Jim and Rae. They had had a running battle over the DISCIPLINE OF THE CHILDREN. Jim believed in each having home responsibilities ... had made up a chore list and had asked each child to choose his/her chore and then follow through on these commitments. "Good training for the kids" ... he said. "Besides it will keep the house in order."

Rae rebelled. "They're too young to have regular chores," [13-11 and 8]. Rae herself had no sense of homemaking. The constant clutter ... cat messes ... beds unmade ... kitchen utensils never in place ... all these infuriated Jim. He felt he had a right to have an orderly home since he worked and provided and Rae remained at home. It was a source of constant conflict. The result was that all affection and sex had been cut off between them.

In the counseling group they came to realize the folly of the unresolved conflict and came to agreement. When they put their agreement into effect, the children were happier ... the affection, sexual relationship was restored and no longer were either of them saying "Let's Trade Partners".

SPEAKING OUT

Thinks Coverage 'Just Great'

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I would like to thank you for publishing my daughter's picture on the celebration of her first Leap Year birthday. Joanne is quite a celebrity with family and friends.

May I take this opportunity to tell you how much my family and I enjoy your paper. During the recent city election, I couldn't wait for the paper to come each week. I think your coverage and editorials on the election, recount and investigation were just great. On the other hand, I know people who read them differently and

I'm sure they were the ones you heard from. I admire you for expressing your honest feelings.

Quincy Students To Aid In Morgan Memorial Clothing Drive

Learning to share and care will be the goal of Quincy public school students when they combine housecleaning and service to handicapped people, in the Friday, April 2, school clothing drive for Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries.

A flyer explaining the Goodwill collection process will be sent home with each student Monday, March 29.

Family members are asked to pitch in, too, by filling any types of cartons, paper or plastic bags with no longer used or needed clothing, housewares, toys, books and small appliances.

"Nothing is ever wasted at Goodwill," notes Henry E.

Helms, Director of the nonprofit organization. "Even the smallest donation has multiple benefits for the disadvantaged."

Materials gathered by school children and other concerned citizens are tools in Goodwill's vocational rehabilitation programs for handicapped and disadvantaged people.

Many articles donated serve as the raw materials in specific vocational training areas like sewing machine operation, textile sorting, furniture upholstery and restoration, appliance and electrical repair, dry cleaning and merchandising.

'Reality' Bible Lesson At Christian Science Church

"For the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea."

Jewish Community Centers Of Quincy, Brockton Merge

The Jewish Community Centers of Quincy and Brockton have merged to form the South Area Jewish Community Center, serving 15 communities on the South Shore under the general aegis of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston.

The South Area Center will serve the communities of Avon, Braintree, Bridgewater, East Bridgewater, West Bridgewater, Canton, Brockton, Easton, Milton, Norwood, Quincy, Randolph, Sharon, Stoughton and Westwood.

Heading the board of directors is Atty. Richard S. Schultz, who has been active in the Brockton Center since 1946, served as vice-president and member of the Executive Committee for many years. Prior to the merger he was president of the Brockton Center.

Officers of the Board of Directors, in addition to Atty. Schultz, are vice-presidents Brenda Berger, Daniel Berkowitz, Burton Schneider, all of Randolph, and Myrna Schultz, Brockton; Treasurer, Arthur Feldman of Brockton, and Secretary, Sharon Andelman of Randolph.

Members of the Board of Directors from Quincy are, Sumner Greenberg, Morris Portman, Leslie Sills and Dr. Morton Sills.

The new South Area Jewish Community Center offers an increased number and variety of facilities and program for members.

The Brockton building boasts a gym, swimming pool and health club, in addition to meeting rooms and a Kosher kitchen facility. Quincy houses most of the staff offices and provides space for various kinds of programs.

Grossman Camp in Westwood now serves the entire South Area with a beautiful 75-acre daycamp for children from 5-15.

The Torrey Street Recreation Area in Brockton offers a summer program for families and facilities for swimming, boating and tennis. Programs in Brockton and Quincy and throughout the South Area will continue to serve all age groups. The merger was dictated by reason of geography and demography and will insure better service for the Jewish community while helping to unify the areas toward one Jewish community.

In order to be close to the communities served, offices are now being maintained in Brockton and Quincy. With the addition of rented facilities, additional offices will be present in the area.

2 From Quincy On Norwich Dean's List

Two students from Quincy have earned Dean's List grades at Norwich University during the first semester of the 1975-76 college year.

They are Charles W. Robertson, Class of 1976, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Robertson, 228 Whitwell St. and Robert Sylva, Class of 1977, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sylva, 35 Copeland St.

To qualify for the Dean's List at the Vermont military college a student must attain an academic quality-point average of at least 3.0 (on a 4.0 scale), the equivalent of a "B" grade in all subjects.

Ground Broken For Ladies Addition At YMCA

Ground was broken Monday for an addition to the Quincy YMCA on Coddingdon St., which will contain a new ladies' locker room and a health and exercise area. It is expected to be completed by September.

The spade used to break ground was the same that was used July 4, 1904, to break ground for the old Y building on Washington St. and again on March 8, 1954 when construction of the current building was begun.

The new addition will be in excess of 3,700 square feet on two floors.

The first floor will include locker facilities for 316 members, showers and drying areas, a new sauna and a 10-foot recessed whirlpool.

The second floor will have a special women's exercise area furnished with modern physical fitness exercise equipment and a special massage area for ladies.

Attending the ground-breaking ceremonies were Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia; Peter G. Ruscitto, president of the Quincy YMCA; W. Gordon Clark, chairman of the YMCA House and Grounds Committee.

Mrs. Robert Blair and Mrs. Paul C. Reardon, co-chairpersons of the YMCA Women's Committee; Donald Brownell, associate executive director of the YMCA; George H. Ramsden Jr., executive director of the YMCA.

William O'Connell, past president of the Y; John Salenius, executive secretary to the Mayor; and Robert Harrold and Jim Rowley, architects for the project.

Francesco LaRosa To Be Honored Saturday

Fratern Order of Eagles will hold a testimonial for Francesco LaRosa of 303 Washington St., Quincy, Saturday, March 27 at 7:30 p.m. at the John Adams Aerie, for serving as the club's treasurer since 1945.

LaRosa, owner of the General Insurance Service, 301 Washington St., Quincy, was born in Italy July 14, 1904. He came to the U.S. in 1920, and married Rose Papi June 5, 1927 in Sacred Heart Church, Waltham.

He opened his business June 1, 1938, and moved to his present location at 301 Washington St., Quincy, in 1944.

He is the father of: Marie LaRosa, Cambridge; Sister Natelie LaRosa, Philadelphia; Mrs. Florence SanSoucie, Stoughton; Mrs. Rose Marie Stella, Braintree; Mrs. Elena Stranberg, Quincy; and Mrs. Josephine Ward, Quincy. He has 10 grandchildren.

In addition to his years of service in the Eagles, LaRosa is a past venerable of the Quincy Lodge of Sons of Italy, and is past president and presently treasurer of Quincy Aragona. He is also a member of the Knights of Columbus, Quincy Chapter of Commerce, Independent Insurance Agents of America, Mutual Agents Association, and the American Society of Notaries Public.

City and state officers of the fraternal organization will be represented.

Munich Group To Present 'Mystery Of Italy Mass'

The Ernst Jurina Theatre group from Munich, Germany will present the 17th century medieval play "The Mystery of the Holy Mass" at St. Mary's Church, West Quincy on March 29 at 8 p.m.

The content and thrust of the play are religious and catechetical. Ernst Jurina, director and founder of the Munich Mystery Players, said that through this dramatic presentation "people begin to understand that the Mass is a synthesis of sacrifice and meal."

Big Water Boat Show Planned For Boston Harbor Marina

By TOM BRADY

An in the water boat show, displaying over 400 boats, is being planned for the Boston Harbor Marina in September according to a plan presented Tuesday to the Quincy Licensing Board.

The show will be run by Sherman Exposition Management Inc., the group which manages the Boat and Home Shows at the Hynes Auditorium in Boston, and is scheduled for Sept. 23 to 26.

Frank Farrell, of Sherman Exposition Mgt., told the board that over 200 boats will be displayed on the water in the Marina and as many as 200 more on shore. The Licensing Board granted the permit for the show.

The board authorized a number of local organizations to hold fund raising events and granted a license for a commercial club at the State St. Bank Complex in North Quincy.

The commercial club, which will be operated as a function and luncheon center for the tenants of the office building, will be based on a similar club the bank runs in State Street's downtown Boston building.

The Licensing Board also granted permits to the Merrymount Association, Point Webster Complex and St. Ann's CYO to hold fund-raising events during the next month.

The Merrymount Association will hold a Flea Market Sunday, May 16, on Merrymount Beach on Shore Ave. to raise money for the group's activities during the year, and St. Ann's CYO will hold a Tag Day this Saturday in the area near the church to raise funds to send their CYO basketball team to the New England Competition. St. Ann's team recently won the State CYO basketball championship.

The Quincy Junior High

School Flea Market will be held May 1 on the school grounds to raise funds for a dinner in June to honor students who have maintained honor role status for three terms at the school.

In other action the board granted a license to the Quincy Auxiliary Police Department for a "Wave of Nostalgia" evening to be held Saturday, May 22 at the Fore River Club.

The Board granted a common victualers license to Mrs. Michel Reed, of Weymouth, the new owner of Best Pals Inc. a restaurant at 532 Washington St., Quincy Point, and approved a note in the files concerning a pledge of stock of Ma's Lunch Inc. to Beneficial Investors Group of Boston.

First Railway Dedication April 1

Quincy Heritage will sponsor a dedication of the first commercial railroad April 1 in commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the groundbreaking for the Granite Railway.

The ceremonies will begin at 11 a.m. at the site of the Granite Railway Incline on Mullin Avenue, West Quincy. The public is invited to attend.

Officials will also unveil a plaque dedicating the Incline as a National Historic Civil Engineering landmark.

Invited guests will include Secretary of Transportation Fred Salvucci, Congressman James A. Burke, Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia, members of the City Council the Quincy State House delegation and officials from the American and Boston Society of Civil Engineers.

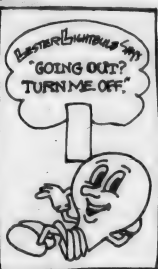

Conservation Hearing On Marina

The Quincy Conservation Commission will hold a public hearing next Wednesday [March 31] at the Fore River Clubhouse on the intent of Continental Marina Corp. to alter wetland at 64 Washington Court, Quincy Point.

Johnny Horizon Ecology Club Marks First Anniversary

Twenty-seven Squantum School students and members of the "Johnny Horizon Ecology Club" recently celebrated the club's first anniversary.

Sponsored by the Squantum Community Association, the club is an after-school activity open to all children interested in their environment.

Bruce McHenry of the Department of the Interior National Park Service spoke to pupils in grades one through four, and showed a film. He also presented awards to members with good attendance.

Also present at the celebration were Miss Ruth Haggerty, principal of the Squantum School; Mary Gougian, chairman; Valerie Gorrill, Jean Green, Martha Leavens, Mary Donnelly and Mary Ruth Scott, all members of the Squantum Community Association's environmental committee.

Students are collecting, cleaning and sorting the aluminum trays from their hot lunch packs at school, to recycle the aluminum. The project conserves energy because the recycling of aluminum requires less than five per cent of the energy used to make the aluminum originally. It also avoids litter, and proceeds from returning the aluminum benefit the club's treasury.

Members of the club are:

HAPPY ANNIVERSARY -- Members of Johnny Horizon Ecology Club celebrate first anniversary of the club with a special cake.

CAMPFIRE PRECAUTIONS

You've heard it from Smokey the Bear, but some things can't be said too often. Know how to build a campfire properly before you attempt to do so. Preferably, select as your fire site a sand or gravel area if stone grills are not available at your camping ground.

If you must build your campfire on the ground, do so in the center of a ten-foot circle that has been meticulously cleared of leaves, needles, grass, and twigs; if possible, mark the boundaries of the circle with closely placed stones.

Never, ever leave a fire unattended, even for a few seconds. Before you depart from your campsite be certain the fire is out - completely out.

Avoid a less frequent but nonetheless real hazard if you're doing charcoal cooking in a hibachi or portable grill: never take hot charcoal briquets into a closed car, camper, or station wagon in which you are sleeping, in order to provide warmth through a chilly night. A dangerous - and lethal - accumulation of carbon monoxide can result, and deaths have occurred in this manner.

Quincy Track Club Impressive At Holy Cross

The Quincy Track Club, with its membership approaching 400, continues to do well in winter indoor meets, had another good day recently in the Crusader Track and Field invitational all-group championship meet at the new Holy Cross College facility. More than 500 took part in the meet. Quincy's midget girls and boys and junior boys all won the age group titles.

Quincy's midget girls' and boys' relay teams are undefeated in five meets. The club has broken four records and tied one. Loretta Garrigan is the New England age group high scorer, having scored 37 points in five meets and is undefeated in the high jump.

In the Holy Cross meet the midget girls [12-13] scored 20 points to win the division championship.

Loretta Garrigan won the high jump with a jump of 4-5, a meet record, and the undefeated relay team won in 1:42.0 with Denise Santo, Joanne O'Leary, Sue Clarke and Garrigan running. Santo was second in the dash, O'Leary second in the hurdles and O'Leary second and Clarke third in the long jump.

The midget boys [12-13] also won the division crown with 25 points.

Fran McEachern won the 600-yard run and Jim O'Leary won the long jump with a record-breaking leap of 14-2 1/2.

The unbeaten relay team won in 1:38.3 with Joe Dudek, O'Leary, Bill Bourikas and Shaun Burnes. Dudek took second in the dash, O'Leary second and Burnes third in the hurdles and O'Leary second in the high jump.

The junior boys [14-15] won their division with 19 points.

Dan McIntyre won the dash, took second in the long jump and third in the 300, half mile and shot put. Mike Gallagher won the shot put with Ted Koberski second.

Jeff Hennessy took third in the senior boys [16 and up] 440 and Michelle Millane took second in the bantam girls [9-11] 300 and third in the dash.

● Little Loop

Morrissey Club Takes 2-Point Lead

With only three weeks remaining, any one of four teams can win the championship of the Quincy Bowling Little Loop.

The Dick Morrissey Club last week added a point to take and a two-point lead over the Rep. Joseph E. Brett Club, Bryan Post VFW and Atlantic Fuel Oil trail Brett by three points. All five Morrissey bowlers rolled at a steady pace and was the only team last week to sweep all four points.

Brett rolled the weekly high team three of 1382 and high single of 494. Pete Martin of Brett rolled the high individual three of 341 and Chris Butler of McIntyre Club high single of 131.

The standings: Morrissey Club, 62-26 [total pinfall of 29,282]; Brett Club, 60-28 [28,456]; Bryan Post, 57-31 [28,786]; Atlantic, 57-31 [28,521]; Local 10, NEJB, AFL-CIO, 44-44 [28,282]; Granite Lodge 1451, AFL-CIO, 44-44 [28,077]; Quincy Elks, 43-45 [28,376]; Hutchinson Oil, 40-48 [28,495]; Montclair Men's Club, 40-48 [28,317]; Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome, 39-49 [27,908]; Atty. George Burke Club, 38-50 [27,808]; James R. McIntyre Club, 38-50 [27,726]; Harold Davis Club, 38-50 [27,604]; Hennessy Plumbing Supply, 23-65 [27,702].

Broad Meadows Wins Last 5 To Tie North For Title

The Broad Meadows Junior High School ninth grade basketball team this year won its last five games to tie North for the city championship.

Under first year coach Peter Swanson, BM finished with a 9-3 league record and was 9-4 overall.

Co-Capt. Mark Grindlie, 5-11 forward, was the top scorer with 161 points. He was the one BM went to when it needed a basket.

Co-Capt. Glenn Lyndon [6-1] was a strong rebounder and a fine defensive player who played a big part in BM's success.

Tom Donovan [6-0] completed the front court, was a hard worker off both boards and played fine defense. He also was the number three scorer with 48 points.

John Sullivan [5-9] was the second leading scorer with 93 points from his guard position. Possessing a fine outside touch, he was a key factor in the big late season win over North.

Bill Burt [5-0] was the smallest member of the squad and was the catalyst to many fast break opportunities. Billy showed quick hands and deft ball handling ability.

Jackie Condon [5-4] was the sixth man and, although not a scorer, was a steadying influence whenever he came in. A good defensive player, he was a leader in BM's effective press.

Darren O'Neil [5-8] also saw extensive action coming off the bench. He played especially well against Sterling.

Rounding out the co-championship squad were Jim Peters [5-7], Bob Lynch [5-8], Mark Hickey [5-6], Dave Spink [5-2], Rick McCarthy [5-6] and Mike Connolly [5-7].

"This was an excellent group of boys to work with," Swanson said. "They had great desire and always gave me 100 percent."

● Girl's Hockey 99 Club Wins Girls Title In Final Seconds

A goal with 40 seconds remaining in the game gave the 99 Club its third goal and the championship of the Girls House League as it defeated Bob Charles, 3-0.

The team tied Squantum Mobile in wins, ties, losses and points but the three goals gave the 99 Club one more goal and the title.

Sue Gallery had two goals and Sherry Craig one for the champs. Nancy MacDonald had two assists and Gallery and Craig one apiece.

Earlier Team Quincy had defeated Squantum, 2-1, on Patricia Crossen's two goals. Lauri Barba assisted on both. Laura Light scored for Squantum with Lauren Appollo assisting.

Craig won the league scoring title with 32 points and Joanne Ruane of Squantum was the leading goalie, giving up an average of only 1.33 goals a game.

Midget A's Eliminated From Tourney

The Donnelly Midget A team, winner of the state championship, failed in its bid to make the nationals in Columbus, Ohio, when it lost in the third round of last weekend's New England championships at Steriti Rink in Boston.

The A's will travel to Montreal the weekend of April 2, 3 and 4 to participate in games with the Sun Youth Organization and a team from Toronto.

Edgewood, R.I., eliminated Quincy from the N.E. tournament with a 3-1 win. Jim Moore had the Quincy goal with Brian Bertoni assisting. Jeff Nord, rated by Coaches Dick Reinhardt and Dennis Bertoni as the top goalie in Midget hockey, was outstanding. The final Edgewood goal was scored into an open net. The loss ended a 31-game unbeaten streak for Quincy.

Quincy had opened the tournament with an 8-1 breeze over Hartford, Conn. John Mitchell, Tom Cahill and Bertoni had two goals apiece and Mark Paolucci and Don Perdios one each. Cahill had four goals, Bertoni three, Dave Peters two and John Norton, John Andrews, Mitchell, Mike Gulizia, Moore and Paolucci one each. Nord was again outstanding in goal.

Quincy then played to a 5-5 tie with Burlington, its first tie of the season. Bertoni and Peters had two goals each and Paolucci one. Jim Fitzpatrick had two assists and Moore, Cahill, Paolucci, Perdios and Gulizia one each. Ron Bereszniwicz was in goal.

Donnelly Advertising, the team sponsor, has erected a billboard on Hancock Street, across from Sears, congratulating the team.

YMCA Aquathon Set For April 3-4

The Quincy YMCA will hold its fourth annual Aquathon Saturday, April 3, and Sunday, April 4 for 33 continuous hours.

Paul Harvey, Senior Program Director, said the purpose is to raise funds to help sponsor needy youngsters to YMCA Day and Resident Camps, sponsor regular "Y" Memberships, support on-going "Y" programs, and help support YMCA's in other countries through YMCA World Service.

Through the support last year of the Quincy city officials, Quincy public schools, Quincy Education Association, YMCA Professional Staff, board members, and the "Y" Membership constituency, the "Y" surpassed its goal of $8,000 - raising pledges to $9,064.

The Quincy YMCA is again asking for the support of the community in this fund-raising effort. Quincy Heritage has already endorsed the event as part of the city's Bicentennial Celebration.

Quincy Heritage Executive Director Fred Lane has supported the YMCA and its programs through many years of volunteer service and has consented to swim in the 33-hour event, Harvey said.

The City Council and the School Committee have been requested to again this year give their public endorsement of the Aquathon and participate in any way possible supporting the "Y's" efforts.

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaisa will attend the kickoff ceremonies at 9 a.m. April 3 to officially begin Aquathon 1976.

Harvey said the themes promoted through the Aquathon are: "Swim for the Health of It" and at the same time "Help the Y Help Others."

Swimmer applications may be obtained at the YMCA Main Desk. Applicants collect the names of people to sponsor them based on the number of lengths they can swim. Swimmers may sponsor themselves. Each contribution is tax deductible.

When the swimmers have all their sponsors they wish to solicit, they should go to the "Y" anytime from 9 a.m. April 3, to 6 p.m. April 4 and swim their lengths. If a person prefers not to swim, he or she should call the "Y" at 479-8500 and sponsor a YMCA professional staff member who will be swimming.

Alley Kats Win Women's Candlepin Tourney Title

The Alley Kats captured the 21st annual South Shore Women's Candlepin Bowling Championship Sunday at the Merrymount Daylight Alleys defeating the Woodshooters, 1513-1427.

It was the second consecutive championship for the Alley Kats in the Koch Club sponsored tourney.

The winners jumped off to a 68-pin first string win. The Alley Kats stepped up their hot pace in the second string, rolling a 521 high team single string for the day, and picking up 32 more pins to carry a 105-pin lead into the final string. The Woodshooters fought back but with too little and too late in the last string.

Capt. Roseann Donahue shared top scoring honors for the Alley Kats with teammate Joan Prezio as each posted a 319. Les Levine followed with 316, Mal Nestor 287, and Joan Hamblin 272.

Top scorers for the Woodshooters were Marion Paetti 310, Kathy Kaberides 303, Pat Rodophele 286, and Maureen Goldie 272.

Tourney Director Dick Koch presented a $50 check to the Alley Kats team, and a trophy to each member. The Woodshooters received a $15 consolation award.

Marie Tidwell of the Rag Dolls captured high individual tourney honors with high average of 105.5 in four matches, high three string total of 364, and high single string of 144. She will receive a trophy with all three achievements inscribed.

Pat Chiavaroli will receive a trophy for her high three string total of 344 with the Hi-Nooners. She also bowled a 135 single.

Joan Nealy of the Bowling Bugs and Pat Lee of the Keglerettes tied for runnerup high single string honors with 126 each. Both will receive trophies.

In the 21-year history of competition the Queen Pins in 1969 bowled 1703 for high tourney team total, and 619 high team single string.

Top individual high three string totals are Jeanne Coughlin, 1972 Pin Ups, 373; Mary Walsh, Rag Dolls, 372 in 1972 and Bev Putnam of the Queen Pins 370 in 1969.

High single strings are Hallie Parziale with 156 in 1969 with the Lucky Strikes, Celeste Maloney in 1970 with the Bowling Bugs, 154, and Mary Walsh, 1972 149 with the Rag Dolls.

Montclair Defeats N.Q. In Thriller For Koch Title

In weekend playoff competition, the Montclair district of the Koch Club captured its first city-wide championship, defeating defending champs North Quincy district in a 27-26 thriller.

Montclair was led by the steady floor play of Willy Dudley and Craig DiBona, who combined for over half of their team's scoring. North Quincy's outstanding scorer, Paul Gill, was double teamed and bottled up in the second half by the Montclair quintet but broke loose in the closing seconds to take a final shot that rimmed the basket and rolled out assuring the Montclair victory.

In the semi-final game of the Koch Club playoffs, Montclair district scored at will over an undermanned Broadmeadows district squad to win 52-19. In the final round, the performance of Dudley and DiBona excelled and they were joined by the team play of Billy Barter and Mike Doyle to put the game out of reach for the losers.

The Herbert W. O'Donnell Memorial Trophy, emblematic of the Koch Club city basketball championship, will be presented to Howard F. Crowley, Montclair district director, at the awards banquet April 5, at the Montclair School. The trophy, if won for three consecutive years by one district, is retained permanently and a new trophy presented.

North Quincy and Broadmeadows have each gained permanent possession in the 14-year playoff history.

Petracca Fast—But Not Enough

Bart Petracca, North Quincy High's outstanding runner who holds every North distance record, and several state marks, ran the fastest mile ever by a Quincy or North runner recently but could finish no better than fourth in the 42nd annual Eastern States Invitational Meet at Princeton, N.J. Petracca ran a 4:19.3 and was barely edged out for third place, but the winner, a New Jersey speedster, did a brilliant 4:13.8 to win the event.

The best schoolboy trackmen from 19 states are invited annually to compete in the meet.

Basketball Heartbeat Bounce Program Thursday

The Koch Club Basketball Leagues will sponsor a Heartbeat Bounce program tonight, Thursday, at 6:30 p.m. in the North Quincy High School Gymnasium.

Chairman Richard J. Koch Jr., said participants efforts will help aid the research programs of the local heart association.

Gary Cuniff, Michael Wilson and Robert Woods will be assisted by Julius Adams of the New England Patriots in supervising the bounce. Any participants who plan to bounce a basketball will be asked to obtain names of sponsors who will pledge a specific amount for each minute the ball is bounced. Registration and sponsor forms may be obtained at 241 Newbury Ave., North Quincy. All ages are invited to participate.

Elementary School Counselors Workshop Thursday

A public relations workshop for school counselors will highlight the March 25 meeting of the Southeastern Massachusetts Elementary School Counselors Association in the media center of the Francis W. Parker School, Quincy. The meeting will start at 2:30 p.m.

Speaker and leader of the 2:30 p.m. workshop will be Miss Louise B. Forsyth of the Quincy Public Schools staff who serves as coordinator of public relations for the American School Counselor Association. She has developed "The ASCA Public Relations Workshop Kit" which has been used in workshops for counselors throughout the U.S. She has also been invited to conduct similar workshops in other states including Indiana, Iowa, Florida, New Jersey, North Carolina, Louisiana, New York, and New Hampshire.

Later this year she will be presenting workshops at the ASCA national convention in Chicago, at the Massachusetts School Counselors Association Conference in Hyannis, and the National Elementary Guidance Conference in Orono, Maine.

Hostess for the meeting is Mrs. Mary A. Bozian, counselor at the Parker School and past president of the Southeastern Elementary Counselors Association. Mrs. Bozian is also New England Coordinator for Elementary Counseling for ASCA.

Presiding at the association business meeting will be President Raymond Fell of the South School, Hingham. Program chairman is Barry Cornwall of the Damon School, Hull.

Solar Energy Seminar Planned For April 28

"Solar Energy - An Alternate Power Source for Heating and Cooling" is the subject of a day long conference to be held Wednesday, April 28, at Valle's, Braintree.

Sponsored by Solar Energy Seminars in cooperation with the staffs of the University of Massachusetts' Cooperative Extension Center and Quincy Junior College, the conference is designed to acquaint the average person and homeowner as well as the professional architect, heating specialist, plumber, building and electrical contractor, manufacturer, planner, and banker with the realities of solar energy, how it works and what it will do.

The conference will focus on practical aspects of solar energy including how to select, build, and install solar heating and cooling systems in new and existing structures, career opportunities in the solar energy field, and life style and economic implications of solar energy usage.

Speakers at the conference will include Dr. Edward R. Willett, former Vice Chairman of the Consumer/Special Impact Advisory Committee, Federal Energy Administration; Dr. W. Peter Teagan, Arthur D. Little, Inc.; Hugh Adams Russell and Gordon Tully, both architects for Massdesign Architects & Planners of Cambridge; Ronald Beckman, Executive Director, Research and Design Institute of Rhode Island; Dr. Irving Sacks, Massachusetts Science & Technology Foundation; Richard Cummings, Daystar Corp. (manufacturer of solar hardware); Dr. Michael Mulcahy, Boston Edison, and Robert Jost, Mass. Electric.

The recent national attention given to the exploration of alternate sources for heating and cooling is a direct result of the energy shortage of a year ago.

The public is recognizing that energy resources are not as easily available as previously believed. In addition, the public is becoming aware of the limits of fossil fuel (oil and gas) as well as the damage to the environment. These concerns coupled with the rising fuel costs have spurred research in alternate sources of energy.

Other energy sources must be developed as demand for energy continues to rise.

One source of energy is the sun. Solar energy is abundant enough to give the U.S. self-sufficiency and clean enough to satisfy environmentalists. Already, solar energy is being used in the heating and cooling of homes, schools, and buildings in the U.S. as well as in other countries. Over 3,000 homes in the U.S. are now heated with solar energy.

A recent report of the National Science Foundation and NASA solar energy panel projected that 10 per cent of all buildings constructed by 1985 will use solar heating and cooling. According to Peter Glaser of Arthur D. Little, Inc., this indicates a $1 billion market over the next 10 years. Once technological and economic feasibility and potential market acceptance are demonstrated, industry should be able to move swiftly to mass produce solar energy systems.

Thus recent developments in the successful harnessing of solar energy as a supplemental power source is feasible.

The Solar Energy Conference will bring together local and regional leaders in the field to demonstrate through visual presentations that the sun can be harnessed and used in the New England region.

For reservation information and a brochure for the April 28 meeting call Quincy Junior College, 471-2479.

Registrations are limited.

Macrame, Weaving Classes At A.S. Library

The Adams Shore Branch of the Quincy Library will offer an adult education course in Macrame and Weaving Tuesday evenings, beginning April 1, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Will Mary Pickford Show Up For Oscar?

MARY PICKFORD's special Oscar, to be presented during Monday night's Academy Awards ceremonies will presumably be picked up by her husband, CHARLES [BUDDY] ROGERS as Miss Pickford has avoided the public life in recent years. Also on the Oscars - CORE VIDAL will make his first appearance to present the writing awards, KEITH CARRADINE will sing his own "Nashville" nominated song "I'm Easy", and DIANA ROSS will sing "The Theme From Mahogany" by satellite from Amsterdam... Now that LIZA MINNELLI has finished filming "A Matter of Time" in Rome, she'll be heading back towards Los Angeles to begin work on a new TV special... A two-hour TV film based on the lives and loves of HARRY HOUDINI is currently in the works. Airing is scheduled to coincide with the 50th anniversary of the magician's death. The escape artist died on Halloween, Oct. 31, 1926... MICHAEL LANDON's "Little House on the Prairie" has been picked up for another season. Also on the renewal list are TELLY SALVA's "Kojak" and KARL MALDEN's "Streets of San Francisco". The producer of the latter is currently seeking a replacement for MICHAEL DOUGLAS, who bowed out of the series following the success of his producing efforts in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest"... WGBH-TV reports that its total audience has increased 21 per cent since the January debut of "The Adams Chronicles"... ABC will pre-empt its regular daytime programming on May 20 to show a special bicentennial package called "The American Woman: Portraits of Courage." The show will dramatize key incidents in the lives of 10 women who were involved in the human rights fight in the U.S. Among the stars will be: MELBA MOORE as Harriet Tubman, LOIS MIDDLETON as Susan B. Anthony, CELESTE HOLM as Elizabeth Cady Stanton and JOANNA MILES as Abigail Adams... SUSAN CLARK, last seen in "Babe", has been signed to play the title role in "Amelia", focusing on the life of aviator Amelia Earhart. The three-hour biography will be seen on NBC... Q. What is the line in the "All in the Family" song just before the final line "Those Were The Days"? — M.D., Odessa, TX

A. I'm going to give you the whole shooting match and, hopefully, that will provide a respite from one of the most frequently asked viewer questions. Here goes:

"Boy, the way Glenn Miller played,
"Songs that made the Hit Parade!
"Guys like us, we had it made.
"Those were the days!

"And you knew where you were then,
"Girls were girls and men were men.
"Mister, we can use a man
"Like Herbert Hoover again!

"Didn't need no welfare state.

"Everybody pulled his weight.
"Gee, our old La Salle ran great.
"Those - were the days!"

Q. "Happy Days" is our favorite show. We would like to know if "The Fonz" is married, and how old is he? Also, where can we write to get pictures and autographs of the cast? — K.R. and S.R., Belmont, Calif.

A. Henry Winkler, who plays the ultracool, black leather jacket wearing "Fonzie" on "Happy Days" is 30 and a bachelor. You can connect with "the Fonz" by writing him and any of the other cast members, in care of ABC Television at the address listed in the previous answer.

Athena II Restaurant In Wollaston Features Near East Foods

A new restaurant featuring the foods of the Near East has come to Wollaston.

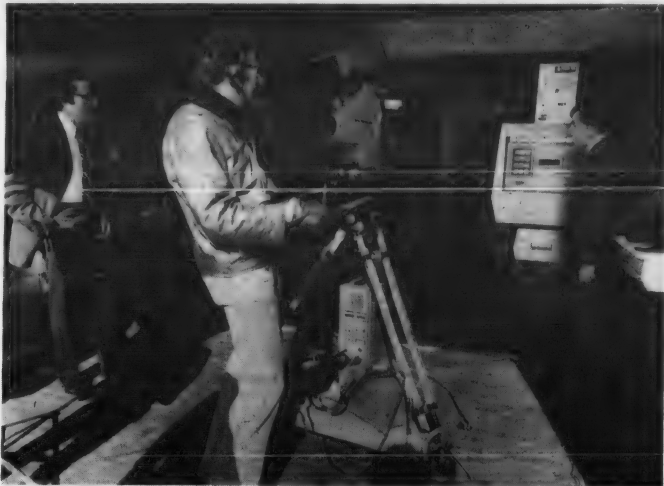

Athena II, owned and operated by Artine Kouyoumdjian and Kathy Bellotti, is located at 16 Beale St. and is sister eating place to the Athena in Colonial Village and the Hungry Bedouin in City Plaza.

"I am striving to serve good food at reasonable prices," said

Kouyoumdjian. "We feel that the public is in the mood to appreciate our menu."

And he added: "There is a special 30 per cent discount to all senior citizens."

Prior to coming to Quincy, Kouyoumdjian worked for Ledome Four Season Restaurant in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., and had been general manager and vice president of Mini Clubs in Ohio.

Sheets Bill Would Hike Fines For Illegal Dumping

Rep. James A. Sheets has filed a Home Rule Bill which would ensure the proper use of the disposal facility in West Quincy.

If passed, the act would enable the city of Quincy to establish a fine of $250 dollars for illegal dumping at the city disposal facility. Presently transporting trash and rubbish into the city for the purpose of depositing it in any area used as a public dump is prohibited by Section 36 of Chapter 15 of the revised ordinances of the city of Quincy. It carries only a $20. fine.

The penalty for knowingly falsifying information given on applications for dumping permits from the city of Quincy would be set at a minimum of $20 and a maximum of $200. for each offense.

In both cases the City Council with the approval of the Mayor would set the fines via a city ordinance.

Sheets, who is also Ward 4 Councillor, said this is only part of a new program to be developed making the disposal area more secure from improper use. He said he is presently working with the council committee to solve sanitary and disposal problems and Public Works Commissioner Vincent Locicero.

Anti-Nut Island Expansion Bill Gets Favorable Report

Another obstacle has been placed in the path of the proposed expansion of the Nut Island Sewage Treatment Plant.

The Urban Affairs Committee of the State Legislature has reported favorably on a bill that would ban expansion of the plant by filling in 26 acres of Quincy Bay as proposed by the Federal Environmental Protection Administration.

But first the committee, chaired by Rep. Joseph E. Brett [D-Quincy] and Sen. Joseph Timilty [D-Boston], tacked on an amendment that would nullify any sections of the bill if they endanger federal reimbursements.

Rep. Thomas Brownell [D-Quincy], sponsor of the bill, said he was pleased with the committee report.

"I think we are over the greatest hurdle," he said. "It has been a long struggle but I think we are seeing this whole thing being turned around. I hope so, anyway."

In an appearance before the committee, Brownell said:

"I am deeply concerned that any governmental agency, such as the EPA, would endorse a plan which undoubtedly would cause irreparable damage to Quincy Bay.

"I am hopeful that those who have initially endorsed the plan now see the insanity and irresponsibility of the idea.

"This legislation is designed to insure our citizens who in recent months have shown their overwhelming opposition to the plan that the legislature and the chief executive of the Commonwealth will not tolerate such a preposterous concept."

Sen. Arthur H. Tobin [D-Quincy] also spoke in favor of the measure.

City-wide Fire Hydrant Testing Starts March 29

The Quincy Fire Department will start its annual fire hydrant testing program March 29 under the direction of Captain Carl Valenti and Lieutenant Joseph Varraso.

The hours of testing will be 9:30 a.m. to noon and 1:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. The testing will take place in all sections of the city.

During the testing of hydrants, residents may experience some discoloration in water. The water is not harmful to drink or use, but should be checked before using washing machines, the Fire Department noted. Persons experiencing discoloration of their water are requested to flush their systems by opening their cold water faucet for a few minutes then wait approximately one hour. If water does not clear, repeat flushing procedure.

The Fire Department estimates the hydrant testing program will take approximately four weeks.

Navy Says No Trailer Park In Squantum

The U.S. Navy has assured Congressman James A. Burke that it does not intend to put up a trailer park to house its personnel at a site in Squantum Gardens.

"This headquarters is not aware of any plan to use existing Navy land in North Quincy as a trailer park for Navy families," said Capt. W. F. Reed of the Naval Facilities Engineering Command in Washington.

Burke said he was told that the Navy is studying several plans to rehabilitate the existing housing units at Squantum Gardens, depending on whether funds are available.

The Navy's assurance came a day after City Councillor Paul D. Harold met with Burke in Washington to present a copy of a City Council resolution, introduced by Councillor Dennis E. Harrington, opposing the trailer park.

"Congressman Burke assured me that he would stand behind local elected officials in their unanimous opposition to this plan," said Harold.

Harold Commends Mayor On Foy Reappointment

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia's recent reappointment of Robert Foy as city treasurer has earned His Honor a commendation from City Councillor Paul D. Harold.

"Mr. Foy has a well-earned reputation as an efficient and dedicated city employee and as a city councillor I was delighted to learn of his reappointment," said Harold.

"I'm certain that the retaining of Mr. Foy will be in the best interest of the city."

No One Tried To Steal Election

The long court inquest into Quincy's controversial 1975 mayoral election has at last ended. And, hopefully, the controversy itself may end, too.

The inquest was conducted thoroughly by Judge Albert Kramer, presiding justice of Quincy District Court.

The evidence was professionally presented by two highly competent attorneys: Asst. Atty. Gen. Thomas Kiley and Asst. Dist. Atty. Charles Hely.

More than 20 witnesses testified—including wardens, clerks and inspectors who worked in the polling precincts where 500 votes in blocks of 50 were credited to former Mayor Walter Hannon when they should have gone to present Mayor Joseph LaRaia instead.

The witnesses also included Dr. Larry Siegel, assistant professor at Northeastern University School of Criminal Justice.

The evidence and testimony brought to light human errors and some civil violations of the election laws.

But throughout the entire inquest there was never even the slightest evidence that somebody tried to steal the election. And that is one thing that should be stressed.

Violations But--

No Criminal Wrong-Doing In Mayoral Election

The probable results of eight sessions in Judge Albert L. Kramer's five-week inquest into the 1975 Quincy city election can be summed up like this:

- There was no criminal wrong-doing.

- But there were violations of the election laws and, if they happen again, the offenders may face prosecution.

- And a faulty system as much as human error was responsible for the mistakes in the election.

The errors, discovered and corrected in a recount, saw 600 votes in blocks of 50 credited to Mayor Walter J. Hannon when they should have gone to Joseph J. LaRaia.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Charles Hely summed up the case for the DA's office when he said: —

"There is no reasonable basis to conclude that the election officials involved committed any criminal violation of the law."

Asst. Atty. Gen. Thomas R. Kiley, addressing himself to the "civil" side of the inquest, added:

"We have had violations of election law coupled with deficiencies in the system itself.

"The right to vote is fundamental to all other rights. When election officials fail to comply with the law that right is denied.

"I want to inform all election workers that the Attorney General's office will enforce those laws.

"I want to put them on notice that they run the risk of prosecution or coming to another inquest if that right is denied."

Judge Kramer took the case under advisement, adding that his forthcoming decision will deal with three things:

- The possibility of wrong doing in the election.

- Documenting serious defects in the election process.

- Indicating changes necessary to correct those defects.

At the beginning of the inquest Feb. 19, Judge Kramer posed the question:

Why did all the mistakes go one way, giving LaRaia votes to Hannon? Why did none go the other way?

The answer appears to lie in a deficiency in the tally sheets, on which vote totals are recorded from the ballots and from which they are transposed onto total vote sheets.

Five of the six errors occurred as one election worker read from a tally sheet to another election worker who wrote the figures down on the total vote sheet.

Testimony at the inquest indicated that the space between the names of the candidates at the left of the sheet and their vote totals at the right made it difficult to link the two.

This was particularly true when the "flash count" was used in which ballots were separated

Quincy Public Schools '76:

Violence, Vandalism, Hard Drugs Down But Alcohol Becomes 'A Real Shocker'

By TOM HENSHAW

Recent studies that report an alarming increase in violence in the public schools do not apply to Quincy. In fact vandalism, one of the lesser of the violent evils, has decreased in the city over the past five years.

That's the word from School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon passed along during a recent tape-recorded, in-depth interview with The Quincy Sun. Other points on controversial matters made by Dr. Creedon:

- Use of hard drugs by students is down but "marijuana is a lost cause" and the "real shocker is the increased use of alcohol."

- Old-fashioned discipline is finished and the "emphasis is on due process of the law and that's the way it should be."

- School budgets will continue to rise for reasons that "are out of the control of the administrators."

- A metropolitan school system "is not in the cards" for Greater Boston or Massachusetts.

- IQ tests are valid measures but only if there is a tester to judge if "the answer is logically based in the kid's experience."

The interview went like this: SUN - A recent study reported a rising incidence of violence in the schools. Is that true of Quincy schools?

CREEDON - "No. It just doesn't fit Quincy."

"We have sampled all our junior high school and high school administrators and no one recalls a violent attack on a teacher save for one time about five or six years ago at North Quincy and there was reason to believe there were two guilty parties in that situation."

"We keep a running tally on vandalism in the school system and the dollar value is lower now than it was in 1970-71, the peak years. Then it was about $60,000. In the past few years it has been between $40,000 and $45,000 and if you add the inflationary factor, it's even less. "Most of it goes to glass. Probably about 75 per cent of the cost of vandalism goes for window breakage."

SUN - Why is there less violence in Quincy?

CREEDON - "I really don't know."

"The people who made the study were talking primarily about large urban schools as opposed to suburban schools."

"We have mischievous vandalism. We'll have some kiddoes break into a school on a weekend and run up and down the corridors and into the classrooms, tip over the desks,

40 Employers To Participate

At Least 150 To Find Work At Job Fair

The fourth annual Job Fair, designed to put employers with job openings in touch with people who are looking for jobs, will be held Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in State Street South, North Quincy.

At least 2,500 job hunters are expected to attend to listen to opportunities presented by some 40 prospective employers who paid a fee of $75 to cover cost of using the SSS employees cafeteria for the day.

The Job Fair is sponsored by Quincy CETA, the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, the South Shore Job Center and the Norfolk County Tourist and Development Council, which is a sponsor for the first time.

Timothy J. Reidy Jr., training manager of Quincy CETA, said it is expected that at least 150 openings will be filled with the job qualifications ranging from unskilled to clerical to highly specialized.

Since the Job Fairs were begun in 1973 in the Quincy Vo-Tech School gym, more than 600 jobless persons have been placed in posts with more than 75 different companies. At least half the employers on hand Saturday are repeaters from past Job Fairs.

Reidy said the site of the 1976 Job Fair was moved from Quincy Vo-Tech School to State Street South to get a more businesslike atmosphere. Job hunters will be interviewed by staff personnel in private booths.

In recent weeks, some 5,000 letters regarding the Job Fair have gone out to persons who have applied for work at the South Shore Job Center, which is another name for the State Employment Security Office in Quincy.

12 DeMolay Chapter Members City Officials For A Day

Twelve members of the Old Colony Chapter of the Order of DeMolay participated in DeMolay government day, March 18, by becoming acting city officials for the day.

The 12 young men and the offices they served were:

Douglas Brown, mayor;
Richard Cobb, executive secretary;
Steven Bezanson, building inspector;
David Hall, city clerk;
Fred Gorachy, city solicitor;
Steven Wood, code enforcement; Steven Burns, fire chief;

Robert Aldrich, health inspector;
Emery Swanson, plumbing inspector;
David Abbott, police chief;
Allan Whitman, director of recreation;
and Timothy Hall, wire inspector.

Purpose of the government day was to provide an educational experience for the young men to learn how municipal government operates.

In West Quincy

Ceremonies Thursday To Commemorate 150th Anniversary Of First Railway

The 150th anniversary of the groundbreaking for the first commercial railroad in America, will be commemorated today [Thursday] during ceremonies at the site of the Granite Railway Incline.

The public is invited to attend the 11 a.m. ceremonies. The Granite Railway Incline is located on Mullin Avenue, West Quincy.

Officials will also unveil a plaque designating the Incline as a National Historic Civil Engineering landmark.

Prior to the ceremonies, students from the Gridley Bryant School - named after the railroad's builder - will march from their school to the incline site. The march will begin at 10:30 a.m.

At the site, federal, state and local officials, as well as officials from the American and Boston Society of Civil Engineers are scheduled to speak during the 45-minute ceremony.

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia, state Secretary of Transportation Fred Salvucci and Congressman

James A. Burke, are among the scheduled speakers. Also speaking will be: Charles A. Parthum, President of the Boston Society of Civil Engineers and Joseph S. Ward, Vice-President of American Society of Civil Engineers, Zone 1.

Ground was broken for the Granite Railway April 1, 1826. It officially began operation Oct. 7 of that year, providing a means of transporting the heavy granite stone needed to build the Bunker Hill Monument.

"The Rail" was used to transport the granite stone from the quarries to a wharf along the Neponset River. From there the granite was shipped down the Neponset River through Dorchester Bay to the Bunker Hill Monument.

The incline, which was designed by Gridley Bryant, was used to carry the granite down from the Pine Ledge Quarry to the railway - an 84-foot drop.

The incline was one of several devices produced by Bryant. Others include the first swivel-trucked eight wheel freight car, the turntable, the portable derrick and the original track switch.

Granite quarrying in Quincy benefitted greatly by the Granite Railway. Without the railway, workers would have found it difficult, if not impossible, to transport the granite.

Today, the quarry industry is a thing of the past.

All that remains are seemingly bottomless pits in the quarries, which, when filled with water have become enjoyable, but hazardous swimming holes for youngsters.

Free transportation will be provided to residents interested in attending Thursday morning's dedication at the Granite Railway Incline site, said A. Fred Lane, executive director of Quincy Heritage.

Lane said a bus will leave McIntyre Mall near City Hall at 10 a.m. Thursday and will return about 11:45 a.m., following the ceremonies.

The bus will transport passengers to the Gridley Bryant School for those who are interested in joining school children in the march to the site. The bus will then transport the remaining passengers to the site on Mullin Ave. in West Quincy.

Thursday's ceremony is to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the ground breaking for the First Commercial Railroad in America.

Officials will also unveil a plaque designating the railway as a National Historic Civil Engineering landmark.

A replica of original railroad car will be at the site during the ceremony and later at McIntyre Mall, where it will remain until 4 p.m.

QJC Secretarial Career Day Friday

The Secretarial Department of Quincy Junior College will sponsor its annual "Career Day" on Friday, April 2.

Virginia Waller, chairwoman of the Secretarial Department said the program is designed to acquaint secretarial students with the realities of the working world. Three former QJC students, Debbie Flynn, Debbie Fyfe and Linda Nichols, will speak about their experiences in the business world, including job interviews, expectations of their first job, and expectations of their employers.

Ms. Jo Gorman, a current QJC student will moderate the panel and introduce their guest speaker, Ms. Rosemary LaPointe.

Ms. LaPointe is Administrative

Secretary in Law for the Columbia Broadcasting Co. in New York. A cum laude graduate of Hunter College, Ms. LaPointe was recently selected for a full tuition scholarship for a Master of Arts in Management Degree at Simmons College. She will speak about the changing roles and expanding opportunities for women in the business field.

The program is open to the public. High School teachers who would like to bring their classes may contact Ms. Waller at 471-2470, Ext. 276.

Secretarial Career Day is being held at Atlantic Junior High School, 86 Hollis Ave., Quincy, beginning at 8:30 a.m. for coffee and 10:00 a.m. for the program.

Today's Women

It Depends, Say CPA's

Should Women Leave Household For Extra Job?

Should a woman already responsible for running a household try to bolster family finances with a job outside the home?

Or would her extra income be likely to go mostly for taxes and the added costs of clothing, meals, and transportation?

When businessmen consider a new area of activity they usually have their accountants explore all the pros and cons of such a move first. So the question was put to the Massachusetts Society of CPAs: Is a home maker with school-age children well advised to seek a job?

Their answer: It depends.

She must consider a number of variables, say the CPAs, such as:

- How much she is likely to earn.
- Fringe benefits that may go with the job.
- What the job will cost in terms of travel, dress and other unreimbursed expenses.
- Her husband's tax bracket.
- Eligibility for the newly-liberalized child-care tax deduction.
- Pension coverage or possibilities for investing in a tax-protected individual retirement account.

According to J. Paul Finnegan, President of the CPA Society, a woman thinking of seeking employment should make at least a rough estimate of the effect her income will have on a jointly-filed income tax return. For the past several years, he said, income tax rates have penalized couples when both hold jobs.

"But obviously," he added, "the higher tax rates have not been enough to dissuade women from taking work. Latest Labor Department figures show that more than half of all women with school-age children have employment outside the home."

In estimating what her income and taxes are likely to be, the woman contemplating the job market should also consider special employment costs, such as the need for a second car or special clothing or beauty parlor expenses that may go with the position.

Possibly offsetting these costs, say the CPAs, is the tax deduction for child-care costs incurred in order to let the parent hold a job. Until this year, the deduction, which can rise as high as $400 a month if there are three young children in the family, began to diminish when family income rose above $18,000. As of last Jan. 1, income can go as high as $35,000 before any of the deduction is lost.

"For many families," says Finnegan, "the chances to protect up to $1,500 of income against taxation by investing it in an Individual Retirement Account is the biggest attraction in a wife's holding a job."

"If her job doesn't provide pension or profit-sharing coverage, 15 percent of what she makes up to $1,500 can be put into an approved IRA account. And not only is no tax paid on this income until it is withdrawn after retirement, but neither is there any tax now on whatever the retirement account earns in interest."

For some women, he concluded, the net rewards of holding a job may not be enough to make it worthwhile, unless the woman wants a career for its own sake. But you can't decide that until you compare all the pluses with the minuses.

Women's Commission Plans Junior High Career Nights

"Step into the Future", a career night for junior high students, is being planned for Tuesday, April 27, at Quincy

High School from 7 to 9 p.m.

The event is sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women and the Quincy Public Schools and its purpose is to encourage career awareness at an early age.

Last spring, the Commission held a day-long "Spotlight on Women" at North Quincy High School. Over 100 women representing a wide spectrum of careers spent the day talking with high school students in the city about career opportunities.

This year the program is intended for junior high school students so that they may be exposed to a wide variety of opportunities for the future. The event is being co-chaired by Christina Morrison and Carol Mahoney and they strongly encourage parents to attend with their children.

Detailed information and sign-up sheets will be sent home from the junior high schools this week. The Quincy Public Schools are providing transportation from all of the junior high schools and parental permission slips will also be sent home.

QJC Legal Secretary Students Visit Registry Of Deeds

Students taking the legal secretaries course at Quincy Junior College recently visited with Register of Deeds Barry T. Hannon in Dedham.

Hannon showed the future secretaries the inner workings of the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds which Hannon says is the most modern record facility in the U.S.

The Norfolk Registry maintains a permanent record of all the land transactions which have occurred in Norfolk County since 1793. Approximately 50,000 documents are recorded with Hannon each year. The data contained in these documents is now, [since January 1] indexed and managed by a computer. Microfilm copies of all of these documents are made immediately and shipped to a hydrogen bomb proof shelter for safe keeping.

In the event of a disaster at the Norfolk Registry of Deeds the records could all be reproduced and each citizen's ownership of their property could be re-established, Hannon said.

The computer has produced many beneficial results at the registry, including a $20,000 annual savings for the taxpayer, Hannon said. The registry collects over one and a half million dollars in fees and taxes each year which is turned back to the state and county to help defray the other costs of government.

'Legal Rights For Women' Thursday Workshop Topic

"Legal Rights for Women" is the topic tonight [Thursday] of the fourth "Workshop for Women" sponsored by the Quincy Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women and the Thomas Crane Public Library.

The free workshop, open to the public, will be held at 8 p.m. at the Adams Shore Branch, Thomas Crane Public Library, 516 Sea St.

Miss Danielle DeBenedictis, former Assistant Attorney General for Civil Rights and currently Counsel for the Department of Utilities, will speak about Massachusetts laws affecting women.

Some of the topics to be discussed will be credit laws, retaining one's name, property rights, divorce, alimony, and job discrimination - all of the practical and legal aspects of everyday life.

For more information call the Library, 471-2400.

Sabina Stenberg Elected Council On Aging Chairwoman

Sabina Stenberg has been elected chairwoman of the Quincy Council on Aging at the council's annual meeting in the Clay St. Housing Project.

Theodore Johnson was named vice chairman and Robert K. Beniers, the new director of the recreation department, was chosen clerk secretary.

Mrs. Stenberg, who was recently appointed to the council by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia, noted that there "are many services that can be rendered to Quincy seniors besides housing.

"To my knowledge there are over 20 individual senior clubs in Quincy but thousands of seniors who do not belong and are in need of participation and awareness of benefits.

"It is important that I familiarize myself with their needs.

"There is an enormous vacuum existing in senior programs in the city which I would like to help.

"I would like to have all seniors with specific needs to contact me."

KITTENS AND TAY-SACHS

Through studies of a specially-bred family of Siamese cats, scientists at the University of Alabama have found a disease that appears identical to Tay-Sachs disease, which is found primarily in Jewish children of Eastern European ancestry. Kittens with this disease, just like their human counterparts, lack the activity of a specific enzyme, beta-glucosidase, and, as a result, suffer a progressive deterioration of the nervous system, culminating in paralysis of their limbs, impaired vision, and epileptic-like seizures.

University studies have demonstrated the Siamese cat to be one of the best animal models for study of human enzyme-deficiency diseases. This fact prompted the National Institute of Health to establish a breeding colony of these cats for biomedical research.

Medical researchers hope eventually to find a treatment for certain of these degenerative and often fatal inherited diseases. One possibility is to use enzymes purified from healthy tissue to replace the function of the defective enzyme in a cat - and, ultimately, in a child.

Compatability

Q. I read your column regularly and someday I would like to go into Astrology. Here is my problem. I have been going steady with my boyfriend for two years and we get along fine. We are planning on getting married in a year or so but according to the charts, my compatibility signs are Virgo and Capricorn. Please tell me if we are compatible or not. I was born on April 25, 1955 at 9:10 a.m. in Somerville, Mass. He was born on December 4, 1954 at 9:10 p.m. in Cambridge, Mass.

A. The Taurus and Sagittarius you mention are Sun Signs meaning the position of the Sun in the Zodiac on your dates of birth. They are not a horoscope chart. Such a chart shows the position of the Moon, all eight planets and the Sun and the relationship of the latitude and longitude of your places of birth to the above. When all of these factors in both charts are compared and considered a realistic evaluation can be made as to compatibility. You do yourself, your young man and astrology an injustice if you make a judgement based solely your Sun Signs.

The position of the planet Venus in your chart was close to the position of the Moon in his chart. This is regarded as Favorable for love. You can sooth, calm and relax him in addition to being a source of much pleasure.

His planet Uranus is in aspect to your Sun indicating the possibility of a romantic and somewhat unconventional relationship of an exciting nature. Your charts caution of a need to avoid quarrels over objectives. Impatience, sharp words or too independent an attitude on your part may disrupt your relationship. Bear in mind your young man has large personal ambitions, is self confident and will have his own way or else.

For questions to be answered through this column, mail the year, month, day of the month, city of birth, time of day if known and question to Ask Oscar, Box 114, Canton, Mass. 02021. Please sign your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered in this column.

Stephen Gutro Candidate For A.F. ROTC Scholarship

Stephen G. Gutro, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Gutro of 423 Adams St., Quincy, is a candidate for an Air Force ROTC scholarship at any college of his choice where Air Force ROTC is taught.

He has applied for admission to Lowell Technical Institute, Massachusetts Institute of Technology and University of Massachusetts (Amherst).

Gutro, who is a member of the Air Force Junior ROTC Squadron in the Quincy Public High Schools, filed application for the scholarship last October and since has completed a series of qualifying tests. To be eligible for the scholarships candidates must successfully complete three years of Junior ROTC in high school, have a high scholastic average and be able to pass the established physical requirements.

The high vision requirements desired of flying trainees may be waived for those who intend to pursue other career fields particularly in the area of engineering.

Gutro, a senior at Quincy High School, is in his third year of the Air Force Junior ROTC program. He has held several staff positions within the corps and was recently selected for the position of Squadron Deputy Commander. He holds the rank of Cadet Major and his decorations include the National Sojourners Award, Cocurricular Activities Award, and the Air Force Junior ROTC Service Ribbon.

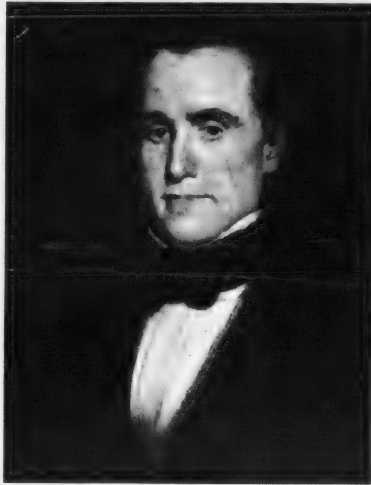

Richard Bigelow

Promoted

Richard A. Bigelow, son of Mrs. Eleanor A. Bigelow of 11 Parker St., Quincy, has been promoted to technical sergeant in the U.S. Air Force.

Sergeant Bigelow, an air traffic control technician, is serving at Webb AFB, Tex., with a unit of the Air Force Communications Service. He is a 1965 graduate of Quincy High School.

JOSIAH'S SPIRIT IS ALIVE AND WELL AT QUINCY COOPERATIVE BANK.

Meet Josiah Quincy, Jr., the founder of cooperative banking in Massachusetts, and the man for whom our bank was named.

About 100 years ago, the ordinary workingman couldn't borrow money from a regular savings bank the way rich and important people could.

So Josiah got the legislature to legalize cooperative banking in Massachusetts. This new type of banking gave the workingman the same opportunities as the wealthy. Cooperative banks are owned by the depositors. That can be helpful when you need to borrow.

We chose Josiah's name, because it stands for a concern for people we think is important.

In fact, since our founding, we've been doing business as if Josiah were looking over our shoulder.

That means keeping you first in our minds.

Because we keep Josiah a close second. We know for certain . . .

JOSIAH WOULD HAVE LIKED THAT.

There were mistakes made and things happened that should not have. But there was no evidence and no testimony that anyone tried to steal the election.

There were charges and inferences back in November that there were deliberate irregularities and a black cloud of suspicion had hung over the city since then until now.

Quincy, we said editorially then when rumors were spreading like wildfire, is a pretty clean city. And we are happy to repeat it now.

We said back in November we did not think anyone tried to steal the election. And from what has been presented during the inquest, nobody did.

Mayor Joseph LaRaia, the ultimate winner; former Mayor Walter Hannon, the ultimate loser, and Mrs. Grace Saphir, the other main contender, [in the preliminary election] were all invited to testify at the inquest. Each declined.

So it would seem that each of them would have to accept the findings of the inquest. If any one of the three had information contrary to the testimony and evidence offered at the inquest, he or she should have testified. Or now, forever, keep their comments to themselves.

Judge Kramer has taken the case under advisement and is expected to make his final report within a few weeks.

At the conclusion of the inquest, Assistant District Attorney Hely summed up the case as he saw it: "There is no reasonable basis to conclude that the election officials involved committed any criminal violation of the law."

And, Assistant Attorney General Kiley, looking at it from a civil standpoint saw it this way: "We have had violations of election law coupled with deficiencies in the system itself."

The wide tally sheets on which votes were recorded in 50-vote blocks was proved to be quite faulty by experiments conducted by Dr. Siegel using Salem senior citizens simulating conditions under which the actual vote was counted in Quincy last Nov. 14.

In the first test, he said, 11 errors were made, eight favoring former Mayor Hannon and three favoring Mayor LaRaia.

On the second test, there were 13 errors—all of them giving LaRaia votes to Hannon.

In the actual election, six blocks of 50 votes were credited to Mr. Hannon when they should have gone to Mr. LaRaia. It helped make Hannon a 134-vote election day winner. But the recount sought by Mayor LaRaia found those errors and the latter was declared the actual winner by 483 votes.

But other conditions played a role in the election foulup. Noise and confusion as votes were counted, for example. And there were minor infractions of the election laws.

But no theft or attempted theft.

Perhaps Quincy may have to face up to the cost of voting machines. City Clerk John Gillis has tried to get them for years.

Perhaps those who work at the polls should be given training first. Perhaps some of the senior citizens who are among the workers may be too elderly to stand the long hours of election day and night.

Calling the events that occurred in the Quincy election "frightening", Dr. Siegel observed:

"It makes you wonder how many elections have been decided by errors like this that went undetected because there was no recount."

The recount itself righted the wrong as far as the outcome of the election is concerned.

Hopefully, the inquest will bring forth recommendations to improve the way elections are carried out in the future. Not only here but elsewhere.

We commend Atty. Gen. Francis Bellotti and Dist. Atty. William Delahunt for seeking the inquest and Judge Kramer for granting and conducting it.

Quincy, we feel, has learned a lot from it. There is considerable room for improvement. There are steps that must be taken to assure that improvement.

But it is nice to know we still have a pretty clean city.

The word "ostracize" comes from the ancient Greek custom of casting oyster shells as ballots when it came time to banish somebody from Athens.

Special

Activities At Libraries

National Library Week will be observed April 4 - 10, at the Thomas Crane Library with special activities. The schedule:

Sunday, April 4, 2 p.m.: The Caravan Theatre, a children's performance at Main Library children's room, 40 Washington St.

The Caravan Theatre Ensemble was founded in 1965, and is the Boston area's longest-established theatre company. Its commitment to developing and producing original works, and reflecting a concern with immediate social and personal issues places it among New England's foremost companies. Performances are designed to involve all members of the audience making use of movement, songs and musical instruments.

Monday, April 5, 10:30 a.m. - 11:30 a.m.: Main Library Coffee Hour. Have a cup of coffee and meet Warren Watson, Library Director. Find out what your library can do for you.

3 - 4 p.m.: Houghs Neck Branch Coffee Hour. 1186 Sea St., Houghs Neck.

7:30 p.m.: Native Animal Life presented by the Trailside Museum, talk and live animals. Adams Shore Branch Library, 519 Sea St.

Tuesday, April 6, 10:30 - 11:30 a.m.: Adams Shore Coffee Hour, 519 Sea St.

3 - 5 p.m.: Wollaston Branch Open House, 41 Beale St., Wollaston. Coffee and goodies for library friends with special welcome to new Clay St. neighbors. Meet Warren Watson, Library Director.

7:30 p.m.: Preparing For Spring - Indoors and Out, Dave O'Connell of the Newport Garden Shop will help with plant problems and answer questions on readying the soil for the best flower and vegetable season ever. North Quincy Branch, 381 Hancock St., North Quincy.

Wednesday, April 7, 3:30 p.m.: North Quincy Branch Coffee Hour. More goodies.

7 p.m.: Plant talk, a special discussion presented by the Germantown Garden Club on anything you might have ever wondered about the secret life of your house plants. Houghs Neck Branch, 1186 Sea St., Houghs Neck.

Children's Special: 3:30 Film Program. "Free to Be You and Me" starring Mario Thomas. Main Library children's room, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

Thursday, April 8, 4 - 6 p.m.: A reception in honor of the April painting exhibit by Carmen Ungar in the Main Library Gallery. Miss Ungar is the Thomas Crane Library art librarian and thus the exhibit is very special.

7:30 p.m.: Meet the Author, Leo P. Dauwer, author-artist of "I Remember Southie". Main Library, 40 Washington St. "I Remember Southie" is a collection of stories and memories about the Southie Dauwer knew as a boy, as well as its history and people since the time of the Revolution, up to the present time. He will present a slide show of his illustrations which highlight the book as well as scenes around Boston. Autographed copies of his books will be available.

Sunday, April 11, 2:30 p.m.: The Hancock Woodwind Quintet will present a live performance of works by American composers in the Main Library Gallery, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

'Things Go Better With Koch ...'

By HENRY BOSWORTH

If someone asked you to name the most powerful political figure in Quincy who would it be: James McIntyre, Arthur Tobin, Joseph LaRaia?

Well, there's one more name to consider and one you might not automatically think of: Richard Koch.

The main reason his name might slip by is that he has never been elected to public office. But the only reason he has never been elected probably is that he has never run.

Actually, Koch is one of the most powerful political figures Quincy has ever had but he's usually in the background rather than out front in the spotlight.

But he's there standing silent, maybe, but strong.

Koch is executive secretary of the Quincy Park-Recreation Board but his political muscle doesn't come from that.

It comes from two sources:

His long-time association with the Kennedy's. He was local coordinator for John Kennedy when he ran for Congress, Senate and President. And he's close to Ted Kennedy.

But his real political clout stems from the Koch Club which he founded in 1948 as a softball team.

It is now one of the largest social-recreation organizations in New England if not the country.

An estimated 15,000 adults and 60,000 youngsters have participated in its activities: softball, bowling, basketball, etc.

Which makes for quite a solid foundation to launch a political campaign from. That's some built-in vote if he should ever decide to run, say, for a city-wide post.

And, there are people right now asking him to consider running for mayor in 1977. But if he's giving it any thought, those close to him say he's not really seriously considering it. Well, not this week, anyway.

There's little doubt Koch would be a formidable challenger for mayor. He's done a tremendous job as executive secretary to the Park-Recreation Board and probably has more friends in town than anyone else.

He has that big built-in vote. And he's got a built-in campaign slogan whenever he wants to use it. A nice catchy one: "Things Go Better With Koch."

WELL, HERE'S ANOTHER item about Ruth Gordon but this one is much more in character than the one about her considering a nude centerfold.

Miss Gordon will star in a new made-for-TV movie "The Prince of Central Park" on CBS Tuesday night, April 6. It is adapted from the book by Evan Rhodes and billed as a "delightful story for family viewing." The cast includes P. J. Hargrave, best known as Dr. Werner in the daytime soaper, "The Guiding Light".

Miss Gordon is currently co-starring with Lynn Redgrave in the revival of George Bernard Shaw's "Mrs. Warren's Profession" at the Vivian Beaumont Theater, Lincoln Center, N.Y.

IT LOOKS LIKE a banner tourist season around here this bicentennial year.

John Nourse, director of the Norfolk County Development and Tourism Commission, which operates out of State Street South, North Quincy, reports a year ago at this time he was receiving about five or six inquiries from out-of-state tourists planning to come to the area.

"Now we're getting 50 to 60 a week," he estimates. [Ten times as many].

Nourse credits the highly acclaimed TV series "The Adams Chronicles" for much of the increased inquiries.

Quincy and Braintree will benefit the most from "The Chronicles"—particularly Quincy.

Nourse has plans to put up a billboard message "Home of The Adams Chronicles" on the Southeast Expressway in Dorchester, directing tourists to Quincy.

And, Fred Lane, director of Quincy Heritage, has plans for a new auto bumper sticker proclaiming "Quincy, Home of The Adams Chronicles".

APPOINTMENT this week of Paul Anderson as Community Development Coordinator in the Planning Department brings back to the fold one of Mayor Joseph LaRaia's key preliminary election figures.

Anderson, along with Frank DiCesare, coordinated the LaRaia campaign up to that point. Then both departed after disagreement over how the rest of the campaign should be run.

Observers are now wondering if DiCesare might be named to a post yet. Insiders, however, doubt it. DiCesare, anyway, had said he was not interested in a city planning job. But he might yet wind up on a municipal board.

FRANK KELLEY, senior job placer for the Quincy CETA program and head of the Quincy Track Club, is at Quincy Hospital with pneumonia. Says that if anyone on the track club is wondering where the jersey are he was getting for them, this is why they haven't yet received them.

SMILE DEPT: Jack Silverstein, the North Quincy druggist, jogger and author says he knows of a hospital that has become quite efficient. They have an express operating table for six stitches or less.

QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS

April 1-7, 1959 - 17 Years Ago This Week

E. Mass. Bus Strike Passes 140th Day

By TOM HENSHAW

A strike of more than 1,000 bus drivers and mechanics against the Eastern Mass Street Railway Co. passed its 140th day, trying times for some 300,000 commuters in 81 suburban Boston communities. The workers struck Nov. 17 seeking a 25 cent an hour wage increase. Eastern Mass offered a nickel an hour boost.

The Shopperstown Division of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce announced plans to circulate a petition to bring pressure on Gov. Foster Furcolo to effect an end to the dispute.

Lawrence Godfrey, manager of Grant's Quincy store and chairman of Shopperstown promotion committee, said:

"The strike had made a considerable dent in the progress of sales in the city....We are being hurt."

SHIPYARD BOOMING

The Bethlehem Steel Co.'s Quincy Shipyard reported a peacetime high of 10,320 employees at work on eight ships, including a nuclear-powered guided missile cruiser for the U.S. Navy.

Also under construction at the shipyard on Fore River were three 46,000 ton tankers, three guided missile frigates and conversion work turning the light cruiser USS Springfield into a guided missile ship.

And in the future were contracts to build two 106,500 ton tankers, two 46,000 ton tankers, one 67,000 ton tanker, a 16,000 ton commercial carrier and a nuclear-powered missile frigate.

RAPID TRANSIT OPPOSED

Opposition was reported growing among South Shore legislators to a South Shore Rapid Transit District that would serve as financing agency for a $20 million bond issue to construct service from Savin Hill to Hingham and South Braintree.

The problem was that taxpayers of Quincy, Braintree, Hingham and Weymouth would be held liable for repayment of principle and interest on the bonds should the venture fail.

Meanwhile, Rep. James R. McIntyre [D-Quincy] was considering filing a bill that would take over the right of way of the Old Colony Railroad "to protect the state's rights in the future."

The state was subsidizing service on the Old Colony and McIntyre said he sees no chance of the Legislature continuing the subsidy beyond June 30.

FAREWELL TO DUFFEY

Friends threw a farewell party at Coral Gables in North Weymouth for Paul K. Duffey, former School Committeeman, now general manager of the east coast offices of the Federal Sign and Signal Corp., in Philadelphia. Going away gift to Mr. and Mrs. Duffey was a set of sterling silver.

QUINCY-ISMS

Rear Adm. Bartholomew W. Hogan, son of former Quincy Firefighter Thomas F. Hogan, was reappointed surgeon general of the U.S. Navy.... The executive committee of the First Presbyterian Church on Water St. announced plans to break ground for a new church on Franklin St., Penn's Hill, no later than October.... Shop and Shop Supermarkets were selling Maxwell House coffee for 77 cents a pound and broiler chickens at 35 cents a pound.... Rep. Charles L. Shea [D-Quincy] blocked a bill that would have permitted commercial travelers to operate in Quincy Bay.... Joseph I. A REGIONAL ECONOMY

By ERIC SWIDER

A Sick Health Care System

A Boston Globe front page story last week focussed attention on the fact that the largest single supplier to General Motors Corporation is not U.S. Steel, as you might suspect, but rather Blue Cross/Blue Shield, their primary medical insurance carrier.

That startling fact illustrates why businesses are trying hard to find better ways to provide good health care at reasonable cost.

Does that mean a government health insurance program, as some have suggested? It might. But we have to be very careful what kind of government program.

Just throwing money at the problem is not only a solution, it may well be compounding the trouble. Medical costs have risen twice as fast as the rate of inflation since 1950. Such an outcome is inevitable when the money available to pay for a product or service is increased faster than the supply of that product or service.

We live in a society in which nine out of 10 people are already covered by some form of health insurance. The near universality of this coverage has tended to make physicians, patients and hospitals careless about costs. ["Don't worry about the bill, the insurance company will pay for it."]

While the Boston area, with some of the finest medical training facilities in the world, might have good reason to be an exception, a recent U.S. Chamber report giving a national overview suggests there are a number of other factors contributing to the steep rise in medical care costs:

PRESTIGE: Hospitals often buy costly equipment that is used infrequently. It's the medical equivalent of keeping up with the Joneses. Good regional or metropolitan area health care planning can insure that all necessary services are available, while preventing wasteful duplication.

MANPOWER: Several problems here. Physicians tend to be in oversupply in wealthy, metropolitan areas, and hard to find in rural areas and urban slums. There are also too many physicians in some specialties, not enough in others. And finally, we now use the highly trained, expensive physician to do work that could safely be delegated to lower-cost technicians.

PREVENTIVE MEDICINE: It is a lot cheaper to keep a person well than to cure him after he's sick. But as things are now organized, most health insurance plans pay only for the treatment of sickness or injury. Also, most plans pay only for hospital care, which creates an incentive to use hospital facilities for things that could be done in a doctor's office. One answer is modification of existing insurance plans. Another is the "health maintenance organization," which agrees to treat whatever ails you for a flat monthly fee.

FINANCIAL INCENTIVES: Non-profit hospitals have little incentive to watch costs - they just pass them all along in their bills. Most medical services make money only when the patient is ill. There's no financial incentive to maintain good health. One of the biggest advantages of the HMO concept is that these organizations have a financial incentive to keep you well and to treat you adequately at the lowest possible cost if you do become sick.

PEER REVIEW: The quality of care provided and the utilization of health care facilities should be monitored by special committees of physicians. It is - understandably - a responsibility that physicians dislike. But it should be clear by now that unless the medical profession does an adequate job of policing itself, someone else less qualified will do it.

DEFENSIVE MEDICINE: Physicians are keeping patients in hospitals longer than necessary and ordering many needless tests to cover themselves in case of a malpractice suit. These practices add to costs, as does the soaring cost of malpractice insurance. This issue is so complex and thorny that it is probably best to see what comes of the various experiments underway in individual states before trying to enact a national policy.

There is no single "solution" to our health care problems. The whole system needs to be overhauled to improve its cost efficiency, and provision should be made to guarantee that everybody is covered by some form of health insurance, public or private. Likewise, all Americans should have some form of protection against the unbearable costs of catastrophic illness.

But a universal, monolithic federal health insurance system is not likely to solve the major deficiencies plaguing our present setup. Inefficiency and poor cost control. Indeed, these very problems are characteristic of government operations.

Take two aspirin and call me in the morning.

LaRaia Returns From Washington With 'Optimism'

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia returned from Washington Tuesday optimistic about the future of revenue-sharing and the CETA program and satisfied that he made his point on the proposed South Quincy MBTA station.

LaRaia spent two days in the nation's capital, visiting Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Congressmen James A. Burke, John J. Moakley and Thomas P. O'Neill and Roger Kral, a senior member of the Urban Mass Transit Administration.

The Mayor said he made his position clear to Burke and Kral that he was opposed to the MBTA station in South Quincy.

He said Kral told him that environmental reports on the area were being circulated among the federal agencies and a UMTA decision on funding it was expected in April.

He said Burke told him that it was up to local officials to take a stand on the station and that his concern was seeing it extended to the south.

LaRaia said O'Neill informed him that the revenue sharing program probably would be extended past its December expiration date and Moakley told him he felt CETA also would be refunded.

He talked with Kennedy about the possibility of locating the Solar Energy Research Institute in Quincy.

Double Sessions Public Info Meeting April 6

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creodon will review progress made in instituting double sessions at Quincy High School in a public information session Tuesday, April 6 at 7:30 p.m. in Atlantic Junior High School.

Double sessions for high school students in Quincy are scheduled to begin in the fall and last for about three years while addition and renovation is being made to North Quincy High School.

The chairman of the 13 committees that have been established to ease the transition to double sessions also will be on hand to review the work of their groups.

The committees include: Building Management, Community, Curriculum/Instruction, Food Services, Library Services, Moving/Storage, Public Address System, Personnel, Scheduling, Security, Transportation, Work Study/Distributive Education, Telephones/Communications.

Interested citizens are invited to attend the meeting to air their concerns and have their questions answered on double sessions.

Job Fair Saturday

The letters were addressed by senior citizens.

The Chamber of Commerce estimates that 14 per cent of the South Shore's work force is unemployed which means, said Reidy, that close to 10,000 people in the area are jobless.

The Pioneer Job Fair, held Oct. 27, 1973, grew out of a meeting held during the summer among then-Mayor Walter J. Hannon and a group of concerned citizens who felt that something should be done about the rising unemployment rate.

It was discovered that many of the newly unemployed had been working for so long that they had forgotten how to look for a job. Thus, the Job Fair, to bring employer and employable together.

Paul Ricca, then chairman of the sponsoring South Shore Council for Full Employment, said of the first Job Fair:

"It's like a big shopping center for jobs."

Four successful years later, it is still just that.

for wheelchair riders built into curbs at various intersections near the Clay St. Senior Citizens Housing projects in Wollaston.

Powers, in a letter to Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia, noted that 14 individuals living in apartments at 80 and 91 Clay St. require wheel chairs and "movement from their housing units to Wollaston Square is difficult because of the high curbs."

He suggested that the ramps be located on Chapman and Cushing Sts. at the intersection of Beale St., adding the "hope that work on these ramps might start as soon as possible."

What's A Funeral All About?

It's about someone who lived among friends and relatives. Someone who has made impressions on other people. Someone who will be remembered by them.

In short, a funeral is about a human being.

And that's why we believe it should be special.

"PEOPLE HELPING PEOPLE"

'President And Congress In Foreign Policy' UN Council Topic

"The President and Congress in Foreign Policy" will be the subject of Robert Keighton's talk at a meeting of the United Nations Council of the South Shore, Thursday evening, April 8 at 8 p.m. in the parish hall of the United First Parish Church, Quincy Sq.

The series of lecture-discussions is co-sponsored by the Leagues of Women Voters of Braintree, Canton, Milton, Quincy and Scituate. Admission is free.

Keighton is Professor of Government at Curry College, Milton, where he has taught for the last 10 years. After he graduated from Swarthmore he received his doctorate from the University of Pennsylvania, taught at Tarleton University in Texas and Babson College. He has written "One Nation" a textbook on American government and is now at work on a book on the Presidency.

Keighton believes that the Constitution is ambiguous as to who has authority in making foreign policy, and that since this is so, when quick decisions have to be made, the President makes them. There are dangers in this because his decisions do not always have the backing of the nation. There have been attempts to check him in various ways. One of the topics Keighton will discuss is how effective these ways have been.

A dinner precedes the lecture at 7 p.m. For information about the charge and reservations call Miss Eleanor Brown, 59 Andrews Road or Miss Edith Coulman, 1000 Southern Artery, both of Quincy, before April 5. There are a few places reserved for students at a reduced price.

Combined ENC Choirs In Easter Concert April 14

The combined choirs of Eastern Nazarene College will present an Easter Celebration of the Good Friday and Easter portions of Handel's "Messiah", Wednesday, April 14 at 8 p.m.

The concert will be held in the Lahue Center on the campus in Wollaston. Admission is free. Assisting the A Cappella Choir, the Choral Union, and the Concert Choir of ENC will be members of the Quincy Symphony Orchestra. Directing the choirs will be Professor Greg Larkin. Soloists will be Lewann Marple, Karen Seager, Robert Howard and Bryan Marks.

Fund Raising Walk Rally Saturday Night

The Protestant Social Service Bureau is planning a Rally Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at Bethany Congregational Church, 18 Spear St., Quincy Center for those who plan to go on the annual Fund Raising Walk Palm Sunday, April 11. The rally will feature games and prizes, a disco dance and refreshments.

RSVP

Receives $4,073

The 3-year-old Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) has received its final payment of the year from the Federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Acting Director Robert Tweedy of the Council on Aging said the check for $4,073 completed the grant of $33,830 for fiscal 1975-76.

The money is used to finance lunches and gasoline for senior citizens who volunteer their time doing work for various non-profit organizations in Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth.

More than 340 senior citizens are participating in the program, said Tweedy.

Annual Doll House Festival Held At Montclair School annual Doll Festival at the Montclair Media Center.

The festival was created in 1971 by Media Specialist Mrs. Susan Riley and has been a yearly event ever since that time. It is patterned after the Japanese Festival that occurs yearly on the third day of the third month.

The houses were constructed of wood, metal, cardboard and plastic. Styles included folding dollhouses, three-story and four-story homes. Houses displayed were both purchased and those created by fathers and grandfathers.

Girls in Grades 5 and 6 designed and executed an eight-by-seven foot dollhouse composed of 7 rooms and an attic on the Media Center wall. All furniture and occupants were created from designs of the 19th and 20th centuries.

Albert Vasile Returns To WEZE

Albert J. is coming back to Radio WEZE.

Off the air, he is Albert J. Vasile of 88 North Central Ave., Wollaston, who was a familiar voice on WEZE's Wonderful World of Music for a decade until the station went to rock and roll three years ago.

Now the station is back to what it calls "good music" and Albert J. will go back on the air as host of a weekend show from midnight to 6 a.m.

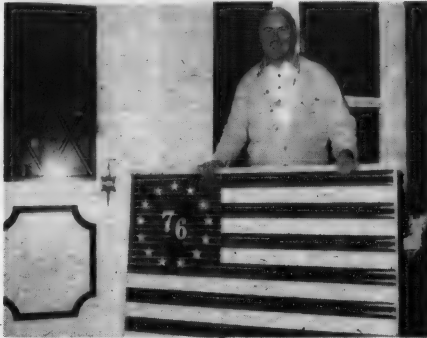

Vasile will continue to hold a position as associate professor in the Communications Department at Bunker Hill Community College in Charlestown, a post he took three years ago after leaving WEZE.

Vasile is president of the Montclair PTA, a member of the North Quincy Knights of Columbus and the

ALBERT J. VASILE

Italian-American Charitable Society. He and his wife, the former Evelyn Bryant, have two sons, Albert J. and Walter B.

PATRIOTIC DESIGN — Frank Evans, president of Frank Evans Co., Inc., Newport Ave., Wollaston, holds his firm's latest idea for home decoration — an all-aluminum bicentennial flag that can be used inside or outside the house. It is available in many sizes and flag designs.

'Austrian Evening' At Central

An "Austrian Evening" featuring a gourmet dinner of Austrian delights and an all-Mozart concert was scheduled at Central Junior High School, Wednesday, at 6:30 p.m.

The dinner was prepared by students of the Culinary Arts Class. A program of Mozart's works featuring "Regina Coeli" and selections from "The Magic Flute" were sung by the Morning Chorus and Concert Choir.

Turkey Dinner Raises $350

For Wollaston Congregational Mortgage

A home cooked turkey dinner, served by the youth of Wollaston Congregational Church, raised $350 toward helping the church eliminate the mortgage during its 100th anniversary year. Goal is $10,000.

Henry Gray, chairman of finance for the Board of Trustees, presented facts and figures showing the goal could be reached and Donald Martin indicated how much had already been given on a "thermoscale".

Robert Olson, chairman of the anniversary committee, received the proceeds of the turkey dinner from Carolyn Conser. Richard Kelsay was chairman of the event.

Herbert Elliott, church historian, and Foster Cleveland, chairman of the Board of Deacons, presented a special program of slides about the church's history.

The 100th anniversary will be celebrated May 8 and 9.

8 Win Seymour Safely Puppets In 'Young Ideas' Coloring Contest

By CATHY CONLEY

How many ways can you color Seymour Safely, the good vision symbol of the Massachusetts Society of Optometrists?

One hundred and 20, at least! That's how many entries The Quincy Sun received in the Seymour Safely coloring contest featured in the March 4 issue of "Young Ideas". Seymour became everything from Huck Finn to "The Fonz."

Mrs. Florence Blanchard, president of the Auxiliary to the Massachusetts Society of Optometrists, designed Seymour Safely puppets for these eight winners:

Kristen Curtin, a kindergartener from Daniel Webster School; Marla Greenberg, a first grader at East Elementary School in Sharon, Julie Ann McCole, a second grader at Merrymount School, Susan Ferguson, a second grader at Great Hill School, Mike Little, a third grader from Hood School in Reading, Diane Crowley, a fourth grader at Montclair School, George Dolbec, a fifth grader from Squantum School, and Bonnie McDougall, a sixth grader at Daniel Webster School.

The following 112 youngsters received Honorable Mention in the contest:

Adams School - Mark Crosby.
Atherton Hough School - John Bogan, Lisa Norton, James McPartlin.

Beechwood Knoll School - Bobby Gralton, Maureen Gralton, Stuart Gladstone, Rita Falcetta, Theresa Jones, Robert Cosby, Susan Kelleher.

Lincoln Hancock School - Lisa Cianfarini, Colleen Phillips, Mary Phillips, Stephen Pantier.

Cranch School - Lori Anne Facella, Maureen MacDonald.

Merrymount School - Patty Houten, Colleen Dunn, Andrea Coleman.

Montclair School - Richard Perry, Susan Hardin, Stephen Happs.

Hunting School - Michael Selevitch, Jimmy Dennis, Emily Ross, Christine Donovan, Lisa Hagerty.

Pollard School - Angela deBettencourt, Debbie Barkhouse, Lisa Bagen.

Mass Fields School - Michelle Hurley, Kathy Kelly, Jerry Arroyo, Cindy Sweatt, Nancy Hubbard, Kathleen Reddington.

Squantum School - Michael Buckley, Michael DeLuca, Theresa Hutchinson, Sheila Graham, James Whalen, Patricia Rochelle.

Gridley Bryant School - Susan Conroy, Ray Grant, Brian McCormick, David Walsh, Karen Johnson.

pull the paper out of the cabinet, throw books on the floor. That costs us mostly custodial time in cleaning up."

SUN - When you say urban are you implying that there are racial connotations to violence in the schools?

CREEDON - "I think so. Some racial but mostly poverty. I think the degree of vandalism in a school goes hand-in-hand with the young person's lack of respect for property, the public's and his own."

"If he lives in a housing development and he doesn't identify with it he's more apt to be abusive to that and he just carries it on and he's abusive to anything he doesn't like. Usually, he doesn't like school."

"I was interested in a report that was in the Boston Globe this morning. It said that the underlying thing in Boston, beyond the busing, is that 61 per cent of the kids going to Boston schools qualify as economically disadvantaged. In Quincy the figure is somewhere between 10 and 15 per cent."

"In addition to vandalism, we have people breaking into the schools for an explicit purpose. They want to get the tape recorders. They want to get that electronic gear that they can move quickly, pick up a few bucks for it."

"We are combatting that with an increasingly sophisticated electronic bugging system in all our buildings. We've spent maybe $250,000 on it over the past five years. It's a silent alarm system that is keyed right into police station."

SUN - Stealing things for quick sale usually implies drug involvement. Is there a drug problem in the schools?

CREEDON - "Marijuana is a lost cause. It's readily available. Everyone looks the other way on its use. But marijuana is still rather expensive. Right now I think it's going for $40 an ounce."

"Pills are still fashionable. But the real hard drugs are not particularly fashionable any more. There has been no appreciable increase in the drug problem in the past three or four years. In fact, there are indications that it has diminished."

SUN - Was it high to begin with?

CREEDON - "It was high the first time we took a survey. But the first time gives you the benchmark. Then you go up or down. Whether it's remained constant depends on the age group. Marijuana has gone down with the junior high kids. It's gone up a bit with the high school kids. The hard drugs are pretty much gone."

"The real shocker is the increased use of alcohol. Hard liquor, not just beer. That's the most devastating thing. That's the one that should be of more concern than any other one."

SUN - Do you see a return to old-fashioned discipline in the schools?

CREEDON - "If old-fashioned discipline means that the teacher is acting in loco parentis, as we used to say, instead of the parents; if it's captain's mast where the principal or teacher deals out discipline at whim or fancy, that's gone. That should be gone."

"The emphasis now is on due process of law and that's the way it should be for some very good and solid reasons."

"If the school is supposed to be a microcosm of the democratic society and we're supposed to teach kids how to live in it then one of the ways in which we teach them, day in and day out, is through the disciplinary code."

"There are rules to living in the school. There are rules for living in society. Here's the rule book and here's the penalty if you break the rules. If you are found breaking a rule we do just what we do in real life."

"You have to be advised of the rule you have broken. You have to be provided with a hearing. You have to be given an opportunity to defend yourself, to face your accuser. We are obligated to do that but I think we should be doing it anyway."

"Kids are more verbal today and they'll tell you when they're being bagged."

"I was visiting an elementary school this morning and the principal was chastizing some kids for not being on time when the bell rang. The kids were telling him right out that the bell doesn't work. The fact of the matter is that it doesn't."

"He was inviting those kids to tell their side of the story. I can remember as a kid when the guy said 'Let's hear your side of the story,' well, your side of the story was 'I've got nothing to say. I'm guilty. That's my side of the story.'"

"After World War II something like 20 per cent of the kids who started high school in Quincy did not graduate. Going back to World War I it was close to half. Now you have the situation where better than 97 per cent who start finish high school."

"So what does that mean? It means that after World War II those kids who couldn't cut it or were going to be giving you your hard core disciplinary problems were gone. They either quit or you threw them out."

"But what good does that do? It just creates welfare cases. Our obligation goes beyond that. We have an obligation to work with them just as long as we possibly can, to be as patient with them as we possibly can."

SUN - In a time of rising property taxes, do you see a stabilizing, or possibly a decrease, in school costs?

CREEDON - "No. There are three reasons why the school budget goes up and all of them are out of the control of the administrators."

"First, there is collective bargaining. Salaries for the staff are 82 per cent of our budget. The Quincy school budget went up $3.5 million this year. About $1.8 million was the result of collective bargaining, salary increases and step increases for all employees, not just teachers."

"Second, there is inflation. The oil bill goes up and the telephone bill goes up and you've got to pay the man. Four years ago, oil and light was costing us $250,000. Now it's costing us $1 million - and we're burning less oil now through our conservation programs."

"The third major reason the budget went up is $1 million in mandated programs for the commonwealth of Massachusetts."

"In the entire $30 million budget there was only $2.7 million that I could say I control, that I have an impact on."

"A million of that is for learning materials and that breaks down to $76 a student and that's not great. Another million of that $2.7 million goes to maintaining the plant."

"This plant, the Quincy school system, is valued in excess of $150 million. If you put a million a year into maintaining a $150 million investment you're barely keeping up with it. And we're not keeping up."

SUN - With Metro and forced busing, are we headed toward a metropolitan school system?

CREEDON - "I'll have to give you a little bit of theory behind it first."

"It is the prerogative of the State Legislature to organize school districts and in Massachusetts they are organized along community lines. In Florida, it's along county lines. In California, the districts don't follow any lines."

"The latest thing, in order to get around racial problems, has been to try to balance school systems with metropolitanization. If it's done for that purpose, I don't agree with it."

"People move to a community because they want to shop in that neighborhood; they want to go to church in that neighborhood; they're going to buy their pizzas in that neighborhood; they want their kids to go to school in that neighborhood."

"Do I think it's coming?"

"There are only two ways in which a community like Quincy can be forced to get involved in a metropolitan program."

"One is by act of the legislature changing the school districts and I don't think that's going to happen."

"The second way would be an act of the court after someone or some group accused Quincy of segregationist practices in denying kids who lived in Quincy an opportunity to go to school."

"Right now people are anxious but it's not in the cards."

SUN - There has been controversy recently over IQ testing in the schools. How is it done in Quincy? What do you think of it?

CREEDON - "Educators prefer to use the term 'aptitude tests' rather than 'intelligence quotient' because the latter somehow suggests you can give a kid a piece of paper and a pencil and ask him questions for an hour and a half and you can determine how bright God made him. We know that's false."

"We've been administering them in Quincy on a group basis for about 30 years. I think they're valid as one measure when they are taken in concert and conjunction with the entire testing program."

"We test aptitude and achievement in grades four, six, eight and ten. Each time we take a look at the achievement score and the aptitude score and correlate them to see if one is ahead of the other."

"If the aptitude is way up here and the achievement is way down here then you know you've got a problem."

"If the achievement is way up here and the aptitude is way down here then it tells you you'd better forget about that aptitude test as a mark of the kid's ability to come to know."

"That is group testing and there is a bill before the legislature now to outlaw group testing. I don't think that legislation should prevail. I don't think you can build much of a case for either side on something like that."

"I don't think the State Legislature should mandate aptitude tests. I don't think they should prohibit them either. I think that should be left up to local discretion through the school committee."

"Paul Park, who is the state secretary for education, feels we shouldn't use group aptitude tests because the test data is misused. If teachers or parents are misusing test data you correct the situation. You don't throw out the tests."

SUN - Isn't it the rap on IQ tests that they are based on white middle class values?

CREEDON - "For the most part, yes. They have been in the past. What they are calling for now is 'culture-free' tests. But can you really build a culture-free test? Not really."

"Let me give you an example. This question is asked primary grade youngsters. 'If your mother sent you to the store to get a loaf of bread and the grocer said he didn't have that loaf of bread, what would you do?'"

"The answer is supposed to be that you go to the next store."

"Well, in today's world the neighborhood store is gone, particularly in suburbia. And if there is one in the neighborhood there isn't one on the next corner. The answer doesn't meet reality to many kids."

"A lot of questions on the aptitude test are just beyond the life experience of black kids or minority kids or poverty kids or, indeed, even farm kids."

"You take a kid in the middle of a farm out in Iowa and ask him 'If your mother sent you to the store to get a loaf of bread and the grocer hasn't got it what would you do?' He'd say, 'Cripes, we go to the store every Saturday.'"

"Now let's say" the kid said, "Well, I know my mother always gets Tip Top Bread but I remember a month ago we were here together and he didn't have Tip Top bread so she took Bond bread and I'll take Bond because I know she's done that."

"Well, that kid has analyzed the whole situation and that's a hell of a lot better answer than saying he'd walk to the next store."

"That's one of the fallacies of group IQ tests. On individual tests the tester can sit there and make judgements on whether the answer is logically based in the kid's experience."

SUN - How do you feel about being named "superintendent of the year" by the American School Guidance Association?

CREEDON - "Obviously, I'm pleased."

"There are probably four or five national organizations that do that sort of thing and I can't think of one from which I would be more honored to receive their award because it is in guidance. That pleases me very much."

"Another thing that pleases me very much is that the people in our guidance department here, who do the nominating, thought well enough of me to put my name in and do the work that goes with it."

"Then also the city of Quincy was one of the first systems in the commonwealth of Massachusetts to have a guidance department back in the 1930's so I'm actually sitting on the top of a heap right now."

"I'm really mindful of the fact that it was because of the earlier work of people like Dr. Paul Gossard and James Muir, who preceded me, and Mildred Harrison, who is a retired director of guidance, and all of the people who were instrumental in the early development of guidance."

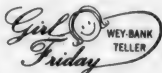

"One of the things I tried to do is personalize it a little bit. I try to make myself visible to the kids. I very frequently attend their dances and as many athletic events as I can. I walk around the corridors and talk with them."

"Remember, a little while ago, when my secretary opened the door and said 'Oh, you're taping.' And she left. But if that was a kid who came to the door - and my secretaries have a standing order on this - I would have seen what he or she wanted."

"We're in the kid business here. And when the product comes to see you, you see him."

Quincy Hosts B.C. High In Season Opener Wednesday

By TOM SULLIVAN

Last year, with an all-junior team, Quincy High's baseball team compiled a 9-11 record but gave the top Suburban League teams all they could handle.

This season Coach Bud Mosher has virtually an all-senior team and if experience counts, the Presidents should do much better in their second Suburban League season.

When Quincy opens next Wednesday at Adams Field against B.C. High in a non-league game, it will have a veteran at just about every position. The Presidents will play B.C. again on April 9, also at Adams Field. These will be the only non-league games for Quincy.

"I'm not predicting a league championship or anything like that, but we do have a lot of experience and proven ball players and I think we should do all right," Mosher said. "We should be competitive and no one will run over us."

This weekend Mosher takes his squad on an annual trip to Harwich on the Cape for a series of games with the Harwich High team.

"We will play Saturday and Sunday and will return Sunday night," Mosher said. "I will give everyone a chance to play. I think this weekend trip does a lot for the boys and I think the games are beneficial to us."

Paul Ferris is back as the number one catcher and Sal Coscia, a junior with a little varsity service, backs him up.

Mark DeLuca, last year's top batter, is back at first base, Eric Carrera at second and Paul Southerland, who shared the second base job with Carrera last spring, will be at third. Last year Paul Vespaziani played third when not pitching.

The shortstop job is open with Dan O'Leary, Bob Marcucci and Neil Dwyer battling it out for the spot.

In the outfield will be veteran Jim Duggan, Rich MacKay, one of the top batters for the jayvees a year ago, Ed Daley, a versatile player who can play either the outfield or infield, Jim Maze, Jerry Martin, a senior playing for the first time, and some of the pitchers will double in the outfield when not pitching.

Mosher has four veteran righthanders and a junior southpaw for what looks like a fine pitching staff. The vets are Lew Fishman, Vespaziani, Dave Raftery and Steve Infascelli. Pat Gibbons, the junior lefty, looked good for the jayvees last year.

"In the outfield I will use my three best batters, even if they happen to be pitchers," Mosher explained. "Fishman can play just about anywhere for us and he probably will see service at first base and in the outfield."

Rich Hutchinson is back as Mosher's assistant coach and again will handle the junior varsity.

North Jayvees Win Suburban League Crown

North Quincy's varsity basketball team missed the state tournament by a single game this year, Bob Nolan's final season as coach, but Eddie Miller's junior varsity won the Suburban League title and defeated second place Waltham in a special post-season game to finish with an 18-2 record, Miller's best at North.

"This was a well-balanced team with good scoring, rebounding and defense," Miller, who has had fine success as the Raider jayvee skipper, said. "The boys' attitude was tremendous and their ability to operate our pressure defense had a lot to do with our winning the league title."

North began the season with a 45-28 non-league win over B.C. High as White, who went on to have an outstanding season and was brought up to the varsity, had 18 points and eight assists. "I was very impressed with him and the reason was that he didn't play ball last year as a sophomore," Miller said.

The young Raiders went on to win their next 10 games, topping Newton North, 52-46, with White scoring 15 points and Gill 10; Waltham, 62-48, in what Miller considered the first of two pivotal games; Quincy, 62-49, as the sophomores responded well in their first game away from home and for the second game in a row the Raiders' pressure defense was too much for the opposition; Brookline, 65-51, and Brockton, 57-55, as sophomores Deane and Phalen scored key baskets late in the game to bring North from behind.

The next victim was Cambridge Latin, a 66-63 squeaker, as Gill scored 10 of his 13 points in the final period; Weymouth North went down, 70-41, and Weymouth South, 62-45, and the Raiders then toppled Rindge Tech, 56-41, as Deane scored 21 points and had 12 rebounds. North made its record 11-0 with a 56-52 overtime win over Newton North as White scored 13 of his 15 points in the fourth period.

North then went to Waltham and suffered its first defeat, 63-48, as Waltham took charge from the start. The Raiders rebounded to top Quincy for the second time, 58-45, but then were nipped by Brookline, 48-47.

From there North won its next six games, taking Brockton, 62-59, after trailing by six at the end of three periods; Cambridge Latin, 57-41; Weymouth North, 63-44; Weymouth South, 52-33; and in the final regular season game, needing a win to get sole possession of the crown, the Raiders breezed, 61-33, and outscored Rindge, 20-2, in the opening period. Gill scored 22 points, all from the floor.

North finished one game ahead of Waltham and the teams met in a post-season game. "We split during the season and our game plan was to set the tempo as we did against Rindge and get an early lead," Miller explained. "We did as planned and took a 23-12 first period lead. Waltham cut the gap to three points in the final period but we called time out, made some adjustments and went on to win, 66-58."

McGinley was high scorer with 16 points, followed by Gill with 12 and Phalen with 11.

Burke Club, 39-53 [29,080]; James R. McIntyre Club, 38-54 [29,013]; Harold Davis Club, 38-54 [28,956]; Hennessey Plumbing Supply, 25-67 [29,037].

Regan rolled the weekly high three of 356 and Tom McLuskey high single of 128. Morrissey and Granite Lodge rolled high team three of 1370 and Granite Lodge high single of 486.

The Top Ten: Regan, 109.2; Brian O'Toole, 107.8; Pete Martin, 102.0; Joe Piazza, 99.9; Dick Hallberg, 99.5; Bob Kelliher, 98.6; Paul Anastas, 97.5; Mike Guerriero, 96.5; Joe Godas, 97.0; Steve Anastas, 95.6.

Desmond Seeks AAU 165-lb. Title Monday

A North Quincy High School football player, John Desmond, will be seeking the 165-pound title at the 89th annual New England AAU boxing championships at Boston Garden Monday night.

This will be Desmond's first appearance at the New England amateur boxing event that dates back to 1888.

Desmond, boxing only a year, is rated an excellent chance of winning his division. He will enter the ring with an impressive 17-2 record which includes 13 knockouts. Both his losses were by split decision.

"He's got a lot of potential," Pat Halpin, one of his handlers says. "He's a good puncher and boxer and he has been improving with every fight. I think he'll make a good showing."

Desmond won this year's New England Golden Glove 160-pound novice championship in Lowell last month. The boy he beat in the finals, Robert Borg of Natick, also is entered in the New England.

During Desmond's first year of boxing, he won the New England Junior Olympic championship and advanced to the Eastern Seaboard finals in Yonkers, N.Y., before losing. That was in 1975.

He will be graduating from North Quincy High in June. For the last two years he was a linebacker on North Quincy High's football team. Last fall he played in the Super Bowl schoolboy game against Woburn.

$10,000 GoalYMCA Aquathon Starts Saturday

The Quincy YMCA will open its annual Spring Aquathon Saturday at 9 a.m., at the "Y" pool.

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia will officially kickoff the event. Quincy Heritage Director, Fred Lane, the mayor's wife, Louise, City Councillor Paul Harold and William Walker, Aquatic Director of the Lincoln Hancock Community School will swim the first lengths.

City Councillor James Sheets will also be on hand to represent the city. Sheets helped the YMCA kickoff last year's event by swimming. This year he will sponsor a professional staff member. Other members of the City Council will participate by sponsoring swimmers.

YMCA Board President Peter G. Rusitto said several Board Members will be at the kick-off and swim to assist the "Y" in achieving its goal of $10,000.

The Quincy Educational Association will be supporting the Aquathon in an effort to raise funds through the schools to help send needy youngsters to YMCA Day and Resident camps. Faculty representatives at the last QEA meeting were presented awards by Paul Harvey and Jackie Whitcomb, "Y" staff members, in appreciation for funds raised in last year's Aquathon.

Over 200 swimmers are expected to participate in this year's event. Anyone who would like to take part and support the "Y's" effort can pick up a swimmer's sponsor application or call the "Y" at 479-8500 and sponsor a YMCA staff member.

The public is welcome to attend the kick-off ceremonies Saturday at 9 a.m.

AQUATHON AWARDS -- Quincy YMCA presented awards to representatives of Quincy Educational Association for their participation and endorsement of last year's aquathon. Representatives of QEA and the schools they represent are, from left: Margaret Solari, Hunting School; Catherine Roeder, Lincoln Hancock Community School; Jackie Whitcomb, YMCA staff; Paul Harvey, YMCA staff; Anna Robinson, Quincy Educational Association president; Maureen McKenna, Montclair School; Larry Coombs, Mass Fields School. Representatives of Central Junior High School, and Snug Harbor School also received awards but were not present. This year's aquathon starts Saturday morning.

KIRK DOUGLAS has been signed to star in NBC's four-hour television film version of ARTHUR HAILEY's "The Moneychangers"... Viewers may have been confused a few weekends ago when NBC's "Saturday Night", which is broadcast live, aired a re-run, the answer to the mystery is that the International Radio & Television Society threw a banquet honoring the 50th anniversary of the network, and "Saturday Night's" cast and crew did their own reprise of NBC's 50 years for them. So much time was involved in the project that the cast, from CHEVY CHASE on down, had only two days to prepare the late-night show, which normally takes a full week. Thus, the re-run, EFREM ZIMBALIST JR., long a TV cop through "The FBI" and "Sunset Strip", will turn to comedy in an hour-long series pilot called "Second Time Around"... BING CROSBY and PHIL HARRIS reportedly are partnered as distributors of a special brand of tequila... NBC's daytime drama "Somerset" began its sixth year Mar. 30... LOWELL THOMAS, seen each week on WGBH-TV here in Boston, was honored recently for his long and fruitful career. Thomas accredited much of his success to AMOS & ANDY. Why? He used to precede them on the air and feels that many listeners tuned him in while awaiting the popular duo... TELLY SAVALAS, PETER FALK, ROCK HUDSON and DENNIS WEAVER will all become a part of late-night television later this year. CBS and NBC have added re-runs of "Kojak", "Colombo", and "McMillan & Wife" to their respective late-night line-ups... CBS's "Popi" has been canceled... ABC has "The Life and Times of William Shakespeare" in its sights. The 12 one-hour specials will be shot in England and Italy... NBC will present the six-part "Life of Jesus" during Easter of 1977... Remember PBS's "American Family" of a few seasons ago which starred THE LOUDS from Santa Barbara? Well, son, LANCE, has finally gotten his act together, so to speak. His musical group is titled "Mumps"... DICK CAVETT's Hollywood special is scheduled for this Monday on CBS. Dick's guests will include GENE KELLY and MICKEY ROONEY... BARRY MANLOW has joined the list of recording artists under exclusive contract to ABC. The singer's contract calls for a special to be aired later this year, following the release of his third Arista album. ABC's roster already includes JOHN DENVER, LOLA FALANA, DIANA ROSS, BETTE MIDLER, OLIVIA NEWTON-JOHN and THE CAPTAIN & TENNILLE... Spin-offs beget spin-offs. RON HOWARD's "Happy Days" produced "Shirley & Laverne" starring CINDY WILLIAMS and PENNY MARSHALL. ABC is now considering a new series, which will be spun-off from "S & L", to be titled "Lenny & Squiggy In The Army"... The same Boston-based firm that produced "The White House Transcripts" and "Watergate Cover-Up Trial" is planning a similar documentary-drama concerning the Patty Hearst trial... NBC has spent more than $8 million on new programming development for next season, including the purchase of 108 original scripts for pilots... PBS will broadcast 13 hour-hours of jazz to begin April 22. Among the stars will be MABEL MERCER, RAMSEY LEWIS, TAJ MAHAL and BUDDY RICH... TED MACK is alive and well and doing his amateur shows once again... The Major Bowes disciple will soon be in Los Angeles to stage a new talent show [non-televized]. First prize will be $1,000 and an engagement at a West Coast nightclub.

Irish Special On Ch. 2

Tip O'Neill, Carmel Quinn and Dublin's Abbey Players are among the featured attractions in Ch. 2's salute to the Irish - "Echoes of Erin" - Monday, April 12 from 8 to 10 p.m. "Echoes of Erin" celebrates the gifts and lore of the Irish - their contributions in music, drama, politics, poetry and dance - on both sides of the Atlantic. Tip O'Neill reminisces about his career and the historic success of the Irish. Carmel Quinn is seen in a gala farewell at Logan Airport as she leaves the city to march in Dublin's St. Patrick's Day Parade. There are songs from Tommy Makem ["The Great American Irish"], glorious scenes of the Irish countryside, presented by John Kelliher of Irish Television; and the melodies of Caitriona Yeats, a classical harpist and granddaughter of the Irish poet William Yeats. And there's "The House that Johnny Built", an uproarious comedy by Frank O'Connor featuring Dublin's Abbey Players.

Paperama Seeks Beer, Wine License At Colonial Mall

By TOM BRADY

Paperama, the discount paper and household goods store, Tuesday, asked the City Licensing Board for a license to sell beer and wine as a package store in the Colonial Village Mall.

Paperama is currently planning the opening of a branch in the lower level of the Colonial Village Mall at 169 Parkway. A portion of the paper store would be used to sell the beer and wine, John Allegrini, a Paperama executive, told the board.

The Licensing Board scheduled a second hearing April 13 when a decision on the license request will be made.

In another liquor sales item, the board placed the Presidential Liquor Store at 1222 Hancock

St. in Quincy Sq. on probation for three months after an employee of the store was accused of selling liquor to a minor.

The Board suspended the license of Arthur Ziskend, Presidential Liquors owner, for 30 days and then suspended the suspension for three months warning him that any further violations of the law in the three month period would result in more serious action.

A request from the International House of Pancakes on Washington St. to extend closing time to 2 a.m. was withdrawn without prejudice after several board members cited a previous "bad track record" of noise and appearance at the restaurant.

In other action, the Licensing

Board granted the Ward 2 Civic Association a one-day all alcoholic license for its annual spring dance to be held at the Fore River Clubhouse, April 10 and approved a change of manager at the Hancock Sunoco Station at 325 Hancock St., North Quincy. The new manager is David F. Belcher.

The final action before the Board Tuesday was a hearing on the status of Body Craft, an auto body shop, which, according to Building Inspector Allan MacDonald has been operating illegally at 495 Hancock St.

MacDonald said the shop was in an area zoned for business, but not for auto body repair, and that major alterations had been done on the building without a building permit or the presence of a licensed builder.

Board Chairman John Gillis said the Licensing Board could not grant a license to correct the situation until a variance is granted to the shop owners by the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Paul Anderson Named Development Coordinator

Paul N. Anderson of 82 Verchid St., South Quincy, has been named to the $15,825 post of Community Development Coordinator in the City Planning Department, charged with attracting new commercial and industrial development to the city.

Anderson is currently a management and financial consultant with Exeter International Corp., responsible for new business development in Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

For T.H.E. Insurance Co., an Exeter subsidiary.

A graduate of Boston University who attended the New England School of Law, he is married to the former Kim Bertoni of West Quincy. They have two daughters.

Anderson was co-campaign manager with Frank DiCesare of Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia's preliminary campaign for Mayor last fall.

The vacant Planning Department Post has been held under Mayor Walter Hannon by John Cheney, now a member of the Quincy City Hospital board of managers.

$75,000 Blaze Under Probe

Investigators from the state fire marshal's office and the Quincy fire department are probing a Sunday morning fire that destroyed three business establishments on Parkway. Gunned by the $75,000 blaze were Gerber's Photo Service, 115 Parkway; the Beneficial Loan Co., 113 Parkway; and Nick's Lunch, 111 Parkway. The fire was discovered about 4:30 a.m. Sunday and fire officials said it apparently started in the basement of the photo store.

No Criminal Wrong-Doing In Election

in blocks of 50 for each mayoral candidate and recorded on the tally sheets as 50-0, usually with the 0 left out.

It was hard to determine whether the 50 was on the top line across from Hannon's name or on the second line next to LaRaia's name. The layout of the sheet made Hannon's side the most likely choice.

That theory received dramatic support from Dr. Larry Siegel, assistant professor at Northeastern's school of Criminal Justice, who testified Friday at the last inquest session.

Dr. Siegel said he ran a vote counting test, using senior citizens in Salem, simulating the conditions under which the actual count took place in Quincy last Nov. 14.

"On the first run through of the test," said Dr. Siegel, "there were 11 errors made, eight favoring Hannon and three favoring LaRaia.

"On the second run through there were 13 errors, all of them giving LaRaia votes to Hannon."

Dr. Siegel said the statistical probability of 21 out of 24 errors going the same way was as low as one in a 1,000 or as high as one in 10,000.

"Either way, it's extremely rare," he said.

He said two of the women who took part in the test were retired bookkeepers.

"While they were explaining to me how competent they were," he said, "they made four mistakes right in front of me, all favoring Hannon."

Dr. Siegel said that, due to the setup of the tally sheet, "a strong case can be made for the top candidate being the recipient of the errors."

He said he found the events that occurred in the Quincy election "frightening."

"It makes you wonder how many elections have been decided by errors like this that went undetected because there was no recount," he said.

In his summation, Asst. Dist. Atty. Hely cited three violations of election law that occurred during the city election, none of which pertained to the errors in question:

- One precinct warden was appointed the night before the election, much later than the time specified by law.

- Ballots were taken out of a polling place to a car where voters marked them and sent them back.

- Ballots were taken out of a ballot box when the box was in danger of becoming jammed with them.

However, he said, the District Attorney's office felt there was no basis for a criminal complaint in any of the violations.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Kiley said that City Clerk John Gillis is going to have to change some of his procedures in future elections.

One of the changes, he suggested, should be a ban on the "flash count" method of tabulating ballots.

Committee

To Select Official City Song

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia has named a committee to choose an official song for the city of Quincy.

The absence of such an anthem was noted by City Councillor John J. Quinn a few weeks ago when he introduced a resolution in the Council to remedy the situation.

Named chairman of the committee was Anthony C. Ferrante, director of music education in the Quincy Public Schools.

Also on the committee will be Quinn, Prof. Robert Brown and Lambert Brandes, both of Eastern Nazarene College, and David Watson and Michael Cahill, band directors at North Quincy and Quincy High Schools respectively.

The committee is considering posting a prize for the best song.

Council Favors Limited Preference For Veterans

The City Council went on record Monday night in support of a bill, co-sponsored by Sen. Arthur H. Tobin (D-Quincy), that would give veterans limited preference for Civil Service positions in Massachusetts.

A federal court recently struck down as unconstitutional a Bay State statute that gave veterans absolute preference over non-veterans on Civil Service lists.

The bill currently in the State Legislature would adopt the federal system of preference by giving veterans five additional points and disabled vets and gold star mothers 10 additional points on the listings.

The Council resolution, introduced by Tobin and Councilor Paul D. Harold, noted that the federal court's decision left veterans with no protection at all under Massachusetts Civil Service law.

Should the decision be reversed on appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, the new legislation would be void and the old absolute preference law would go back into effect.

Council O-K's 3-Year Old Police Clothing Bill

The City Council Monday night agreed to pay a three-year old bill for clothing purchased at the Bargain Center which got lost in the labyrinth of paper work at the Police Station.

The bill was for $280.12 for clothing worn by the department's plain clothes officers and was dated Dec. 30, 1972.

Not only did the bill get lost but, said Auditor Charles L. Shea, the purchasing orders got burned up in a fire at City Hall.

LaRaia Eyes School Employee Cuts Budget Delay Stalls Up To 70 City Layoffs

By TOM HENSHAW

A state-granted delay in presenting the budget to the City Council may have saved upwards of 70 jobs for city workers, including possibly those of 20 policemen.

But for how long no one can say.

Under state law, the budget was to have gone to the Council Monday night but an 11th hour 30-day extension was granted statewide by legislation signed Friday by Gov. Dukakis.

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia said Tuesday that a budget could have been presented to the Council by the Monday deadline.

"I was prepared to give the City Council as lean a budget as possible," he told The Quincy Sun.

"If the budget had been presented last night there would have been a number of cuts [in jobs]. I don't want to give any specifics that might alarm people."

The Sun learned that a list of at least 70 names of city employees, including about 20 police officers, whose jobs were to have been terminated had already been prepared.

Mayor LaRaia did not confirm or deny its existence.

Rumors of the approaching layoffs circulated widely through the city over the weekend.

The concern of a security-minded public communicated itself so strongly to City Council President Arthur H. Tobin that he sat down and dashed off an ordinance change making such layoffs much more difficult.

The rough draft of Tobin's ordinance said:

"No permanent employee of the city of Quincy shall be terminated for reasons of economic necessity until and unless all provisional and temporary employees of the city have been terminated."

Rate Hike Seen In July

$10,000 Per Week Overspending At Hospital Disclosed

Hospital Director Harlan Paine disclosed Monday night that the City Hospital had been spending more than $10,000 a week beyond budget authorization for salaries for the first four months of the current fiscal year.

"We just started to get on top of it in the fall," he said under intense grilling by the City Council, which had been asked to appropriate $800,000, to be paid out of next year's taxes, to meet budget shortages.

Paine said that the hospital bill for personal services [salaries] had, like Topsy, just grown.

"Many part-timers began working longer and longer hours to cover crises that developed when others were sick or absent," he said. "They had to work extra to fill the vacant slot."

"When the person who was out came back, the person who was filling in should have gone back to his original hours but the department felt the coverage was essential and it continued."

"The front office did not catch up with it until it found that the payroll was exceeding the budget allowance. You wouldn't get excited over one payroll but when you see a lot it raises the red flag.

"We were slow to pick up the signals."

"The hospitals casual manner of handling funds is not acceptable to me and certainly not acceptable to the taxpayers," said City Councilor Warren A. Powers, who killed temporarily the request for $800,000 by objecting.

Under questioning by Councilor Daniel Raymondi, Paine conceded that the hospital was "overstaffed for a time."

"I can't defend it," he said. "We are in the process of developing controls. Because of the part time workers it has been difficult in the past to zero in on the number of workers in the hospital."

"Five months ago we were 12 to 15 people overstaffed in the nursing department. We thought it necessary for good care. The order went out that it had to go down. Now we are within or below the complement."

Paine told Councilor John J. Lydon Jr. that "we are going to have a rate increase July 1" at the hospital. He said that the increase "will not be slight."

He added, though, that the hospital "will break even for the current fiscal year. The revenue that we take in will match the money paid out."

Councilor James A. Sheets pointed out that six weeks ago there was a newspaper report that the hospital was going to come up $2 million short.

"What happened to change it in the meantime?" he asked.

No one really had an answer.

Council Votes $10,000 -- For Postage!

The City Council came up with $10,000 Monday night so that City Hall and the Health Center can continue mailing letters.

The sum was transferred from one account to another in the City Treasurer's office on request of Treasurer Robert Foy who explained to the Council that his office is responsible for postage on such letters.

The recent three-cent rise in postage rates made the money necessary, said Foy, adding that the $10,000 would carry the mailings through to the end of the fiscal year.

In Commemoration Of Granite Railway Anniversary

36 Students From Our Quincy Leave For Quincy, Ill. Visit

It's the land where Mark Twain envisioned Tom Sawyer, where young Abe Lincoln first appeared in court, where the Mormons turned west to find their promised land.

And 36 youngsters from Quincy left yesterday [Wednesday] to visit for a week as guests of their pen pals from the Adams School in the sister city of Quincy, Ill.

The trip was arranged by Daniel Malvesta, principal of the Quincy School; his assistant, Gene Ronayne; and Charles Finch, a sixth grade teacher in the Adams School.

The Quincy (Mass.) School Committee has appropriated $850 for the trip and organizations such as the Quincy Elementary School Parents' Association raised about $700 and parents paid the rest.

The round-trip will be made by Amtrak train "slumber coaches" to mark the 150th anniversary of the opening of the Granite Railway in Quincy (Mass.), the first commercial railroad in the U.S.

Students making the trip will include 20 from the fifth and sixth grades of the Quincy School, six from Atlantic Junior High School, six from North Quincy High, three from Quincy High and one from Vo Tech.

The youngsters from the Quincy School are Kevin Burke, John Hidalgo, David Venezia, Donald Reidy, Julie Bassdorf, Patricia Cocce, John Hallahan, James Fennell, Mary Hemphill, Carol Koelsch, Cheryl Donovan, Nancy Coleman, Gail Jonaitas, Joe Livingstone, Robert Waterman, Kenneth McCarron, Kim Thomas, Michelle Bythrow, Karen Flaherty and Robert Doyle.

Also Walter McConaghy, James Page, Jacqueline Thayer, Patricia Gerry, Jean Zdzankowski and James Fitzgerald of Atlantic Junior High; Paul Collins, Jay Sterin, Kate Morrissey, Eileen Feeney and Alicia and Betsy

Johnson of North Quincy High; Jon Golub, Carol Laughlin and Enid Braverman of Quincy High, and, Diana D'Olimpio of Vo Tech.

Adults making the trip include Malvesta, Ronayne, Arnold Rubin of Atlantic Junior High, Gene Macomber of Quincy High, Paul Stanton of North Quincy High, Mrs. Lucinda Morrissey, school nurse; the Rev. Robert Bosdorf, and Mrs. Barbara McConaghy, Mrs.

Kelly Seeks Bigger State Share In Seawall Construction Cost

City Councillor Leo J. Kelly, whose Ward 1 includes Houghs Neck, wants the state to pay a larger share in the construction of sea walls. At present, the city has to ante up 50 per cent of the cost.

Said Kelly in letters to Sen. Arthur H. Tobin and Reps. Joseph E. Brett, Robert Cerasoli, Thomas Brownell and James A. Sheets:

"If this formula were changed to meet the same guidelines as funding of harbor and bay dredging, which is currently 25 per cent city funded, much more work would be able to be done.

"I am anticipating $200,000 for seawall construction in the City of Quincy and if a decrease in cost were to occur it would enable remaining monies to further benefit the residents of Quincy against land erosion and flooding."

$4,200 In U.S. Funds For Adams Birthplaces

The John Adams and John Quincy Adams birthplaces on Franklin St., South Quincy will each receive $2,100 in federal funds, Congressman James A.

Burke announces.

The money, awarded to the Massachusetts Historical Commission, will allow the Commission to proceed with masonry repairs, carpentry, insect extermination, painting and upgrading the heating and electrical systems. It will be supplemented by approximately $14,500 from the city of Quincy.

The National Park Service administers the distribution of Washington's portion of the money, under the authority of the National Historic Preservation Act of 1968

Sheets, Angelo's Agree

On Shirley St. Truck Ban

Trucks making deliveries to Angelo's Super Market at 650 Adams St. will be prohibited from using all but a small section of Shirley St. under an agreement reached by City Councillor James A. Sheets and officials of the store.

Sheets said the truck ban was necessary for the safety of children and adults who live on the very narrow and congested residential street. Trucks will be permitted on a small section between Adams St. and Angelo's driveway.

Robert Curtis, manager of the store, said personnel receiving merchandise will warn deliverymen of the prohibition and signs are being prepared for display in prominent places.

Sheets said he plans to present a resolution to the City Council officially banning all commercial traffic from Shirley St., except for that section between Adams St. and Angelo's driveway.

The councillor added he is working with other businessmen in the area for additional improvements.

The Automatic Auto Loan.

Picking out a brand new car these days is no simple task. Not with the wide range of domestic and foreign models from which to choose.

But selecting an auto loan that suits your budget and convenience is a whole lot easier than it used to be — thanks to Norfolk's Customer Option Auto Loan.

You select the new or used car you'd like to buy and determine exactly what you want to pay for it. Then stop in at any Norfolk office for the amount you need. Approval will be given promptly. It's that simple.

An Auto Loan from Norfolk is the best way to finance your auto for a number of reasons.

For one thing it's based on simple interest — which can save you money in the long run.

What's more; you can take a Payment Holiday and skip a payment from time to time without paying a penalty. And the payments on your loan can be made any day of the month you wish.

You can also earn a preferred rate by having your payments automatically deducted from your Norfolk checking account.

Now that you've decided on a new car, wouldn't you rather have a Customer Option Auto Loan?

Quincy Point Bar License Transfer Delayed

By TOM BRADY

The City Licensing Board Tuesday refused to act on a transfer of license for the County Line Pub in Quincy Point because the establishment does not meet the Health Department's code specifications.

The County Line, which was one of several bars involved in a controversy with Quincy Point residents three months ago, is being sold by George Tull to Harry V. Hogan, of Braintree, who came before the Board seeking the license transfer.

Dr. Samuel Solomon, health commissioner, pointed out various violations of the city health code that had been reported during an inspection and asked whether Tull or Hogan would be responsible to see that repairs are made.

When neither Tull or Hogan accepted responsibility for the repairs, Building Inspector Allan MacDonald moved that the case be postponed two weeks so responsibility can be established and standard police and financial checks on the new owner can be performed.

The Board voted the two week postponement.

A request from Wayne M. Keith for a transfer of license to operate a lodging house at 4 Berlin St., Wollaston was denied after the board heard Councillor Warren Powers relate complaints from area residents about the house which has been operating at that address for more than 30 years.

Keith, a prospective buyer of the lodging house, indicated that he intended to make some repairs on the house if the license transfer were granted and the sale completed, but his proposed repairs did not meet the approval of MacDonald who said the building was presently in violation of the building code.

The board members voted to deny the license transfer and to call the present owner before the board to discuss the alleged code violations.

The owners of Artery Motor Mart at 100 Hancock St. were warned at the meeting about conditions at the used car lot after Police Chief Francis Finn reported sighting a number of auto wrecks and unsightliness at the lot.

Owners of the Sundowner, a bar on Granite St. was also warned, after a complaint was received from a customer who said she was told to leave because she was not drinking fast enough.

The Board also approved:

- A name change from Santoro's at 686 Southern Artery which will now be known as South Shore Sub and Pizza providing signs meet the approval of the building inspector.

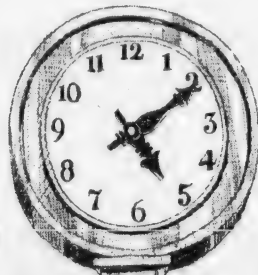

- Plans for renovating and replacing oil and gasoline storage tanks at Kertzman's Inc., 450 Quincy Ave.

- A request that Alfredo's Restaurant at 73 Franklin St. be allowed to open at noon on Sundays instead of 1 p.m.

ANCESTOR HONORED - Descendants of Gridley Bryant, the engineer who built the first commercial railroad in America, watch as Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia [right] and City Councillor James A. Sheets unveil plaque honoring their ancestor. Friday Deadline To Register For Women's Career Night

Friday, April 9 is the deadline for registering for the Career Night sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women.

The event entitled "Step into the Future" will be held Tuesday, April 27 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at Quincy High School.

Buses for both students and parents will be leaving from each junior high school at 6:30 p.m. and returning at approximately 9:45 p.m.

The Commission is sponsoring this event to increase awareness of the widening opportunities for women in the work force. It is intended for junior high school girls so that they can see a wide variety of career opportunities at an early age.

Sixteen different career clusters are set up and each one contains at least three different jobs within its field. Such diverse occupations as doctor, swimming coach, police officer, para-legal assistant, gymnast, lawyer, nurse, physical therapist, journalist, and investment broker are represented. Over 50 women will speak on career opportunities.

Forms have been sent home from all junior high schools through the guidance departments. These must be completed and returned to the schools by Friday April ninth if the students wish to take advantage of this opportunity.

Mothers Of Twins Meet April 12

The South Shore Mothers of Twins Club will meet April 12, at 8 p.m. at the George Bean Legion Post, 19 Hollis St., South Weymouth.

The program will feature a meat cutting demonstration with hints on how to identify and buy various cuts of meat to save money and make meal planning easier. The featured meats will be raffled following the demonstration.

The monthly publication of the National Organization of Twins recently reported a warning regarding crib safety. The second hand crib inherited as a gift, built prior to 1974, could be potentially dangerous.

According to the American Medical Association 15 infants died during a 30-month period as a result of accidental suffocation or strangulation in their cribs. Some caught their heads between bars of crib rails, suffocated from mattresses which did not fit the crib properly, and two were hung on the side of the mattress and broken crib rail.

The club's purpose is to exchange information, clothes, and equipment with each other and to help new mothers of twins.

Prospective members seeking further information should contact membership secretary, Mrs. Mary Franklin, 112 Liberty St., Randolph; president, Mrs. Thomas Foley, Jaye St., Plymouth, or publicity chairman Mrs. Joseph D'Angelo, 38 Exeter St., Wollaston.

Today's Women

Mrs. Rudolf Oberg President Quincy Needlework Guild

Mrs. Rudolf Oberg of 37 Walker St., North Quincy, has been elected president of the Quincy branch of the Needlework Guild of America.

Other officers chosen included: Mrs. James Greenhalgh, 46 Hilltop st., West Quincy, and Caroline Crane, 94 Glendale Rd., Quincy, vice presidents; Esther Sauter, 195 Upland Rd., Quincy, secretary; Mrs. Richard Bryant, 130 Reservoir Rd., Wollaston, treasurer.

The Needlework Guild of America is a 91-year-old charitable organization with 300 branches in 31 states whose purpose is to collect new articles of clothing, household linens and money for needy persons.

Emphasis is on the word

DORIS OBERG

"new".

"As the new president of the Quincy branch," said Mrs. Oberg, "I hope to be able to report to national headquarters a new surge of interest and work here in the South Shore area.

"An annual ingathering of all articles will be held in the fall. All donations are used right here in Quincy and the South Shore."

Articles and money collected are distributed through such social agencies as the Social Service Department of the Quincy City Hospital, the Quincy Red Cross, the Quincy Welfare Department, the Protestant Social Service Bureau and the Children's Protective Service.

"We hope that many organizations will form a group and work during the spring and summer making or collecting new items for the ingathering in the fall," said Mrs. Oberg.

'Employment Aids For Women' Pamphlet Available

"Employment Aids for Women", a new pamphlet prepared by the Employment Task Force of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women, is now available.

The leaflet describes job programs available in Quincy, as well as some 11 counseling and referral services in the Boston area, especially for women.

The pamphlet is intended to be a guide for the women of Quincy who are seeking employment or advice about going to work.

One of the findings of the Women's Commission is that there is a need for more employment counseling services in the City of Quincy and the Commission hopes to address this need in the future.

Copies of the leaflet are now available through the Thomas Crane Public Library and its branches, Quincy Junior College, the South Shore Job Center, 1433 Hancock St., the Quincy CETA office, 55 Sea St., and from members of the Women's Commission.

The Employment Task Force is composed of Mary E. Weaver, chairwoman, Rhonda Merrill, Debbie Merrill and Carol Leman.

Claire O'Hanlon Accepted As Veterinary Student

Claire E. O'Hanlon a 1975 graduate of North Quincy High School has been accepted for admission in the Veterinary Assistant curriculum at Holliston Junior College, Holliston, for the term beginning June 1976.

Claire is the daughter of John O'Hanlon of 30 French St., North Quincy.

Babysitting Cooperative To Meet April 12

The Quincy Babysitting Cooperative will meet Monday,

April 12 at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. William Marani, 216 Quincy Ave., Quincy.

The cooperative, formed to provide a service to mothers of young children, operates on an exchange of service rather than a money basis. Any mother with young children is eligible to join.

Further information may be obtained from the Southwest Community Center, Granite St., Quincy.

Now For Some Good News . . .

Parents of elementary children in the Quincy Public Schools, will now hear more about the good things their children do in school.

The Quincy Education Association has prepared an attractive card entitled "Something good is happening at school!!". Elementary teachers will be sending these cards home with children on occasions when the child has done well in any area of the school day.

"Too often parents hear about only the bad things that happen at school. We want them to share in the happy moments too", said Mrs. Anna Robison, QEA president.

The cards were prepared by the Community Involvement Community of QEA, chaired by Mrs. Maureen O'Brien.

Kindergarten Registration

Registration for Kindergarten for the school year 1976-77 will be held on Tuesday, April 13, 1976, from 9:00 a.m. - 2:30 p.m. at every public elementary school in Quincy for all children who will be five [5] years of age in the calendar year of 1976.

Parents must present a birth certificate at the time of registration and evidence of immunization for D.P.T., measles and polio to comply with State Law, Chapter 590. A child may be admitted to Kindergarten if in the opinion of a doctor he is not in a condition to be immunized and issues a certificate indicating this fact.

Appointment will be made on registration day for vision, hearing, and entry screening assessments as required by State Law, Chapter 766.

Children who will be five [5] years of age on or before December 31, 1976, will be eligible for Kindergarten. Children who will be six [6] years of age on or before December 31, 1976, and who have not attended public Kindergarten may be registered for Grade One on the same day.

Career Guidance Women's Workshop Topic Thursday

The fifth and last in a series of "Workshops for Women", dealing with career guidance, will be held tonight [Thursday] at 8 p.m. in the Adams Shore branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Jane Ford of the Mayor's

Commission on the Status of Women will lead the workshop, helping the women analyze their situations, goals and needs.

She will be assisted by four women from different backgrounds in showing how they arrived at their careers.

They are: Joyce Baker, office manager of Cohasset Ford; Nancy Cynamon, principal planner, Quincy Planning Department; Shirley Dunbar, Phase II coordinator, Bunker Hill Charlestown Project; and Mary Hayes, secretary in the office of Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia.

Quincy, Weymouth and Braintree. Reardon is a member of Associated Telephone Answering Exchanges Inc., which is International-Telephone Answering Association of New England.

No School May 6, Teachers Workshop

There will be no school in all Quincy public schools Thursday, May 6.

During that day all staff members are to be engaged in professional development activities.

This is Institute Day, an annual one day event, sponsored jointly by the Quincy School System and the Quincy Education Association.

Stay Alive!

By Jack Silverstein

TETANUS A KILLER

Tetanus is one of the most devastating diseases known to man. During World War I, 30,000 American soldiers died in agonizing pain from it. But by the time of the second World War, just a few years after the tetanus vaccine was discovered, there were only 12 reported cases of tetanus among combat soldiers. Ironically, none of those afflicted had received their full series of tetanus immunizations.

Because the vaccine has been so successful in preventing tetanus, many people believe that it is a disease of the past. Generally, it is. But far too many children still do not receive adequate immunization against tetanus during the pre-school years; nor do adults maintain their early protection with booster shots. Last year, for example, records at the U.S. Public Health Service Center for Disease Control revealed that immunization levels against tetanus were dangerously low. There were 101 reported cases of the disease - most of the victims being adults over 20 who had allowed their immunizations to lapse.

Adventure Nature

Q. My son was born on January 5, 1953 at 3:56 a.m. in Haverhill, Mass. At twenty one years old he is working for us in a florist greenhouse business which we took over from another family member. We have made it a small but paying operation. Could my son in time, take over this business or is he more suited to some other line?

A.M.
He would be his own boss. He seems to resist anyone bossing him. Is he capable of pushing himself to make this a continuing good business? If not we would rather sell it to someone who would care enough to really run it right.

A. There are indications in his chart that as a young man he is likely to have independent ideas and notions. He may feel that the grass is greener elsewhere and prefer to take off. He is apt to have a constant desire to travel and make changes. One way or another he will be determined to sow his wild oats.

He is not likely to settle down for quite some time. Once he settles down and overcomes a certain nervous restlessness, his brilliant intellect, high ideals and straightforward manner should carry him far. Individualism is very important to him and he will lead his life in his own way.

It may be better not to plan on his taking over your business. He does have the ability to succeed in it or any other business he chooses. He is apt to find your florist greenhouse business restricting and confining. He would be making changes constantly.

Later in life he is likely to settle down somewhat but not completely overcome an inner urge for adventure. Should he translate his adventurous inclinations towards intellectual pursuits he is capable of producing much of a creative nature.

For questions to be answered through this column, mail the year, month, day of the month, city of birth and time of day if known and question to Ask Oscar, Box 114, Canton, Mass. 02021. Please sign your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered in this column.

Harrington And The First Robin

By HENRY BOSWORTH

You might say political observers are somewhat like bird watchers.

They keenly look for the first sign of a mayoral candidate as bird devotees seek out the first robin of spring.

And, so what if it's only April and Quincy's next city election is still 17 long months away?

An incumbent mayor hardly gets comfortable in the chief executive's seat and - zango - somebody else wants to try it for size. And the politician watchers keep close watch, looking for the first signs.

The names of Senator-City Council President Arthur Tobin and Rep.-Councillor James Sheets seem to pop up the most when the politician watchers gather to ask: "Who's running for mayor?" Sheets despite the fact he says he definitely is not going to run.

Richard Koch's name is another you hear. But the politician watchers who specialize in looking for the mayoral species think they have spotted a genuine looking one in the City Council Chamber: Ward 6 Councillor Dennis Harrington.

Harrington, they feel, is already strongly acting like a potential candidate. He has frequently been quite critical of matters and representatives sent before the council by Mayor Joseph LaRaia.

He seems to pounce on orders emanating from the mayor's office, cross-examining like an attorney - as he is. Observers just have a feeling that he's warming up for a mayoral bid in 1977.

Harrington is the type who would run if he felt like it. He wouldn't wait to get anyone's blessing. He'd go. Period!

WILLIAM DELAHUNT, Norfolk County district attorney via Wollaston, is one of 10 recipients of this year's Outstanding Young Leaders Awards to be presented by the Boston Jaycees this week.

He's the third from Quincy so honored. The others: Richard Koch in 1958 and James McIntyre, 1968.

SPEAKING OF KOCH, we'll read last week when we said he had never run for public office. Former Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Gilmartin informs us that he defeated Koch for that seat back in the 1940's.

Koch confirms that. Says it was in 1947 when he was 24.

Two years later, says Koch, both he and Gilmartin lost in the Plan E election for city council. Koch says, just for the record, he topped Gilmartin that year.

Anyway, we don't think we erred last week when we said Koch today would be a formidable candidate for mayor, if he ever decided to run.

QUINCY'S pretty First Lady, Louise LaRaia, cost His Honor $50 Saturday. Mayor LaRaia sponsored her in the Quincy YMCA Aquathon at $25 a lap. She did two. And really prettied up the YMCA pool, a la Esther Williams.

PAUL HAROLD'S campaign committee is sponsoring a "Note Burning Party" April 23 at St. Boniface's Hall, Germantown. Goal is to raise enough funds to pay off the campaign deficit remaining from Harold's recent campaign for councillor at-large. They expect to put the match to the bank note that night.

LESTER GLASSER of Wollaston got a real long-distance telephone call the other night. His 17-year-old grandson, Paul Bauman of Braintree, rang in from Tel Aviv, Israel where he is studying at the University of Tel Aviv. A maximum honor student at Braintree High School, he will spend four months in Israel and then tour Europe before he returns home.

Paul, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Saul Bauman of Braintree really has the time difference figured out. He stayed up until 4 a.m. Israel time to make the call knowing that it would be 9 p.m. the night before here - and just about the time his grandfather would be getting home from work.

POPULAR SHIRLEY CRONIN who headed up the vital statistics department in City Clerk John Gillis' office, retired the other day after more than 30 years service. The office gang had a little private dinner for her and presented her a check. She and her husband, Edward, chairman of the Quincy Hospital Board of Managers, plan to do a little traveling. He's retired as an auditor with the state Bureau of Accounts.

A READER WHO prefers her name not be used asks us to ask you to make a special effort this bicentennial year to really spruce up Quincy.

"There are going to be many people visiting Quincy this year and they won't think much of Quincy if it's dirty," she says.

She suggests cleaning debris from yards, cutting hedges, raking leaves in residential areas and cleaning litter behind and around business establishments.

For openers, she'd like to see the bottles, tin cans and other litter along the chain-link fence near the Fore River Bridge traffic rotary cleared away.

Budget Delay Stalls Layoffs

In reading the proposal, Tobin also added "political" employees to his proscribed list.

The ordinance, which the Council acknowledged was improperly drawn, was endorsed enthusiastically and sent to the ordinance committee to be rewritten by a vote of 8-0, with Councillor Paul D. Harold abstaining.

The vote was taken on a roll call, requested by Councillor Dennis E. Harrington, while some 30 police officers, most of them in street clothes, looked on from the audience.

Harold said he abstained from voting "because the ordinance was in the most polite sense too broad and in reality a stunt to please the crowd of policemen attending the meeting."

Firing temporary and provisional employees before permanent civil service workers, he said, has been the law for the past 100 years. Firing political appointees first, he added, is unrealistic and unworkable.

"If this order is enacted," he said, "the city would be required to lay off its health commissioner, its city solicitor, its treasurer before a clerk typist."

Mayor LaRaia was inclined to shrug off the proposed ordinance.

"Any cuts have to be made through the Civil Service laws," he said. "As far as who goes first, there are certain procedures we have to follow under Civil Service. We just don't make that determination."

"But I feel that if the mayor is going to be the mayor he should be praised or blamed on his performance. Further restrictions on his authority would defeat the whole purpose of having a mayor."

The Council discussion of Tobin's proposed ordinance was carried on against a background of predictions of a possible $60 increase in the Quincy tax rate. LaRaia confirmed that the possibility once existed.

"The last minute delay gave us an opportunity to have a first run-through of the budget," he said. "There would have been a $50-60 increase and that's a conservative estimate."

"Now we have an opportunity to take a second look and we will make a thorough study of the whole budget. Every area will have to be cut, including the school department's budget."

The Mayor indicated that cuts in the school department, staff, including teachers, are a possibility.

"Dr. [Lawrence] Creedon has a highly paid staff, a huge staff of school personnel that keeps getting bigger and bigger. Unless he takes a positive approach to formulate a plan to reduce his staff we are going to get some answers."

"When you cut staff, like all the communities around us are doing, you reduce costs in all areas of government. Reduce the staff and you reduce expenses and capital outlay. It's a chain reaction."

LaRaia said when he spoke of Dr. Creedon's staff he meant "the staff starting at the top with the administration and going right on down."

He said he sent a letter to Dr. Creedon Monday requesting that the school budget be placed back on the school committee's agenda for Wednesday night "to discuss cuts that can possibly be made."

Introducing his ordinance proposal to the Council, Tobin said:

"I will not sit here and vote for a $60 increase in the tax rate. Anyone who does is one step away from Medfield [State Hospital]. Anyone who does should be impeached, including the Council president."

"But, with all the talk about a rising crime rate, the citizens do not feel easy when they hear we are contemplating the termination of some police jobs."

"I want to alleviate the fears of the people. I want them to know that we will have adequate police protection. The police department is the last place to look for terminations."

John Salenius, the Mayor's executive secretary, told the Council that reports of layoffs are only rumors.

"We have not yet come to the Council with cuts in personnel," he said. "The last place we would look for cuts is where they would affect the lives and safety of the city."

"We don't want a $60 tax increase. We don't want to cut out jobs. But we must face facts. Much of the budget increased will be in areas mandated by the state or caused by inflation."

"We may yet have to consider cutting personnel."

Josiah Quincy Coloring Contest

'Happy Birthday, America!'

This Week's 'Young Ideas' Theme

By CATHY CONLEY

"Happy Birthday, America!" - is the theme of this week's "Young Ideas" sponsored by The Quincy Cooperative Bank. The special pull-out section for children starts on Page 13.

In this issue, "Young Ideas" visits the Bicentennial Exposition at Merrymount School. And what a salute to our country it is!

Our history is recounted through dance, vignettes, puppet shows, musicals, and craft demonstrations. There's even a time capsule created for the year 2000. And to top it all off, through the Media Center, several children wrote, produced, acted in and did the camera work of their own version of "The Adams Chronicle."

Highlight of the "Young Ideas" issue is an interview of John R. Herbert, President of The Quincy Cooperative Bank, by four children from Merrymount School. Their interview was part of the research they were doing on Josiah Quincy for whom Quincy Cooperative Bank is named.

"Young Ideas" also features a Josiah Quincy coloring contest. A winner will be chosen for each grade from kindergarten to the sixth and will receive a $10 bank account from the Quincy Cooperative Bank. Deadline for the contest is April 23.

And watch for the April 15 issue of "Young Ideas." It will feature the particulars of a Bike Safety Clinic to be sponsored by Burger King in cooperation with the Quincy Police Department and The Quincy Sun at Central Junior High on April 19 and 20 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Officers from the Quincy Police Department will be checking the bikes for safety features at this time. There will be free soft drinks and the opportunity for prizes in a coloring contest sponsored by Burger King. Details of the clinic will be featured in the next "Young Ideas."

Lecture On Burns At Health Center

Elizabeth McLaughlin, Educational Director of the Shriners Burns Institute in Boston, will deliver a lecture and slide show on the prevention of burns on Wednesday, April 7 at 2 p.m. in the Health Center auditorium at 1100 Hancock St.

Dr. Samuel Solomon, Quincy's Health Commissioner, invited all members of the medical profession, nurses, firefighters and the general public to attend the lecture which is part of a larger education program. Miss McLaughlin has organized in the city.

Burn prevention educational material has been distributed to elementary school children as part of the program and the children have been tested on the burn safety knowledge with the aid of Barbara Hunt, head of the Quincy school nursing program.

THUMBNAIL THOUGHTS

BY SENATOR SNUFFY

Wives report the overlapping of sports seasons cause American males a big problem - which sport to watch on TV.

In Russia news leaks aren't allowed, but who wants to live there?

There was alarm in the FBI when it was learned squelers were in the ranks. A sort of shoe-on-the-other-foot situation.

Dr. Kissinger rattles the sabre at Cuba, a threat as scary as waving a limp strand of spaghetti. How things have changed since John Foster Dulles.

Judging by disclosures from Washington, some politicians and businessmen might just as well be wearing masks and carrying guns.

Wetland Hearings

The Quincy Conservation Commission was scheduled to hold public hearings last night [Wednesday] at 7:30 p.m. into two applications to alter wetlands in the city.

The applications were filed by Stephen K. and Maureen M. Richmond for alterations at 20 Stoughton St., Houghs Neck, and the Quincy Public Works Department for the Pike's Peak area of the city dump.

QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS

April 8 - 14, 1934 -- 42 Years Ago This Week

Montclair Fights Ross Building Program

By TOM HENSHAW

The Montclair Improvement Association called on citizens of North Quincy and all city employees to fight Mayor Charles A. Ross' building program.

The Mayor wanted to build a new administration building for City Hospital and a new central fire station while the people of North Quincy placed a higher priority on a new wing for North Quincy High School.

School Committeeman Joseph J. Kendrick warned city employees that any large borrowing by the city for construction work may well be followed by "payless paydays".

Nevertheless, the City Council's Finance Committee approved the new hospital administration building which would cost $123,500, including a bond issue of $90,000.

INVESTIGATES NEEDY

Welfare Commissioner Roland S. Broberg said he had started an investigation of the Federal Employment Relief Administration [FERA] and will remove from the payroll those workers in Quincy who are not in "desperate need".

The list of FERA workers in the city was down to 900.

Broberg said he asked state FERA officials to double Quincy's quota for the first half of the year and then slash it almost to zero in the summer when the shipyards are expected to start hiring.

BORN IN ADAMS HOUSE

Charles H. Spear of 1 Franklin Place, South Quincy, who was one of the rare persons to have been born in the same house as President John Quincy Adams, observed his 90th birthday.

His father, Charles A. Spear, was a tenant in the Adams birthplace in 1844 when young Charles was born.

MESSAGE FROM THE POLE

Amory H. Waite Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Amory H. Waite of 34 Elm Ave., Wollaston, was serving as chief radio operator with Adm. Richard E. Byrd's expedition to the Antarctic.

"Just arrived back at Little America from a 400 mile tractor trip south," he informed his parents by radio.

HOLDUP ALARM

Sanborn and Damon's Hardware Store on Hancock St. staged a mock holdup to demonstrate the latest techniques in foiling robbers. At the press of a button, 18 blank cartridges were fired in rapid succession, guaranteed to frighten the larceny out of the heart of the most hardened criminal.

Several buttons were located at strategic points around the store.

QUINCY-ISMS

Reva Pavan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Pavan of 284 Water St., South Quincy, won a city-wide contest on "How can Quincy people best promote Quincy prosperity?" sponsored by the Quincy Chamber of Commerce... Mail deliveries were cut to one a day in residential sections of Quincy but Hancock St. from Water to Dimmock St. still received three daily visits by the mailman... Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert were appearing in the sophisticated comedy "It Happened One Night" at the Strand Theater... John S. Gwinn, treasurer of the Quincy Trust Co., was elected president of the Quincy Rotary Club... The destroyer USS Farragut, built at the Fore River shipyard, left on a trial cruise along Cape Cod manned by shipyard employees... Monty Mountfort and his orchestra were playing for dancing from 8 p.m. to midnight at Bradford Hall next to the Strand; admission 30 cents... L. D. Mock, manager of the SS Kresge Stores at 1445 and 1459 Hancock St., announced that all store employees will be given paid vacations this year... Gofkauf's Automotive Store, 1562 1/2 Hancock St., was selling motor oil for 5 cents a quart... Clarence Burgin was re-elected to a third term as president of the Quincy Savings Bank... City workers, filling in an abandoned basement on Cleverly Court, Quincy Point, found buried treasure -- $35 in bills and coins, the latest one dated 1930... Foy's Markets at 39 Franklin St. and 1177 Hancock St., had large eggs for 32 cents a dozen and butter at two pounds for 49 cents... Bishop was working on a plan that would give Quincy the first two-way police radio system in New England by mid-summer... The Granite City Grange celebrated its 12th anniversary with Mrs. Gertrude L. Stanton, post master, directing festivities at Hancock Hall... Paul Schofield was elected captain of the Quincy YMCA wrestling team, succeeding Gordon Campbell.

Quincy Students 'Riding Rails To History'

Sixty-nine sixth graders from the Daniel Webster School began "riding the rails to history" Monday [April 5], a program created by Sen. Arthur H. Tobin to promote the MBTA and the Bicentennial.

The youngsters caught the MBTA's Red Line train Monday morning and rode to the State House to view the historic chambers of the House of Representatives and the Senate, the Governor's office, the Hall of Flags and the State Archives.

"I wanted to do something really special to celebrate our nation's bicentennial," said Tobin. "After reviewing all of the various options it seemed that a program opening up the State House and its history for the school children of my district would be perfect."

"We have a wealth of information right here in our own back yard which so few of our students are able to take advantage of. I think that this new program will be both exciting and educational for those who take part in it."

"The MBTA has been most cooperative in arranging transportation for these young people. The people at the MBTA believe that this program is a good way to introduce the students to the advantages of using the T."

"Many of these youngsters have never used the mass transit system before."

Forty-eight fifth graders from the Massachusetts Fields School were scheduled to "ride the rails to history" later in the week. Students from Braintree and Holbrook are included in the program.

Council Wants To Know Why City Report Late

The City Council's Oversight Committee is going to look into the reasons why the recently published 1973-74 City Report came out a year and a half late.

"The City Report is the only way in which citizens can learn how tax monies are spent and thus hold elected officials accountable," said Councillor Paul D. Harold in filing the resolution.

"The recent city report is of questionable value because of its lateness."

Councillor James A. Sheets, chairman of the Oversight

Committee, agreed to look into the matter after the word "inexcusable" was stricken from the resolve.

"If there is a problem in publishing the report," said Sheets, "it is up to the committee to decide if it is inexcusable."

City Underwater Team To Get $1,800 Truck

The City Council Monday night agreed to buy an $1,800 used truck for the city's volunteer underwater dive team.

The Council listened enthralled as Divermaster John Blackadar of Hanson explained that a dive paid team in the Civil Defense Department might cost the city $35,000 a year.

Blackadar, pointing out that Quincy's dive team was one of the state's most active because of the extensive waterfront and the quarries, said the 32 volunteers spent 808 hours in the water last year, many on rescue missions.

"We do it just to help people," he said, adding that the volunteers spent many uncomfortable hours during the winter changing clothes in the old truck while mow and cold wind blew through the cracks.

Montclair Druggist Seeks

Foot Patrolman To Cut Vandalism

City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr. looked at the note he was handed and shook his head sadly.

The note recorded a phone call to The Quincy Sun from Sidney Kalish, owner of the Montclair Pharmacy, telling how vandals did $750 damage to his store and how he can't get insurance anymore.

"Vandalism is getting out of hand," said Kalish. "We have petitioned for a foot patrolman in Montclair but to no avail."

Kalish said he was not criticizing the Police Department because "the men in the Montclair cruiser have been very helpful but what Montclair needs is a foot patrolman."

As Lydon read the note, the City Council, was preparing to deal with a related matter -- reports that some 20 officers were to be cut from the police force as an economy move.

THE READER SPEAKS OUT

Takes Issue With Election Inquest Editorial

Editor, Quincy Sun:

The April 1, 1976 Quincy Sun editorial - No One Tried To Steal Election, is perfect for the date, April Fool's Day, '76. Election day has come and past, but who's the biggest fool at last? Certainly not Quincy people. All of them cannot be fooled all of the time.

The Sun editorial almost admits that past elections were so well rigged that the incumbents could not be caught with their "hands in the till". For, if no one tried to steal anything, why were citizens cynical enough to watch the police, who were guarding the safe, containing the ballots? And why did those of us, who had observed several previous elections, recommend that watch?

And why wasn't the police time, for that slow ride to City Hall with the ballot boxes on election night, more accurately accounted for? Surely, no one could hold-up Machine Gun City, U.S.A.'s "finest" from their appointed rounds! And finally, why wasn't Helen M. McDonnell invited to openly testify?

Of course, the City Clerk has tried for years to get voting machines. They would have prevented such an election upset, by eliminating the evidence of ballots. In addition, the large purchase could provide cumshew for greasing the big machine. Then all that money, spent for those mechanical voters, could prove the "honesty" of that big machine.

It seems rather strange, though, that The Editor can so confidently predict and print the judge's decision. But, of course, we are reminded that the prosecutors' scripts, just as in the cemetery scandal trial, are well known in advance. Then the outcome can be predicted with a knowing smile, and a supercilious wink of "I told you so." A political machine always produces ditto copy, better known as "hog wash".

The Sun editorial concluded: "But it is nice to know we still have a pretty clean city." Pretty, it no longer is. The vandalism initiated at City Hall corrupts the environment. But, if by "clean" you mean, "plucked thread-bare", we might agree. In other words -

Without "...father" Hubbard
Joe went to the cupboard
To fetch his poor dogs a bone,
When he got there
The cupboard was bare [except for unpaid bills]

And so our poor city is done.

Louise Hatch Meservy
43 Park St., Wollaston.

[Ed. Note: Mrs. Meservy seems to have a knack for trying to put words in other people's mouths -- or in somebody else's editorial.

No where in the editorial did The Sun indicate or even hint that past elections were rigged. The phrase "hands in the till" is her own -- not ours. It never appeared in the editorial.

As far as "citizens" watching police watch the locked up ballot boxes, they were not the general non-partisan public but supporters of and workers of Joseph LaRia who had their own special interest.

As for Helen McDonnell not being invited to testify, she was not a candidate in the mayoral election. But there was an open invitation to anyone to testify. So, she could have if she desired. She attended every session as a spectator.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Charles Hely said:

"I discussed the case with Mrs. McDonnell in several interviews at length and I did not feel that she had any significant evidence to add."

He also noted:

"I spoke to Louise Hatch Meservy, too, and I did not feel that she had any significant evidence to add."

The Sun editorial was based on evidence and testimony presented at the inquest. There was no evidence or testimony that anyone tried to steal this mayoral election or any other election.

And we'll say it again, Mrs. Meservy:

"It's still nice to know we have a pretty clean city."

"QUOTES"

"Life is short, but it is long enough to ruin any man who wants to be ruined."

Peacemakers To Present 'Love' At Wollaston Nazarene Church

The Peacemakers, senior high contemporary Christian music group, will present the musical LOVE, by Otis Skillings, at the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene, 37 East Elm Ave., Wollaston, Sunday, April 11, at 6 p.m.

In a blend of contemporary music, lighting, choreography, and a slide show, the Peacemakers express the joyful message of the Good News—the message that God loves each of us and can enable us to love ourselves and each other.

The Peacemakers are under the leadership of Stanley Pulliam, assistant pastor for Youth Ministries at the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene. He is assisted by sound technician Sydney Smith III, light technician Kevin Carney, and slide technician Bruce Brennan.

Special Palm Sunday Activities At Faith Lutheran

Palm Sunday will be an active day for members of Faith Lutheran Church, 201 Granite St., Quincy.

At the 9 a.m. service the Senior Choir under the direction of Mrs. Herbert Berg, will present the cantata "Seven Last Words of Christ" by Dubois.

A regular service of worship will also be held at 11 a.m., with the sermon by Rev. James L.

Kimmell, pastor.

At 1:30 p.m. members of the church and their friends will meet at Faith Lutheran Center, Roberts St., to make their annual Palm Sunday visit to Fair Havens Rest Home, Middleboro. These Palm Sunday visits have become a tradition which has been carried on for about 25 years, and consists of a coffee party and a brief program at the home.

The church notes the fact that for years young people have also participated in this project and helped to bring cheer to the elderly shut-ins.

Members and friends of the church also remember Fairhavens with gifts, either new or used, such as sheets, blankets, bedspreads, towels and dresser scarfs, as well as non-perishable food.

'Bethany Sings' Stereo Recording Now Available

"Bethany Sings", a stereo record of Bethany Congregational Church Choirs, is now available.

Last spring, tape recordings were made of the various church choirs and last summer Lambert Brandes edited and balanced the tapes to produce the final product. One thousand records were pressed and the record may be purchased by contacting the church office.

Numbers appearing on the record are:

"Now Let Us All Praise God and Sing: [Young] Chancel Choir, Lambert Brandes, director; "Holy, Holy, Holy" [Schubert] Chancel Choir; "I Walked Today Where Jesus Walked" [O'Hara] Jean Bettinson, soloist; "My Task" [Ashford] Jean Bettinson, soloist; and "Prelude and Fugue in E Minor, the Cathedral" [Bach] Lambert Brandes, organist.

On side two, numbers are: "I Lay My Sins on Jesus" [Engelbrekt] Chancel Choir; "Ivory Palaces" [Barraclough] duet, Winslow and Jean Bettinson; "God Is My Shepherd" [Dvorak] Lois Brandes, soloist; "In There Is Gladness" [Gastoldi] Cherub Choir, Lois Brandes, director; "Spirit of God" [Mission Sisters] Junior Choir, Lois Brandes, director; "He Libes" [Ackley] Youth Choir, Edward Bohken, director; "It's All Over Me" [Hainston] Chancel Choir; and "The Lord Bless You and Keep You", [Lutkin] Chancel Choir.

Lenten Service Wednesday At Lutheran Church Of Good Shepard

A 7:30 p.m. Lenten service was scheduled Wednesday night at the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, West Squantum and Harvard Sts., North Quincy.

The sermon will be by Rev. Darrell Urban, pastor. There will be the opportunity for fellowship following the service.

Cooperating churches are Wollaston Lutheran and Faith Wollaston churches. The public is invited.

4 Appointed To Heritage Steering Committee

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia has announced the appointment of four new members to the Quincy Heritage Steering Committee effective immediately.

The four are additions to the committee, not replacements, according to A. Fred Lane, executive director of Quincy Heritage.

The new members are: Sabina Stenberg of 141 South Central Ave., owner of Sabina's Beauty Salon, Wollaston and Hanover Beauty Academy, Quincy; John Mahoney, 18 Mount Vernon St., West Quincy, retired supervisor of General Dynamics; Mary Collins, 116 Landsdowne St., Squantum, president Squantum School Parent Teachers Organization, and Loren Strout, 112 Robertson St., West Quincy, assistant manager of the Winfield House Restaurant and the President's City Motel.

The Quincy Heritage Steering

Committee, which is chaired by School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon, meets monthly to discuss and recommend future activities for the Quincy Heritage program.

Nominations Underway For Lincoln-Hancock School Council

Nominations for the Lincoln Hancock Community School Council are being accepted now through April 19, at the office of the Lincoln Hancock Community School.

Anyone living or working in the southwest area of Quincy is eligible to be a member of the council. A resident may nominate himself or herself, a friend or neighbor.

Nomination forms are available at the Lincoln Hancock School, 300 Granite St., and the Southwest Community Center, 372 Granite St. All nominations will be verified with persons nominated.

The election will be at the Lincoln Hancock School, in the Water St. Lobby, Monday, May 3, from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.

The Quincy Cooperative Bank Presents

Assistant Editors—
Merrymount School

A NEWSPAPER FOR AND BY THE CHILDREN OF QUINCY

Photography, Peter Jabaily

Merrymount School Says-'Happy Birthday, America'

What a Bicentennial Celebration at Merrymount School! There are minuets, vignettes, craft demonstrations and murals. There are slide shows, puppet shows, a time capsule and a model of a colonial town. And to top it all off, children in the media center video-taped their own version of The Adams Chronicles. Congratulations Merrymount, on a beautiful Bicentennial Celebration.

As part of their research into American history, Beth Anderson, 9, Chris-Ann Hurley, 10, Steven Buckley, 9, and Mark Denneen 10, interviewed Mr. John Herbert, President of the Quincy Cooperative Bank to find out more about one of the "mystery men" in our history, Josiah Quincy. The bank is named for Josiah.

Mr. Herbert, in our research it's very easy to find out about John Adams and John Quincy Adams. Why is it so confusing to find out about Josiah?

Number one, there must be at least six Josiah Quincy's. Almost all male Quincy's born for over a hundred years were either called Josiah or Edmund. Also, John and John Quincy Adams were, what I call, "pack rats". They saved everything. They were aware that they were living through an extraordinarily significant part of history. The concept of a revolution against the mother country was definitely history-making. It's interesting that when they built their home and their library, it was their library that they made fireproof. Their books and their writings were the most important things to them. On the other hand, Josiah Quincy was not a "pack rat" He saved little. And little has been written about him.

Why is your bank named after Josiah Quincy?

The bank is named in his honor because Josiah was the father of cooperative banking. Cooperative banking is different from commercial banking because there are no stock holders. A commercial bank sells stock. In a cooperative bank, everyone who does business with us is a shareholder.

How did Josiah get involved in banking?

Josiah was from a very rich and influential background. He could have been an arrogant person with little concern for the ordinary man. But he was very concerned. He was concerned about the price of foods. He was concerned with transportation. And he was worried that the hard-working father could not get financing to buy a home for his family. So he became a crusader for cooperative banks in Massachusetts so that workingmen might buy and own their own homes.

Was Josiah around to see the Quincy Cooperative Bank open?

No, Steven, he wasn't. Josiah died in 1882 at the age of 80. The bank opened in 1889. On opening day, 630 laborers and artisans deposited all that they could - $690. Each could only deposit a very small amount. But it was a beginning for each one. Josiah would have liked that.

Mr. DiTullio's fourth and fifth graders painted several Bicentennial murals. Here Nancy Roberts, 11, Ruth Barra, 11, Linda Rickson, 10, Pat McManus, 10, and Tracy Walsh, 9, re-create Paul Revere's Ride. Then Nancy and Linda set to poetry how they felt when they finished the mural.

Listen my people and you shall hear
Of our noon day ride of Paul Revere.
On the eighth of April, in 1976
He has reached our Bicentennial year.

With the sweep of a brush
And a cloth in hand,
We have recreated Paul Revere's stand.

It was one o'clock by the classroom clock
When he rode over the brown, painted bridge,
To illustrate to the Quincy folk
That the British were coming was no joke.

With the dark-blue sky above
And the blue-green water below,
We have turned Paul Revere's Ride
Into a Bicentennial show.

It was two o'clock by the classroom clock,
When we finally finished the Mural of Paul Revere's Trot.

Mrs. Cotter's third graders made puppets of their favorite historical figures. Here, five children give us hints about their puppets and tell us why they chose them. Can you guess their puppets?

Guess My Favorite Character In Hist

My puppet made the first flag. She lived in Philadelphia during the Revolutionary War. Her parents were Quakers. Her last name sounds like "boss". I chose her because I would have liked to have made the first flag. Then I'd be in the Bicentennial 200 years later.

Roseann Christiani, 8

My puppet nursed wounded soldiers on the battlefield during the Civil War. She was called the "angel of the battlefield". She brought the Red Cross to America. Her first initial is the same as my first initial. I chose her because I'd like to be a nurse someday and help sick people.

Christine Keddy, 8

Our puppets were explorers. They traveled up the Missouri River looking for the Pacific Ocean. They met Sacagawea, a Shoshoni Indian who guided them through the Rocky Mountains. We chose these two men because we like to go exploring ourselves.

Patrick Krantzberg, 9
Matthew Norton, 8

My puppet dressed up as a Dutch school teacher and spied on the British. He was captured and hung. He said "My only regret is that I have but one life to give to my country. I chose him because I felt sorry for him because he was hung. He loved his country and so do I.

Kevin Laitinen, 8

My puppet was born. He opened a school for students and became America's greatest teacher. He taught his students individual who something well, it makes his way regard race. I chose him because very nice to black and taught them to live.

Joey Cappadona, 6, and Maura O'Gara, 6, show us a huge model of a colonial town made by the kindergarten and first grade. Several first graders in Mrs. Vaughn's class tell us about the town. "People gathered together in a village for protection and to help each other out" -- explains Robbie Keddy, 6, "In the center was a large open common for the animals to graze in" -- said Allison Sage, 6. "Usually there was a church at one end" -- explains Joey Cappadona, 6. "And they always built near a lake so they would have water to drink and to run their sawmills," said Robert Sidders, 7. "The schoolhouse was one big, cold room with a fireplace. One child had to sit by the fire and keep putting wood in. It would get so hot that sap would come out of the wooden bench he was sitting on," -- explained Billy Roche, 6. "They went to school from Thanksgiving to Easter and they did farm chores the rest of the year" -- said David Southwick, 7. "I would liked to have lived back then because there wasn't so much to learn in schools. There's much more stuff now, like about rockets and TV" -- said Doug Ormon, 7. "Oh, I'm glad I live now," said Bethany Lopes, 7. "I don't have too many chores. Our school is nice and warm. And I like my teacher. Teachers in colonial times were too strict."

HOME IMPROVEMENT

It's a banner year to fix up the home

A number of pressing realities make 1976 a banner year for home improvements. Families are traveling less, due to the skyrocketing costs of gasoline, motels, hotels and restaurants, and staying home more.

And that's where improving the home comes in. Home-style vacations seem more desirable if houses can be remodeled to include such leisure-like amenities as patios, pools, outside cooking and seating areas.

As a result, wise homeowners are investing more than ever before in improving their properties with, as expected, attention to increasing their energy-saving potential. With heating costs soaring, better insulation, installation of storm doors and windows and even roofing are high on the homeowner's priority list.

Plans an advantage

It is to be remembered that home improvements properly planned and executed not only can produce substantial savings in heating and cooling costs, but also add value to the existing property. Thus there is a way for homeowners to cope with inflationary trends.

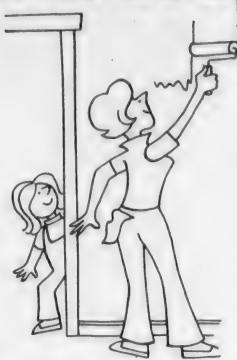

Advice and counsel is available at the local level from experts in planning and financing improvements.

According to Edgar V. Hall, executive vice president of the National Home Improvement Council, the investment in home improvements made last year by homeowners amounted to $23 billion. The Home Improvement Council has several thousand local councils operating in as many cities to assist people in their planning.

Easier money

Since loans for home improvements are easier to get than mortgages, people are staying put, making what they have stretch to suit their needs and many are doing all or at least some of the work themselves.

While money was tight and costly in 1975, there is every indication that it will be only costly in 1976.

Savings and Loan Associations have noted a dramatic change in availability of savings for home improvement loan purposes and are anxious to find homeowners to persuade them to make improvements on their homes.

Most people will either take out a separate home improvement loan or add the cost of the improvements to their mortgage.

Watch taxes

It is important to note that not all home improvements result in higher taxes. In many cases, sizeable improvements can be made without changing taxes at all.

Most tax increases result from improvements which add new living space, major additions, structural changes and repairs, or a new garage or patio.

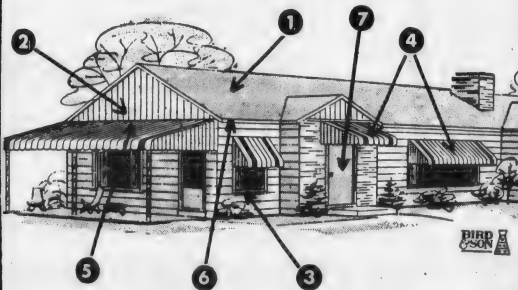

Improvements

In many areas the homeowner can put on a new roof make any repairs to existing masonry, replace lighting and plumbing fixtures if they are not part of a complete modernization, paint the entire inside and outside, install lawn sprinkler systems, put in lawns and no-limit landscaping, make complete plaster repairs and redecorate, add closets, put in new ceilings, weather stripping, install a new driveway, add or replace gutters and downspouts, replace a worn-out furnace with a new heating system and restore or replace porches and steps — all without fear of a tax rise!

The National Home Improvement Council reminds the homeowner that even with a higher assessment and tax rise, home improvements result in increased value for their property and more comfortable living.

Does maintaining your old wood windows drive you up a wall?

Have you had it "up to here" with paint, swelling, binding and sticking? If your wood windows are giving you fits, move up NOW to the newest idea in sash.

THERMAL BARRIER

Aluminum Replacement WINDOWS

Make shuffling sash and climbing ladders ancient history. Tilt in both glass, leave in frames and clean from inside. A snap!

Bid adieu to the sudden drops of guillotine sash. Counter balanced inserts require no adjustment or lubrication. STAY PUT!

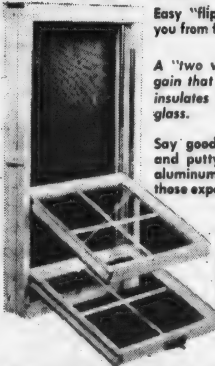

THERMAL BARRIER will reduce your heating bill and make your home comfortably warm in winter.

Easy "flip-in" inserts will keep you from flipping YOUR top.

A "two windows in one" bargain that eliminates drafts and insulates better than insulating glass.

Say goodbye to paint brushes and putty. Banderized painted aluminum (white or bronze) cure those expenses forever.

HOMEOWNERS' THING OF BEAUTY and joy is the new vinyl siding, Driftgrain, which never needs refinishing. The embossed wood grain texture by Johns-Manville is fade resistant, and will not scratch, dent or conduct electrical current.

Custom fit windows, not stopgaps, cut loss of heat—reduce fuel bills

Millions of dollars of expensively-heated air will go through your windows this winter. What makes this even more painful is that millions of American consumers think that they have avoided this money (and heat) loss by using stopgap measures to cut fuel bills.

In the summer, of course, this money-losing process will be repeated as expensively-cooled air escapes and warm air enters via the same route.

Even with recommended insulation, which is very important, you're not going to the heart of your insulating problems unless your windows are doing their part to stop heat loss.

Who says so? Well, for one, the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) says that "almost 70 per cent of a typical single-family unit's heating load is associated with windows and doors."

Frank Gorell, president of Season-all Industries, Inc., world's largest manufacturers of aluminum custom-made storm windows and doors and replacement windows, pinpoints the problem more precisely: "It is sad to see so much time and effort go into partial solutions like weatherstripping and caulking. All the caulking in the world will not stop heat loss through glass.

"Engineers have proven that one square foot of glass can lose as much heat as ten square feet of wall. And weatherstripping is equally negligible if you do not have first-class windows with multiple panes of glass or storm windows.

"Why? Because engineers know that, with a typical single-glazed, double-hung window, almost three times the energy is lost through the glass as is lost around the sash area."

Why face unexpected heating repair bills?

Homeowners side with durable vinyl for new maintenance-free exteriors

If you think "single eight" and "double four" are terms used in playing poker, you're in for a surprise. They're related to the siding on your home especially if it's one of the newest siding products on the market — vinyl.

Vinyl siding comes in 10-foot lengths, according to the experts at the Certain-teed Home Institute, Valley Forge, Pa. It's available in 8-inch wide panels to simulate the standard clapboard found on many homes across the country.

Another version, the double-four, gives the look associated with 4-inch wide clapboard siding. Both feature a wood-grain surface.

And there are vertical panels for yet another look, often desirable for more contemporary homes.

The intriguing thing about vinyl siding is that you can completely clad your home in it. There are accessories to make turning corners a snap. You can have vinyl soffit and fascia installed.

There is even a special fiber glass insulation which fits snugly behind the new siding to increase its thermal efficiency, cutting down on heating and cooling costs.

Vinyl siding is available in a range of gentle, muted tones to complement virtually any style home. The latest colors are harvest gold, sky blue, gray, green and yellow. And, of course, white is always popular.

Antiques mix with many sets

You've just inherited Great Aunt Hattie's Victorian love seat, but your home is completely modern.

Don't panic. Antiques have a knack for complementing other periods of decor.

A little shuffling of the furniture, a bit of new upholstery or a slip cover, and an antique looks right at home in the starkest modern house.

Vinyl siding offers more than just a pretty exterior, too. It never needs painting, carries a limited manufacturer's warranty against defects for 20 years, won't ever rust, corrode, or encourage termites.

It's an excellent electrical insulator, so it never needs grounding for lightning protection or for preventing short circuits.

For more information on vinyl siding, write to the Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, Pa. 19482, for a copy of "Everything You Ever Wanted To Know About Roofing, Siding and Residential Insulation." It'll cost you 25¢. It's well worth it.

IS VINYL SIDING IN THE CARDS? Want a maintenance-free, never-needs-painting home? Just install vinyl siding. One leading manufacturer of this innovative product, Certain-teed Products Corporation, reports that vinyl siding gives today's homeowner the break he needs when it comes to painting. Vinyl siding has the color molded clear through it and offers a limited manufacturer's warranty for 20 years.

Hot new ideas in range

The average family replaces its range every 12 years.

A lot can happen in that span—a child can go from kindergarten to college. New products come. Others go. And some products undergo substantial improvement. Such has been the case with electric ranges.

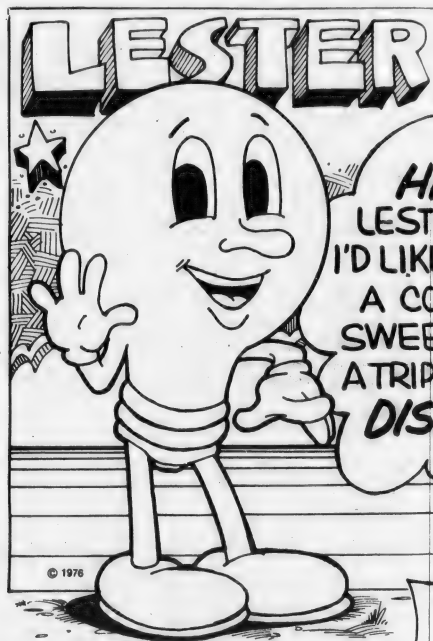

Self-cleaning ovens, combination conventional and microwave ovens, glass-ceramic cooktops and range cooktops as well as a number of less dramatic but helpful features have come on the kitchen scene.

For those who may be considering replacing their present electric range with a new model, here are a few pointers from General Electric about new range features and what they mean to you.

Microwave cooking is the biggest news in ranges today. Most consumers think of microwave ovens as countertop units to be used as supplements to conventional ranges. Most are. However, GE offers two 30-inch free-standing ranges, models J845 and J885, which combine microwave cooking in the same oven capacity used for conventional cooking.

Pioneered by GE, the Versatronic® oven system is self cleaning and not only lets you cook by microwave energy or conventional energy but allows you to cook with both ranges of energy at the same time.

ges display some dramatic changes.

It combines the benefits of having a conventional range and countertop microwave oven, but without taking valuable counter-space.

The self-cleaning oven, which has eliminated one of the most-hated chores from housework, is another innovation pioneered by General Electric. You simply set the controls and the oven cleans itself.

The special insulation system used on GE self-cleaning ranges saves energy during baking and roasting.

Also available today are ranges with continuous-cleaning ovens which use a porous, dull black coating on the inside of the oven. The coating disperses spatters and minimizes the soiled appearance due to spatters.

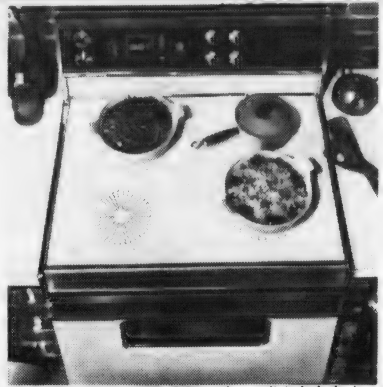

The most dramatic change in terms of range appearance in the past few years has been the advent of the glass-ceramic cooktop, or "smoothtop" range.

In addition to their smooth, clean appearance, the glass-ceramic cooktops ease clean-up of spills and also can act as useful counterspace when the cooktops are not in operation.

Other range features that have made cooking easier and better are infinite heat controls, Sensi-Temp™ cooktop controls which will keep a pot or pan at precise temperatures for delicate jobs such as sauteing, or digital clocks and timers.

Underwriters Laboratories' safety regulations require some changes on listed ranges manufactured in 1976. For instance, electrical outlets for coffee makers or toasters have been removed, cooking units have been moved back further from the front edge of the range and cooking unit controls have been changed to make accidental turn-on of the units less likely.

ONE-PIECE GLASS-CERAMIC cooktop, digital clock, infinite heat cooktop controls and self-cleaning oven are features of this General Electric range which were not generally available on ranges 12 years ago.

Six basic elements to look at when planning to remodel your bathroom

If your bathroom is rather drab, with old-fashioned fixtures and definitely in need of remodeling, it is probably like most — about 5 feet by 8 feet in size.

If so, you won't find too many ideas in advertisements or editorial this size to help you — most such baths are larger and your problem will be to convert the ideas found in such large rooms down to fit your space.

Therefore, before you remove the first wall tile or start tearing up the floor covering, take a few minutes to plan your bathroom remodeling.

There are six basic elements of better bathroom design for you to consider, according to Eljer Plumbingware, a leading manufacturer of plumbing products. Each is important to total bathroom planning.

- The basic plan of the bathroom must be a good one — one that will work even in the most restricted space. In many cases you will be working with all plumbing pipes placed on one wet wall. It will be most economical to take this arrangement and develop variety and design without a change in plumbing.

However, to create the best plan for your bathroom you may find it necessary to change some fixture locations. If this is desired, by all means contact your plumbing contractor because proper installation and adherence to plumbing codes are mandatory.

- Choosing the right fixtures is very important because remodeling your bathroom is pointless if built around a poor choice of fixtures. Don't skimp on quality, not if you want to be assured of satisfaction, performance and beauty in the years ahead. Be sure you consider colored fixtures . . . added spark for your bath at small added cost.

- Adequate storage is so fundamental yet so often overlooked in the bathroom. Be sure you provide space to store towels, tissues, cleansing materials, cosmetics, etc. . . . and storage space is probably more important in a small bathroom than in a large one.

- Lighting must be adequate for proper application of cosmetics, shaving, and believe it or not, reading. Let's face it, everyone needs a morale boost when they first get up in the morning — and warm lighting in the bathroom can at least make you look much better than you feel.

- Adequate ventilation

Plaster trouble

Ever use plaster and have it dry up too fast? Maybe there's a problem concerning how you mix the dry plaster with water. Here's a little tip you can try out: Instead of mixing water with the plaster, merely sprinkle the water on top of the plaster you intend to use. Don't mix it up. Just skim the wet plaster off the top and do the job.

is an item easily overlooked in bathroom remodeling. Ventilation can do more than just make the bathroom smell fresh — it can help keep it clean, warm, remove excess moisture and help control mildew.

- Every homeowner should have a bathroom that's easy to maintain. Begin by choosing quality fixtures, with finishes of glass-hard vitreous china or durable enameled cast iron. Consider the new, easy-to-maintain finishing materials such as vinyl wall coverings, laminated plastic surfaces, and ceramic tile for easy cleaning without sacrificing decorative appearance or utility.

To help plan your bathroom remodeling, contact your Eljer contractor or write: Eljer Plumbingware, Wallace-Murray Corporation, Dept. MAS, 3 Gateway Center, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15222.

Burke Released From Hospital

Congressman James A. Burke [D-Milton] was discharged Tuesday from the Bethesda Naval Hospital in Maryland and is now recuperating at home.

Burke's office said the congressman was advised by doctors at Bethesda that he had been working too hard and not getting enough rest. As a result Burke "developed a severe cold and chest congestion along with a nagging cough," his office said.

Burke's condition has now been cleared up and he is expected back at his full duties within the next few days, a spokesman said.

36 Quincy Students To Visit Pen Pals In Quincy Ill.

They left Boston yesterday at 2:40 p.m., change trains in Chicago and arrive in Quincy, Ill., at 10 p.m. There they will stay with pen pal students from the Adams School.

"It started as a part of our social studies program," says

Malvesta. "For the past three or four years we have been exchanging letters and information with youngsters in other Quincys around the country.

"The Bicentennial coming along as it did, it was suggested that there be a student exchange with Quincy, Ill., which is the biggest of our sister cities.

"Last summer, Mr. Ronayne and I met with Mr. Finch in Connecticut and ironed out some of the preliminary details that are hard to do by phone or letter."

Quincy, Ill., which was named for John Quincy Adams, is a city of about 45,000 people across the Mississippi from Hannibal, Mo., which was Mark Twain's (and thus Tom Sawyer's) hometown.

It is not far from Springfield, the capital of Illinois where Abraham Lincoln practiced law, and Nauvoo, where the Mormons set out on their trek to Great Salt Lake country.

"We have arranged a visit with the governor of Illinois," says Malvesta. "We plan to sightsee in St. Louis and Chicago and take a trip on the Mississippi by steamboat."

The Quincy [Mass.] youngsters will return a week later and some 53 Quincy [Ill.] kids will pay a return visit, staying with their new friends in Quincy [Mass.].

If you were asked to put something in a time capsule which would be opened in the year 2000, what would you put in? A '75 Red Sox team picture? A diary? Your favorite comics? Miss Green's fourth and fifth graders created a time capsule for the Bicentennial. Into it, they have put what they feel would be important to a child in the year 2000. They have included collages of historical events. Their projects cover the history of education, architecture and communication and transportation. The children also put in personal collages of their own interests which cover such subjects as sports, clothing, music and hobbies.

Below, five of the children scrambled the letters of the thing they put into the time capsule. Can you unscramble them?

Lights, Camera ... ACTION!

To salute our country's Bicentennial, children from several grades wrote, produced, acted in and did the camera work on a video play -- their own version of The Adams Chronicles. They worked under the direction of Mr. Fisher, Merrymount's Media Specialist. Watch out Channel 2!

Abigail Adams [Susan Finnegan, 10] speaking to her son John Quincy [Maura Callahan, 8] and her daughter Abbey [Terry McLaughlin, 8]: "I smell smoke way off in the direction of Lexington and Concord."

Sons of Liberty Chris Gorman, 11, and Marty Tolson, 9: "The British have attacked us at Bunker Hill. We're going to Weymouth for reinforcements."

With them at the signing is Arthur Cook, Ryan, Elliott & Co.

Terry Flukes Re-elected United Way Member

Terry Flukes of Wollaston, Norfolk County assistant clerk of Courts, has been re-elected a member of the United Way of Massachusetts Bay.

Members are business executives, professional people, statesmen, educators, and labor leaders representing a broad cross section of the Massachusetts Bay community.

The membership reviews the reports and actions of the board of directors, committees and divisions of the corporation, and serves as a community forum for health and social service issues.

The members also elect the board of directors and the nominating committee, as well as officers and new members of the corporation.

Flukes represents the south region of the Massachusetts Bay as a member of the South Regional Support Group.

Last fall's United Way of Massachusetts Bay campaign raised $15,902,145 to help support over 170 health, family, child care, and youth service agencies in the 66 cities and towns in the Massachusetts Bay area.

Plan For a $75,000
Nest Egg, Worth
Starting Before Dec. 31

By Philip J. Lawrence, President
Colonial Federal Savings
And Loan Association

of Quincy, Hallowbrook and Wareham

8 - 6 Weekdays 8 - 7:30 Thursdays

How would you like to have a retirement nest egg of $75,000, built up in just 20 years? How would you like to have $45,000 of this amount awarded to you as earned interest? And how would you like to defer income tax over the 20-year period on the entire $75,000?

These are possibilities available to you when you take advantage of the Individual Retirement Account (IRA) authorized by Congress in the Pension Reform Act. They are yours if you are an employee not covered this year by any other pension or profit-sharing plan.

The IRA program allows qualified individuals to deduct up to $1,500 a year from their gross income, invest it in a savings program like ours, and let it grow untaxed until retirement.

The buildup of $45,000 in earned interest is possible when you set up your IRA in a certificate of deposit currently paying 7 1/2 percent interest. Assuming comparable return over the 20-year period and the present ceiling of $1,500 per year, you will have a gratifying $75,000 extra to make retirement years more satisfying. There is the probability that the $1,500 limit will be raised in future years; Secretary of the Treasury William Simon has already proposed that it be lifted to $2,000, and Congress may be acting on his proposal within the next few months.

President Real Estate has become the latest member of ERA, a growing nation-wide network of residential realtors offering an electronic photo listing service to their clients.

Announcement was made by Vita A. Barresi, president of the local firm that recently relocated to its new office at 356 Hancock St., North Quincy, near the North Quincy High School.

ERA (Electronic Realty Associates) is the parent organization located in Kansas. As a member of the ERA network, President Real Estate is now linked to ERA and ERA members across the country by direct wire. Special electronic equipment in the office of each member can transmit, within six minutes, a photo and pertinent information for any listing to any other ERA member in the country.

"The ERA system marks a real break-through in the real estate field," said Barresi. The real value of this service is that for the first time people living in every part of the country who are moving out of town will be able to go house-hunting right in the local office of their ERA member Broker."

In addition to this relocation service, President Real Estate as an ERA Broker offers buyers the Buyer Protection Plan (BPP), a warranty covering the essential components of their home for a full year. Some of the "working" components of the home which are covered are: central heating system, water heaters of all types, plumbing and electrical systems, and most any built-in appliance.

Barresi, in addition to being the only national ERA broker on the South Shore is vice president of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors and the Eastern vice president of the Commercial and Investment Division of the Mass. Association of Realtors.

Rice Eventide Home Receives Accreditation

The William B. Rice Eventide home of 215 Adams St., Quincy, has been accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals.

The accreditation is the result of an on-site survey made of the retirement home.

Accreditation indicates that Eventide complies with standards set by the Commission's Council for Long Term Care Facilities. The standards set forth optimal achievable goals of excellence against which a facility can measure itself.

The Eventide Home underwent rigorous examination of the entire facility by members of the Joint Commission, which is a non-profit, non-governmental organization.

Andrew J. Comeau, administrator of the home said: "Eventide has always maintained an excellent home for it's family. I feel that the Accreditation simply acknowledges the high quality of care that we provide our residents. Much of the credit for this spirit goes to the board of directors whose guidance, foresight and dedicated talent merge to maintain a home of unsurpassed quality."

Lincoln-Hancock Council Plans Swim Program

The Lincoln-Hancock Community School Council will sponsor a three-day swim program for elementary, junior and senior high school youngsters in the school pool during the spring vacation, April 20-22.

Elementary school pupils will swim in two sessions from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. and from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. and junior and senior high school students will have the pool for a two hour session from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. each day.

Youngsters may use their current Recreation Department participation cards for the swim.

Those who do not have the cards must use a special parent permission slip which may be obtained next Tuesday-Thursday [April 13-15] at the Southwest Community Center, 372 Granite St., 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., or in the lower lobby of the Lincoln-Hancock School, 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.

The swim will be supervised by Quincy Recreation Department personnel.

Patty LaPierre 6th In Race

Patty LaPierre, an eighth grader at Sterling Junior High, representing the Quincy Track Club, placed fifth in the women's division and 67th overall out of a field of 110 starters in last week's Fresh Pond 2.5 mile road race in Cambridge.

The race was sponsored by the Cambridge Sports Union.

Geoff Hennessy, Quincy Track Club manager and the new girls' track coach at Sterling, ran a strong race and finished 14th overall.

Two other Sterling girls, seventh graders Michelle Riggs and Denise McAll, finished 20th and 21st respectively in the women's division and 103rd and 104th overall.

Patty LaPierre's time of 17:59 is the fastest ever run by a Quincy girl over the 2.5 mile course.

Raiders Open Saturday Against Weymouth North

By TOM SULLIVAN

After failing five times to make the state tournament, most of the time by a game or two, Coach Charlie Bunker's North Quincy baseball team finally made it last spring, its first in the Suburban League.

The Raiders dropped a genuine heartbreaker in extra innings to Norwood, one of the top seeded teams, in their first tourney appearance and from that team North has only one starter back.

The lone varsity regular returning is Cooper Jordan, who this year will play third base and may do some pitching.

Despite the lack of varsity players, Bunker feels the Raiders will hold their own building around members of last year's successful junior varsity team [16-3] coached by Lou Ioanilli, who is back as Bunker's assistant.

North opens its season April 10 at Milton in a non-league game and hosts Weymouth North on the 12th in a league game.

Pete Fallon, who came up from the jayvees to pitch two late-season shutouts for the varsity, looms as one of the top pitchers and also will play first base.

Walter McGinley will play second, Bob Stack shortstop and Jordan third base. Utility infielders are Tom Wilkinson, Tony Alessi and Roy Widman.

Steve Bell and Jack Hatfield, who saw a little varsity action a year ago, will do the catching and Hatfield also will play in the outfield.

Paul Stack, Mike Kelly, Jim McGinley and Mike Adams will be in the outfield.

Fallon, John Earle and Mike Holleran head the pitching corps and Kelly, Jordan and Adams will also see service on the mound. Holleran would have been a starter last year but was sidelined with an injury.

Bunker sees Bob Stack, Jordan and Wilkinson as probably the leading hitters but expects several others to hit the ball well.

"Despite the lack of varsity veterans, I think we should do well," the veteran coach said. "We have a lot of potential and we should be competitive."

"I feel we can score and if our pitching holds up, we could surprise a lot of people. This league is tough and a lot of the teams have strong, veteran lineups, but we will have a good all-around team. I think we should have a good chance of at least matching last year's 14-6 record."

Pee Wee A's Sweep 3 In New Brunswick

The Pee Wee A team traveled to Oromocto, New Brunswick and swept all three of its games.

Playing its first game just a half hour after arriving following a grueling nine-hour bus ride, Quincy defeated Oromocto, 8-5. Quincy followed up with a 12-3 breeze and completed a sweep Sunday with a 5-2 decision over the hosts.

The fine work in goal of John Herold and P. T. Kelly and excellent defense by Danny Flynn, John Baylis, Karl Nord, Tommy Heffernan, Kevin Chase and Mike Sullivan contributed much to the wins, but credit must also go to the forwards, Robbie Zanardelli, Bobby Beniers, Mark Boussey, Neil Shea, Chuckie Marshall, Kevin Craig, Mike Rowell, Steve Walsh and Joey Rathgeb, for their passing and shooting.

In an earlier league game the A's tied Weymouth, 6-6, with Shea having two goals and Rowell, Zanardelli, Walsh and Beniers one each. Craig had two assists and Marshall, Rathgeb, Beniers, Boussey, Rowell, Shea and Heffernan one apiece.

● St. Ann's Hockey

JDA Dunks Donuts, Crestview Move On

Playoff action continued in the St. Ann's Hockey League with JDA blanking Dunkin Donuts of North Quincy, 2-0, in the Pee Wee Division. Carl Liff and Paul Maloney had the goals and John Hurley and Maloney had assists.

In the Bantam Division Crestview nipped Blackwood, 3-2. Brian Schmitt, Jim Keller and Mike Capone scored for Crestview with assists for Greg Kelly and Page. Mike Nee and Dan Rowley scored for Blackwood with Ken Olson, Marella, Collins and Maloney having assists.

A Girls Bow In Semi-Finals

The Quincy Girls A hockey team, the Comettes, reached the semifinals of last weekend's New England girls' tournament in Natick before bowing to the eventual champion, Natick Eagles, 7-1.

Earlier the Quincy girls had lost to Assabet Valley, 4-0; defeated South Shore Shooting Stars, 4-3, and Conlan's All-Stars of West Haven, Conn., 4-2.

Mary Ellen Riordan had two goals against the Shooting Stars and Shawn O'Leary and Eileen Marr one each. Terry Flynn had two assists and O'Leary, Marr and Joanne Troy one apiece.

Against West Haven O'Leary, Lisa Norling, Paula Constan and Maureen Santry had the goals with Marr having two assists and Riordan one.

Doreen Hayes and Lynn McGoff were outstanding in goal.

goals against the Shooting Stars and Shawn O'Leary and Eileen Marr one each. Terry Flynn had two assists and O'Leary, Marr and Joanne Troy one apiece.

Against West Haven O'Leary, Lisa Norling, Paula Constan and Maureen Santry had the goals with Marr having two assists and Riordan one.

Doreen Hayes and Lynn McGoff were outstanding in goal.

● Squirt House

McCann, Beacon, Maher, McGinn In Opening Sweeps

McCann Steel, Beacon Sportswear, Maher Plumbing and McGinn Shell all swept their opening playoff series in the Squirt House League in two straight games.

McCann eliminated the Riley Club, 3-1, with Dick Wisnes, Mark Lamie and Bud Sheehan having the goals and Steve Maloney, Greg Keefe and Kevin O'Brien having assists. Dick Marnell scored for Riley with Jim Daley assisting.

Beacon ousted Dee Dee's, 5-3. Dave Ferreira had two goals and Paul Halloran, Frank Griffin and Chris Hurley one apiece. Griffin, Halloran, Dave Edgren, Ferreira and Charles Duffy had assists. Jim Seamon, Gillis and Joey Engrassia scored for Dee Dee's with Engrassia having an assist.

Maher defeated Feeney's Devils, 4-1, with Kevin Jennette and Bob Drury having two goals each. Mike Malloy had two assists and Sean Aruda one. John Krantz scored for Feeney's with Mark Chambers and Bebe Castilla assisting.

McGinn topped Foley Chrysler, 6-3, with Mike Chennette and Paul Egan having two goals each and Ed Boyle and Rick Kelly one apiece. Doug Concannon, Egan and Chennette each had two assists and Dennis Croke, John Kelly, Luis Gonzalez, Paul McMillan and Bill Lawless one apiece. Bobby Foreman had two goals for Foley and Mark McManus one. Bob Doyle had two assists and Marty Tolson and John Meade one each.

Beacon defeated Maher, 6-1, in their first game, as Chris Hurley had the hat trick. Steve Dannelsbeck had two goals and John Beniers one. Griffin had three assists and Ferreira two. Bob Drury had Maher's goal with Mike Malloy assisting.

McGinn walloped McCann, 7-2, with Concannon having two goals and Chennette, Boyle, McMillan, Kelley and Barry one each. Concannon, Chennette, Egan and Croke had assists. Mark Lamie and Ricky Miller scored for McCann with Steve Reilly having an assist.

Feeney's Devils topped Dee Dee's, 4-1, with Jim Doherty scoring twice and Joe Donovan and Castilla once each. Jerry Martin had three assists, Donovan two and Doherty, Krantz and Mark Chambers one each. Mike O'Reilly scored for Dee Dee's.

Midget A's Defeat Montreal Champs

The Donnelly Club Midget A team traveled to Montreal the past weekend and showed why it is the state champion by defeating the City of Montreal champs, Copains-Copains, and the Sun Youth team.

Quincy topped the Sun Youth team, 4-0, in its first game as Mark Paolucci had two goals and John Andrews and Mike Gulizia one each. Dave Peters had two assists and John Norton, John Mitchell, Brian Bertoni, Tom Cahill and Jim Moore one apiece. Jeff Nord was outstanding in goal.

Quincy then defeated the Montreal champions, 6-2, in a tension-filled game. Bertoni scored twice and Andrews, Cahill, Jim Shea and Mitchell once each. Cahill had two assists and Bertoni, Moore, Gulizia, Norton, Jim Fitzpatrick, Mike Storer and Jack Campbell one apiece. Ron Bereszniwicz sparked in goal.

The games were carried over three TV channels and the Quincy club was given much publicity in the Montreal papers.

The Midget A's, coached by Dick Reinhardt and Dennis Bertoni, had their pictures taken on the ice and all sang "God Bless America".

The Sun Youth team will go to Copenhagen, Denmark, in two weeks for games and hopes to have Copenhagen return the visit next year. The Quincy team has invited both Montreal and Copenhagen to visit Quincy next season.

Quincy Mayor Joseph LaRaia was at the Quincy Youth Arena at midnight last Thursday to wish the team good luck and presented a plaque to the Quincy group to present to the Sun Youth group in appreciation for their hospitality. The Quincy players and parents stayed at the Queen Elizabeth in Montreal.

The Midget A team has lost only once in 35 games, the lone defeat coming in the New England Tournament. It breezed to the South Shore Conference and state championships.

Crossen Sisters Spark Team Quincy

The Crossen sisters, Jean and Patricia, scored two goals each to spark Team Quincy's 6-2 win over Squantum Mobile in the semifinals of Girls House League playoffs at the Quincy Youth Arena.

Karen Cullen and Susan Gallery had the other Team Quincy goals and assists went to Kathleen Hussey, Karen Murphy, Maureen Worley and Jean Crossen. Laura Light and Ginny Weeks scored for Squantum with assists for Sheila Connolly and Lauren Apollo.

In the other game Sherry Craig had the hat trick and added an assist to pace 99 Club's 6-1 win over Bob Charles.

Sandy Whittemore, Nancy McDonald and Kristin O'Gara also scored for 99 and Whittemore also had three assists. Susan Dacey had the Charles goal.

Suburban, Cox Win Opening Rounds

Suburban and Cox won their opening round series in the Midget House League playoffs but each had to go three games to do it.

Cox won the deciding game over Fire, 7-4, with Jim Kelley having the hat trick and McCormick, Mike Wilson, Rich Storer and Steve Hale one goal each. Ed Laracy had three assists, McCormick and Mike Soldano two each and Storer one. Paul McDonald had two goals for Fire and Eddie Campbell and Mike Sullivan one apiece. Sullivan, Dave Abbott and Jim Ahola had assists.

Fire had evened the series with a 4-3 win. Sullivan, Mark

Landry, Larry Burak and Campbell having the goals. Kevin Whalen, Paul McDonald and Jay Daly assists. For Cox Laracy, Soldano and Storer had the goals with two assists for Mike Wilson and one for Mike O'Brien.

Suburban clinched its series with a 1-0 squeaker over Police with Bob McCarthy having the goal and Kevin Doyle an assist.

Earlier Police had evened the series with a 3-2 win. Mike Dunford, Mike Gallagher and Al Whitman had the goals and Gallagher, Stan Campbell and John Cotter assists. Kevin Doyle and John Yaxter scored for Suburban with assists for Yaxter, Doyle and Don Carl.

Mite A's Split

The Mite A team, the J. L. Club, remains in contention in the Natick invitational tournament after splitting two games last week.

Quincy nipped E. Providence, 2-1, with Timmy Collins, who has been outstanding in goal all season, having another fine game. Jim Milano and Richard Horrigan had the goals and Marc Basch, Sean Barry, Milano and Bobby Kane had assists.

The A's were walloped by Medford in their other tournament game, 6-0.

The team has been rolling merrily along in league play and defeated Holbrook, 8-4, in its latest game. Tom McGrath had the hat trick, Kane two goals and John Reinhardt, Basch and Milano one each. Basch and Barry had three assists each, Horrigan two and Robby Reidy, Peter Furtado and Kane one apiece.

The A's also walloped Duxbury, 7-2, with Reinhardt and Reidy having two goals each and Basch, Mark Walsh and David Cooke one apiece. Milano had two assists and Reinhardt, Basch, Barry and Cooke one apiece.

In one of its few bad games, the team lost a wild 11-9 decision to Hull. Walsh and Reinhardt had two goals each and Barry, Milano, McGrath, Cooke and Kane one apiece. Cooke and Marc Abboud had two assists each and Ted Hohman, Barry, Milano, Reidy, Horrigan and Kane one apiece.

Barry's, Balducci Tie In Mite House Action

In the Mite House League playoffs Barry's and Balducci tied, 1-1, with Steve Kelly scoring for Balducci and Mike Hayes for Barry's.

Lydon-Russell topped Barry's, 3-1, with Dave McCarthy having two goals and Timmy Duff one. Mark Loughman, McCarthy and Tim Burke had assists. Mike Hayes scored for Barry's with Dick Fitzpatrick assisting.

Balducci nipped Village Food, 3-2, on goals by Mark Sandanton, Paul Lester and Steve Kelly. Dave Fasano, Matt Gorman, Ed O'Brien and Dave Tapper had assists. Chris Collins and Billy Ward scored for Village with Danny Simmons having an assist.

● Bantam House

Burgin, Sun, Baskin Doran Opening Series Winners

Burgin-Platner and the Quincy Sun, the division winners; Baskin and Robbins and Doran & Horrigan all won their opening series in the Bantam House League playoffs.

Baskin bombed Johnson Motor, 10-1, to complete a sweep of its series, as Dennis Harrington exploded for four goals. Tom Smith had two and Dick Reinhardt/Dick Newcomb, Jamie Rooney and Dan Roche one apiece. Ed Doherty had three assists, Smith, Roche and Reinhardt two each and Paul Melia, Tom Hannon and Steve Healy one apiece. Paul Graham scored for Johnson with Lennie Micelli assisting.

The Sun swept its series with Bersani Brothers, 5-2. Paul Dunphy and Bill Joyce had two goals each and Mike Peterson one. Mark Rooney had two assists and Donovan, Joyce, Bob Thomas and Steve Whittemore one each. Jim McGregor and Joe Cellini scored for Bersani.

Doran won its second in a row over GMC Trucks, 7-4. John Rizzi had the hat trick and Al Doncaster, Augusto Gonzales, Chris Erickson and Mark Ricciardi one goal each. Ricciardi had two assists and Bob Peters, Brian Norton, Doncaster, Bob Peters and Erickson one each. Billy O'Neil, Ed Marella, Paul Reardon and Ed DiTullio had the Trucks goals and John Keaney, Marella and Mike O'Brien had assists.

Doran upset the Sun, 4-2, with Ricciardi, Dick Ryan, Doncaster and Rizzi having the goals and Jack Mahoney, Peters and Ricciardi having assists. Mike Peterson and John Hernon had the Sun goals with assists for Jay Collins, Chuck Hogan and Jay Crossen.

● Pee Wee House

Wollaston, McInnis, Keohane's, Harold, Mug Win

In the Pee Wee House playoffs Wollaston Theater won its opening series in straight games with a 2-1 win over Morrisette. Wally Phipps scored both Wollaston goals with assists for Greg Freeman and Tony Chiochio. Bud Marr had Morrisette's goal with Jim Doyle and Dick Camiliari assisting.

McInnis evened its series with Stevens Appliance, with a 9-2 romp. Bill Thomas and Matt Kenney had two goals each and Pete Palmer, Glen Collins, Kevin Mock, Pat Doherty and Eddie O'Gara one each. Doherty, Mahoney and Chris Gorman had two assists each and O'Gara, Brian Donovan, Kenney, Palmer, Collins, Mock, Mitch McInnis and Thomas one apiece. John Keeley had both Stevens goals with John Gonsalves and Vin Whelan assisting.

Keohane's swept its series with Bay View Boat, 4-3. Kevin McCormack had two goals and Jim Ferreira and Tom Hennessey one each. Bobby Reidy had three assists and Ferreira and Hennessey one each. Steve Baylis, Bob Welch and Fran McCormack had the Bay View goals with assists for Bobby Kelley, McCormack, Bryan Flynn, Timmy Ryan and Mike McDonough one apiece.

Paul Harold Club topped UCT, 4-1, to win the series in two straight. Brian Sullivan had two goals and Darryl Connolly and Barry Dooley one each. Gerry O'Rourke, Foley, John Sweet and Kevin McSweeney had assists. For UCT Billy Curran had the goal with Brian Deutsch assisting.

West Division champion Mug 'N Muffin, which drew a first round bye, edged Keohane's, 4-3, with Fred Caldwell having two goals and Dave Hicks and Bob Flynn one each. Bill Flanagan had two assists and Caldwell, Joe Conlon and Jim DiPietro one apiece. For Keohane's Phil Phillips had two goals and Kevin McCormack one. Dave DiCarlo had two assists and Jim Ferreira one.

Bantam A's Win 2 In Oromocto

The Bantam A team recently returned from a weekend friendship series in Oromocto, New Brunswick, where it won two of three games.

Friday night the A's lost to Oromocto, 5-3, with Bobby Hayes, Mike Furey and Bill Deitch scoring the Quincy goals. Paul McDermott had two assists and Tom Brennan, Kevin McGrath and Mark Mesina one each.

Saturday morning a well-rested Quincy team evened the score with Oromocto, 3-0, with goalies Jim Scanlan and Jim Campbell sparkling.

Saturday night the team went to Fredrickton and topped the Bantam A team there, 5-2. Scott Richardson had two goals and Tom Brennan, Kevin McGrath and Hayes one apiece. Brennan had two assists and Hayes and Rob Molloy one each.

The Bantam A's finish their league season tonight (Thursday) with a makeup game against second place Weymouth at the Quincy Youth Arena. Faceoff will be at 7:50. Quincy has clinched first place.

The playoffs will open Saturday with Quincy playing Milton at 4:40 p.m. and Sunday

Quincy will meet the Randolph-Weymouth winner at 1:50. All playoffs will be at the Boston Harbor Marina in Squantum.

Squirt B's Win, 3-2

The Squirt B team nipped Randolph, 3-2, with John Palmer and Tim O'Connell outstanding in goal.

Mike O'Hare had two goals and Kevin Greene one. Dave Allen had two assists.

Central Junior Winds Up Another Good Season

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Central Junior High basketball teams recently completed another successful season with the ninth grade team missing the city championship by one game.

Mike Casali's ninth graders appeared certain of tying North and Broad Meadows for the title but, with four of its five starters out with the flu, Central was upset in its finale by Point.

While Casali looks for wins for his ninth grade team as he readies the players for high school, he puts far less emphasis on winning in the seventh and eighth grades and in the seventh he continues his "early bird" system, where each boy is assigned to one of five teams which play each morning before school.

Members of the eighth grade

Fifty-two boys took part in the seventh grade "early bird" program and Cesali selected 10 for each varsity game. The five teams played every morning before school since Nov. 25 with excellent attendance.

"I select a ninth grader to supervise the 'early bird' program and to coach the seventh grade varsity team and this year I picked Mark Roberts," Casali said. "He did an outstanding job and was helped by Mark Cicerone, Greg MacDonald, John Norton, Scott MacDonald, Tom Mullen, Paul Mezzetti, Joe Flynn and Joe Venezia.

The seventh grade players:

Team 1 (finished first during the regular season): Kenny Mann, Brian McCarthy, Shawn Burns, Scott Brennan, Bruce Tobin, Mike Morris, Mike Ayles, Gryan Donovan, Billy Bourikas and Greg Therrien.

Team 2: Paul Mallory, Paul Flaherty, Bob McHugh, Anthony Falco, Kevin Ross, Brian Tobin, Peter Gardiner, Steve Plate, Dave Meenan, John Swanton and Robert Mitchell.

Team 3: Tom McHugh, Mark Rooney, Brian Radsik, Philip Maloney, Jim O'Leary, Mark Litif, Robert Raimondi, Chris Dunn, Chuck White and Steve Belcastro.

Team 4: Tom Canavan, Steve Walsh, Jack Brown, Tony Quintiliani, Billy DiCarli, Fran Connell, Jackie Leone, Kevin McCormick, James Roach, Bobby Mullaney and Bruce Gordon.

Team 5: Greg Smith, Bob Bolster, Rich Dargon, Dave Dindy, Rick McCarthy, Robert Kelly, Steve Kavanaugh, John Sweet, Bobby Carey and Pat Hardiman.

Koch Club Banquet Friday

The Koch Club Boys Bowling League will hold its 13th annual awards banquet Friday at 7 p.m. at the Fore River Clubhouse, Nevada Rd., Quincy Point. A catered dinner will be served.

Playoff winner in the Junior League was Capt. Tom Koch's team and included Dan Batts, Bob Tornberg, Tony Quintiliani and Mike Miceli.

The second half winning team and runnerup was led by Capt. Steve Donovan, assisted by Frank Scanlan, Bob Leonard, Bob Sheehan and Ed Mattson.

Top in the average department was John Moberg with 93.

The Senior League championship title was won by Capt. Vin Zappi's team. Other members of the team were Lenny Staff, Bob Piscatelli, George Iavicoli.

The second place team was headed by Paul Kelly and other members included Bill Batts, Scott Brock, Tony Iavicoli and Bill Brown.

Paul Kelly was top in average for the Senior Loop with a respectable 101.

Hallberg Sparks Montclair To Upset

Dick Hallberg's 362 paced Montclair Men's Club to a 4-0 shocker over league-leading Dick Morrissey Club and Peter Martin led Rep. Joseph Brett Club to a clutch shutout of Hennessy Plumbing to put Brett in a first place tie with Morrissey in the Quincy Bowling Little Loop with only a week left.

However, Morrissey holds a large pinfall edge and this week finishes up against The Elks, while Brett faces Local 513.

Atlantic Fuel Oil is still in the running only two points out and faces last place Hennessy this week.

The standings: Morrissey, 65-31 [total pinfall of 31,951]; Brett, 65-31 [31,111]; Atlantic, 63-33 [31,147]; George F. Bryan Post VFW, 61-35 [31,381]; Local 513, NEJB, AFL-CIO, 52-44 [31,054];

Granite Lodge 1451, AFL-CIO, 51-45 [30,897]; Quincy Elks, 47-49 [30,914]; Montclair Men's Club, 46-50 [31,024]; Hutchinson Oil, 42-54 [31,109]; Wollaston Boulevard Bowldrome, 42-54 [30,481]; Atty. George G. Burke Club, 42-54 [30,349]; James R. McIntyre Club, 40-56 [30,372]; Atty. Harold Davis Club, 38-58 [30,089]; Hennessy Plumbing Supply, 25-71 [30,279].

Mike Regan rolled the weekly high single of 138 and high three of 379, and Granite Lodge rolled high team single of 509 and high three of 1450.

The Top Ten: Regan, 109.9; Brian O'Toole, 107.7; Martin, 102.4; Hallberg, 100.4; Joe Piazza, 99.6; Bob Kelliher, 98.4; Paul Anastas, 97.4; Mike Guerriero, 97.1; Joe Godas, 97.0 and Mike Hatfield, 95.5.

Koch Club N.O. District Basketball Dinner

The North Quincy district of the Koch Club will close its 27th season of basketball tonight [Thursday] at 6:30 with an awards banquet at the Fore River Clubhouse, Nevada Rd, Quincy Point.

A catered meal will be followed by presentations to the winning team and league members.

The champions in the Junior Division [boys, 7-9 years] were the Hawks with 14-6 and receiving trophies will be Jim White, Ed O'Reilly, Jim McAdams, Mike Cocce and Dave Blaton.

Senior Division winners were the Knicks with a 7-0 record led by Capt. Bob Gilmartin, Steve O'Donnell, Gary Kearney, Tom Koch, Kevin Mock, Steve O'Donnell and Steve DeLuca.

Ed O'Reilly is director of the junior division and Dick Koch Jr. heads up the senior group.

Desmond Sidelined By Shoulder Injury

The hopes of North Quincy's John Desmond of winning the New England AAU 165-pound boxing championship Monday went out the window last week when the former North Quincy High football player suffered a shoulder injury while in training and was unable to compete at Boston Garden.

Desmond, with a 17-2 record, holds the New England Golden Gloves championship.

'1776' At ENC Auditorium

The Eastern Nazarene musical-comedy "1776" is going off-Broadway.

But first there'll be a repeat performance by popular demand in the Mann Student Center Auditorium on the Wollaston campus April 15-16-17-22 at 8 p.m. each evening.

Then the production, which was first presented at Eastern Nazarene last November, will move on to New York May 7 where it will be performed in the Lamb's Club, once an exclusive actors' residence, now an off-Broadway theater.

The play is centered around the writing of the Declaration of Independence and, in it, two Quincy men, Bayse Reedy and Greg Niblett, plays the roles of two other Quincy men, John Adams and John Hancock.

The orchestra is under the direction of John Pfantz of Wollaston and Lawrence Yardon, executive director of the Quincy Historical Society, is ethical director.

Carmen Ungar Art Exhibit At Main Library

This is National Library Week and the Thomas Crane Public Library is observing it with an exhibition of paintings by its own art librarian, Carmen Ungar.

Miss Ungar's work, mostly landscapes and shorescapes in oil, will be on display through April 30 in the Main Hall Gallery of the main library in Quincy Square.

Miss Ungar, who studied under such artists as Margaret Fitzhugh Browne of Boston and Harry Ballinger, Stanley Woodward and Paul Strisik, all of Rockport, has had two previous exhibitions in Quincy libraries.

2 Quincy Men In Hingham's 'The Music Man'

Two Quincy men will star in the Hingham Civic Music Theatre production of "The Music Man" to be presented Friday, April 30, Saturday, May 1, Friday, May 7, and Saturday,

May 8, at 8 p.m. in the Hingham Notre Dame Academy Auditorium.

Thomas Dowling will play Mayor Shinn and Thomas Foley will be the villain, Charlie Cowall.

'Greatest Story' Easter Special

BURT REYNOLDS will return to television, temporarily at least. His 1966 series "Hawk" will be seen on NBC at 10 p.m. each Wednesday beginning April 21. An interesting side note is that "Hawk" was originally an ABC series... As Easter approaches, so do the Easter specials. During the Easter weekend, NBC will air "The Greatest Story Ever Told" in two parts. Depicting the life of Christ from his manger in Bethlehem to his cross in Calvary, the film stars MAX VON SYDOW, SIDNEY POITIER, CHARLETON HESTON, ROBERT BLAKE and DOROTHY McGUIRE... During the same weekend, ABC will offer a special repeat performance of the RYAN O'NEAL-ALI MCGRAW tear-jerker, "Love Story", as well as the Tony Awards, telecast live from the Shubert Theatre in New York... This week's "The First Easter Rabbit", starring the voice of BURL IVES is produced by the same team that created "The Little Drummer Boy", "Rudolph The Red-Nosed Reindeer", and "Frosty, The Snowman". Rankin/Bass productions having pretty much cornered the market on Christmas productions, are now spreading out to other holidays. The secret of these animated features is the time involved in the creation. As well, most of the work is done in Tokyo, because, according to ARTHUR RANKIN, "the talent pool in Japan is greater. A Japanese kid is taught to write with a brush, not a pencil." The costs for one of these "dimensional" animated features is approximately $500,000 per 60-minute cartoon. A 30-minute film is about $300,000... LEONARD BERNSTEIN and ISAAC STERN have been named co-chairmen of a concert to be given by DANNY KAYE for the benefit of music scholarships at Yale University. The popular comedian, seen recently in CBS's "Pinochio", will conduct the Yale Philharmonic Symphony... DICK CLARK will be executive producer for JOHN DAVIDSON's new variety show, which will begin May 24... Commission On Accreditation Approves CP South Shore Area Program

The Trustees of the Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities [CARF] have approved for a three year period the program of physical restoration of Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore Area, Inc.

The new walk-in Clinic which was occupied in September of 1974 received the accreditation after complying with CARF's stringent requirements.

Purposes of the Commission as summarized from its By-Laws are:

- To upgrade the rehabilitation facility movement and improve the quality of services provided to the disabled and disadvantaged.

- Through accreditation, to offer to the general public and providers, purchasers and recipients of rehabilitation facility services a single means of identifying throughout the Nation those facilities in terms of concepts and services which are rehabilitation in nature and competent in performance.

- To develop and maintain relevant standards which can be used by rehabilitation facilities in order to measure their level of performance and strengthen their program.

- To provide through the accreditation process an independent, impartial and objective system by which rehabilitation facilities can have the benefit of a total organizational review.

- To offer to the facility, the community and the consumers a mechanism of program accountability, and assurance of a continuing high level of performance.

- To feed back information to the facility movement based upon aggregate findings obtained in site surveys in order to share basic data on common strengths and weaknesses of facility operations.

- To provide within the voluntary sector an organized forum through which all involved in rehabilitation can participate in standard-setting and program improvement.

Letters were received from Senator Edward M. Kennedy, Congressman James A. Burke and Governor Michael S. Dukakis commending the organization for its efforts in achieving this important accreditation.

Both William J. Trifone, president, and Arthur Ciampa, executive director of the CP organization, expressed appreciation to CARF for this accreditation and stated that this recognition is another milestone in the agency's efforts to provide quality service to the cerebral palsied.

The CP organization is a financially participating member of the United Way of Massachusetts Bay which provides a major source of support for the program of physical restoration.

Den 1 Pack 30, Scouts Tour Quincy Sun

Cub scouts in Den 1 Pack 30 of West Quincy visited the office of The Quincy Sun recently to view firsthand the workings of a newspaper.

The scouts, sponsored by St. Mary's Church were: John Fortin, den chief, John Casey, David Fineran, James Morris, Peter Walsh, Scott Noonan, William Milne, Robert Collins, Paul Crump and Paul Mantia.

Mrs. Gisela Walsh, den mother, Mrs. Connie Casey, assistant den mother, and Mrs. Doris Milne, accompanied the scouts on their tour.

Mascots Timothy Walsh, David Walsh and Frances Milne accompanied the scouts, as did George Patriaca.

The boys first visited the editorial and advertising departments on the street-floor of the office. They then toured the lower level of the office where they saw a new story telling of their visit to The Quincy Sun being set by our IBM computer system.

They then saw news headlines being set by a Compugraphic 7200 photo typesetting machine. The finished story and headline were then transferred to the production department where they saw a paste-up artist fix the story into proper position on paste-up boards.

Before leaving the office, each scout received a complimentary copy of this week's Quincy Sun.

School Budget Reconsideration Thursday

LaRaia Considering Layoffs In All Departments

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia's attack on the city budget for fiscal 1976 continued this week with city job cuts still under consideration and major surgery proposed on school spending.

The School Committee, of which Mayor LaRaia is chairman, is scheduled to hold a special meeting tonight [Thursday] to reconsider its budget. Reconsideration was left off the agenda of last week's meeting through a mixup.

"I am going to request that they rescind the previous vote approving the budget," LaRaia told The Quincy Sun, "and then we are going to review it and cut it."

The Mayor spent the early part of the week reviewing budget proposals with department heads and, he said, indications were that any further cuts would have to be made by the Mayor alone.

"I have asked the department heads for suggestions on how to pare their budgets," he said. "I am getting little or no recommendations. I don't foresee the department heads giving us too many solutions."

"We still have layoffs of city employees as a consideration.

We haven't calculated the numbers but we are considering cuts in every department. I am reluctant to discuss numbers."

Meanwhile, The Sun learned that a "tentative list of job cuts" prepared more than two weeks ago included 18 police officers, the entire Fire Alarm Division, the entire Youth Commission.

It also included some top department assistants and senior clerks as well as clerk typists, engineers, and laborers.

The list, which contained at least 45 specific jobs plus the elimination of whole divisions, may have been rendered obsolete when the state granted a month's extension on the deadline for submission of the budget to the City Council.

A city ordinance proposed by City Council President Arthur Tobin restricting layoffs gained support from the Quincy Police Betterment Association, the Quincy Fire Association and the Quincy Chapter of the Laborers International Union.

Mayor LaRaia said the budget will be ready for the Council in about two weeks.

"Basically it will be ready by the end of the month," he said. "We are taking advantage of all the time allowed under the state extension so that we can review the budget more deeply."

That would place the budget in the hands of the City Council at its May 3 meeting.

Police Seminar To Help Businesses Cut Crime

Police Chief Francis X. Finn has announced a two-phase commercial security program to combat robbery, burglary, vandalism, shoplifting and other crimes that plague the business establishments in the city.

The first phase is a series of seminars, scheduled for April 20 at 9 a.m., April 29 at 2 p.m. and May 6 at 7 p.m., dealing with methods of preventing robberies, procedures to follow during a robbery and what to do immediately after it.

The second phase will include security surveys of business establishments conducted by auxiliary police officers at the request of store owners to point out security weaknesses and recommend improvements.

"The seminars," said Chief Finn, "will instruct business people on prevention techniques they can use to deter commercial crime. It includes the development of a cooperative spirit between the police department and business people.

"Business representatives will be provided with techniques they can employ to reduce crime and to aid in the apprehension of criminal offenders. The discussion will also focus on shoplifting, employee pilferage and bad checks."

He added that compliance with security suggestions "will considerably reduce commercial burglary and robbery, and also increase offender apprehension rates."

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce is cooperating in the program.

Further information on the seminars and security surveys may be obtained by contacting the Police Department's Planning and Research Division at 479-1212, ext. 378.

#2 Bills Go Like Hotcakes

Two dollar bills made an official appearance in Quincy for the first time in years Tuesday, and they went like hotcakes.

The downtown branch of the Quincy Savings Bank reported that 1,000 of the brand new bills went to the tellers' windows at 9 a.m. and were gone by 2 p.m.

"I wish we had more," said branch manager Don Almeda.

He attributed the popularity of the bill that was once considered unlucky to the first day novelty of it.

"It's something completely new," he said. "It's like a new quarter or half dollar. Everybody wants to be the first to get one."

Police, Fire, Laborers Union Back Tobin Layoff Protection Ordinance

The Quincy Police Betterment Association and the Quincy Fire Association have announced their support of a proposed city ordinance that would ban layoffs of permanent city employees until provisional and temporary employees have been fired.

A rough draft of the ordinance was submitted to the City Council last week by Council President Arthur H. Tobin as reports swept the city of coming layoffs of police and firefighters in an economy move. It was sent to the ordinance committee for redrafting.

A statement by the Executive Boards of the two associations said:

"With the great need and emphasis for public safety it is imperative that support for this ordinance is made known by the people of the city of Quincy to the Mayor and the City Council."

"Both the Police and Fire Departments appreciate the concern exhibited by the City Council in their 8-0 vote with one abstaining."

"It demonstrated their concern and commitment to the citizens of the city of Quincy to keep public safety a number one priority issue."

The Quincy local of the Laborers International Union also endorsed the Tobin proposal, noting that its membership is vital to the "health, welfare and safety of all citizens of Quincy."

The membership includes employees of the Public Works Department, Park Department, Cemetery Department, Forestry Department and the General Service Division of the Police and Hospital Departments.

Terminations of some of those employees, the union said, would mean "serious curtailment of necessary and emergency services as well as contribute to lowering the morale of the divisions."

The union said it had the support of City Councillor Leo J. Kelly, chairman of the Council's Public Works Committee, in its endorsement.

Bikes To Be Anti-Theft Engraved

Free Bicycle Safety Clinic To Be Held April 19-20

By CATHY CONLEY

A city-wide free Bike Safety Clinic will be held Monday and Tuesday, April 19-20 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Central Junior High School grounds, 1012 Hancock St.

The clinic is being sponsored by Burger King in cooperation with the Quincy Police Department, The Quincy Sun and the Quincy School Department as a public service. Those attending will have their bikes tested free for safety factors and will have them engraved as an anti-theft measure.

And there will be free soft drinks. A bike license card will also be issued to be redeemed for free french fries at Burger King, 505 Quincy Ave., Quincy.

The event has the endorsement of Police Chief Francis X. Finn and Captain Roy Cavicchi, head of the Quincy Police Department Traffic Bureau. Safety Officer John Bartholomew and William Duggan will check the bikes for general safety features. Then, William Flanagan and Janice Kelley, both from the Planning and Research Department of the Quincy Police Department, will engrave each bike with the child's Social Security number or the number of one of his parents. This number will be kept on file at the Police Department for identification in case the bike is lost or stolen. Be sure to bring the Social Security number.

The clinic is open to all school-age children. All those whose bikes pass inspection will get a Bike Safety License from Burger King. This license will entitle the child to a free box of french fries at Burger King, 505 Quincy Ave. Also Burger King is providing free soft drinks to all who attend the clinic.

This week's "Young Ideas" on pages 15, 16, 17, 18 features Burger King's Bike Safety Clinic.

Assistant editors are Mrs. Dorothy Craig's Title I students and five of Mark Dempsey's fifth graders from the Pollard School.

Through puzzles, games, interviews and artwork, these children explore bike safety in many ways. Highlight of the issue is a bike safety coloring contest sponsored by Burger King. A winner will be chosen for each age from three to 12 and will receive a Burger King T-Shirt and a free meal. Every child who returns his entry to Burger King, 505 Quincy Ave., receives a free soft drink.

Don't forget the Josiah Quincy coloring contest featured in the April 8 issue of "Young Ideas". A winner will be chosen for each grade from kindergarten to the sixth grade and each will receive a $10 bank account from Quincy Cooperative Bank. Deadline is Friday April 23.

Southwest Neighborhood Undergoing Face-Lift

The southwest neighborhood of Quincy is undergoing a face-lift.

Through a grant from the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, certain homes of the southwest neighborhood are being painted at little or no expense to home-owners who reside in the area.

Painting is being done by professional painters under the federal CETA program. The supervision of the painters is under the direction of Tom Duncanson, a resident of the neighborhood.

Eligibility requirements for the housepainting program are: home-ownership, residence in the designated areas of southwest Quincy and income within the guidelines specified by the Department of Labor.

The Southwest Community Center is presently involved in the implementation of this project in cooperation with the Department of Planning and Community Development. Information and applications are available at the Southwest Community Center, 372 Granite St. For more information, visit the center or call 471-0796 - 8

Thomas Mullen Appointed City Youth Coordinator

The Quincy Youth Commission has appointed Thomas R. Mullen, 26, of Wollaston, as city Youth Coordinator, Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia announces.

Mullen replaces William J. Connolly who returned to teaching last month.

Mullen, who lives at 43 Lincoln Ave., was selected by the commission from among 45 applicants from the Massachusetts area.

Mullen will coordinate existing youth programs in the city as well as develop pilot projects within the city.

Mayor LaRaia said Mullen will also be involved in the Group Home for Girls and will cooperate with the Neighborhood Youth Corps. The Youth Commission also will have Mullen resume the Rent-A-Kid program for city youth.

Other duties will include fund raising for various youth activities, including a development of activities for city girls. Mullen will also oversee the federally funded work project grant that the city will shortly be receiving to combat juvenile delinquency.

A life-long resident of Quincy, Mullen is a graduate of North Quincy High School and Boston State College. He was a teacher in the Boston School system from 1971 through 1974. From 1974 to January of this year he was a juvenile probation aide at Quincy District Court, under the CETA Program.

While in college, Mullen was selected to "Who's Who among Students in American Colleges and Universities", and last year was selected as one of the "Outstanding Young Men in America".

The Youth Commission was established to meet the opportunities, challenges and problems of city of Quincy Youth. Its members are Chairman John W. Mahoney, Social Health Coordinator, Quincy Public Schools; Charles L. Alongi Jr., administrative assistant, Quincy Recreation Department; Robert F. Fitzpatrick, New England Telephone Company; Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, Director of Pupil Personnel, Quincy Public Schools; Sgt. Daniel J. Lyons, head of the Juvenile Division, Quincy Police Department; Mary I. Vallier, Clinical Coordinator, South Shore Alcoholism Clinic Without Walls; Richard A. Venna, first assistant chief probation officer, Quincy District Court.

Quincy Veterans Group To Fight Preference Battle

The war veterans of Quincy and Massachusetts are being called to battle once again, this time against predicted cuts in the city budget for veterans' services and the federal court decision against absolute veterans' preference.

There will be a meeting of the Quincy Veterans Council April 15 at 8 p.m. in the William Caddy Detachment of the Marine Corps League to lay plans for the fight against veterans budget cuts.

And, says Leo P. Cardarelli of Quincy, state commandant of the Marine Corps League, state commanders of all veterans organizations will meet this week with Atty. Gen. Francis X. Bellotti to discuss the federal court decision.

Cardarelli said he was informed by Asst. Atty. Gen.

Thomas Kelly that Bellotti plans to appeal the decision to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The federal court ruled this week that absolute preference for veterans in Civil Service was unconstitutional because it discriminated against women who were not called upon to serve in the Armed Forces.

Cardarelli said the Marine Corps League joins other veterans' groups in backing strongly an emergency bill by Rep. William Hogan (D-Everett) to restore limited preference to the state.

There are 800,000 veterans in Massachusetts, Cardarelli said.

Marshall Thanks Burke For Mound St. Beach Funds

Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall has expressed his thanks to Cong. James A. Burke (D-Milton) for his help in obtaining federal funding for the second phase of the Mound Street Beach improvement project.

Marshall is former city councillor and state representative from Ward 2 who was one of the initiators of the project.

Marshall told Burke:

"Your efforts on behalf of the residents of Quincy certainly have not gone unnoticed and I want to express my gratitude to you for your personal efforts on this project."

Houghs Neck Wetland Hearing

The Quincy Conservation Commission was scheduled to hold a public hearing last night,

Wednesday, at 7:30 p.m. in the Houghs Neck Legion Post on a bid by Stephen and Maureen Richmond to alter wetland at 157 Stoughton St., Houghs Neck.

The hearing was originally scheduled for April 7 but was postponed due to an error in the legal notice of its date.

Cited For Heroism, Dedication

8 Police Officers Commended By Finn

Eight Quincy police officers have been commended by Chief Francis X. Finn for heroism, dedication to duty and good judgement in difficult situations during the past year.

They are Officers Robert Wilson, Stephen O'Brien, John Kelley, Norman Goyette, Alfred Radley, John Smith, John Gilfeather and Joseph Murphy. Wilson and O'Brien were cited for their capture of three armed robbers who held up a Baintree pharmacy last June 5, particularly for their "good judgement in averting a shoot-out or a high speed chase."

The officers heard of the robbery on the radio, said the citation, and "observing a purple Ford Mustang proceeding toward Quincy Sq., they turned around and followed, keeping a good distance between themselves and the suspected vehicle."

"In the meantime they radioed for assistance to avoid a high speed chase and possible shootout as the occupants were reported to be armed. When enough assistance was on hand, they moved in and stopped the vehicle."

"Three suspects were arrested and later convicted. A shotgun was confiscated together with numerous controlled substances."

Kelley was commended for his undercover work with Baintree police and federal authorities Jan. 5 that resulted in six arrests and the seizure of 35 pounds of marijuana and a quantity of cocaine.

"Officer Kelley," said the citation, "spent four hours in the company of known drug users and sellers in a Baintree apartment. From there they went to a home on Chubbuck St., Quincy," where the arrests were made.

Goyette was praised for his rescue of a tenant from an apartment above the Cottage Paint Store at 660 Hancock St., Wollaston, during a fire that ravaged the structure Jan. 9.

Goyette discovered the fire, kicked in the door and went upstairs calling out the alarm.

"He finally located a tenant who, being under the influence of liquor, got away from Officer Goyette and went back to his room to recover personal property. Officer Goyette went after him and finally led him to safety."

Radley and Smith also received their commendations for a fire rescue. They were the first unit to arrive at a burning building at 58 Holmes St., North Quincy, Jan. 25.

"This was a four-story brick apartment and was filled with acid smoke. Both officers raced up and down getting occupants out. They had to kick in a door in the apartment where the fire started to reach a woman tenant."

Gilfeather and Murphy were almost overcome by smoke while carrying out rescue missions Jan. 28 when fire swept a building at 110 Clay St., Wollaston.

"They entered the building and after being informed by a resident that his wife was in a back room, Officer Gilfeather groped his way and located the woman by calling her name. He then escorted her to his cruiser."

"In the meantime, Officer Murphy had gone to the second floor to alert occupants up there."

"Officer Gilfeather reentered the building to assist Officer Murphy on the second floor. Both officers ended up on their hands and knees calling out and kicking at doors."

"Occupant credited the action of both officers with saving them from serious injury or possible death. Both officers were administered oxygen at the scene and then transported to Quincy Hospital."

Head Start Now Taking Applications

Head Start is taking applications for its Quincy program which will start in September.

Eligible children must live in Quincy and be 4 years old by Dec. 31 or 5 years old after Jan. 1, 1977.

Applications may be made at Southwest Service Center, 372 Granite St.; Germantown Service Center, 9 Bicknell St.; Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 150 East Squantum St.; or the Head Start Office, 471-7811.

Transportation is provided by the program.

South Boston Savings To Build Branch In Lakin Sq.

Alfred W. Archibald, president of the South Boston Savings Bank, announced Tuesday night that the bank will build a branch office sometime this year in Lakin Square, Quincy, on the site of the Lakin Square Drug Store.

The South Boston bank was established in 1863 and is the 13th largest savings bank in Massachusetts with current assets of more than $300 million.

Kathryn J. Kelly of 85 Dundee Rd., Squantum, an employee of the bank's mortgage department for 19 years, was elected assistant treasurer at the Tuesday meeting of corporators.

Meanwhile, City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr., asked to meet with bank officials to discuss traffic patterns in the area that might be affected by the new enterprise.

"The traffic flow of the bank would certainly figure into the new signalization plans for Lakin Square and I would just as soon have the bank's input so that the best results will be accomplished for all concerned," said Lydon.

An Easter Brunch

by Martha Logan

Guests will be delighted when the hostess serves ham with mustard dill pickle sauce for her Easter brunch. It's a favorite flavor combination made company special.

Easy is the preparation key when a ham in a round can is served, as it is fully cooked and only needs to be heated through. While the ham is heating, the sauce can be prepared. To complete the menu add a molded fruit gelatin salad, buttered asparagus, muffins and parfaits of sherbet and crushed macaroons. Both the salad and the dessert can be made the day before the brunch.

Ham with Mustard Dill Pickle Sauce

- | | |
|-----------------------------|----------------------------------|
| 4 pound canned Ham | ¼ cup chicken bouillon |
| 1 teaspoon prepared mustard | 1 tablespoon wine vinegar |
| ¼ teaspoon salt | 2 egg yolks, slightly beaten |
| 1 tablespoon flour | 1 tablespoon chopped dill pickle |
| 1 teaspoon sugar | |

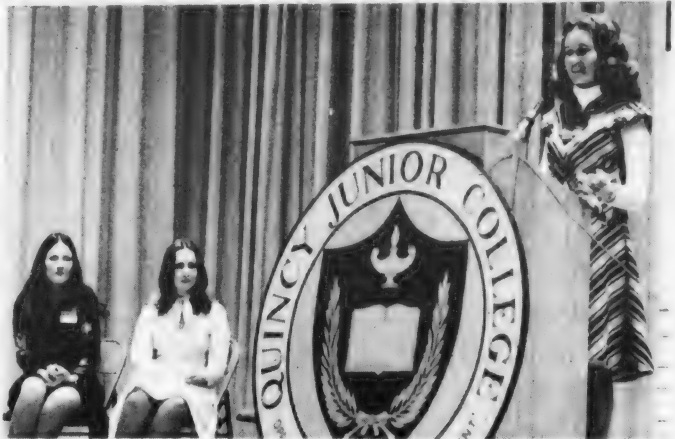

About 2-1/2 hours before serving, place ham on rack in shallow open pan. Add 1/2 cup water. Heat in 325°F. oven 1 hour. Turn ham over and continue heating 1-1/4 hours or to an internal temperature of 140°F. as registered on a meat thermometer. To make sauce, blend together mustard, salt, flour and sugar in the top of a double boiler. Gradually stir in bouillon and vinegar. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until mixture is smooth and begins to thicken. Remove from hot water and slowly blend in egg yolks. Return to heat and cook until sauce is thick, stirring constantly. Add pickle. Serve hot over ham slices.

COOKING MEDIUM

For thousands of years, the most common and satisfactory cooking utensils have been made of metal, because metals are durable and transfer heat evenly and quickly from the heat source to the food being cooked.

Aerobic Dance Program At Quincy YMCA

A 10-week program in Aerobic Dance started Monday at the Quincy YMCA.

Registration is open at the "Y" main desk for two courses: Monday, Tuesday, Thursday morning from 10 a.m. - 11 a.m. and Monday and Thursday evenings from 6:30 p.m. - 7:30 p.m.

Aerobic dancing is a highly effective way for women to get fit and stay fit, according to the YMCA. The 10-week program is a series of dance routines set to music. The routines are flexible enough to accommodate both the beginner and the advanced individual. Each routine can be performed on either a walking, jogging, or running energy level.

Aerobic dance is a method for causing your body to demand more oxygen while it exercises the cardiovascular system (heart and lungs) and the skeletal muscle, and it burns up calories.

The Quincy YMCA is the only organization on the South Shore offering the program. Instructors include Alyce McLeod, Hertha McConville, Dolly Lee and Brenda Kelly - each of whom has received extensive training.

Each participant must have a medical clearance signed by the family physician. Course fee and advanced registration is required. Call the "Y" at 479-8500 for further information.

Stay Alive!

By Jack Silverstein

DON'T TOY WITH SAFETY

Unsafe toys can do untold harm to children. Here are some precautionary measures to take when toy shopping.

Pass up any toy that easily comes apart, leaving sharp metal or plastic edges exposed. Also, pass up dolls and stuffed animals that have straight pins or other built-in hazards hidden in the body, hair, or clothing. [And be sure to check that doll clothing and stuffing are labeled "nonflammable".]

If you're shopping for an older child, keep in mind that many "toys" - science sets, for example, containing real chemicals - can be potentially dangerous. Chemicals and equipment must be labeled; and the directions enclosed should be both simple and complete. Bicycles, skate boards, and other riding equipment should be examined for parts that might injure a child if fallen upon. All screws, bolts, clamps must be secured tightly.

Confused No Longer

Q. I have been trying to find out my Moon Sign and I am just not having any luck. I first wrote to M.C. with the needed fee and she replied that I have a Scorpio Moon. Since then I wrote to a magazines Astrological Romancescope thinking I would hear the same thing but they say my Moon Sign is Pisces. Now I am confused and wonder if it is possible for you to tell me who is correct? I was born on June 11, 1928 at 7 p.m. in Boston, Mass.

E.A.

A. In June 1928 the Moon was in the Sign of the Zodiac Pisces until 7:13 p.m. Eastern Daylight Time, the same as 6:13 p.m. Eastern Standard Time. Therefore, being born at 7:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Time, your Moon was in Pisces. However, if your exact moment of birth was 7:13 p.m. E.D.T. or later that date, the Moon was in Aries. At no time during your date of birth was the Moon in Scorpio.

As you probably know your Sun was in Gemini. The planet Saturn was in your First House in Sagittarius, the Sign on your Ascendant.

Your chart indicates you were a precocious child. You matured much earlier than most children, having an old head on young shoulders. You have had an extremely complex emotional nature and your fields of activity were not limited.

Your high regard for your own ability may have developed into a superiority complex. Difficult as it may be you will need to make many concessions if a partnership or marriage is to be of lasting benefit or happiness. As the saying goes, "It takes two to tango".

You have excellent mental facilities and are independent in thought. You do not hesitate to differ with others be they peers or superiors. You relish a battle of wits. Bear in mind you may win an argument and lose a friend. Tact and careful control of what you say and how you say it will accomplish more for you.

For questions to be answered through this column, mail the year, month, day of the month, city of birth, time of day if known and question to Ask Oscar, Box 114, Canton, Mass. 02021. Please sign your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered in this column.

February, 1926 met recently at the home of C. Everett Lister, 335 Summer St., Weymouth, to discuss plans for the 50th anniversary class reunion, to be held Saturday, Oct. 2 at the Neighborhood Club, Quincy.

Present were the Class President, Walter F. Peterson, Vice-President Rachel Pyyny Bjornholm, Hazel Olsen Hendry and Virginia Read Rich.

Of the 104 graduates, 24 are known to have died, but, of the remaining 80, there are some the committee has been unable to locate. They are:

Helen Bates Nelson Bussolas, Isabelle Burke Brown, John Herbert Card, Stanley W. Gaudet, J. Harris Golbranson, Eva Goldner Jacobs, Mildred Lewis Hicks, William G. Lindholm, Edward N. O'Hearn, Anna L. Sternberg, Jacob Stoler, Mary Tower Alter, Mary Williams Knowlton, Ronald J. Woodaman, Julia J. Vaszki and Mary Zamburano Scanlon.

Information regarding any of these "missing" class members may be sent to Mr. Peterson, 60 Walnut St., Milton, Mrs. Bjornholm, 6 Hopedale St., Quincy, L. Paul Marini, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy, or to Mr. Lister.

The next meeting is scheduled for Thursday, May 6.

ENGAGED -- Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Y. Mattson of 33 Young St., North Quincy, announce the engagement of their daughter, Debra Marie, to Robert E. Hill Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Hill of 309 Beale St., Wollaston. Miss Mattson, a graduate of North Quincy High School, is attending Northeastern University College of nursing. Mr. Hill, a graduate of Mantor Hall School, Cambridge, Quincy Junior College and Southeastern Massachusetts University, is employed by American Marketing Association, Indianapolis, Ind. A 1977 wedding is planned.

NEWSCARRIERS WANTED

Here's a chance to earn extra money by building a Quincy Sun home delivery route.

Telephone: 471-3100

That's a rule we try to follow in all the communities we serve. We do it by lending money to build houses. And by lending money to purchase homes. And by lending money for improvements and for additions.

Every time QCB lends money to build or improve, a lot of local people go to work. Carpenters, electricians, plumbers, painters, etc. And all kinds of local companies get business selling the materials needed for construction and furnishing.

When people build, it means neighborhoods grow. Which is just what Josiah Quincy, Jr. had in mind when he founded cooperative banking in Massachusetts. And it's just what we had in mind when we named our bank after him.

And we keep it in mind today. We know for certain...

JOSIAH WOULD HAVE LIKED THAT.

Everytime Jim Burke

Stubs A Toe . . .

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Seems everytime Congressman James Burke stubs a toe or sneezes, a line of potential candidates begins forming for his 11th Congressional seat.

So his recent hospitalization must surely have popped a few thoughts into a few heads around here.

Long-time, faithful aide Edward Moore attributes Burke's stay at Bethesda Naval Hospital in Maryland to "a tough cold, chest congestion and a nagging cough."

He reports Burke "is now back in action" and stresses the fact that the Congressman was in the hospital only four days.

But to aspiring political candidates and hardened political observers, the fact that he spent even one day in the hospital gives them food for thought.

So has the fact that he already has an announced challenger in Patrick H. McCarthy of Randolph and an unannounced but already campaigning one in Danielle de Benedictis, of Milton, former assistant attorney general on Civil Rights now with the Department of Utilities.

McCarthy, former top aide to Congressman Joseph Moakley, sailed his hat into the ring weeks ago to challenge Burke in the Democratic primary in September. That's just five months away.

McCarthy, a 30-year-old Vietnam veteran, may present the first real threat to Burke in 18 years. He has youth, looks and reportedly—money. He is considered an attractive candidate by many.

McCarthy's candidacy presents a problem for long-time potential candidates who have thought of running for the seat once occupied by John Quincy Adams.

But they are friendly toward Burke and would not want to run against him. Among them: former Quincy Mayor-Senator James McIntyre and former Norfolk County Dist. Atty. George Burke of Wollaston.

Then there is also former Mayor Walter Hannon, a Republican, who some think has been toying with the idea of running as an Independent.

The problem for someone like McIntyre or Burke who are both Democrats, is that McCarthy is a "winner" even if he loses. If he should pull an upset, he could own the 11th Congressional seat for 35 or 40 years.

And, if he loses, he has his "foot in the door" for the next run. And by then, Congressman Burke, now in his mid-60's, may be ready to call it a career.

McCarthy would have travelled the Congressional district and built his campaign team.

So it is a political dilemma for McIntyre or Burke [George] or any other local Democrat friendly to Burke [James].

But don't underestimate James Burke, whether he sneezes, stubs a toe or spends four days in a hospital.

He's a pro on the campaign trail and he's been a follow-through man with his constituents. And he knows how to talk to the common man with butter and eggs issues.

A release of 1974 election statistics from State Secretary Paul Guzzi's office indicates that Burke's strength has not waned through the years.

In 1974, for example, Burke's opponent [Joseph Tierney] pulled fewer votes than opponents of Congressman Gerry Studts and Congresswoman Margaret Heckler. And, fewer votes than the number of blanks cast in Congressman Thomas [Tip] O'Neill's 8th District and Congressman Joseph Moakley's 9th District, both of whom were unopposed.

And Burke's total vote was consistently higher than that of incumbents in the neighboring districts.

Burke is a political warhorse who will never go to involuntary pasture without a last ditch fight.

AN EXTRA 2,000 students a day will converge on the downtown Quincy area when double sessions start at Quincy High School estimates School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon. He says it will last for at least two years and no more than three years during construction of the North Quincy High School addition.

AS A QUINCY High School alumnus, this writer was thrilled listening to the QHS band in concert at Sterling Junior High recently during the recent First Railway 150th anniversary ceremonies. Director Mike Cahill rally has put together an outstanding musical unit. It's one of the greatest sounding bands you'll ever hear.

North Quincy, of course, has a top band, too.

It's too bad that either or [both] doesn't [don't] appear in public concert some night so that more people could listen to them. [And not one electric guitar anywhere].

NEW AT LIBRARY

By JANET HUSBAND
Acquisition Librarian

Following are some of this month's new books at The Thomas Crane Public Library.

KNOW-HOW by Guy Allard is sub-titled A FIX-IT BOOK FOR THE CLUMSY BUT PURE OF HEART. Its breezy but authoritative advice on how to do simple house repairs may make your next project more agreeable.

CAGNEY by James Cagney tells of the actor's childhood in New York's Lower East Side, his early years in vaudeville, and his move up to stardom. Cagney has written an entertaining book that will be enjoyed by many.

IN TAKE HEED OF LOVING ME Laura Conway spins another worldly tale with ghostly realism and plenty of 19th century atmosphere. The story concerns Cathleen Friend, a young widow, who joins her novelist aunt in an old house with a haunted history.

THIS IS THE HOUSE by Deborah Hill is a sturdy and well-fashioned historical novel set in post-Revolution Cape Cod. Its central figure, Molly Deems, may remind you a little of Scarlett O'Hara.

VERDICT by Hildegard Knef is the tremendously moving autobiography covering the actress's later years and her encounter with illness. Those who read the earlier volume THE GIFT HORSE won't want to miss this.

THE BOYS FROM BRAZIL by Ira Levin is another mesmerizing novel by the author of ROSEMARY'S BABY. Imagine 94 young Hitler's growing up all over the world just waiting the call to action from their creator, a mad Auchwitz doctor.

SHOULDER TO SHOULDER by Midge Mackenzie will interest those who watched the TV series of the same title. It is a handsome documentary, illustrating with many photos, the moving eye-witness accounts of British suffragettes.

SPANDAU: THE SECRET DIARIES by Albert Speer is the sequel to INSIDE THE THIRD REICH. It is absorbing reading, effective both as a prison diary and as a memoir of Nazi Germany.

PADDINGTON GREEN by Claire Rayner is number three in the Lackland family saga which follows the life and career of surgeon Abel Lackland and his family in Victorian London. It's a splendid story on its own, and must reading for those who have already read GOWER STREET and THE HAYMARKET.

BATTLES AT THRUSH GREEN by Miss Read is another charming and unpretentious saga of the ups and downs of the quiet life in a small English village. A spring tonic for the winter weary.

Tips On Submitting News Items

Here are a few tips to readers and publicity chairmen who submit social, church, fraternal and veterans organizational news items to The Quincy Sun for publication.

Deadline for all such items is Monday noon. This means they should be in The Sun office, 1372 Hancock St., by that time.

Because of the heavy flow of news into the office and a space problem affecting all newspapers these days, we cannot guarantee publication in that particular week's issue. But items in first will be given priority.

News releases should be typed double spaced. If no typewriter is available, they should be printed. This is to avoid misspelling of names and garbling of information.

The name and telephone number of the person submitting the item should be included in case there are any questions pertaining to the information.

We are sorry but we cannot handle social-church-fraternal news items on the telephone.

Information should include the name of the organization, the event to be held, the date, place and time, name of speaker if there is one, full names of committee chairmen and committee members.

The Sun's policy is not to use nicknames.

Since The Sun is a community oriented newspaper, items concerning happenings in the city are given priority. But we are also interested in events outside of the city in which Quincy residents are participating.

We encourage you to submit news items regarding yourself or organization. That is what The Sun is all about.

But following the above tips will make it easier for us to do a better job for you.

Thank you.

'Flying Saucers' Sighted Over Quincy

By TOM HENSHAW

New reports of unidentified flying objects in the skies were sweeping Quincy.

Mrs. Arthur Shields of 28 Empire St., Germantown, said she and a neighbor watched three disc-shaped objects, flashing red and white lights and making no sound, swing like pendulums in the sky.

SHIPPING TERMINAL PLANNED AT SQUANTUM

The Quincy Development Commission voted to ask the Massachusetts Port Authority for a meeting on the MPA's proposal to build a multi-million dollar shipping terminal on the Neponset River at the site of the old Squantum Naval Air Station.

The QDC felt the terminal could be built in conjunction with the controversial Point Squanto development, a proposed $150 million waterfront complex of high rise apartments, business establishments and industrial plants.

ADAMS SHORE LIBRARY SUPPORTED

Harold J. McCarthy of 26 Plover Rd. president of the Hunting School PTA, announced his support for the new Ward One branch library at Palmer and Sea Sts., Adams Shore.

"There is no doubt that a library in Adams Shore would benefit more people than a library located in Houghs Neck," he said.

A REGIONAL ECONOMY

By ERIC SWIDER

Straight Out With Flat Rates

A proposal to provide for a flat rate electric structure will undoubtedly be on the ballot as a referendum this fall.

The proposal would basically have you paying the same price per kilowatt hour for your electricity at home, as does the biggest user. Right now, the big users — mostly businesses — pay less per kilowatt hour because the "cost of servicing" these customers to the utility is less.

The supporters of Flat Rates want us all to pay the same price on the strength of the notion that it costs as much to make a kilowatt for a big user as it does a little user and therefore, we should all pay the same for it.

I can't argue with the cost of making it. The fuel adjustment costs to the big users are passed along dollar for dollar so in most ways, they are paying extraordinary high electric bills as you and I at home.

The argument surrounds the cost of delivering the electricity into the home vs. into the factory. Flat rate proponents are suggesting, in effect, that you should have to pay the same per ounce cost for electricity if you buy it by the pint or by the truck load. They don't want quantity discounts.

If you look up at the electric poles in your neighborhood, you'll notice all sorts of wires, transformers, and other goodies that your local electric company has purchased and maintains to provide you and I with electricity into our homes. [Not to mention the meters, the meter readers, the billing departments, etc. that you make necessary].

The thousands of homes in our neighborhood about the same amount of electricity, by the pint, as does a big industry down the street, who gets it all delivered in bulk to his front door. The big industry has the transformers, etc., which it owns and maintains, to break down the electricity into its own pint size containers which then gets distributed around the plant for use at its various machines. The premium we pay for buying it by the pint is about $4 a month. That is supposedly what the average household would save if Flat Rates were adapted.

But wait a minute. Somebody now has to pay for maintaining the wires and transformers that service your home and mine. Guess who? You guessed it. It's the big plant down the street. You know, the one where your neighbor works. So the big plant's electric bill goes up by $12,000 a month and the problem is solved. No, that's not quite the way it works.

You see, the big plant down the street — you know, the one where your neighbor works — is run by these out-of-towners who keep their jobs by justifying themselves to stockholders, and these stockholders expect dividends, and dividends come from profits, and you guessed it... another $12,000 a month in electricity just made them unprofitable... so they say goodbye to you and your neighbor... and move to a place where they can still buy electricity at truckload prices, and thereby make a profit.

No, it ain't that pretty in Lincoln, Neb. The opportunities for culture ain't that fantastic... and maybe the local manager knows all that... but there are still enough managers left in the world who would rather work in Lincoln, Neb. than be unemployed in Hingham, Mass.

Flat Rates, if adopted by the voters of Massachusetts, would cost Massachusetts somewhere between 36,000 and 42,000 jobs, depending on which economic model you believe. That's about 2,500 lost jobs on the South Shore alone. That would increase our unemployment rate by another one-third. It could add up to an additional $2 billion dollars to the cost of Massachusetts government for welfare costs. It would make the $4 a month savings at home in electricity cost somewhere around $25 to $100 a month more in taxes alone, if you still have your job left.

You see, some of us don't simply know the guy who works in the big plant down the street — some of us are the guy who works in the big plant down the street.

Almost every responsible segment of the Massachusetts economic community, including the Governor, have spoken up against Flat Rates. The problem is that it's gonna be a ballot item — and the temptation to believe the inevitable campaign that will be mounted by the "forces of economic disaster" is strong.

What they tell you, rhetoric aside, will probably be true, as far as it goes. It's what they don't tell, or refuse to "fess" up to that will get us in trouble. I thought I'd bring it to your attention early in hopes that you'll check on how "Flat Rates" will impact on your job.

THE READER SPEAKS OUT

A Tribute To Miss Merle Sawyer

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The Quincy Public Schools were saddened by the recent passing of Miss Merle Sawyer who retired in June of 1975 from the principalship of the Massachusetts Fields Elementary School.

Miss Sawyer served the city for 45 years and taught at all levels within the school system. She was appointed an elementary school principal in 1949 and served in that capacity at the Merrymount, Coddington and Massachusetts Field School.

Over the years she had leadership roles in the Quincy Education Association, South Shore Elementary School Principals Association, Massachusetts Elementary School Principals Association and the Department of Elementary School Principals of the National Education Association. She served as the president of the state association in the 1964-65 school year.

In responding to Miss Sawyer's letter of intention to retire, Dr. Lawrence P. Creodon, Superintendent of Schools wrote on April 1, 1975, "This is one of those times when no words of praise and expression of admiration seem sufficient, because no matter what is said it all seems so inadequate."

"Merle Sawyer has been forever young, forever sensitive, forever seeking better ways and forever a model to be emulated by all educators."

She had that rare gift of recognizing and knowing by name every child in her building. Her major concern was always for them and to make sure the best in education was being provided for them. Her loss has saddened us all but she has left a mark that will forever be remembered in the Quincy Public Schools.

surprise element into the school budget controversy last week when he told a radio interviewer there is a "remote possibility" that the $15 million North Quincy High School project will be postponed.

The project to renovate and build an addition to the school is to be paid for by a bond issue and the Mayor told The Sun the possibility is being considered for two separate bond issues to ease the impact on the tax rate.

"We would consider it," he said. "I don't want to speculate on details. I want to wait until we go to the bond market. There is still time to plan. The deadline is not until June 30."

Major Improvements Planned At Dorothy Quincy Homestead

Major improvements to the historic Dorothy Quincy Homestead at the corner of Hancock St. and Butler Rd., Quincy, Center, will get underway soon, announces Arthur H. Tobin.

Work on the homestead, which was the birthplace of the wife of John Hancock, will be done by Chesterbrook Construction Co. of Newton, low bidder on the $17,063 contract.

Tobin said the interior of the building will be repainted and wallpapered, fire detection devices installed and fireplaces examined to see if they can be made functional.

Also a second basement entrance will be installed to open the area for exhibit purposes.

The homestead is owned by the MDC and managed by the Colonial Dames of America.

Liquor Stores To Close 1-4 P.M. Good Friday

At its meeting Tuesday, the Quincy Board of License Commissioners voted to order all liquor stores in the city to close between the hour of 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. on Friday, April 16 in observance of the holy hours of Good Friday.

There will be a Memorial Service, Rabbi Samuel S. Kenner and Cantor Tevele Ring will conduct the services.

To find the beginnings of the story of Passover [Pesah, in Hebrew], we must travel back thousands of years to the land of Egypt. There, the Book of Exodus tells us, the Jews were enslaved by a heartless Pharaoh.

Taking pity on His people God chose Moses to lead the Jews out of slavery. First Moses implored the Pharaoh to let the Jews worship the Lord in freedom. But Pharaoh refused. The Lord then sent one plague after another upon the Egyptians until they reluctantly allowed the Hebrews to leave. He then commanded the Red Sea to open so that Hebrew slaves might escape the pursuing Egyptians and go on to a new life.

Once safely encamped on dry land, the thankful Jews offered up praise to God for their deliverance. Having tasted the bitterness of slavery, they thrilled at the challenge of liberty. So important is the emancipation story, that the whole Passover ceremony is built around it.

On Passover eve, the entire family gathers at the dinner table for the traditional Seder. Both a meal and worship service, the Seder is celebrated with prayers, songs and blessings.

performed in a given order. In fact, Seder is the Hebrew word for "order".

Every member of the family, no matter where he may live, tries to be home for this important occasion. Almost always, there are guests at the table, for it is a custom to share the blessings of the holiday with friends, neighbors and even strangers who are unable to get to their own home.

Among Orthodox and Conservative Jews, the Seder is held on both the first and second nights of the eight-day holiday. Reform Jews, who observe a seven-day Passover, usually hold their own Seder on the first evening. Many synagogues now also conduct a Seder for their entire congregation, as Temple Beth El is doing.

The appointed order for the Seder ceremonies is contained in the Haggadah, an ancient book whose oldest portions date back at least 2,500 years or more. Haggadah itself is the Hebrew word for "telling" and the Passover service is based on the Biblical injunction:

"Thou shalt tell thy son in that day saying, 'It is because of that which the Lord did for me when I came forth out of Egypt.'" [Exodus 13.8].

Thus children play an important part in the Seder Service. In fact, the service opens with the youngest son asking four questions of his father, beginning with the famous, Ma Nishtanah, "Why is this night different from all other nights?"

It is the father's answers that unfold the drama of the Exodus. And in the telling of the familiar but ever stirring story of Moses and the Israelites, modern Jews, young and old, relive the anguish and joy of their forefathers. They bless the Lord, "Who hath preserved us and sustained us and brought us to this season" and praise Him for the glory of each new springtime, the season when Passover is celebrated.

The Seder is a meal as well as a religious service, and very special foods adorn the table. Arranged on a platter are Matzoth-wafers of unleavened bread; "maror"-bitter herbs;

"haroseth-a mixture of chopped apples, nuts, cinnamon and wine; the Shank bone of a lamb; a roasted egg; parsley or watercress. Each of these foods has a particular significance to the Jewish people, reminding them of some event, sweet or bitter in their deliverance from slavery. As the story is retold and the foods eaten, their meaning is revealed.

As in most Jewish ceremonies, wine is a part of the ritual and a cup of sweet wine is placed at each setting. During the service, at the mention of each of the 10 plagues, the celebrants dip off part of their wine. They do this since wine symbolizes happiness, and they want to show their happiness is incomplete.

Thus the Jewish people express their sadness that some Egyptian had to suffer before freedom was granted to the Hebrew slaves. Placed in the very center of the table is a goblet of wine called "Elijah's cup". Orthodox Jews believe that the prophet Elijah will foretell the coming of the Messiah. By filling this cup with wine, they welcome his presence at the Seder and thereby express their hope that the promise of a Messianic Age, when all men will be at one with God and with each other, will someday be fulfilled.

This custom is also retained by Conservative and Reform Jews. Commemorating a great event in Jewish history, Passover combines beautiful ritual with family warmth and youthful fun.

Perhaps its universal significance is best expressed in this part from the final benediction of the Passover Seder:

"May He who broke Pharaoh's yoke, forever shatter all fetters of oppression and hasten the day when swords shall at last be broken and wars ended. Soon may He cause the glad tidings of redemption to be heard in all lands so that mankind-freed from violence and from wrong an united in an eternal confidence of brotherhood-may celebrate the universal Passover in the name of our God of Freedom.

Quincy & S.S. Realtors Sponsoring Seniors Day At The Movies

Gerald M. Melanson, President announces the Quincy & South Shore Board of Realtors, is sponsoring a "Senior Citizens' Day At The Movies" for elderly residents of Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth and Hull.

The Movie, "A Man For All Seasons", will be shown at the Strand Theatre, Quincy, Monday, April 26 at 1 p.m. Admission will be free to all those holding tickets.

The Board of Realtors is making this day their "Make America Better" function for the year. Door prizes, donated by the Board of Realtors and local merchants, will be awarded those ticket holders whose number is drawn. First prize is a portable TV, second prize is a clock radio; also many gift certificates and dinners-for-two will be awarded.

Transportation is being arranged to and from senior citizen housing developments in co-operation with R.S.V.P., and bus pick-up schedules will be announced in advance of the program. The general public is asked to make their own transportation arrangements.

Tickets are available free of charge at any Realtor office in Braintree, Quincy or Weymouth.

Leo Cardarelli Returns

From Marine 'Command Visit'

Leo P. Cardarelli of Quincy, state commandant of the Marine Corps League, is back from a "command visit" of Marine Corps facilities on the West Coast with the report that the old Corps is still in pretty good shape.

Cardarelli was one of about 100 people, 85 of them guidance counsellors, from Massachusetts, New York and Mississippi who were taken on a five-day guided tour of Marine installations in California.

The groups inspected the Marine Air Station at El Toro, Camp Pendleton, a fire power demonstration at 29 Palms, Calif., the recruit depot at San Diego, and the Mission San Luis Rey, Oceanside, Calif.

"In spite of recent reports of a death at the San Diego boot camp I found no problems among the 6,000 Marine recruits," said Cardarelli. "I found today's recruits in better shape than we were during World War II."

The Command visit is the first taken by persons other than U.S. Senators and Congressmen.

Cardarelli is a member and past commandant of the William Caddy Marine Detachment of Quincy.

Dukakis Reappoints Koch To Aggie School Trustee Board

Governor Dukakis has re-appointed Richard J. Koch, executive secretary to the Quincy Park-Recreation Board, to serve another four-year term as a member of the Norfolk County Agricultural High School Board of Trustees.

Koch was originally appointed to the high school board in 1964 by Gov. Endicott Peabody and served until 1968. During that term, he served as chairman of the board in 1966 on the 50th anniversary of the founding of the school and the dedication of Kemp Hall Housing, the school classrooms, gym and library. During his absence as a member of the board, from 1968 thru 1972, Koch volunteered and served on the advisory board, chaired a special committee responsible for the planning and completion of the present cafeteria and dormitory.

Gov. Francis W. Sargent, in 1972, appointed Koch again to serve as a trustee until his present term expired in January of this year. Koch has served as chairman of the negotiations committee, budget committee and extension service committee while a member of the board of trustees.

The board of trustees, is an unpaid commission, consisting of seven members: four are appointed by the governor and the remaining members, the three county commissioners, by virtue of their office.

Founded in 1916, the school has an enrollment of 350 boys and girls, majoring in agriculture or allied vocations.

Sgt. Dennis Walsh Receives Commendation Medal

Come To The Bike Safety Clinic

Date: April 19 or 20
Time: 10 A.M. to 1 P.M.
Place: Central Junior High Free Personalized Engraving
Free License,
Free Drinks,
Free French Fries

Burger King, in cooperation with The Quincy Police Department and The Quincy Sun, is sponsoring a Bike Safety Clinic on Monday, April 19 and Tuesday, April 20 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on the Central Junior High School grounds, 1012 Hancock St., Quincy. Quincy police officers will check your bike for general overall safety including:

- * Brakes
- * Handlebars
- * Seats
- * Reflector on rear
- * Light on front [if you are allowed to ride at night].

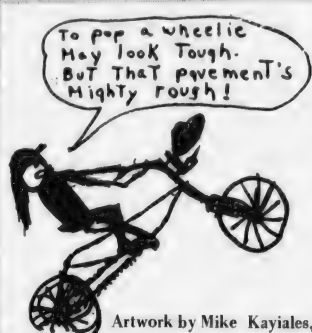

Then the Police Department will engrave either your Social Security number or one of your parents' number on your bike. This number will be kept on file at the Police Department for identification in case your bike is ever lost or stolen. Be sure to bring your or one of your parent's Social Security number!

All children whose bikes pass inspection will get a bike safety license from Burger King. You may bring this in to Burger King at 505 Quincy Ave. and get free french fries. Also Burger King is providing free soft drinks to anyone who attends the clinic.

To help us with our Bike Safety issue of "Young Ideas", our assistant editors are Mrs. Craig's Title I students and five of Mr. Dempsey's fifth graders at the Pollard School. Also, be sure to enter Burger King's Bike Safety Coloring contest. Your entry is on the back page of "Young Ideas".

RIDE RIGHT!!

1. Ride on the right with the flow of traffic.
2. Ride single file.
3. Stop at stop signs and traffic lights.
4. Signal by hand for turns.
5. Give the right of way to pedestrians.
6. Give a clear warning [bell, horn or voice] when needed for safety.
7. Carry no passengers [except on approved baby seat].
8. Check your brakes often.
9. Equip your bike with front and rear reflectors, pedal reflectors, and reflective material on both sides.
10. Do not adjust handlebars above your shoulders or alter the front fork of bike.
11. Do not ride on express or limited access highways.
12. You may ride on the sidewalk outside of the business districts unless the city or town prohibits it.

Me and

I like my bike because I can get everywhere I want to go faster. I don't have to walk. My favorite place to go is Burger King. My second favorite is the corner store for candy.

Bonnie MacMurdo, 10

I'd feel kind of lost without my bike. I need it to get everywhere I go. I run errands on it. My favorite place to go on it is Avalon Beach with my friends in the summer.

Tommy Scott, 10

I'm going to get a bike as soon as I learn how to ride. I told my mother I'll be very careful. I'll always obey all the rules, use signals and lock it when I go into a store. I can't wait because I'm going to race my mother to church on Sunday mornings -- but carefully!

Den 3 Pack 21 Cub Scouts Visit Quincy Sun

Cub Scouts of Den 3, Pack 21, of St. Ann's Church, Wollaston, visited The Quincy Sun recently to get a first hand view of what goes into the publication of a newspaper.

The scouts were Michael Moriarty, Michael Bellanger, Sean Kirby, Mark Derrane and Michael Mullen, Jimmy Levesque and Renee Levesque.

They were accompanied by Den Mother Mrs. Grace Levesque.

The boys visited the advertising and editorial offices on the first floor and then went to the lower level where they saw news headlines being set by a Compugraphic 7200 photo typesetting machine.

They also watched while a news story telling of their visit to The Sun was set in type by the IBM computer system, and the headline set on a Compugraphic 7200, then affixed into proper position on paste-up boards by an artist.

As they left the office, each scout was presented with a complimentary copy of The Quincy Sun.

3 From Quincy Attend Growth Policy Conference

Three Quincy area residents were among the more than 180 persons who recently attended a two-day conference on the Massachusetts Growth Policy Development Act at Tufts University.

The conference, sponsored jointly by Tufts' Graduate Program in Urban Social and Environmental Policy and Tufts' Lincoln Filene Center for Citizenship and Public Affairs, was designed to explain the implementation of the Act to members of the local growth policy committees created in Massachusetts municipalities under its provisions.

The three local residents are Agnes M. Cooney of 40 Cushing St., Wollaston; Jane Croke of 17 Milton Rd., North Quincy, and Anneli Johnson of 36 Garfield St., Quincy.

5 Local Residents On Wentworth Dean's List

Five Quincy residents have been named to the Dean's List for outstanding scholastic achievement during the first semester at Wentworth Institute.

They are: Paul Hemphill, 125 Newbury Ave., North Quincy, class of 1976; Paul N. DiCristofaro, 68

Federal Ave., South Quincy, class of 1977; Donald F. Martucci, 146 Brook St., Wollaston, class of 1976; Carol A. Ready, 115 West Squantum St., North Quincy, class of 1977 and Ronald J. White, 525 Newport Ave., Wollaston, class of 1976.

Mark Petracca Cornell Council President

Mark P. Petracca of 22 Ridgeway St., Wollaston was recently elected president of the Interfraternity Council at Cornell University.

2 From Quincy Attend EPA Conference

Two Quincy residents were among 50 high school students attending a special high school briefing sponsored by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, Boston.

Charles Palmer of 23 Hersey Place, Quincy Point, and Carol Kirshnit of 22 Muirhead St., Wollaston, represented Quincy at the conference. Representatives from 20 high schools in the area, were briefed on environmental matters by EPA Regional Administrator John A. S. McGinnon, and Public Affairs Director Paul G.

Keough. Both Quincy students are sophomores. Miss Kirshnit is a member of the debating team, language club, and softball team. Palmer is in the marching band and a member of the track and baseball teams.

Robert Mood On Dean's List

Robert Mood of 25 Harvard St., Wollaston has been named to the Dean's List for the fall semester at Bunker Hill Community College, Charlestown.

Atty. Nathan Pavan Named To State Electric Board

Governor Michael Dukakis has appointed Atty. Nathan S. Pavan of 40 Wollaston Ave., Wollaston to the Board of Directors of the Massachusetts Municipal Wholesale Electric Company, an agency authorized by legislation enacted into law in December, 1975.

Among the purposes of the new agency is the granting of assistance to local municipalities which have established or are considering the establishment of municipally-owned public power facilities.

Pavan is one of two appointees to be made by the Governor. Seven others are to be elected from cities and towns in the Commonwealth which operate municipal power plants.

Comparative car test shows how...

Car's condition plus careful driving can yield fuel savings

Little things, particularly in terms of car maintenance, can mean a lot in terms of fuel savings. To prove the validity of the above statement, Shell Oil Company embarked on tests of procedures that could save the average car owner nearly three months worth of gasoline annually.

How much care

How much proper car care and prudent driving habits can save in fuel was the answer Shell sought in its tests. Here's what Shell engineers did and what they found:

A typical company car was taken and put into shape where gasoline waste was probable. The engine was placed slightly out of tune with ignition timing retarded and carburetor idle set too fast and rich.

Radial tires on the car were replaced by ordinary tires and air pressure was lowered from the proper 24 pounds to 19. Wheel alignment was altered and the wrong weight of motor oil was installed.

Group of drivers

A group of 23 drivers was employed to drive the cars so altered and the group averaged 13.6 miles per gallon. Once the cars were put back into proper shape, the test was conducted again. This time, mileage averaged 15.6 m.p.g. — a two mile per gallon improvement.

Driving habits

Drivers involved in the test were given specific tips on how to maneuver their cars for best fuel mileage, as follows:

Accelerate gently without actually creeping away from the stop.

Anticipate stops and take your foot off the gas pedal, coasting to the intersection.

Keep your speed moderate. The most economical speed is 35 miles per hour. Never exceed 55 miles per hour.

Get into high gear as quickly as possible for the most economical performance. Even with automatic transmission, one can get the feel of shifting.

Shell reports that the combination of good car condition and careful driving made the average m.p.g. 16.8. That was a 23.5 percent improvement or a savings of nearly three months worth of gasoline.

Worn shocks often sneaky

Unlike a tire that suddenly blows out with a loud bang, worn shock absorbers can fail with little advance warning. Yet when shocks fail, the results can be just as perilous as a blow-out.

To avoid such a danger, ask your service man to check shocks every time the car is on the hoist for a lube job or similar service.

This is particularly important if your present shocks have more than 20,000 miles of wear on them.

Keep eye on tire inflation

You may want to invest in a pressure gauge to keep frequent tabs on your tires. Proper pressure for tires is generally given in a location inside the driver's compartment of the car — sometimes on a glove box door or inside the door post. Keeping tires properly inflated saves on tire wear, gas consumption and provides safer going.

CAR CARE

Thorough tune-up is needed when aim is best performance

Better gasoline mileage, more pep, surer starting are all benefits to be derived from an engine tune-up. But to get the maximum the service offers, Champion Spark Plug Company suggests the motorist should become acquainted with what a good tune-up is and insist on receiving all ingredients.

Before having a tune-up performed, make sure that the engine is in condition to benefit. The engine should be in generally good mechanical condition, critical parts lubricated, the cooling system and exhaust functioning. An engine with burned valves, worn or damaged piston rings cannot be tuned properly until worn or damaged parts are repaired.

So it is important that cylinder balance and compression checks be performed to help detect any serious malfunctions.

Ignition system

Basics of any tune-up include changing of spark plugs and points and condenser in cars so equipped. Some cars have electronic ignition without points and condenser. Checking all ignition components is recommended and if replacement of items that come in sets (such as plugs and plug wires) becomes necessary, then change the whole set.

Installing one or two plugs or wires is false economy since if several units need replacing then their mates will probably wear out soon.

Carburetion

The carburetor, which delivers the proper mixture of air and fuel to the intake manifold, should be checked for leaks in the gasket area. Excessive dirt and varnish, improper choke and faulty linkage also are possible carburetor defects.

Related areas such as fuel pump, air filter, fuel line and fuel filter should be checked as part of the tune-up procedure.

Emission control system

Various emission control devices have been introduced into cars in the past few years. Each of these devices must be checked to make sure it is properly functioning for best performance, dependability, economy and reduced exhaust emissions.

So, when you see an ad for a tune-up at an unbelievably low price, check what you are getting for that price.

Does it include parts or merely labor? Is the shop equipped with devices like engine oscilloscopes, exhaust gas analyzers and other sophisticated equipment?

A good tune-up that will save you money and help your car to top performance won't come cheaply. But a cheap tune-up is no bargain.

BUSINESS/REAL ESTATE NEWS

A Banking 'First'

Metrobank Opens New Branch At Quincy MBTA Station

Gerald M. Ridge, president of Metrobank announces the opening of its newest branch office at the Quincy Center MBTA Station.

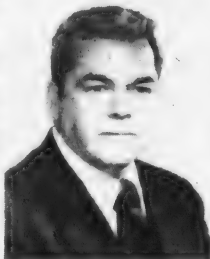

"Metrobank clearly demonstrates a whole new concept in banking," he said. "We're the first full service bank to open in an MBTA station in the Greater Boston area. We are fully staffed to help customers with loans, checking and savings accounts - everything you can imagine."

"What's more important is that Metrobank has clearly done away with traditional 'Bankers Hours'. We definitely will be a bank of convenience - open five days a week - from 7 in the morning to 7 at night. We will be open when the commuters need their bank - not when it's convenient for us!"

The newest branch of Metrobank is a 1,800 square foot office.

Other offices of the $15 million Metrobank are on the Parkway in Quincy, at Braintree 5 Corners and in East Milton Sq.

Cabot Devoll of Canton heads up the Metrobank MBTA branch. Peg Buthlay of Braintree and Suzanne France of Quincy are the Customer Service representatives for the office. Kathy Doherty of Quincy is head teller, assisted by Joseph Davis of Brockton, Brian Cox of Quincy and Rosemary Carpenito of Quincy.

Architect for the Metrobank MBTA branch was Kenneth Parry Associates of Quincy. Metrobank is the South Shore banking affiliate of UST Corp., the New England based Financial Service Center.

UST Corp. with assets exceeding $150 million, lists as its other subsidiaries: JSA Financial Corp., UST Leasing Corp., UST Capital Corp., UST Development Corp., Barclay Asset Management Corp., UST Financial Planning Corp., and United States Trust Company, its $115 million Suffolk County banking affiliate.

"The biggest asset Metrobank has is its people, and our people are determined to make banking a pleasant experience," said Ridge at recent opening day ceremonies.

"Our newest branch will be tremendously convenient for the thousands of commuters using the MBTA getting to and from their jobs. We understand this commuter is in a hurry, he doesn't have time to wait in line to cash a check or make a deposit. The Quincy MBTA office will be geared to meet their needs."

"This branch will offer all the services of our other offices - automobile loans, savings accounts, NOW accounts - everything. But the fact is our bank is in an unusual location in the MBTA Station, with customers whose needs will be more immediate."

Ridge was elected president of Metrobank in April of 1975.

Born and raised in South Boston, Ridge attended Cardinal Cushing School, South Boston High School and Newman Preparatory. He joined the U.S. Marine Corp. for two years immediately following World War II. Following an honorable discharge, he became a member of the Boston Police Department for four and one half years.

Ridge has been active in community affairs for over 20 years. Motivated by the need for larger ice hockey facilities for the growing Youth Hockey Programs in the Braintree area, Ridge built the 46,000 square foot Ridge Arena.

Former president of the Braintree Rotary Club, he is currently a member of the Pere Marquette Council of the Knights of Columbus, South Boston, the Wollaston Golf Club and the Marshfield Country Club. He also serves as director of the Institute of Public Service Management in Newton.

He and his wife Anne, live in Duxbury with their three children, Jennifer 14, Gerald 12, and Geranne 11.

Quincy Savings Over $200 Million In Assets

At the annual meeting Tuesday of the Quincy Savings Bank, Charles A. Pearce, President, announced the bank not only reached $200 million in assets but exceeded this figure by over $8 million.

He also announced the election of two new trustees, the promotion of six officers, and the election of six new corporators.

Pearce noted that for the year ending March 31, 1976 the bank's assets increased 12.5 percent compared to 5.4 percent for 1975. He also reported that deposits rose $21,816,695, during the past year compared to $8,566,881 in 1975.

Citing improved economic conditions, along with the public's continued confidence in mutual savings banks, Pearce commented:

"More and more people are finding that they can have nearly all of their financial needs conveniently and efficiently served by a savings bank. For example Quincy Savings Bank has inaugurated three new services within the past six months, which have been well received by the public. These new services are Plus/24, an automatic teller machine, Direct Deposit of Social Security, and individual retirement accounts."

The two new trustees are Mrs. Maurice Hart and John E. Williams. Mrs. Hart is treasurer of Lantana, in Randolph. She, and her husband Maurice, live at 99 Atlantic Ave., Cohasset.

Williams is President of Merriman, Inc. of Hingham. He and his wife Thelma, live at 50 Old County Road, Hingham.

Officer promotions were Assistant Vice Presidents Mildred Butler and Edward J. Sweeney; Assistant Treasurers Philip J. Greenspan, William T. Lomanno and John Reznik. Mazel Pearson was promoted to Manager of the Accounting Department.

New Corporators elected were Richard N. Hart, treasurer Dunkin Donuts of America, Florence E. Logan, treasurer Elmhurst White Nursing Home, Edwin Hayes, Jr. Underwood V.P.

Edwin J. Hayes Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin J. Hayes of 329 Belmont St., Wollaston, has

CHARLES PEARCE

Inc., Gerald T. Reilly, treasurer Gerald T. Reilly and Co., C.P.A. Inc., Paul J. Reynolds, Real Estate Appraiser and Consultant, Nathan Shulman, President, Best Chevrolet, Inc. and David R. Loveless, President, Boston Whaler, Inc.

Reflecting on the large inflow of deposits, Pearce said the bank is actively engaged in lending money for mortgage loans, and correspondingly, interest rates on mortgage loans have softened. "This is the kind of climate conducive for anyone needing home financing," he said.

Members of the corporation were advised that plans are being developed to build a new, full service, banking facility in Hanover this year. Presently the bank is waiting for approval from the Bank Commissioners office before it can proceed towards construction.

Also being planned are alterations to the North Quincy office. When completed this office will offer an enlarged lobby area and a Plus/24 automatic teller.

Members of the corporation acknowledged Thomas S. Burgin's 50 years service with the bank by presenting him with a seascape print entitled, "The Atlantic Deep" by Charles Vickery.

He was named Vice President, General Manager, International of the William Underwood Co., the food canning firm based in Westwood.

He will be the chief executive of all Underwood's foreign subsidiaries in England, Venezuela, Canada, Mexico and will act as company liaison representative for Underwood partnership interests in Costa Rica and Norway.

A native of Brockton, he attended Quincy public schools and was graduated from Dartmouth.

Raiders Rout Milton, 13-2

North Quincy's baseball team, which finally made the state tournament a year ago, but which has only one returning starter, started with a bang last Saturday when it bombed Milton, 13-2, in a non-league game.

Quincy, which is led by veterans, broke even in on-league games with B.C. High, winning, 2-1, then bowing, 5-1.

The opening Suburban League games were postponed Monday because of the cold. Next Tuesday North will host Newton at 2 o'clock at Adams Field and Quincy will play at Rindge Tech at 2. Next Thursday it will be Quincy vs. Brookline at Adams at 10:30 a.m. and North at Cambridge Latin at 2.

North Coach Charlie Bunker planned on using pitcher Mike Kelly for only five innings against Milton but the senior righthander got stronger as he went along and went the seven-inning route. He held Milton hitless after the third inning, struck out nine and didn't give up a walk. Steve Bell had three hits and four RBIs, Pete Fallon singled home two runs and pinch hitter Paul Stack drove in two with a double.

Quincy Coach Bud Mosher got some good pitching but the Presidents failed to hit against B.C. High.

In the opener Steve Fishman pitched a two-hitter, struck out four and walked four. Quincy's only extra base hit was a double by Jim Duggan. Quincy scored both runs in the third inning when Paul Southerland walked, Ed Daley bunted, Eric Carrera singled home the tying run and Fishman singled home the winner.

In the second game Quincy's bats were again silenced. Starter Pat Gibbons pitched creditably despite giving up all five B.C. runs and Steve Infascelli pitched excellent ball in relief.

QJC Wins Opener, 11-2

When the Quincy Junior College baseball team opened its season last Friday against Worcester Junior College, Coach Dave Burke felt pitching held the key to the Jaguars' success.

"I think we will hit well and be strong on defense, but the pitching is a question mark," Burke said. "Our outstanding pitcher last year, Jim Rogers, has used up his eligibility and I'm not quite sure about some of the others."

In the opener, everything went right as QJC walloped Worcester, 11-2. A triple by Mark Austin, two singles by Tom Perry and a two-run double by Steve Arnold sparked the attack and Burke received fine pitching from Pete DellaRusso, who got the win; Perry and Paul Craig.

For the second year in a row, QJC plays an independent schedule and will be aiming for the Region 21 playoffs. Last year the Jaguars missed post-season play for the first time in several years. Previously Burke's teams had won the Mass. Junior College Conference three straight seasons, but the conference disbanded last year.

Burke has only two returnees who played regularly last season, catcher Mike Devine of North Quincy and left fielder Paul Rooney of Quincy. Shortstop Vern Wilkens and third baseman George Fennell saw limited service last spring.

Joining Devine behind the plate is Quincy's Tom Perry, who also will pitch and play first base.

Perry, Quincy's Bob Prokop and Dan Fitzgerald are the first base hopefuls, Pete Banco of Scituate and John Connolly of North Quincy are fighting for second base, Quincy's Mark Austin, Wilkens of North Quincy, Dave McLachlin and Jack Cadigan of North Quincy are in a dog fight for the shortstop spot and Steve Aristide of Quincy, Steve Pasquantonio of Randolph and Fennell are trying for third base.

In the left field fight are Brad Crawford of North Quincy, Pete McDonough of Quincy and Rooney.

Mike DePaolo of Quincy, one of the top hitters for Morrisette Legion's Northeast U.S. champs last summer, Joe Daley and Paul Pellegrini are the center field hopefuls.

Vying for right field are Steve Kowalski of North Quincy, Bob D'Addario and Pete Jacobsen.

The pitching corps includes southpaw Paul Craig of Quincy, and righthanders Charlie Djerf of Quincy, John Fory, Bob Cross and Steve Tellen.

"Right now I'd say Craig and Perry are the best pitching prospects and I think DePaolo, Devine, Rooney and Austin all will hit well," Burke concluded. "As I said, pitching will be the big question mark."

-TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy Girls Softball Team Opens Season

The Quincy High girls' softball team was to open its Suburban League season Tuesday at Brookline with high hopes for a successful season in an extremely strong league.

Coach Barbara Webster lost only two girls from last year's team and has experience at nearly all positions and a group of versatile girls who can play several positions.

Lois Malvesti tops the pitching corps and, like most of the players, is a good hitter. She will play at third base when not pitching.

Rosie Maloney is another veteran pitcher and Quincy has a two-year veteran behind the plate in Rosemary Pestilli, an excellent catcher.

At first base is Fran Giovannucci, with a good arm and fine stretch; Peggy Thorley does a fine job at both second and third base, City Tozzi is back at shortstop and Thorley and Malvesti will split the third base duties.

Tricia Connor will see service both at second base and in left field, Kelly Sparks will again be in right field with a capable replacement in Mary Anne McCarthy. Pauline Albrecht, only a sophomore, is in center field. Clare Oliverio is another outfielder and Janice Russo does well at second base and in the outfield.

"We should do well, despite the strength of the league," Ms. Webster said. "We have the potential and if the girls want it bad enough, we could have a successful season."

Nancy Mattson is the team manager.

Hank Conroy is coaching the junior varsity and has a big squad, mostly sophomores.

Hank's squad includes Diane Nichols, Diane Nicholson, Sandra Gramasto, Marie Nichols, Lisa Salvaggio, Fatti Maloney, Terri Greenleaf, Sandra Whittemore, Virginia Connolly, Patricia McPhillips, Annie Baccari, Charlene Nicholson, Joanne Bullis, Kathy Flaherty, Doris McCarthy, Sue Jacobs, Carol DiBona and Anna Koufas.

The First Ladies host North Quincy today at Faxon Field and Tuesday will play a 10:30 a.m. game at Newton.

● St. Ann's Hockey

Blackwood, JDA Division Champs

Blackwood, which finished in first place during the regular season, won the Bantam championship in St. Ann's Hockey League, while JDA, which finished only third, surprised by winning the Pee Wee crown as the playoffs wound up last week.

Blackwood edged runnerup Crestview, 2-0, in the finale as Mike Nee and Mike Marella scored and Steve Robertson had an assist. Karl Olson sparked in goal for Blackwood and Mike Bellotti also shone in goal for Crestview.

Blackwood, upset in the opener of the final series, had come back to even the count with a 4-1 win. Marella, Robertson, Danny Bent and Dan Rowley had the goals with assists for Nee, Marella and Maloney. Paul Johnson had the Crestview goal with Kevin Kelly assisting.

JDA, which had been defeated by Dunkin Donuts in the opener of the finals, clinched the title with a 4-1 win after having earlier evened the series. Ed McDonough, John Hurley, John Doran and Sean Downing had the goals and Ricky Stempkowski starred in goal. Joe LaPierre had the goal for DD unassisted. Rick LaPierre had a fine game in goal.

In a Bantam exhibition game No. Quincy K. of C. nipped Lydon-Russel, 5-4. Jack Cronin had two goals and Denis Rush, Gary Stokes and John Roche one each. Cronin, Rick Carroll, Jack O'Leary, John McKenna, Phil Marino, Brian O'Leary and Mike Flaherty had assists. For Lydon Paul O'Sullivan scored twice and Steve Olson and Mark Millane once each.

In another Bantam exhibition Bike 'n Blade defeated Plaza Olds, 6-2. Bud Collins had the hat trick, Dan Leary two goals and Bob Stevens one. Steve Burke and Caporale had assists. For Plaza Tom Burke and Rick Carroll had the goals.

In a Pee Wee exhibition Art Tailors topped Keohane's, 6-2. Steve Webb had two goals and Ben Klingenstein, Mike Phelan, Ed Page and John Klingenstein one apiece. Andrew MacDonald, Brian Webb, Phelan, John Joseph, Mark McGowan and Jim Webb had assists. For Keohane's Mike Walsh and Steve Kelly had the goals and Steve Kearns, Kelly and Walsh assists.

Razer's Edge defeated Dairy Queen, 4-2. Sean O'Brien, Neil Beagle, Paul Hoffman and Neil Fisher had the goals and Peter Markosaus and Mike Bridgeman assists. Ed Rieman and Steve Hogan scored for DQ with Hogan and Chris Price having assists.

QYHA To Honor

Harry Messina April 22

The Quincy Youth Hockey Association will honor Harry Messina at an appreciation night Thursday, April 22 at George F. Bryan VFW Post.

Dinner will be at 7 p.m. Dancing will be from 8:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. to the music of the Shannonaire.

Messina has been a long time friend of Quincy Youth Hockey and had served as president of the association for the past four years.

Tickets may be obtained from the following:

Dorothy Schofield, Paula Kelley, Ed Holt, Ed Mitchell, Tom Bamberg or John Murphy. Tickets are also available at the Quincy Youth Arena Pro Shop.

Tickets Available For St. Ann's Hockey, Skating Banquet

Because of the abrupt closing of Shea Rink, tickets for the St. Ann's Youth Hockey and Figure Skating banquets will be sold only at St. Ann's Youth Center on the following dates:

Tonight (Thursday), next Thursday, Monday, April 26, and Thursday, April 29, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Tickets are $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children. All skaters will receive free tickets for their respective banquets.

No tickets will be sold at the door.

● Pee Wee House

Teachers, Wollaston Split McInnis, Keohane's Win

In the Pee Wee House League playoffs, Quincy Teachers, East Division winner, who had drawn a first round bye, split in their first two games with Wollaston Teachers.

In the opener the Teachers romped, 9-2, as Bobby Kelley and Kevin Coymann scored two goals each and Jay Princiotto, John Joyce, Mike Ferreira, Don Reidy and Mark Sayers had one apiece. Reidy had four assists, Pat Greenan and Kelley one each and Jimmy Seymour, Frank McGinn and Chris Dunn one apiece. For Wollaston Tony Chiochio and Greg Freeman had the goals and Freeman, Rich Durham and Chiochio had assists.

Wollaston won a 3-2 squeaker in the second game with Freeman netting two goals and Wally Phillips the winner. Chiochio, Phipps and Ed Campbell had assists. Steve Peavich and McGinn had the Teachers' goals with Greenan and Sayers having assists.

McInnis won its opening series with Stevens Appliance, winning the clincher, 7-2. Kevin Mock scored twice and Matt Kenney, Rich Mahoney, Pat Doherty, Steve Burns and Brian Donovan once each. Mock, Doherty and Mahoney each had two assists and Glenn Collins, Donovan and Mitch McInnis one each. Larry Lamphere and Bob Carey scored for Stevens and Carey, Mike Halloran, Dave Nigro and Lamphere had assists.

Keohane's upset Mug 'n Muffin, 6-3, with Kevin McCormick having two goals and Phil Phillips, Tom Hennessey, Dave DiCarlo and Jim Ferrara one each. Mark Picot, Mark Reilly, Bob Ready and Hennessey had assists. Bill Flannagan had two Mug goals and Dave Hicks one. Jim DiPietro had two assists and Hicks one.

McInnis topped the Harold Club, 4-2, with Brian Donovan scoring twice and Mock and Kenney once each. Kenney, Bill Thomas, Glenn Collins and Donovan had assists. John Sweet and Bud Corcoran scored for Harold with assists for Brian Sullivan and Bud Connolly.

Wollaston Theater edged McInnis, 3-2, on goals by Chiochio, Steve DeLuca and Steve Hall and assists for Paul Healy, Hall and DeLuca. Donovan scored both McInnis goals with assists for Chris Gorman, Kenney and Collins.

● Squirt House

Riley, McGinn

Maher In Wins

The Squirt House League playoffs continued with Riley Club edging Foley Chrysler, 4-3, with Jim McSweeney scoring twice and Tom Houlihan and Jim Daley once each.

Bill O'Brien had two assists and Mike Connolly, Jeff Murphy and Dick Marnell one apiece. Jeff Linehan had two Foley goals and John DiPietro one. John Meade, Kevin Dunn, John McGlame, John Burn and Jay Kusta had assists.

McGinn Shell nipped McCann Steel, 5-4, with Paul Egan scoring the winning goal. John Kelly, Mike Chennette, Paul McMillan and Dennis Croke had the other goals and Croke, Ed Boyle, Luis Gonzales, Chennette and Doug Cannonan had assists. For McCann Steve Reilly had two goals and Sheehan and Kevin O'Brien one apiece. Mark Lamie had two assists and Reilly and O'Brien one each.

Maher Plumbing blanked Beacon Sportswear, 4-0, with Jim Clary in goal. Tim Barry had two goals and Jim McCarthy and Sean Aruda one each. Sean Loughman had two assists and Paul Ryan one.

Maher topped Beacon again, 4-2, with Bob Drury scoring twice and Mike Molloy and Paul Ryan once each. Drury, Gabriel and Aruda had assists. Steve Dannelsbeck and Chris Hurley scored for Beacon with John Beniers assisting.

Burgin, Sun Even Up In Finals

The respective division winners, Burgin Platner [East] and the Quincy Sun [West] are tied at one win apiece in the championship playoffs in the Bantam House League.

The Sun won Monday night, 3-0, after Burgin had taken the series opener, 2-0, Sunday.

Burgin swept Baskin-Robbins in two straight games, winning the finale, 4-2, to advance to the finals. Brian Cosby had two goals and Jack Sayers and Bryan Ofria one each. Steve Coleman had two assists and Kevin Welch, Mike Panico, Brian Hewitt, Fran Straughn and Jim Sayers one apiece. Dick Newcomb and John Urbanus had the Baskin goals and John Newcomb and John Masone had assists.

The Sun, upset by Doran in the opening game of the semifinal series, evened the count with a 5-2 win. Paul Dunphy scored twice and John Hernon, Mike Peterson and Bill Joyce once each. Mark Rooney, Mike Whalen, Bob Thomas and Dunphy had assists. For Doran Tim Ricciardi and Bob Graham had the goals and John Rizzi had an assist.

The Sun won the clincher, 6-5, last Saturday to move into the championship series, after Doran had gallantly come from a 5-2 deficit to tie it 5-5.

● Midget House

Laracy Hat Trick Sparks Cox

In the Midget House League playoffs Cox defeated Police Club, 7-5, sparked by Ed Laracy's hat trick.

Leonard, Kevin Garrity, Mark O'Brien and Ray Pospic had the other goals. Laracy, Mike Soldano and Rich Storer had two assists each and Jordan, Jim Kelly and Pospic one apiece.

Brian Moschella had two Police goals and Paul Palmer, John Cotter and Mike Gallagher one each. Moschella, Al Whitman, Mike Noone and Jim Laberge had assists.

Fire edged Suburban, 4-3, with Dick Ahola having two goals and Jay Daley and Mark Landry one each. John Murphy, Ken Johnston, Dave Abbott and Daley had assists. For Suburban Gene, Greenan, Dan Boti and Kevin Doyle had the goals and Brian Marks, Dave Campbell and Ken Kusta had assists.

Fire topped Suburban again, 4-2, with Ahola again having two goals and Eddie Campbell and Kevin Whalen one each. Daley, Johnston, Landry, Paul McDonald and Mike Lydon had assists. Kevin Doyle had both Suburban goals and Bob McCarthy, John Yaxter and Tom Pistorino had assists.

Girls A Team Defeats Gloucester

The Quincy Girls A Hockey team, the Comettes, defeated Gloucester, 3-0, Sunday in their first playoff game at Twin Rinks in Danvers.

Shawn O'Leary, Eileen Marr and Lisa Norling had the goals with assists for Marr, Joanne Troy and Joan Lewis.

Donnelly Club Wins South Shore Conference Midget A Title

The Donnelly Club Midget A team, which had finished first in regular season play and won the state championship, clinched the South Shore Conference title with a 3-2 double overtime win over Weymouth in the playoff title game at the Boston Harbor Marina rink.

Jack Campbell had two goals and Mark Paolucci one. Jim Fitzpatrick, John Norton, John Fitzgerald, Mike Storer, Dave Peters and John Andrews had assists. Ron Bereszniwicz and Jeff Nord were in goal.

In the semifinals the A's had edged West Roxbury, 3-2. Tom Cahill scored twice and Fitzgerald once. John Mitchell had two assists and Peters and Jim Shea one apiece. Nord and Bereszniwicz again sparkled in goal.

Peters was awarded the Dick Ehlers Memorial Trophy as the Most Valuable Player in the conference. He was chosen not only for his hockey ability but for sportsmanship.

● Mite House

Village Defeats Balducci For Crown

Village Food won the championship of the Mite House League with a 2-1 win over Balducci's in the playoff finals.

A. J. Pugliese and Billy Connolly had the goals with Pugliese assisting on Connolly's winning goal. Alton Freeman scored for Balducci.

Village, loser to Balducci's in the series opener, had come back to even the series with a 2-0 win on goals by John Ferrera and Pugliese. Billy McArdle and Connolly had assists.

Earlier Balducci's had blanked Lydon-Russell, 5-0, with Don Riley excelling in goal.

Mark Sandanato, Dave Pasano,

Freeman, Paul Lester and Dave Tapper had the goals and Matt Gorman, Tapper, Billy Cappalis and Pasano had assists.

Village blanked Barry's, 2-0, with Dick Fair in goal. Connolly and Dave McArthur had the goals with assists for Pat Feeney, Bob Fleming and Ferrara had assists.

Team Quincy, 99 Club Split First 2 Games

Team Quincy and the 99 Club broke even in the first two games of the Girls House League playoff finals at the Quincy Youth Arena.

In the opening game Karen Cullen sparked Team Quincy to a 3-2 win with two goals and an assist. Patty Crossen had the other goal and Laurie Barba had two assists. Kristin O'Gara scored unassisted and Nancy MacDonald scored with Sandy Whittemore assisting for Club 99.

In the second game the girls were scoreless after the three regulation periods. Sandy Whittemore scored the winning goal for the 99 Club at 8:57 of the second sudden death overtime. Nancy McDonald assisted.

Raidettes Non-League

Tennis Winners

The North Quincy High girls' tennis team doesn't open its Suburban League season until April 22, but the Raidettes got away to a good start last week with a 5-0 win over Canton in a non-league match. The North girls played Milton yesterday [Wednesday].

Cindy Driscoll, Elaine Shea and Maureen O'Malley won their singles matches in straight sets. In doubles, Sharon Bortolotti and Lisa Contos won in straight sets and Jean LaCamera and Helena Lawlor completed the sweep in three sets.

The North girls are again being coached by Eileen Rowbotham.

Can North Track Team Complete Sweep?

By TOM SULLIVAN

Can Lou Tozzi's North Quincy track team win the state Class B title this spring and complete a sweep of the state championships for the school year?

That is what the Raiders are shooting for as they open their second Suburban League season today, Thursday, against Weymouth North at Brockton, where all league meets will be run this year.

Last fall North won the state Class B championship in cross country after finishing with a 12-1 record.

The Raiders followed this up with the state B title in winter track after finishing with a 10-1 record.

Although admittedly thin in a few events, Tozzi, who coaches all three teams, feels North has an excellent chance of at least tying Weymouth South for the league title and winning another state crown.

This is Tozzi's third year as coach and he has a 23-7 spring record [12-3 last spring and 11-4 two years ago]. Last spring's team finished third in the state and fifth in New England.

As usual, the Raiders are loaded in the running events and Tozzi feels if they can improve on the low hurdles, shot put and jumps, their chances will be bright.

"This is a better running team than last spring's, which outscored the opposition almost 3-1," the North coach said.

"We have a good nucleus of veterans and a number of newcomers who are working very hard. We've been stressing pride and our program is expanding so much that we hope we don't disappoint anyone."

The top man is Co-Capt. Bart Petracca, who holds all North distance records and will be trying to improve on his best time of 4:15.9 in the mile, which he set in finishing fourth in the Easterns at Princeton, N.J., last month.

"He's the best in the state," Tozzi said. "Bobby and Marty Levenson are also among the best in the mile and can also run the half mile and two-mile. Mike Morin expects to break 10 minutes in the two-mile and Jim Gavigan and Jerry Keys are much improved."

Petracca also will run the half-mile as will Co-Capt. Ken O'Brien, Jerry MacKenzie, who won the State indoor 600, Richard Kennedy, twins Phil and Peter Maloney, Tom Fennessey, Steve Germain, Andy Laskowski, Mike Ketzner and Ed Carll are all fine middle distance runners.

North will be strong also in the sprints with Brian Doherty, second in the state 220 last year; Matty Constantino, sixth in the same 220; Matty King, Russ Chisholm, the most impressive sophomore; Mike Larsen and Brian Balzarini.

The Raiders lack depth in the hurdles. Tozzi expects Dave Lorman to break the school record of 15.8 in the highs, and he is joined by Dan Cuddy and Mike Dawson. In the lows, a new event this year, Peter Donovan, Tom Burke and Mark Robinson look good.

Tozzi also lacks depth in the jumping events. Cuddy, Kevin Doyle, Jim Conboy and Peter Bourikas are the hopes in the high jump, Brian Doherty, King, Burke and Larsen in the long jump and Kennedy, with a 40-foot potential, Fennessey and MacKenzie in the triple jump.

Steve Doherty and Steve Bonoli are expected to do well in the pole vault. Both are much improved veterans who should clear 11 feet and break the school mark.

Lorman, small but good, should do 120 feet in the discus, and Mike Gallagher, Jim Frye, Chris Green and Robinson are others in this event.

The shot put looks weak and Tozzi may be forced to use Doherty, with Constantino and Mike Colby other hopefuls.

The javelin is one of the strongest events with Mike Nee and Peter Hemphill, seniors who were fourth and fifth in Class B last spring. Jim Hanrahan also looks good.

In the sprint relay Doherty, Constantino, King and Chisholm will team up, and Petracca, O'Brien, MacKenzie and probably Kennedy will make up the mile relay.

Tuesday North will face Waltham at 10 a.m.

Tozzi's assistant this year is John Lavery.

Curtain Call Theater To Present 'Follies'

Curtain Call Theatre will present "FOLLIES" at Braintree Central Junior High School, May 14-15-16 at 8 p.m.

Written by Stephen Sondheim, "FOLLIES" is an adult musical about former Broadway stars gathering for a reunion one last time before the theatre where they once performed is torn down. They reminisce about the dreams and hopes they once had and the realization that they were never fulfilled.

Director will be Norman Caron of Braintree. David Brayton of Weymouth is musical director and Ellen Kazan, choreographer. Costumes are being designed by Jack Dorlay and Martin Potter of Quincy.

Stage director is Nan Guernsey of Weymouth.

Cast members include: Jack Loadman, Sandy Brayton, Jan Dignan of Weymouth; Tony Landolphi, Randolph; Ruth Ferrara, Quincy, and James Leonard, Hingham.

Tickets may be purchased at the door or obtained by calling Rosemarie Bonani at 843-0907.

Quincy Starting Point For 'Dimes' Walk-A-Thon

Quincy will host the start of the March of Dimes Spring Walk-A-Thon for the second consecutive year Saturday, May 8.

The 10-mile walk will begin at Faxon Field and proceed through four South Shore towns to a finish at Paragon Park where participants will be rewarded with free rides for the remainder of the day.

Five thousand are expected to participate in the walk while others do their part by collecting pledges to help support March of Dimes programs for the prevention of birth defects.

The majority of walkers are South Shore residents. Quincy youths have been enthusiastic in responding to the activity. School representatives deserve special mention for their efforts in recruiting walkers.

Debbie and Patricia Cappelletti, students at the Sacred Heart School, and Maureen Bent at Atlantic Junior High are three who have encouraged dozens of Quincy youth to get involved. The Squantum Association will also encourage its youth to participate.

QHS Latin Students Attend Classics Day

Forty Latin students from Quincy High School accompanied by their teachers, Nancy Christian and Katherine Myatt, recently attended a Classics Day, sponsored by Tufts University and the Massachusetts Junior Classical League.

Held on campus at Tufts in students, including:

A production entitled "Scenes from Roman Comedy" by Peter Arnott and Graduate students of the Tufts Drama Department, series of lectures by classicists from universities and Medford, the event consisted of a variety of programs for classics high schools in New England.

Following lunch in the Campus' cafeteria, students were given the opportunity to participate in Frisbee and Ancient costume contests, a Latin sing-along and as Tours of Tufts Campus.

TV SHORTS

Rhoda, Joe

To Separate Next Season

Will BARBARA WALTERS become the first woman to anchor a network evening newscast? Miss Walters is being lured away from NBC's "Today" Show by "ABC's Evening News". If she makes the move, it could provide a boost not only for the evening newscast, but also to DAVID HARTMAN's "Good Morning America". The latter show, co-hosted by NANCY DUSHAULT, has been creeping into the "Today" audience, and with Walters gone, a question of ratings enters into the game. Miss Walters has been with "Today" for 11 years. Having had her share of early mornings, perhaps she's ready for an evening spot... ALAN ALDA and MARIO THOMAS will star in next Friday's ABC movie, "Jenny"... Plans are currently underway for a musical version of Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island" to be filmed for television. Location sites in the British West Indies will be used... DEAN MARTIN has signed a new contract with NBC calling for 11 specials, a combination of variety shows and "roasts". Martin has been with NBC for more than 25 years... Situation comedies seem to be more successful when the star is single. MARY TYLER MOORE is a single woman of the world, CLORIS LEACHMAN is widowed, BONNIE FRANKLIN is a divorcee, SALLY STRUTHERS and ROB REINER were single for more seasons than not, LUCILLE BALL and VIVIAN VANCE were divorced ladies-alone for many seasons, BRIAN KEITH had his own "family affair" by himself, and FRED MACMURRAY went through several sets of sons. And so VALERIE HARPER will join the ranks of the single [sort of] star. Current plans call for "Rhoda" and "Joe" to undergo a separation next season. Did

"Rhoda" lose some of her appeal when she settled down to married life? If so, "Phyllis" should watch her step... DAVID BIRNEY will star in a two-hour NBC film version of "Serpico" later this month... PAUL MICHAEL GLASER has been signed to play the title role in ABC's "The Great Houdini"... JACK WEBB would like to do a series about the Royal Canadian Mounties. And the Mounties are seriously considering the offer. This way they could always get their man by having it written into the script... A study by the University of Pennsylvania shows that TV gore and violence has shot up after 9 p.m. since the "family hour" has been in effect... RICHARD CRENNA and BERNADETTE PETERS will star in NORMAN LEAR's "All's Fair" for CBS next fall... Also scheduled to work for Norman Lear is NANCY WALKER. Rumor has it that MARTHA RAYE will step into the housekeeper role on "MacMillan & Wife" which Nancy will vacate. And what about "Rhoda"? Nancy's character may be retired, but who will be added? Could it be VIVIAN VANCE, who did a guest spot as "Rhoda's" next door neighbor... And while speculating, has The South Shore Music Circus signed GABRIEL KAPLAN for a week's stay in Cohasset this summer?... TV themes are in vogue again. Currently on the charts are JOHN SEBASTIAN's single, "Welcome Back, Kotter", and RHYTHM HERITAGE's "Theme from S.W.A.T.". Keep an ear open for "The Theme From Happy Days", also by Rhythm Heritage. And if that's not enough, you can look forward to "The FONZ Song" by The Heyettes about HENRY WINKLER's Fonzie. Anybody heard the new disco version of "I Love Lucy"?

TV QUIZ

1. The first Kennedy-Nixon debate in 1960 was moderated by what ABC newsmen?

5. What was Laura's maiden name on "The Dick Van Dyke Show"?

1. Howards K. Smith
2. Judy Carre and Peter Duel
3. Jack Benny
4. Red Skelton
5. Laura Meehan

Old Christ Church Yard To Be Dedicated Heritage Trail Stop

After a traditional Sunday School service at 3 p.m. Easter Day, children and adults of Christ Church Episcopal will march 800 feet up School St., from Quincy Ave., to the old cemetery at the original site of the church, near St. John's Church.

There Rev. Steele W. Martin, rector, will dedicate a new sign designating the 250-year-old churchyard as a stop on the Quincy Heritage Trail.

Other participants in the dedication ceremony will be:

H. Hobart Holly, president Quincy Historical Society; A. Fred Lane, director Quincy Heritage; Rev. Chester A. Porteus, rector emeritus of Christ Church; Robert E. Lee, vestry warden and director of the Galahad boys who have cleaned the churchyard; Edward Corey, vestry representative on the churchyard committee; and Mayor Joseph LaRaia.

In 1725 William and Benjamin Vesey gave a quarter acre of land "for the Good of all well Disposed Christians that belong to the Church of England...for that use and No other". On that plot of land stood the original building of Christ Church from 1727 to 1833, and, in accordance with Episcopal custom, people were buried under the church and in the yard around it.

In the early years of the colony all residents had to pay a tax for the support of the local Congregational minister. But in 1727 the Town Meeting of Baintree, with the support of the Rev. John Hancock, voted that members of Christ Church could have the option of paying their taxes for the support of their own minister, the Rev. Ebenezer Miller. His tomb in Christ Church cemetery is thus a reminder of the beginning of religious freedom in Baintree and Quincy.

$107,967 Grant

For Mound St.

Beach Area

Quincy will soon be able to begin the second phase of construction of a recreation area at Mound St. Beach, announces Congressman James A. Burke.

Burke said that funds for the construction — $107,967, from the U.S. Department of Interior's Bureau of Outdoor Recreation — will enable the city to build a picnic area, parking lot, paths, and horseshoe courts. The money will also cover the cost of each, construction and landscaping.

The grant brings to almost $133,000 the total amount of Federal Funds contributed for the recreation area. A year ago Quincy received $25,000 to increase the size of the proposed recreation area to ten acres.

Paperama Beer, Wine License Denied

By TOM BRADY

The City License Board, Tuesday, denied a request from Paperama for a license to sell beer and wine as a package store making doubtful the planned opening of the store in Quincy.

In its decision, the board backed claims by local liquor merchants that Paperama's high volume-low price plans for beer and wine would severely hurt small liquor store owners which, according to Police Chief Francis Finn, are "all in trouble" financially.

Paperama's owners, John D. Allegrini and Paul Cullinane, who asked the board to consider the benefits Paperama will bring to downtown Quincy by drawing shoppers with their low prices, said that their plans to lease the old Raymonds Building in Parkingway was contingent upon the granting of the liquor license.

The Raymond's building, owned by Grossman's Industrial Properties, has been the site of the Colonial Village Mall which closed recently because of financial difficulties.

Operators of six local stores which hold liquor licenses attended the hearing Tuesday to oppose the Paperama license stressing the "damage" it would do to their volume of sales.

Bernard Reisberg, President of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, said that its executive board opposed the license.

Atty. James R. McIntyre, representing Paperama, told the board that beer and wine would not be the primary drawing card of the store, but would augment the paper and household goods sales of the store.

McIntyre described the store and it's owners in glowing terms and said its entrance into the Quincy Center shopping area would help save one end of the downtown area which has suffered in business.

But three of the four license commissioners present, Building Commissioner Allan McDonald, Health Commissioner Dr. Samuel Solomon and Police Chief Francis Finn said that they were most concerned with the survival of the small liquor merchants already in the area.

Board Chairman John Gillis, shortly before the vote took place, expressed his support for the Paperama proposal because of its positive effect on business in the area saying, "I think Quincy will be losing, if they [Paperama] lose this."

However, the board, after hearing 11 witnesses, decided on a voice vote to deny the license to Paperama.

In other matters, the board: Continued a request from Shore Taxi Inc., for two additional hackney licenses after the owners of four other taxi companies in the city opposed the license request and claimed Shore Taxi was not obeying state law by having the name of the company and the city of registry painted on the side of the cabs. The request was continued for two weeks to investigate this and to allow Fire Chief Edward Barry, who was absent from the meeting, to speak about it later.

• Granted a license to operate an automobile body shop and to store 200 gallons of gasoline at 93-95 Federal Ave., to Charles D. and Michael Hudson provided they see that all operations and changes in the building be supervised and approved by the Fire and Building Dept.

• Granted a license to the Italian International Sports Club for a flea market May 23 in Grossman's parking lot from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

• Granted a license to Cub Scout Pack 36 for a flea market Saturday, May 8 at the Most Precious Sacrament Parish Hall from 10 to 4 p.m.

• Granted a license to George

F. Bryan VFW Post to sell poppies on May 13-15 at stores and malls in the city.

• Approved Quincy Legion Post's request to sell baseball pins April 30 to May 1.

• Gave a permit to the South Shore Friends of Ireland to serve liquor at a dinner dance in aid of the African Mission Fathers, Saturday at the Fore River Club.

• Granted Joseph R. Harold Jr. on behalf of the Paul D. Harold Committee, a one day all alcoholic license for a fund raising dance on Friday, April 23 at St. Boniface Hall in Germantown.

• Issued the Lebanon Club, a one day all alcoholic license for a dance at the Fore River Club May 14.

Continued for a week a request from Horizons for Youth for permission to conduct a Tag Day in July because no representative of the organization appeared at the meeting. A hearing about a request for a pinball machine at the Nickerson Post 382 of the American Legion was postponed for the same reason.

Voted to close liquor stores in the city from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Good Friday, April 16 as has been the custom for a number of years.

Solicitor Says Measure Illegal

LaRaia To Veto Layoff Ordinance

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia says he plans to veto an ordinance passed by the City Council in special session Friday night that would restrict his power to fire city employees. And then, said the Mayor, after the Council overrides his veto, he wants to sit down with the councillors and ask them to reconsider because "I don't believe they got both sides of the picture."

The ordinance provides "that no permanent employee of the city of Quincy shall be terminated for reasons of economic necessity until and unless prior thereto all provisional and temporary employees of the city have been terminated."

City Hospital personnel is specifically excluded.

"My city solicitor says the ordinance is illegal," the Mayor told The Quincy Sun. "I am going to go along with my solicitor and veto it."

Said City Solicitor Thomas F.

Williams:

"There is a specific formula in state law governing the dismissal of Civil Service help for lack of funds. This ordinance is an attempt to circumvent state law. It cannot be done."

"The Mayor is the chief executive of the city. The City Council cannot pass an ordinance restricting his power as the appointing authority."

"Besides, the ordinance is a denial of equal protection under the law. You can't treat one city employee differently from another city employee."

The ordinance was proposed and hustled through the City Council by Council President Arthur H. Tobin in the wake of widespread reports that LaRaia was about to layoff 18 police officers in a move to cut expenses.

The Mayor, while refusing to confirm or deny the reports, said that his administration "has not reached any conclusions about layoffs. There is still talk about cutting back personal services."

"I wish the City Council had waited until a presentation was Found Guilty On 2 Charges

'Go To Work', Judge Tells Short

The suit was powder blue and if fascinated Judge John Ligotti in Quincy District Court.

"He stands there in a suit that must have cost $175," said the judge sternly. "Where did he get it? He can't show the court that he has an income."

"He has lived by his wits since he put on long pants. I get the impression that he doesn't want to hold a job."

Nevertheless, he sentenced James C. Short, 21, who was retail store coordinator for the first 11 days of the LaRaia administration, to a year in the house of correction and then suspended it until April 11, 1978.

Conditions of his probation were that he find a job within a month and hold it and make restitution of $500 to Bruno Izzo, 40, of Westwood, owner of restaurants in Florida, New Jersey and West Roxbury.

Short was convicted of stealing $500 and attempting to steal $10,000 more from Izzo in connection with the issuance of licenses for a restaurant Izzo planned to open in old Hancock Bank building in Quincy Center.

If the terms of probation are violated, said Judge Ligotti, "I will not hesitate to bring him back to court and commit him. If he has any idea that he can follow his usual way of life then he should appeal right now."

Short did appeal, with the proviso that he could think it over and withdraw the appeal within 10 days and he was released in $100 personal recognizance.

Izzo, who was the chief witness for the prosecution, said that he was inspecting potential

Youth Commission Receives $30,000 Grant To Fight Juvenile Delinquency

The Mayor's office announces the Quincy Youth Commission has received a $30,000 federal L.E./E.A grant to employ youth who are on the periphery of delinquency.

The program, which will be called the Quincy Youth Commission Work Project is designed to help the boy or girl who is in trouble with the school or police, or who may get into trouble if left alone.

A boy or girl will be referred to the Youth Commission either by the school, police, or juvenile probation officers of the court.

If accepted into the program, the child will work part-time either in a city department or in a non-profit organization within the city. After a person has worked for a few months, the commission will attempt to place him in private employment.

Sgt. Daniel Lyons, head of the Quincy Police Juvenile Unit said, "I think this is a great idea. It will help those that really need it, and hopefully keep them out of court."

Thomas Mullen, Youth Coordinator, said a few private employers contacted thus far were enthused about the program.

"In the next few weeks we will be contacting more private businesses and we hope this response continues," Mullen said.

Any parent wishing to refer a child to the program should contact the student's school counselor.

QTA Director Proposes 10% Pay Cut For Mayor, All City Employees

Harry Roemer, executive director of the Quincy Taxpayers Association, thinks he has a way out of the city's fiscal dilemma.

He proposes a voluntary 10 per cent pay cut for all city employees, from the Mayor on down, with the money paid back at 5 per cent interest when the city budget is balanced.

"I proposed it to the Mayor," said Roemer. "He didn't say anything."

The Quincy Sun asked Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia about it, too, and he said this:

"Rather than take away what already has been earned in negotiations I feel that holding the line on increases probably would be the best approach to get the cooperation of the city employees.

"I would be satisfied with that."

Roemer said he wasn't sure if the voluntary pay cut plan would be feasible or legal but, he added, "it would prove to the taxpayers that they have some real people in office."

Meanwhile, Mayor LaRaia said that the city budget for fiscal 1976 would be finalized this week and ready for the City Council at its May 3 meeting. It was to have been submitted April 5 but the state gave a blanket one month extension to all communities in the state.

The Mayor indicated that the budget has been slashed as much as possible.

"We are now looking into areas of increased revenue as a way to hold down the tax rate," he said. "We have two or three months to seek new forms of revenue. You can only go so far in reducing expenditures."

The prospect of a $50-60 increase on the city's $159.90 tax rate has been kicked around for several weeks.

"I don't want to project a figure right now," he said. "But it is not promising. That is why we raised the alert flag early."

Paul K. Duffey Named Municipal Court Judge In Florida

Paul K. Duffey, former Quincy school committeeman, has been named judge of the Municipal Court of Boca Raton, Fla., by unanimous vote of the mayor and city council.

Judge Duffey, active in civic affairs in Quincy, resigned from the Quincy school committee in 1959 to become general manager of the east coast offices of the Federal Sign and Signal Corp. in Philadelphia.

He and Mrs. Duffey were honored at a farewell party in April of that year at Coral Gables, North Weymouth. They were presented with a set of sterling silver as a going away present.

Judge Duffey, a graduate of Boston College [A.B. 1940] and Boston College Law School [LL.B. 1947 and J.D. 1967], is a member of the Florida Bar, the

JUDGE PAUL K. DUFFEY

Massachusetts Bar and the U.S. Supreme Court Bar associations. He is a founding partner of the law firm of Thomas, Sylvester, Lester, Duffey and Ziegler with offices in Boca Raton, Fort Lauderdale, Deerfield Beach and Boynton Beach.

He is a former director of the Boston College Alumni Association, former president of the Quincy Junior Chamber of Commerce, former director of the Industrial Credit Union of Boston and former government appeal agent for the Quincy Selective Service Board.

Judge Duffey is a member of the International Association of Financial Planners and is President of the Friends of the Florida Atlantic University Library.

He has been living in Boca Raton for the past two years with his wife, the former Rita Devaney. Four of his six children also live in Boca Raton.

At Boston College, Judge Duffey was a member of the Gold Key Society, managing editor of the Stylees and Chairman of the Laetare Sunday Alumni Communion Breakfast.

$1,500 For

Large Print Books

The Thomas Crane Public Library has received a grant of $1,500 in federal funds to expand its Large Print Book collection.

Large Print Books are increasingly popular as more and more people discover the ease of reading type that is twice the size of standard print.

For people with poor eyesight, or just plain tired eyes, Large Print Books can provide many hours of happy reading. Mystery, westerns, romance, biography and popular best sellers are all available at the library. Readers can browse and pick up a copy of the Large Print Book catalog at the Main Library, Quincy Square.

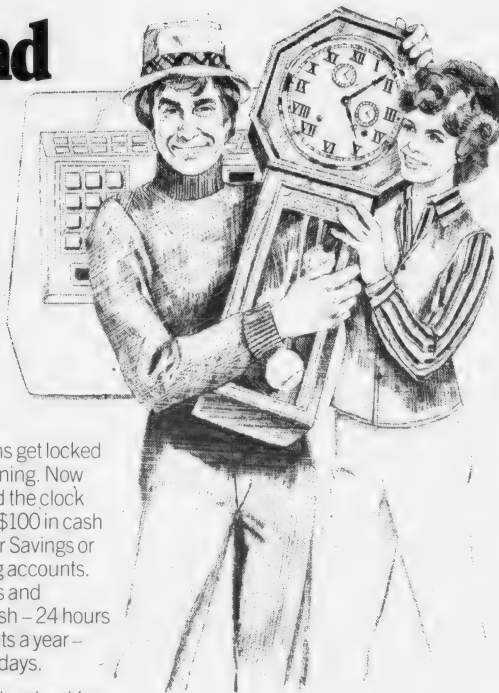

Library Director Warren Watson expects that this special grant will enable the library to introduce many new readers to the pleasures of Large Print Books. The project is being funded through the Massachusetts Bureau of Library Extension with Title I funds of LSCA [Library Services and Construction Act], a federal source of library funding.

Peter's Landing Owner Seeks License For $250,000 North Quincy Restaurant

By TOM BRADY

Peter Prasinos, owner of Peter's Landing, will ask the city Licensing Board for a license to open a second restaurant at 67 Hancock St. in North Quincy.

The new restaurant, which he plans to call Peter's Dockside, will be a quarter-million dollar facility on the site of the old Newcomb Bakery which will be completely rebuilt and refurbished.

Prasinos will go before the Licensing Board next Tuesday to describe his plans for the restaurant which, he says, will help beautify that part of North Quincy and enlarge the city's tax base.

Early this week Prasinos described the plans he has for Peter's Dockside calling it a "Class A place that will be a credit to the city of Quincy."

"We'll try and attract a shirt and tie clientele," he said. "It's not going to be a barroom, and no rock and roll. We're going to make it one of the finest places in the South Shore."

Plans for the restaurant include an oval bar separated from the dining area by a divider, red leather upholstery throughout, and valet parking for up to 200 cars with police details in the lot for security.

The menu, if the plans are approved, will include a businessman's luncheon, and steak and seafood fare in a Cape Cod-New England nautical decor. The restaurant will be similar in decor and menu to Peter's Landing, Prasino said.

If the License Board grants the necessary licenses for Peter's Dockside, Prasino said it will take several months to get the restaurant ready for opening, but once it does open, he added, it will be a place for "good food, good atmosphere, and good conversation."

Today's Women

On Nov. 2 Ballot

What Equal Rights Amendment Means --And Doesn't Mean

By CHRISTINE HEEG
Quincy Coordinator for ERA

Now that the dust has settled on the Presidential Primary in Massachusetts it is probably a good time to start to examine some of the issues that the voters will decide upon in November.

The first issue on the ballot, Proposition One will be the Equal Rights Amendment. It reads: "Equality under the law shall not be denied or abridged because of sex, race, color, creed or national origin."

The simple wording of this amendment means exactly what it says. We will all be considered equal under the laws that govern Massachusetts. Any law that now shows favoritism to men will be extended to cover women. Conversely those laws which favor women will be extended to cover men.

One example of the importance of the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment is that it will give married women an opportunity to challenge the inheritance laws. The non-salaried wife who stays home and takes care of the house and children may assume that half of the house is hers along with the possessions therein. This, unfortunately is not the case. Unless she can prove that she paid for part of the furniture or the house, she is forced to pay inheritance taxes on her husband's estate.

Upon the death of the husband, the widow is entitled to receive an allowance from the property until the estate has been settled. This is not the case when the survivor is the husband. There is no provision for an allowance for the widower while his wife's estate is being settled.

If the voters wish to further investigate the inequalities in the law perhaps we should take a look at the laws which govern property.

Currently, the majority of couples that own property do so as tenants-by-the-entirety, rather than as joint tenants.

Simply states, tenants-by-the-entirety, even though the wife's name is on the deed, gives exclusive control, income, benefits and possession to the husband during the marriage. The wife does not gain any control of the property until after her husband dies.

Joint tenancy, the alternate form of ownership, is that form of ownership that gives each partner 50% interest in the property.

With the passage of the ERA, deeds will automatically become joint tenancy.

Fortunately, in most marriages that are stable, there is no need to be concerned about who owns the property. However, joint tenancy provides an additional benefit in that creditors will not be able to attach 100 per cent of the property during the lifetime of the husband. Thus denying the wife benefits until the death of her husband.

Now that we have covered some of the areas of impact we should take a careful look at the areas of non-impact.

The ERA will have no effect nor create any changes in the quality of family life. Women will not be forced to leave the home to go out to work. [This may seem like an absurd statement to even consider, however, the opponents of the ERA have a long history of using this type of scare tactics to manipulate the voters.]

As the ERA is for the Commonwealth's Constitution it will have no impact on any Federal laws or regulations. This includes, of course, Social Security, Military Service, and Abortion. There will be no sharing of public bathrooms. Our right of privacy coupled with the phrase separate but equal precludes any problem with that issue.

As a final point it is important to note that there are 14 states which already have as part of their state constitution the Equal Rights Amendment. There has been no noticeable change in the quality of the family life, nor has there been any indication that there has been any type of radical change in the lives of the people of these states.

It is sincerely hoped that the voters of Massachusetts will vote "YES" on Proposition One, November 2nd.

Hope And Help

Q. I hope you can help me. My interest in Astrology, which is limited, came through associates that have classified me too close for comfort. I was born on November 11, 1932 at 8:18 A.M. in Boston, Mass. I guess that makes me a Scorpio. I have been told there are only high or low Scorpios and there are three symbols for my Sign.

My life has been one disaster after another. I am an alcoholic, have mental and sex problems and a horrible temper. Is there any hope for me at all? I am married to a Taurus, involved with a Libra and Capricorn and have six children.

A. There are very good hopes for you. In your favor, first of all, is that you recognize you have a problem and need some help. Secondly, your horoscope shows you have great powers of recuperation and can rebuild your health and perspective on life.

There are three symbols for Scorpio, the Scorpion, the Eagle and the Phoenix. The Scorpion, with a poisonous sting in its tail, warning of the self destruction tendency if the intense desires and passions are not controlled.

The Eagle symbolizing the sharp vision, depth of perception and high achievement possible once all passions are controlled and properly directed. The Phoenix, a beautiful mythological bird capable of being reborn from its dead ashes, indicating the great recuperating power of the Sign.

Malfunctioning ductless glands in the body cause people to feel thick and do that which hurts themselves as well as others. You can benefit from professional help. Consult a physician who is an endocrinologist, one who specializes in the internal secretions of the ductless glands and the effect of the hormones.

If you cannot afford a private consultation there are clinics where such may be obtained. Good luck to you.

Stay Alive!

By Jack Silverstein

HYPOTHERMIA CAN KILL

A person can actually freeze to death in 40 or 50 degrees temperatures if he is losing heat faster than the body can generate it. This process, called hypothermia, causes the metabolism to slow down and eventually cease. If a person is immersed in icy water, death can result within minutes.

Hypothermia, or "exposure", killed about 600 people in America last year. Anyone active in outdoor sports is in possible danger. If you ski, hike, or camp, make sure that you follow these guidelines:

Fuel yourself with nourishing food before venturing outdoors. Wear wool, not cotton. Wool doesn't absorb water and allows skin moisture to evaporate, keeping you warmer - and safer. Recognize the signs of hypothermia. First, there is shivering - the body's way of trying to generate heat. This is followed by slurred speech; hands and feet become numb and drowsiness sets in. At this point, a victim must have immediate treatment if he is to be saved. The most important thing to do is to keep the victim warm and dry until he can receive medical attention.

GROW A GARDEN ON US.

At Mass. Electric we've noticed a lot of enthusiasm lately among people who've been growing their own food. It occurred to us that some of our customers might want to grow their own garden this year and don't have the land to do it.

Well, we do. And if you need some land, we're making available plots of open land near our facilities—up to 1000 sq. ft. per plot depending upon location. The land is available as long as it lasts, to the first people who apply.

Most of these plots are located near water supplies. We will plow and test the soil for you. We can also help you with information on planting and growing. Then you're on your own to till, seed, feed, weed and hoe. And of course, whatever you produce is all yours to enjoy. Just call your Massachusetts Electric Office to learn about the land available near you. Or use the coupon below. If you wish, you may get together with neighbors or friends. You'll be surprised at how much fun you can have, gardening on us!

Peatridge Eyeing Tobin's Senate Seat?

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Politician watchers expect to see Michael Peatridge, Mayor Joseph LaRaia's information officer, challenging Senator Arthur Tobin this fall.

But put the question to Peatridge himself and he neither confirms nor denies he will run. He gives you a smile and lets you try to figure out whether it means "yes" or "no".

However, it's a known fact that several meetings have been held and the main topic of discussion was Peatridge's potential candidacy.

Peatridge ran in 1973 for the Ward 5 seat won by Warren Powers. It was a pretty good race.

Whether Peatridge actually steps in against Tobin remains to be seen. But if he does, he might just bring Tobin into next year's mayoral ring.

Ah, politics, never a dull moment.

CITY HALL sources estimate there could be as many as 170 layoffs in the next few months if Mayor LaRaia feels such an austerity move is necessary to cut a big hike in the tax rate.

THE ADAMS BIRTHPLACES opened the tourist season with a bang Monday. One of the largest crowd of tourists in many years was on hand for the opening day. By 2 p.m. more than 200 persons had visited the birthplaces.

The Ch. 2 TV "Adams Chronicles" series is given much of the credit for the big turnout.

Interestingly, a good number of the visitors were from Quincy. Apparently, thanks to the "Adams Chronicles" they too, are discovering Quincy's rich history.

A RECEPTION-DANCE for Rep. Robert Cerasoli will be held Friday, April 30 [7:30 p.m. to midnight] at State Street South. Committee chairman is Raymond Dunn of 19 Murdock Ave., Quincy Point. Tickets are $6 per person.

AND, the Paul D. Harold Committee will officially erase its campaign deficit with a "Note Burning Party" this Friday [8 p.m. to midnight] at St. Boniface Church Hall, Germantown. Committee treasurer reports that tickets will be available at the door. They're $5 per head.

MILESTONE: Eddie Scalamiero, "The Yankee Clipper" will be 75 Monday. He still cuts hair three days a week, at his West Street shop. Eddie will celebrate another milestone in June: 49 years as an usher at St. Mary's Church.

Eddie, of course, was a close friend of the late Billy DeWolfe ever since the pair ushered together at the old Quincy Theater back in the early 1920's. That's when a lot of people thought Eddie and Rudolph Valentino were look-alikes.

Eddie, who says "I'm still going strong," doesn't have any longevity tips but notes, "I work out in the yard. I don't smoke, drink or swear."

HAPPY ENDING DEPT: Kenneth McCarron, 12, of 192 Billings St., North Quincy, was to have been among the 36 Quincy students making the trip to Quincy, Ill. But he came down with pneumonia. His mother telephoned the family he was to have stayed with in Quincy, Ill. [Mr. and Mrs. Charles King] to tell them he could not make the trip.

The King family, as much disappointed as Kenny, wrote a letter, inviting him and the entire McCarron family for a visit this summer. They also sent a get-well card and flowers. The Quincy, Ill. class Kenny would have visited, sent him a card, too.

"They were so thoughtful and considerate...it's unbelievable," said Mrs. McCarron.

The King's son, Matthew, will stay with the McCarrons when the Quincy, Ill. youngsters arrive here for an exchange visit.

Kenny, incidentally, is a Quincy Sun newsboy.

AND THAT REMINDS us that when the Quincy group left for Illinois, they brought with them copies of The Quincy Sun's special Quincy Heritage issue of January, 1975 to present to their Quincy, Ill. friends. The copies were donated by The Sun.

HEY, HOW WOULD you like a hunk of the Fenway Park left field wall? Well, you can get a piece of it and help the Jimmy Fund at the same time.

During the winter, the Red Sox replaced the historic wall and gave the panels to the Jimmy Fund. The panels were turned into three-by-five inch paperweights. They are available [while they last] to the public for a $7.50 donation to the Jimmy Fund.

They have the Red Sox logo on each with the inscription "Authentic piece of the old left field wall-Green Monster".

They're available at all branches of the State Street Bank.

Some people believe that if a honeybee zips around your head, you will soon be rich!

LaRaia To Veto Tobin Layoff Protection Ordinance

made before making their premature comments. For them to prejudice our actions is not making the city's critical financial picture any easier to handle.

"The ordinance, according to the solicitor, is not legally binding. We are proceeding down that avenue."

The ordinance, from proposal to passage, went through the City Council unanimously in what must be close to record time.

It was first proposed by Tobin in rough draft form April 5 and sent to the Ordinance Committee for redrafting the same night.

It received a public hearing by the Ordinance Committee Friday night at 5:30 p.m. The hearing was over at 5:50 p.m. Those attending the hearing, mostly police officers, were recorded 43-0 in favor of it.

Tobin, carrying the ball for the ordinance at the special Council meeting that followed at 6 p.m., said the Quincy Police Betterment Association had discussed the rumors of layoffs with the Mayor and had received no commitment.

In support of the ordinance, Tobin introduced a number of political advertisements used by LaRaia in his election campaign last fall citing a rise in crime in Quincy and promising more foot patrolmen on the streets.

"How can he campaign for public office and lie to the people like that?" asked Tobin. "He should be held accountable for what he promises."

One by one, the members of the Council, while expressing some reservations, arose to support the ordinance.

Said Warren A. Powers:

"I oppose any watering down of police protection. A city without police protection is a city with vandalism, muggings and lawlessness."

Said John J. Quinn:

"I concur with Councillors Tobin and Powers. Quincy deserves the ultimate in service."

Barry Opposed To Closing Fire Station

Reports that the new fire station in Germantown may be closed as an economy measure have City Councillor Leo J. Kelly all upset.

And Fire Chief Edward F. Barry isn't pleased about them, either.

"I've heard the rumors about closing a fire station, although not necessarily the one in Germantown," said Chief Barry. "That doesn't mean it is going to be done, though."

"As chief I would strongly recommend, advise and urge that a fire station not be closed."

"The Quincy Fire Department has one of the highest ratings in the United States for efficiency from the fire insurance people. I wouldn't

The people who are employed by the city now are doing a superb job."

Quinn was permitted to cast his "yes" vote early to enable him to catch a plane for Michigan, where his football-playing son Garrett is enrolling in the University of Michigan.

Said John J. Lydon Jr.:

"It is important that the employees of the city receive a basic commitment. How in the name of God can a policeman go out and perform his duty not knowing whether his job will be subject to being cut the next day?"

Said Leo J. Kelly, who was concerned also about reports that the Germantown fire station was about to be closed in an economy move:

"I don't want to see anybody laid off. I think the budget can be worked on so that no one will be laid off."

"We've got to stop the rumors in the city. They have reached alarming proportions at a time when the cost of living is high and job seeking is impossible. To allow them to persist is meanness."

In response to "serious doubts about the implications" of the ordinance expressed by Councillor Paul D. Harold, City Solicitor Williams told the Council:

"In my opinion the ordinance is unnecessary. No other city or town has one. Under Civil Service law, provisional employees have to be laid off first, and longevity is a factor."

"I believe this ordinance as worded would be invalid."

Tobin, an attorney, pointed out that Williams' opinion "is only an opinion and not binding on the City Council. My legal opinion is that the ordinance perfects the law."

Councillor Daniel G. Raymond expressed concern for Civil Service employees whose provisional appointments are due to become permanent in a couple of months.

He suggested an amendment to the proposed ordinance that would delay the firing of "provisional Civil Service employees" as well as permanent workers.

Raymond was mollified by Tobin with the hope that "we will pass a budget without letting any people go. It is possible that none of them will be affected."

Both Councillors James A. Sheets and Dennis E. Harrington spoke of their concern for the City Hospital, which employs many provisionals "whose function is vital to the hospital."

Tobin pointed out that the Hospital is "not a deficit operation. It operates in the black. What effect would it have on the tax rate to fire one employee if it operates in the black?"

But, as Harrington's insistence, the Council amendment the ordinance to read:

"Said order shall not apply to provisional employees of Quincy City Hospital. Said employees who are provisional or appointed without Civil Service protection at Quincy City Hospital shall be protected by the ordinance amended if they are employed for a period of more than six months prior to the effective date of passage of the ordinance as amended."

The Council thought the ordinance was of such importance that it tacked on an emergency preamble making it effective forthwith.

And it remained for Councillor Sheets to issue a word of caution to the LaRaia administration.

"If it is necessary," he said, "for the Council to go to court to protect the security of the city of Quincy, then so be it. We will fight for the ordinance."

"I have no intention of standing around and seeing the fire and police protection reduced in Ward 4. I am prepared to fight for it."

Fire Station

overdue and was the result of the untiring efforts of many individuals, residents as well as public officials, over a long period of time.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the saving of the lives of several children shortly after this station was manned was directly contributed to the speed with which the alarm was answered."

"I am certain tragedy would have resulted if this station were not in existence."

"The feeling of protection and well-being that is generated with a station in this area makes me strongly insist that you let it be known immediately if the closing of the Germantown Fire Station is only a rumor...."

1,882 Republicans,
94 Democrats Vote In Presidential Primaries

By TOM HENSHAW

The slate of Roger Keith and George L. Barnes, both pledged to President Calvin Coolidge, won election as delegates to the Republican National Convention from the 14th District.

Eugene H. Sprague, former Quincy city councillor and state legislator, who was also pledged to vote for the nomination of Coolidge, finished a poor third as an independent candidate.

Only 1,976 of the 17,000 registered voters in Quincy turned out for the presidential primaries, 1,882 of them Republicans and 94 Democrats.

ANTENNA WARNING

Inspector of Wires Alexander Souden warned that radio antennae put up by amateurs would be torn down unless they were properly strung and protected.

He told a group of "radio enthusiasts" at City Hall that improperly installed antennae might fall on electrical wires and start fires or electrocute someone.

NEW ARMORY DEDICATED

Massachusetts Gov. Channing Cox attended the formal dedication of the new state armory in Quincy, the first built in the Bay State since the conclusion of the Great War.

Cox warned against women's groups that had been organized with the "avowed purpose to oppose everything in the way of military training or preparation."

TUG O' WAR AT REMICKS

Remick's, "the Big Store," sought the six strongest men in Quincy to form teams of three for a pulling contest to try to tear apart at the seams a pair of Tug O' War pants made by Sweet-Orr.

A dozen police officers, described as "burly," tried and failed.

Officers Shea, Kantolla and Gilmarin pulled against Officers Saville, O'Connell and Cruise while Officers Sweeney, Cullen and Hodge manned a trouser leg against Officers Delorey, Sheahan and Cumfitt.

HOUSE WARMING

The Stony Brae Golf Club formally opened its new club house on Third Hill.

President Ernest B. Beal said the nine holes on the Wollaston side of Pilgrim Blvd. were now ready for use by the club's more than 200 members.

The City Council passed a $2,008,854.79 budget, an increase of $107,054.76 over the previous year... Freddy Smyth's Orchestra played for an Easter dancing party at the Wistaria Bungalow, 12 Cottage St... Carl Linder and Ralph Williams were honored with a reception at the Quincy Legion Post after their selection to the American team as marathon runners in the Paris Olympics... Ford Runabouts were advertised at $265 but if you wanted a starter and demountable rims it was $85 extra.

A REGIONAL ECONOMY

Let The Good Times Roll

[Eric Swider is spending this week out in the field visiting prospects. In his place, Chamber President Jack Conway, President of Jack Conway & Company, contributes these thoughts on current economic conditions.]

By JACK CONWAY
President, South Shore Chamber of Commerce

When a national movement starts to pick up steam, there does not seem to be very much that can stem the tide.

At a national real estate meeting in Chicago last week, seven of us compared notes on what was happening in various areas of the country. We were all relating our position to a Wall Street Journal story of the previous week, which had quoted Ray Brown of the huge, publically-traded Caldwell-Banker residential real estate brokerage firm as saying, "it's moving so fast it makes my head spin."

Another WJS quote was from Jerry McMaken of Masonite, Iowa who said, "I don't want it to sound like a bonanza out there but it's sure more than a gradual improvement."

And Harry Schwartz, Chief Economist of the Federal National Mortgage Association, was quoted about the single family house "being America's dream" and further about the surge of buying desire now being demonstrated coast to coast.

This is something that has been happening on a nationwide basis for the past six months and the steam is picking up, and I was happily able to tell the group that the national confidence was finding its way into the South Shore, where things were also on the upswing.

Being with this group from all over the country was an opportunity for an opinion forum:

BILL ELLIS, Shannon & Luchs, Washington, D.C. and McLean, Virginia: "We have sold 1,006 homes in the first quarter, and are running 30 per cent ahead of last year. It's a hot market."

GEORGE HAMMILL, Hammill-Quinlan, Pittsburgh: "We are up 61 percent over the past 6 months and we are getting 8 to 8½ percent mortgage financing, which is opening up a huge untapped market."

STAN WILEY, Stan Wiley Company, Portland, Ore.: "My transferee business is up 83 percent, which means the big corporations are again moving people. We just opened four new offices and have two more on the drawing boards and are shooting at a $175 million volume. Really a banner period."

C. H. TOUCHBERRY, Charlotte, N.C.: "We are running double last year, are running a shop with 40 sales people and they report that our high price homes are moving, the low price units are down, and we are not getting the transferee business we'd like."

RAY BAXTER, Baxter and Swinford, Houston, Tex.: "Mortgage money is bulging out all over with the best flow since we have been in business. Rate is about 8½ percent and softening. We have virtually no unemployment in Houston."

WOODY BRETTWEISER, First United Realty, Wheaton, Ill.: "We are 18 percent up in our Chicago market. We are watching the bottom line, however, as our postage is doubling, our utilities are doubling, our ad costs are soaring and our overhead is bulging, but the present good market will handle this."

My own comments were that in our first 100 days here on the South Shore and Cape Cod of Massachusetts, we were running 92 percent ahead. So, it's a national trend, not something that is reserved for Las Vegas, San Francisco, Houston or Washington, D.C.

Why? Ray Elliott, President of the New England Region of the Federal Home Loan Bank, said in Boston the other day: "I am optimistic for a sustained improvement. $16 billion in net savings increases were shown in the 'thrifts' during the first quarter. Earnings pressures will force these cautious thrifts back into the mortgage market."

PRESTON MARTIN, President of PMI, the huge mortgage insurer, wrote, "We face a good era in housing and we are now in a moderate economic recovery where indications call for steady growth with mortgage interest rates that are tolerable."

And what does this all have to do with the South Shore? I think it has a lot to do with us because our psychological attitudes trigger our spending and investment philosophies and I think if we have it proven to us that THINGS ARE GOOD, then we react by making things happen ourselves and THINGS GET BETTER.

For instance, look at the fabulous first quarter growth at General Dynamics, where their Groton and Quincy Shipyards led the company to new all time profits; look at the fabulous first quarter profit of Chrysler, General Motors and Ford. Stories like these help us forget some of the "disaster-of-the-day" stories we have been reading since the Fall of 1973 when it all started.

So, let's look ahead with confidence and let's try to get the word out that "PROFIT IS NOT A DIRTY WORD", but that increased profits for business and industry provide the incentive to make more jobs and when you have industry making more jobs, you get people off unemployment, the State gets more taxes, and eventually, the financial horror show is over.

THE READER SPEAKS OUT

Urges Participation In National March Against Racism

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

How long can people sit back reading about and watching the violent displays of racial bigotry in and around Boston? It is time that people stand up and be counted in their support of quality integrated education and an end to racial discrimination.

For the past two years the Boston desegregation plan has been under attack from "anti-busing" forces that allege that integration destroys the "neighborhood school". For the first time, Columbia Point black students are attending their neighborhood school and are being beaten and verbally abused in doing so. These forces speak out against busing for integration purposes but for years nothing was said about busing for segregation. In Georgia, according to the U.S. Civil Rights Commission, with school enrollment up 92,000 and students bused up 14,000 since desegregation, the total number of miles traveled by students has decreased by 473,000 miles.

The term "forced busing" is a misnomer; no one is forced on a school bus. Attendance at an assigned school, though, is certainly compulsory for those under 18. The real issue in school redistricting for the purpose of integration.

In a 1974 U.S. District Court decision, it was ruled that through intentional Boston School Committee actions and policies, Boston had a segregated school system. In previous Supreme Court decisions concerning the Little Rock and Denver public schools, it was ruled that separate is inherently unequal and that segregation was unconstitutional if it was the established intent of government authorities. The Court, acting on these precedent decisions, proceeded to order city-wide desegregation.

I urge all South Shore individuals concerned about segregation and racial injustice to join in the local contingent to the April 24th National March Against Racism. We will be assembling at the Upland Road entrance to the Quincy Center MBTA Station at 11 a.m. From there, we will proceed by car to the central staging area for the March in Boston.

deBenedictis Seeks Congressional Seat

Milton Atty. Danielle S. deBenedictis announced her candidacy as an Independent for Congress Tuesday - three times in three different places.

She tossed her bonnet in the ring to contest for Cong. James A. Burke's 11th District seat in Quincy at 9 a.m., in Boston at 11 a.m. and in Brockton at 1 p.m. The three cities are the major population centers of the district.

She is the second candidate to announce against the veteran Burke, who also lives in Milton. Patrick Henry McCarthy of Randolph, former chief aide to Cong. Joseph Moakley [D-Boston], announced a few weeks ago.

Burke and McCarthy are Democrats.

Miss de Benedictis, 30, who was named as one of the 10 outstanding young leaders of Greater Boston by the Boston Junior Chamber of Commerce, is currently counsel to the State Department of Public Utilities.

She was an assistant attorney general for four years and successfully argued more than 200 cases in state and federal courts, including one in which her opponent was the famed trial attorney James St. Clair.

Miss de Benedictis is a founder and incorporator of the first Women's Bank of Boston and a member of the board of directors of the Mass Association of Women Lawyers and the steering committee of the Mass Women's Political Caucus.

A native of Milton, she was graduated from Jeanne D'Arc Academy, spent two years at Marymount College, Tarrytown, N.Y., and received her bachelors-degree from Boston University. She also studied at the Sorbonne in Paris.

the very best in care and shelter. And Bryant brought living proof - his dog Mr. Bo-Jangles, he adopted from the Animal Rescue League a few years ago. Together, Bryant and the children discussed "Responsible Pet Ownership", which simply means caring for your pet with kindness, love and common sense. Then the children did several puzzles and drawings. Several told us what animals they would like to be, and one child designed a Be Kind to Animals bumper sticker.

Highlight of the issue is the announcement of a "Be Kind to Animals Poster Contest". A winner will be chosen for each grade and will receive a beautiful animal book from the Animal Rescue League.

Winning posters will be featured in The Quincy Sun window during Be Kind to Animals Week and then will be entered in a national contest. Deadline for the contest is Friday, April 30.

Meanwhile, don't forget the Burger King bike safety coloring contest featured in the April 15 issue of Young Ideas. Return your entry to Burger King, 505 Quincy Ave. and you will receive a free soft drink. Ten winners will be chosen - from 3 to 12 years old and each will receive a free dinner and T-shirt from Burger King.

May 2 to May 8 is "Be Kind to Animals" Week. To bring the message of Responsible Pet Ownership to the children of Quincy, the Animal Rescue League is sponsoring this issue of "Young Ideas".

Miss Irvine's second and third graders at the Wollaston School are our assistant editors. Mr. Richard Bryant of the Animal Rescue League visited our assistant editors with his dog Mr. Bo-Jangles. We all talked about Responsible Pet Ownership, which simply means love, kindness and common sense in the care of our pets.

The Animal Rescue League is sponsoring a Responsible Pet Ownership poster contest. See the back page for particulars. Below, Mr. Bryant is introducing his dog Bo-Jangles to Ellen Corrigan, 8.

If I Could

By Beth

I'd like to be a Labrador retriever. I'd go hunting in the woods with my master. He would be so pleased at the way I hunted, he would treat me nice. He would feed me hamburg and pet me a lot.

Albert Julian, 8

I'd like to be a big, black, hairy gorilla. I'd swing from the trees in the jungle. I'd be one of the strongest animals alive. And I'd eat bananas all day.

Joseph Villa, 8

I'd like to be a blue bird. I would not want to be in a cage. I would fly free in the sky all day, and eat the breadcrumbs people put out for me. Blue is my favorite color. And I'd be my favorite color!

How Do You Approach A Strange Dog?

Did you know that 90% of those bitten by dogs last year in Massachusetts were bitten outside the home by a strange dog? Richard Bryant of the Animal Rescue League tells us what to do when approaching a strange dog. Kristine Locke, 8, shows us what to do.

- * Do not pat a strange dog.
- * Walk quietly by him.
- * Keep your hands at your side.
- * Don't make any quick moves.
- * Give him plenty of room.

Presidential Cooperative Bank George O'Brien Scholarship

Francis X. McCauley, president of the Presidential Cooperative Bank announced the establishment by the bank of the George F. O'Brien Scholarship.

The scholarship, in the amount of $500, will be given annually on a rotating basis, to an honor graduate of one of the three Quincy High Schools.

The first scholarship will be awarded to a 1976 graduate of Quincy High School.

The scholarship honors the memory of the late Atty. George F. O'Brien, member of the board of directors for many years. Mr. O'Brien served as the fourth president of the bank, from January 1961 until his death in November 1967.

Additional information regarding the scholarship may be obtained by contacting Arthur Woodward, Secondary School Coordinator, Quincy Public Schools, Coddington St., Quincy.

Land For 3,800 Gardens

Mass. Electric Invites You To Grow A Garden

Massachusetts Electric Company is inviting its customers to grow a garden on company land in Massachusetts this spring.

Garden plots will be available on a first-come, first-served basis.

William J. Cadigan, president of Massachusetts Electric, said the company is "aware of the popularity of vegetable gardening but also recognized that land is a scarce resource."

"We have suitable land available for nearly 3,800 gardens," Cadigan said, "and are happy to let our customers and friends put it to good use. We hope families and individuals will take this opportunity to plant a garden."

Massachusetts Electric will plow the land, stake the garden plots, and provide a soil analysis free of charge for anyone who participates in the program. Many sites will also have water available.

Gardeners will be required to sign a seasonal agreement for use of the land. They will also be asked to follow a set of Good Gardening Neighbor Rules.

Youth gardens for youngsters between the ages of 10 and 18 will be encouraged. They will be organized with the help of Massachusetts 4-H Clubs.

Gardening information packets will be given to all participants. The packets will include tips on raising vegetables, insect and disease control and preserving the harvest through canning and freezing.

For more information about the gardening program contact your local Massachusetts Electric office or Arthur Fox at Massachusetts Electric Company, 20 Turnpike Rd., Westborough, Ma. 01581, telephone 366-9011.

Potential gardeners are asked to contact Massachusetts Electric by May 15.

Boston Financial Data Increases Space At State Street South

Recently completing its second full year of operations at State Street South, North Quincy, Boston Financial Data Services, Inc. announced it has entered into an agreement with SSB Realty, Inc. for an additional 12,000 square feet of office space.

Announcement was made by Kevin C. Phelan, vice president, SSB Realty, Inc. and Manuel Goldberg, president, Boston Financial Data Services, Inc.

Established in early 1974 as a joint venture of State Street

Boston Financial Corporation and Data-Sys-Tance, Inc. of Kansas City, Mo., Boston Financial Data Services had an excellent year. Total shareholder accounts serviced will have grown by over 100 percent in a little over a year when Boston Financial Data Services begins servicing in May, 1976, the new business acquired at the end of 1975.

With the addition of the new space, Boston Financial Data Services, Inc. is now occupying more than 30,000 square feet of area on the building's fifth floor.

Quincy Firm Wins $599,000 MBTA Contract

Patrick F. Walsh and Sons Co. of Quincy has won a $599,000 contract to modernize the Washington St. station of the MBTA's Red and Orange lines in Boston, a project that is expected to provide 50

Be Any Animal

I'd like to be a horse. A wild horse who runs up in the hills. No one would ever ride me. I would be a silver, female horse. And some day I would have colts so they could run beside me.

Blanche Canty, 8

I'd like to be a German shepherd. Everyone respects a German shepherd. And my owner would be a good person. He would feed me, give me water, pet me, take me for walks, take me to the vet if I'm sick and let me live in his house.

John Lundborn, 8

I'd like to be a little black cat like the one I had named Dandy. No one would tie me up like some people tie up dogs. I think cats are the softest, fluffiest animals alive. But I wouldn't want nine lives. One's enough for me!

Meet Bo-Jangles

[Woooooooooof!] Which means Hi. I'm Mr. Bo-Jangles. In the picture Gerald O'Connell, 8, is petting me. I love to be petted. A few years ago, Boy, was I in trouble! I can't remember exactly how because I was just a puppy, but I got lost. I wandered around for several days -- cold, hungry and scared to death. Finally, I was picked up by the Animal Rescue League. I was in their shelter for about a week waiting to see if my master would come. He had not put any identification on my collar. Please, always keep a collar with identification on your dog. There was a dog beside me in the shelter from Hawaii. Imagine Hawaii! They contacted his master. And he was home before you could say "Run Joe Run." -- which is my favorite TV show.

Anyway, after a week, they put me in the Adoption Department. Mr. Richard Bryant of the Animal Rescue League saw me. He liked me. And he took me home. Now I'm the mascot of the Animal Rescue League. I am being trained in one of the ARL dog training schools and I go around with Mr. Bryant talking about Responsible Pet Ownership.

Boy am I a lucky dog. Mr. Bryant is what we dogs call "a thoroughbred master". He feeds me nutritional meals, and keeps clean, cold water out all the time. He brushes me and plays with me. I have an annual check-up at the vet. I have a license, which makes me feel very important and I have a collar with an identification tag and a tag to show I had my rabies shot. You can always hear me coming because they jingle. [Actually they should have called me Bo-Jingles.] In the summer, Mr. Bryant takes special care. He sees that I have shade and he never leaves me in a closed car. I could die from the heat. As I said, I'm a lucky dog. I hope your pet is as lucky.

Animal Poster Contest!

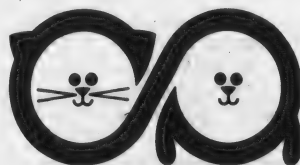

Win a Beautiful Animal Book!

The Animal Rescue League is sponsoring a Responsible Pet Ownership Poster Contest. Just draw a picture -- any size, any amount of colors -- which shows responsible pet ownership. This means a poster which shows a pet who is being cared for with love and kindness.

A winner will be chosen for each grade from kindergarten to the sixth grade. Each will receive a beautiful book about his favorite animal. The winning posters will be displayed in the window of The Quincy Sun during "Be Kind to Animals" week from May 2 to May 8. Then they will be submitted into a national contest.

Send your posters to Young Ideas, The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy, Ma. 02469. Deadline for the contest is Friday, April 30.

Judge Tells Short To 'Go To Work'

sites for a restaurant on the South Shore when he found the old bank building and took a lease on it.

He testified that he went to the Mayor's office to discuss details when he met Short, who told him he was "the Mayor's right hand man." He said Short was to help him iron out details.

Izzo said he met Short again on Jan. 22 in the Quincy Heritage office and Short, whose job had been terminated Jan. 16 because he "lacked credentials" for it, made a rubbing motion of his thumb and fingers.

The restaurant owner said he asked Short what that meant and Short held up five fingers, explaining that it meant $500 because "for you to get your permit I've got to pay people off."

Izzo said he went to his bank, cashed a check for $850, took $500 in cash and put it in an envelope, which he turned over to Short as they drove in Izzo's car to a meeting at the Board of Health.

He went back to see Short on Jan. 29, he testified, and they went for a walk around the building. During the walk, he said, Short told him the necessary permits would "cost a lot of money, about $10,000."

"I get a chill when someone asks me for $10,000," said Izzo. "I told him I'm no MacDonalds or Burger King. I don't have money to throw away."

He said Short told him, "When you get the $10,000, come and see me." Instead, Izzo went to see the police.

Short testified that he neither asked nor received money from Izzo. On the contrary, he said, while they were at lunch in a local restaurant, Izzo told him, "I'll take care of you." He said Izzo pestered him about the license.

Short told the court that he resigned from the post of retail store coordinator on Jan. 16 when he found that he lacked qualifications. He stayed on at the Quincy Heritage office as a volunteer, he said. He did not tell Izzo that he no longer worked for the city, he said.

Under cross-examination by the prosecutor, Robert Banks, Short testified that he had worked irregularly since he was graduated from high school in 1972. He said he worked four months as a CETA employee in the Quincy Highway Department in 1974. He said he was employed "off and on" in auto body work and carpentry.

(2) A special aluminum sealant that keeps out moisture and prevents rust from ever starting again. That's why Tuff Kote can guarantee its new cars rustproofing for 10 full years. And that's why only Tuff Kote can effectively rustproof used cars and guarantee them for two years. If you own a used car, Tuff Kote is the only one who can effectively rustproof it. If you own a new car, Tuff Kote is the only one who should.

Students On Pollution

(The following poems on pollution were written by sixth grade students at the Squantum School.)

IS THERE A SOLUTION?

There must be a solution,
For all this pollution.
People don't even care,
They just throw trash everywhere.
The skies and the waters are all a mess,
Because people are caring less and less.
There's many improvements to be made in the universe,
Let's clean up before everything gets worse.

Kate Feeney and Holly Bumpus

THE YEARS YOU CAN LIVE

If you pollute in any way,
You may not see another day.
But if you help us to eliminate these fears,
You may live at least a hundred years.

Robert Zappi and
Anthony Maldero

TO THINK THE SKY WAS GRAY

To think that this sky so blue, was gray,
And it wasn't as bright as it is today.

The birds didn't sing, if they were here at all,
They couldn't hear each other call.

The fishes' pond was full of smog,

The woods were deep but dark with fog.

The owls, and deer, and trees so great,

Were dead or gone just to escape.

But finally the people came to their senses,

They tore down factories and spent their expenses,

To bring back animals and clean their creation.

Now this place is clean and clear,
Because people thought enough to care.

MONEY TALKS

'Capital Formation' Requires Character Formation

By Philip J. Lawrence, President
Colonial Federal Savings
And Loan Association
of Quincy, Hottelbrook and Wareham
8 - 6 Weekdays 8 - 7:30 Thursdays

It is refreshing to have an economist like Pierre Rinfret tell us that "capital formation - not consumption - is the backbone of any economy" and that "without capital formation there is no economic growth."

"Capital formation" is a term that is getting increasing exercise these days as we are warned that the United States and its people have too little money in the bank to achieve energy independence, replace outmoded production equipment, solve environmental problems, create millions of jobs through an expanding economy, and do all the other things needed to maintain an accustomed standard of living.

Where is this money to come from? Spokesmen for business and industry interpret capital formation in terms of corporate profits. This is Rinfret's principal point as he notes that corporate profits declined from 15 percent of national income in 1948 to 9 percent in 1974, according to the official Department of Commerce statistics. Individual proprietors' income dropped from 17 percent in 1948 to 9 percent in 1974. Meanwhile, employee compensation rose from 63 percent in 1948 to 75 percent in 1974.

Some political leaders are concerned enough to argue for changes in tax and fiscal policies that will help halt the vaulting spending in the public sector and permit greater investment in the private sector.

Those who speak to the private citizen too often plead for more spending as the means to bolster the national economy and put people back to work.

We can understand the concern for corporate profits and do not begrudge business spokesmen their innings. Politicians who are against public spending except where it is expended on their own constituents baffle us, however. How can public spending be brought under control, let alone reduced?

Figures for the second quarter of 1975 indicate a Federal deficit of $104.6 billion on the basis of projected annual expenditures of $355.1 billion. Transfer payments are up, mainly for social security, railroad retirement and supplementary security income recipients, and continued growth in unemployment benefits. Defense purchases rose by $0.1 billion and non-defense purchases by $1.8 billion. Grants increased by $2 billion. Net interest paid rose by $1.4 billion from first quarter 1975.

Mind-boggling as these figures are, government expenditures add up to only 28 percent of anticipated 1975 personal income of $1,256.9 billion. Federal belt-tightening accompanied by personal saving rather than spending could restore the money reserves for needed investment.

"Capital formation" thus comes to mean "character formation" - in both public and private sectors.

Survival Names 3 To Board Makes 2 Staff Changes Board

Survival, Inc., announces the appointment of three persons to its board of directors and two to its staff.

The three board appointees are Rev. Keith Munson, pastor of United First Parish Church, Quincy, Alice Strausbaugh of South Central Ave., Wollaston, and Carl Solderstrom of Germain Ave., Quincy. Each new member has a strong background in community work.

Two staff changes are Linda Stice of Allston who becomes Director of Survival's

Joseph H. Whiteman House at 1230 Hancock St., Quincy. She has degrees from the University of Wisconsin and the University of Florida. She will head up the long term residential program for drug abusers after having served as a counselor for the past two years.

Debra Grollman, becomes a counselor at the residence, filling the slot vacated by Stice. Grollman, a 1974 graduate of Antioch College, has had extensive experience in the Baltimore area.

WOLLASTON

Special Ceremonies

Fenno House To Mark 3rd Anniversary Sunday

Fenno House and its sponsor, Wollaston Lutheran Church, celebrate the third anniversary of the facility's opening Sunday.

The anniversary celebration will include a worship service at Wollaston Lutheran Church, dedication of two bronze plaques at Fenno House, and a dinner-dance at Montello's. Special guests will be Mayor and Mrs. Joseph J. LaRaia.

The worship service will start at 9:30 a.m. Rev. Frank J. Bauer, pastor and executive director of Fenno House, will speak on the subject, "A People of One Heart and One Soul", with Acts 4:32-35 for his text.

The lessons will be read by Church President Charles W. Wood of Braintree, and by the chairman of the Fenno House board of directors, John J. Donahue of Weymouth. Music will be under the direction of Gary Klock of Pembroke, organist. Soloist will be Barbara Harvey Hutchinson of Braintree.

Following the service two bronze plaques in the outer lobby of Fenno House will be dedicated.

One plaque, given in memory of former Fenno House Director Elliott W. Worcester by his family identifies the six-story, 154 apartment building at 540 Hancock St., as an FHA 236 project for senior citizens dedicated April 29, 1973. It lists the names of the Architect, George Earl Ross of Braintree, the contractor, David Dickerman of Canton, consultant, Kenneth E. Strong of Wareham, and members of the Board of Directors at the time of dedication:

Daniel W. Schluter of Braintree, Chairman; Frederick J. Cashman Jr., of Quincy; Byron P. Fink Jr., of Braintree; John A. Pez, now of Sun City, Ariz.; Roy A. Johnson of Braintree; Gunnar Munnick of Quincy; Edward Benks Sr., of Quincy; Charles W. Wood of Braintree; John J. Donahue of Weymouth; Otto Staehr of Quincy; and Rev. Bauer, executive director.

The other plaque, in memory of Thomas and Lillian Higgs Fenno, reads:

"The granite stone in the circular planter at the entry to Fenno House is from the foundation of the family residence which stood on this site for over 150 years and is a token of its late occupants' interest in and regard for Wollaston Lutheran Church and its housing project for senior citizens."

At the dinner-dance at Montello's in the afternoon Mayor LaRaia will bring the greetings of the City.

ARMY RECRUITING in Quincy is getting a boost this month from the Jack Conway Realtors office, 253 Beale St., Wollaston, where the window area has been devoted to Army posters. Sgt. First Class Joe Smith, recruiter covering the North Quincy area, stopped by to set up the display and make a special presentation to a special person at the Conway office, nine-year-old Billy Mahoney. Billy, son of Loretta Mahoney of 255 North Central Ave., is handicapped by deafness, but is a regular visitor to the real estate office. "He brings in a happy smile every day," noted Conway office manager Richard Cahill [right] as Billy received an Army banner from Sergeant Smith.

Board Grants Transfer Of Point Liquor License

By TOM BRADY

The Quincy Licensing Board Tuesday granted a transfer of the license to operate the County Line Pub at 569 Washington St., Quincy Point to Harry V. Hogan, a South Shore realtor who owns a number of apartment buildings in the city.

The hearing on the County Line transfer also took into account the condition of an abutting lot owned by the previous owner of the County Line, George Tull, who promised the Board, Tuesday, to construct a chain link fence on the Sixth Ave. side of the lot to keep cars and bar patrons off of the lot.

The Board also approved a one day all alcoholic license for the Quincy Cancer Society to hold a "50's Record Hop" May 21 at the Fore River Club House to benefit cancer research and a one day wine and malt license for a supper and whist party to be held by the Quincy Deaf Club at the same location April 24.

A request from Horizons for Youth for permission to conduct a Tag Day in July was denied by the board after that organization failed to send a representative to the board meeting for the second consecutive week.

Two churches were granted permission to hold flea markets Saturday, May 22. St. Joseph's Parish, Quincy Point, will hold its flea market on the parish grounds from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and, St. Chrysostom's Church, Wollaston to hold one from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the church grounds or in the church hall in case of rain.

The board also approved a change of management for the Furnace Brook Golf Club, accepting Thomas L. Dunphy as the new manager.

For next week's meeting, the Board decided to call Michel Reed, owner of Best Pals Inc., a Quincy Point Restaurant, after Rep. Robert Cerasoli brought complaints about the restaurant's management to the board's attention. Mrs. Reed was granted her license to operate Best Pals less than a month ago.

The owners of MetroVend, a vending machine company which owns machines at the Nickerson Legion Post, are also to be called before the board regarding alleged discrepancies in their payments of revenues to the city.

Local Marchers Against Racism To Assemble At Quincy MBTA

A National March Against Racism in Boston will be held Saturday.

This month marks the eighth anniversary of the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Those on the South Shore who oppose racial bigotry and support the peaceful desegregation of the Boston public schools are urged to join a local contingent of the national march. They will assemble at 11 a.m. at the Upland Rd entrance to the Quincy Center MBTA station, and travel by car to an assembly point in Boston.

For more information, contact the South Shore Contingent, through Sandy Eaton at 472-4935 or John Leonard at 749-2852.

Irish Dance At St. Ann's Saturday

St. Ann's Church, Wollaston, will sponsor an Irish dance Saturday from 8 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. at the church.

A drawing for a trip to Ireland will be held at the dance, and chances for the drawing will be sold at the door.

Music will be by Mike Connolly's Celticaires.

Tickets will also be sold at the door. Proceeds will benefit St. Ann's parish.

Raiderettes Eye Good Season

Despite a poor start in the Suburban League [13-5 loss to defending champion Cambridge-Latin and a 13-2 loss to Quincy], Coach Cheryl Manoli is hopeful her North Quincy girls' softball team will have a good season.

The Raiderettes had looked good in three pre-season games, bombing Quincy Junior College, 20-2; edging Revere, 6-5, and losing to Milton, 8-5.

"The first two league games were tough ones, but we are still looking forward to a winning season," Miss Manoli said. North plays Weymouth North today [Thursday] at 10:30 a.m. at its home field behind Atlantic Junior High.

The Raiderettes are led by Co-Captains Saralee Cobban, senior centerfielder, and Nancy Willard, senior shortstop.

Senior Ellen Moynihan is at first base alternating with junior Joyce Flynn, junior Linda Henry is the catcher and junior Sharon Cobban and senior Marie Duggan are the top pitchers. All of these players played varsity ball a year ago.

Junior Toni Alibrandi and sophomore Donna Shaw share the third base chores and senior Colleen Campbell and sophomore Debbie Alessi divide the second base duties. Sophomore Susan Cooper also plays first base.

Rounding out the squad are senior Jackie Adams, junior Marie Nestor and sophomores Eileen O'Sullivan and Lisa Sullivan.

The North girls stayed with Quincy for four innings but the First Ladies came up with a five run fifth inning and added four in the sixth to win going away. Shaw and Willard had two hits apiece for North, Willard driving in both runs. Henry threw out four runners on attempted steals.

First Ladies Win Pair

The Quincy girls' softball has racked up two straight Suburban League wins and Coach Barbara Webster's hopes for a successful season look brighter.

Following a 12-10 win over Brookline, the First Ladies exploded for five runs in the fifth and four in the sixth to maul North Quincy, 13-2.

Today [Thursday] Quincy hosts Waltham at 10:30 a.m. at Faxon Field.

In the win over Brookline Lois Malvesti was the spark, hitting a triple and was the winnning pitcher. Peggy Thorley and Rosie Maloney drove in four runs apiece and Fran Giovanucci and Rosemary Pestilli had key doubles.

Malvesti came back to pitch a six-hitter against North and was backed up by a 14-hit attack. Marianne McCarthy, Pauline Albrecht, Cindy Tozzi, Clare Oliverio, Kelly Sparks and Maloney all had two hits.

YMCA Youth Day At Fenway Park

The Quincy YMCA will be sponsoring a Youth Group Day for a Red Sox ballgame at Fenway Park, Saturday, May 8.

The Sox will be playing Texas. Game time is 2 p.m. There is a minimal charge for the game and transportation. The bus will be leaving the Quincy YMCA at 1 p.m. Tickets are limited for those who pay on a first-come, first-serve basis.

New Coach

Wessling Sees Quincy Track Squad 'Promising'

The Quincy High track team has a new coach in Joe Wessling, succeeding Tom Hall, who coached the Presidents the last seven years.

Wessling was Hall's assistant for the past six years and the new Quincy aide is Joe Catalano, an outstanding runner and head coach of the Presidents in winter track and cross country.

"We have a promising squad consisting of 14 seniors, 11 juniors and 17 sophomores and I think we will receive some fine performances," Wessling said.

Wessling got off to a good start last week when the Presidents rolled over Cambridge Latin, 91-52.

One of Quincy's strongest events is the javelin with Charlie Gaziano, the state Class A champion, going over 185 feet in practice. Paul Ramponi backs up Gaziano and also holds the school record in the low hurdles. Kevin Donovan, Bill Dempsey and John Bowen also look good in the low hurdles.

One of the Presidents' brightest performers is sophomore John Saville, an outstanding miler and two-miler, and one of the finest distance runners ever to run for the Presidents. "We look for great things from John in the next three years," Wessling said.

Co-Capt. Ken O'Brien will run the half mile, mile and two mile, depending upon the opponent. He rates as a key man in this year's hopes. Don Jones, Steve Kane and Ray Johnson are other distance and middle distance runners.

Paul Ladas is the best in the 440 with John Foley, Kevin Murphy and Jerry Shea right behind.

Harry Williams, Aunas Simkus and Jim Oriola will run the 220, while Paul Coletti, Jim Rose and Ed Campbell look good in the 100.

Sam Gravina and Lee Barron are the high hurdlers and high jumpers, Dennis McCarthy is the top triple jumper and Dempsey and Oriola also will triple jump. Williams, Donovan and Ladas will be the long jumpers.

Bob Varrasso is doing well in the shot put and he is backed up by Kevin Lambruno. Tom McMahon is the top hope in the pole vault.

Bill Popsie is tops in the discus and he is backed up by Jim LaHive, John Carloni and Steve Coleman.

In the opening day romp Ladas won the 440 and long jump, Barron the high jump and high hurdles, Coletti the 100, Williams the 220, Jones the mile, O'Brien the two-mile, Ramponi the low hurdles, Popsie the discus and Gaziano the javelin.

The Presidents will compete in the coaches relays Saturday and will meet Newton next Tuesday.

Raiders Breeze By Weymouth North, 94-52

The North Quincy track team, which hopes to add the state Class B spring championship to the cross country and winter track titles, got off to a roaring start last week as it breezed past Weymouth North, 94-52.

Coach Lou Tozzi had several performers under par as the result of the flu but still had no trouble winning. Three of the Raiders' key operatives, Matty Constantino, Brian Doherty and Ken MacKenzie, were among those slowed down by the flu.

Constantino, however, won the 220 with little trouble and Doherty had his best toss of 49-2 in the shot put, good for second place, but was unable to compete in the long jump. MacKenzie showed the effects of his illness, suffering one of his rare losses in the 440, finishing second.

Raider winners, in addition to Constantino, were ace Bart Petracca, who ran away with the half mile; Dave Lorman, high hurdles; Matty King, 100; Marty Levenson, mile; Jim Gavigan, two-mile; Pete Donovan, low hurdles; Dan Cuddy, long jump; Steve Doherty and Steve Bonoli, tied in the pole vault; Mike Nee, javelin, and the 440 relay team of King, Nee, Mike Larsen and Constantino.

The Raiders will compete in the coaches relays Saturday and next Tuesday will host Brookline at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Braintree White Sox Reunion May 7

Charlie Bird, Ted Rouillard, Debby Baker, Charlie Abell, Jay Desmond and Joe Zapustas are a few of the many oldtime baseball players who will attend the eighth annual reunion of the Braintree White Sox on Friday evening, May 7, at the Braintree American Legion Hall.

Although the White Sox are hosting the event, it is open to all former players, umpires and fans interested in reviving a few memories of games played at Ward 4 Playground, West Quincy; Merrymount Park, Overlook Park, Fore River Field and French's Common.

Reservations should be made by calling Leon Baton at 767-4677.

Quincy, North Face Brookline, Cambridge Latin

The North Quincy baseball team [2-1] and Quincy [2-2] are in action today. [Thursday] with the Presidents hosting Brookline at 10:30 at Adams Field and the Raiders playing at Cambridge Latin at 2.

Monday, Quincy and North meet for the first time at 3:30 at Adams.

The teams broke even in their first two Suburban League games last week after North had belated Milton and Quincy had split with B.C. High in non-league games.

Charlie Bunker's North team rebounded from a tough 3-2 loss to Weymouth North to edge Waltham, 5-4.

Trailing, 4-1, North rallied for four runs in the sixth to pull out the win. Paul Stack paced North's 12-hit attack with a home run and two singles. Tony Alessi had three hits and Jim and Walter McGinley two hits each. John Earle was the winning pitcher in relief.

The Raiders took a 2-0 lead in the first inning against Weymouth North but were blanked the rest of the way, while Weymouth tied it in the fourth and scored the winner in the fifth.

Mike Holleran had a triple and single but was the losing pitcher.

Quincy lost a game Coach Bud Mosher and the players won't soon forget as it lost leads of 6-1 and 8-4 and bowed to Cambridge Latin, 10-9, after topping Weymouth South, 7-6, in its league opener.

Lou Fishman was the losing pitcher for the Presidents to spoil a banner day at the plate. Fishman had four hits but Latin scored four runs in the seventh and final inning for the comeback win. Paul Southerland, and Mark DeLuca had two hits apiece for the Presidents.

In Quincy's opener Paul Vespaziani went all the way for the win and held Weymouth South to a single run after giving up five runs in the first inning. The Presidents took the lead with a five-run third.

Jim Duggan had three hits including a double to spark the 10-hit attack.

Girls A Team Runnersup

The Quincy Girls A team, the Comettes, were runnersup in the league playoffs at Twin Rinks in Danvers Sunday.

Quincy won its first game, edging Stoneham, 2-1, on Mary Ann McCarthy's goal at 11:50 of the second sudden death overtime period. Shawn O'Leary assisted.

Earlier Eileen Marr had an unassisted goal to send the game into overtime.

Following an hour's rest period the Comettes bowed to Sausg, which took the title, 5-4, in another double sudden death overtime.

Mary Ellen Riordan had two goals for the Comettes and McCarthy and Terry Flynn one each. Paula Constat had two assists and Marr and Flynn one apiece.

Jim Mullaney To Be Honored By Jumbo Club

Jim Mullaney of Quincy, the first 1000-point scorer in basketball at Tufts University, will be among seven former letterwinners who span 60 years of Tufts athletics who will be honored by the Tufts Jumbo Club at its seventh annual awards dinner Friday night at Mugar Hall on the Tufts campus.

Mullaney, a 1951 graduate, set season and career scoring records during one of the most successful periods in Tufts basketball history. An all-New England selection as a junior and co-captain as a senior, he currently ranks fourth on Tufts all-time scoring list with 1,077 points.

HN Marathon Winners Listed

Forty-nine runners competed in the annual Patriots Day marathon of Houghs Neck Legion Post on Monday. Five trophies were awarded.

Robert Vecchione won in the 18-20 year old class followed by John Barry.

Michael Shaw and Donald Austin were 1-2 in the 21-30 age group and Paul Hussey and Wayne Elsmore were winner and runnersup in the 31 and older division.

The women's competition was won by Erica Everett, with Judy Garland second in the 18-30 division and Regina Hussey won the 31 and over class.

The committee included Comdr. William Morrill, junior vice comdr. John Christensen and athletic officer John Duffy.

QJC Hosts Mass. Bay

The Quincy Junior College baseball team, with a 2-2 record, hosts Mass. Bay Community College today [Thursday] at 4 p.m. at O'Rourke Field and next Tuesday will play at the Harvard freshmen at 3:30 p.m.

Following an 11-2 romp over Worcester State College, Dave Burke's Jaguars were wallowed by Massachusetts, 16-4. They also lost their next game to Harvard Freshmen, 8-5. Relief pitcher Paul Craig pitched five shutout innings to brighten the afternoon. Tom Perry was the loser.

Bill Connolly had three hits and two RBIs and Mike DePaolo and Pete Banco had two hits each.

QJC came back to edge Bunker Hill Community College, 8-7, on Mike Devine's last inning single driving in the winning run.

Craig pitched to just one batter in relief but was the winning pitcher. Banco and DePaolo had two hits, one of DePaolo's being a run-scoring triple.

Point Girls Win City-Wide Gym Meet

Quincy Point is the smallest junior high school in the city but its girls' gymnastics team proved size isn't everything as it defeated all competition to win the recent city-wide gymnastics meet.

Irene Martel won on balance beam, Point swept the uneven parallel bars with Martel taking first, Liz LaFavre second and Teresa Spano third, Martel was second and Tammy Pizzi fourth on floor exercise, Ann Sandanato third and Martel fourth on vaulting, and Florence Lorenzano, Lisa Mahon, Holiday McQuade, Barbara Tocchio, Cindy Vorrasso and Lynn Wyatt also scored.

Miss Martel captured the city's all-around individual title. "I knew the girls were talented but I didn't know how they would compare with the other girls in the city," Coach Kathleen Bertrand said. "They went out and did their best and showed good things come in small packages."

Woodward School Girls Bowlathon

WNAC-TV and the Boston Jaycees are co-sponsoring a "Bowlathon" now through Friday to raise funds for Foxboro's Lincoln Hill Camp, a residential recreational and educational camp for mentally retarded children aged 6 to 12.

Among those participating will be students from The Woodward School for Girls in Quincy, The Plymouth River School in Hingham, and members of Cub Scout Pack 33 in North Weymouth.

During the school vacation week, the bowlers from these various youth groups have been competing on Channel 7 to raise money for the camp. Each bowler, as part of the Jaycees' "Kids Helping Kids" campaign, was responsible for lining up his or her own sponsors (parents, neighbors, etc.) who will contribute a designated amount to the camp fund for every pin the youngster knocks down.

Each evening on "Candlepins For Cash" host Bob Gameze will announce the amount raised that day by the participants. The boy and girl with the highest scores at the end of the week will receive prizes to be awarded during "Candlepins For Cash" on Tuesday, April 27.

Thanks to the generosity of local business organizations, regular contestants on "Candlepins For Cash" that week will also be bowling for the Lincoln Hill Camp. On Thursday and Friday, April 22 and 23, these corporations have agreed to match contestant pinfall with substantial contributions for the mentally handicapped children.

Richard Giglio In Organ Concert

Richard Giglio of Quincy will appear in an organ concert with Miss Mildred Alexander on Saturday, April 24, at 8 p.m. in Arlington.

Giglio, a long time student of Miss Alexander, has taught in her studios in California. He is presently teaching in the Greater Boston area.

The concert is sponsored by the North Suburban Home Organ Society.

Tickets will be available at the door.

16-Year-Old Violin Soloist

QSO Performs Concert April 27

The Quincy Symphony will present its annual Youth Performs Concert on Tuesday, April 27 at 8:30 p.m. at North Quincy High School auditorium.

The program will feature the North Quincy-Quincy High School Choirs, under the direction of Maurice Carbonneau and Mrs. Gale Harrison respectively, singing Roy Harris' Folk Song Symphony.

Violin soloist, 16-year-old Diane Nicholieris of Braintree, will perform Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto in E minor with the Symphony under the direction of Robert E. Brown.

Diane has a rather unusual and unfortunate background in her violin study. She started violin in the Braintree Public Schools, showing great potential, she then moved to private instruction. After one and one half years of promising study, she had a serious accident which rendered the bones in her left wrist and hand useless.

The recovery is the amazing aspect of this young performer. Her physician advised her, that she would never play again and that a second operation would be necessary for her to utilize her wrist and hand, but through dedicated determination, she has made her recovery.

She has performed, since her accident at age 11, with the Boston Symphony Esplanade, Greater Boston Youth Symphony, Melrose Symphony and many more.

Tickets are $2. and $1. and will be available at the door.

20 Years Ago On TV You Were Watching...

In April of 1956... The American Federation of Radio and Television Artists warned employers that legal action would be taken if they began to blacklist employees based on misleading statements by AWARE. AWARE was a private organization aimed at combatting communism in entertainment and communication... Perry Como's guests were Jack E. Leonard and Peggy Lee... Walt Disney was explaining the story behind his animated drawings... Rusty Hamer was being excruciatingly cute on "The Danny Thomas Show"... "See It Now" was reporting from Africa... The Sunday night "Colgate Comedy Hour" was giving way to Steve Allen, who was also to continue his hosting chores on "The Tonight Show"... Eddy Arnold's new variety show made its debut... Janet Blair was chosen to succeed Nanette Fabray on "The Sid Caesar Show"... Shirley MacLaine was George Gobel's guest... Edward G. Robinson Jr., then 22, had attempted suicide by taking an overdose of sleeping pills... Groucho Marx was betting your life... David Niven was on "Four Star Playhouse"... NBC was financing a touring water show starring Esther Williams in return for exclusive television rights to the production. The tour was to begin in London and end on NBC in the fall with a 90-minute color telecast... Kathryn Murray was waltzing her little feet off on "Arthur Murray's Dance Party"... Steve Allen's guests on "The Tonight Show" were Carol Burnett and a vocal group called The Chuckles... Gloria DeHaven was hosting NBC's Comedy Hour with William Bendix and Jonathan Winters as her guests... Olson and Johnson were on "The Milton Berle Show"... Lucy Ricardo was bicycling from the French Riviera to the Italian border... John Carson replaced Robert Q. Lewis on CBS each afternoon at 2... and Vice President Richard M. Nixon delivered a short message on mental illness. His speech preceded a CBS report dealing with mental health.

'The Secrets Of Sleep' On Ch. 2 April 25

If you sleep more than 15 minutes a night, you just may be getting too much sleep. You don't believe it? Then watch "The Secrets of Sleep" this week on Ch. 2's NOVA, Sunday, April 25, at 8 p.m.

We've always heard that we need roughly eight hours of sleep each night. But a little old lady in Britain gets only an hour. She's 80-years-old and she feels just fine. And then there's a British businessman who needs a mere 15 minutes a night. Our need to sleep may really be a need to dream. "The Secrets of Sleep" has some fascinating insights on dreams and dream interpretation to present.

If you take sleeping pills, you may be doing yourself more harm than good. You may not need as much sleep as you think you do. NOVA challenges the traditional notions about sleep, and it just may open your eyes.

Sid Caesar And Imogene Coca Are Back

Sid Caesar and Imogene Coca are back. And Channel 7's got them. WNAC-TV will be bringing you "Your Show of Shows" every Saturday evening from 11:30 to 1 a.m.

Sid Caesar first appeared on "The Admiral Broadway Revue" in 1949. Later retitled "Your Show of Shows", the program remained on the air through 1954. Featured on the 90-minute productions were Imogene Coca, Carl Reiner, Howard Morris and Louis Nye. Ably abetted by his co-performers, Caesar presented pantomimes, sketches and savagely satirical take-offs on motion pictures and operas. The comedy routines to be seen on Channel 7 each week have been drawn from over 400 hours of programming from the comedy series, which was one of the most popular of the 50's. "Your Show of Shows" will be seen on Channel 7 through the end of July.

St. Coletta's Scores Well In Basketball Tourney

Braintree St. Coletta athletes did themselves well as they brought four trophies home from the recent Mass. Special Olympics Team basketball tournament held at Taunton High School.

Over 30 schools participated in the tournament.

In the girls' division—ages 13-15—the team of Mariann Beatty, Patty Downs, Sheila Farren, Regina Foreman, Liz Leonard and Carol Williams won a first.

The girls' 16 and over team topped their division. Team members are Lynn Cherry, Kadee Daley, Mary Jane Devine, Peggy Flaherty, Geraldyn Harrington, Michele Harvey, Kathy MacDonald, Gail Capacioli, Siabhan Nolan and Patty Downs.

In the boys' 10-12 age group, the team of John Cirafice, Paul Corlito, Biff Downey, John Nargi and Tom Perkins placed first and were recipients of a team trophy.

In the 13-15 group John Farrell, Bob Kelley, Ed King, Tom Oakes, Ed Smith, Bill Sullivan and Scott Whitty were victorious.

In Inquest Aftermath

No Voting Machines But Election Workers May Get Pay Hike

By TOM HENSHAW

First fruits of Judge Albert L. Kramer's inquest into the 1975 Quincy city election emerged this week almost simultaneously with the inquest report.

Election workers are in for a raise, pending approval of the cost-conscious City Council, of course.

"The City Clerk has recommended pay increases for the election workers," said Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia. "And I agree. This is the only area in the budget in which I have allowed such increases."

Pay hikes for election workers, who now receive $30 a day for up to 16 hours, was one of several recommendations contained in the inquest report released by Asst. Atty. Gen. Thomas R. Kiley and Asst. Dist. Atty. Charles Hely.

Another suggestion was voting machines, but Mayor LaRaia took a dim view on that.

"If certain procedures are followed it will not be necessary to purchase voting machines," he said. "We have to approach this conservatively. Expense is a factor. If getting machines was the only alternative then we would have to get them.

"But fortunately the inquest report identified the problem as one that can be solved without a large financial expenditure."

In a move which Mayor LaRaia said was unrelated to the inquest report and the election mixup, he appointed Arthur Chandler of Wollaston and William Scherer of Quincy Point to the Board of Registrars of Voters.

Closed Door Budget Meeting

LaRaia Extends Olive Branch To Council

The moment of fiscal truth is at hand for Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia, the City Council, in fact, all of Quincy.

The budget for fiscal 1976, already a touchy subject between Mayor and Council, is due in the hands of the City Council Monday [May 3] after a state-granted extension of a week to allow the Mayor more time to prepare it.

The budget, the first put together by the LaRaia administration, is certain to rise substantially over that of the last year, with rumors of a tax rate increase ranging up to $60 a thousand.

The Mayor and the Council have already been in contact about the budget.

LaRaia and Council President Arthur H. Tobin met last Friday for initial discussions and the Mayor was scheduled to get together with the whole Council in a closed door session last night [Wednesday] to continue the talks.

"Mr. Tobin and I discussed not only the budget but the city's whole financial picture in general terms," said LaRaia.

"I'll discuss with the Council the problems of revenues, expenditures and the cost of government. We'll talk about some solutions to reduce the cost this year. We'll go over the pros and cons of trying to establish a picture of the city's finances today and two months from now.

"The important thing here is that I have extended myself and my office to the City Council as much as I can to try to reach some sort of harmony."

"I know the City Council has registered its feelings on layoffs and cutbacks in expenditures in the areas of public safety. We have reached the point where I have got to explain to them now what my plans are in drawing up the budget and why."

"I expect that after I present the budget there will still be objections over the way I

Growth Policy Committee

Public Hearing May 6

Quincy's Growth Policy Committee will hold its first public hearing next Thursday [May 6] at 7:30 p.m. in City Hall to discuss most any topic that comes up involving the development of the city.

The committee was created under the Growth Policy Development Act, passed by the State Legislature in December to give citizens an opportunity to air their feelings on the past, present and future development of their communities.

Quincy's committee was activated recently by the appointment by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia of 13 members with Lars Lundin, the city's planning director, as chairman. Others were added by the City Council.

The committee has held several weekly meetings to acquaint itself with factors that will have an affect on Quincy's future.

Members of the committee include the Rev. Bedros Baharian, Dr. E. James Iorio, Dr. Peter V. Corean, Winthrop B. Wade, Catherine Roberts, Anneli Johnson, William A. O'Connell, Jane Croke, Linda A. Simio, Timothy J. Reidy, Jan A. Rich, Jason Feldman, Beverly Zawacki, Peter O'Connell, Agnes Cooney and Robert Woodman.

HOSPITAL BLOOD BANK IN URGENT APPEAL

The Quincy City Hospital Blood Bank issued an urgent appeal for more blood donors.

Last month only 88 pints were donated to the hospital. Another 255 pints had to be borrowed to meet patient requirements.

Mrs. Ruth O'Connell, Supervisor of the Blood Bank noted that a blood shortage of this magnitude could be critical if it continues. The current rate of donations is not enough to meet the needs of a city the size of Quincy, she said.

Mrs. O'Connell also noted that coverage is given to the immediate family or friend in many other hospitals throughout the U.S. As a member of the American Association of Blood Banks Northeast Clearing House program Quincy City Hospital allows blood to be sent or credited to any member hospital in the country at the donors request.

Hours for donations have been recently expanded in hopes of attracting more daytime donors. The donations hours are Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., and Saturdays from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Nighttime donations may be made Monday through Thursdays from 7 to 10 p.m. Appointments for donations can be made by calling the hospital Blood Bank.

'Young Ideas' Spotlights

Cranch School's 75th Anniversary

By CATHY CONLEY

This week's "Young Ideas" features the 75th anniversary of the Cranch School.

In the issue sponsored by SGM Advertising Agency, 1499 Hancock St., Quincy, the children have explored Cranch's history in many ways. One class has done a time line. Another has created a time capsule for the Cranch students in the year 2001. A first grade has gathered antiques from a turn-of-the-century home.

Fourth and fifth graders have designed a huge floor map of the Cranch community as it was in 1900. And some of the third and fourth graders have been studying the family tree of the school's namesake Richard Cranch and have uncovered some living direct descendants.

"What will be your favorite memories from Cranch?" several of the children were asked. And their answers are featured in the anniversary issue.

Don't forget the "Young Ideas" Be Kind to Animal's poster contest which was featured in last week's issue. Prizes will be given to the best entries from kindergarten to the sixth grade in the form of a beautiful book from the Animal Rescue League of Boston. Deadline is Friday, April 30.

QPSOA Rejects LaRaia Suggestion To Relinquish Incentive Money

The Quincy Police Superior Officers Association has rejected Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia's suggestion that officers relinquish claim to monies due them under the police career incentive laws in view of the fiscal crisis in the city.

Lt. Frederick Laracy, president of the QPSOA, said the provisions of the law were accepted by the city in collective bargaining three years ago and the Mayor "has no authority to attempt to abrogate the obligation of the city."

Laracy rejected the idea that the city owed the officers more than $300,000 in reimbursement.

"The fact is," he said, "the state contributes 50 per cent of all monies paid by the city to the police officers entitled to benefits under the law. Within recent weeks the city has received over $100,000 from the state for reimbursement.

"The sums of money to which the officers are entitled are not a gratuity but rather are earned by the individual officers who attend colleges and universities which offer approved courses in order to gain the required credits for eligibility.

"These men give up their own time in order to professionalize the day to day workings of the police department which obviously benefits all the citizens of Quincy."

Dana Kirby Appointed Youth Commission Work Project Director

The Quincy Youth Commission has appointed Dana M. Kirby, 25, of Hough's Neck, as director of the new federally funded Work Project. Announcement was made by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia.

Kirby, who lives at 260 Winthrop St., was selected two months ago by the Commission from among 50 applicants from the South Shore area.

John W. Mahoney, Chairman of the Youth Commission said Kirby will be responsible for implementing and overseeing a federally funded project which will employ Quincy youth between the ages of 14 and 17. These youth will be referred to the Work Project from the School, Court, or Police Department.

The Project is designed to give teenagers job training, in the form of structured employment. The idea behind the training program is that while the teenager is involved with the program and earning some money, he or she will also learn valuable work related skills, responsibility for performing specific tasks, confidence and a better self-image.

Other duties will include personal and vocational counseling for the program participants.

A life-long resident of Quincy, Kirby is a graduate of Quincy High School, Quincy Junior College, and the University of Massachusetts, Boston. He is presently attending Northeastern University Graduate school working toward a Master's of Education in Human Development.

Kirby was teacher aide for the Quincy Public Schools from 1970 to 1972. In addition he was a real estate broker for the firm of Howard Back Realty, Braintree from 1973 to 1974.

QJC-Vo-Tech Associate Science Degrees Approved

Quincy Vocational-Technical School and Quincy Junior College are approved by the Massachusetts Board of Higher Education to grant the degree of Associate in Science in several areas of technology.

The combined programs of both schools have been examined and evaluated by the Board and approval has been granted for the degree of Associate in Science in Electronic Technology and in Electronic Data Processing Technology. Additional approvals are in process for Dental, Health, and Culinary Arts programs. Other technical programs are being developed and approval will be requested at a later date.

Students taking advantage of these degree programs take all of their technical and applied sciences in the Vocational-Technical School laboratories and their academic programs at Quincy Junior College.

They will receive their Technical Certification from Quincy Vocational-Technical School and the Associate in Science Degree through Quincy Junior College.

Webster 6th Graders On Washington Tour

Shortly after 6 a.m. Monday the sixth grade classes of the Daniel Webster School left by bus for Washington, D.C.

The annual trip, the 11th in as many years is under the direction and supervision of Arthur Foster of the school staff.

The trip is one of total involvement for the pupil and teacher participants. Each of the five days activities will begin with assembling for breakfast at 7:15 a.m., daily. The days will be filled with visits to all the shrines and memorials in Washington and its environs and will end with lights out at 10:30 p.m.

Following a tour of the White House on Friday, the group will board their busses for the trip home. Approximate time of arrival back in Quincy will be at 10 p.m.

Senior Citizens Government Day

Quincy senior citizens are reminded that registrations for the Senior Citizen Government Day is April 29.

The fifth annual event will be on May 7.

Positions for the more than 30 elected official and city department heads will be drawn at the City Council meeting May 3 at 7 p.m. Council President Arthur H. Tobin and members of the Council invite senior citizens to attend the meeting at City Hall.

Registrations may be made with all Senior Citizen Clubs or at the Senior Citizens Activities Office, 3 Maple St., from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Energy Conservation Program

'Red Rover' Checks Mayor's Home For Heating Leaks

Red Rover was out at Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia's house over the weekend and it has given the Mayor some ideas on how to save money for the financially hard-pressed city.

Red Rover is a truck sent out by the State Energy Office to take infra-red pictures of the homes of low income families for whom state aid is available to insulate the houses. Light areas on the special film disclose heat leaks.

The State Energy Office has granted $23,000 to the Community Action Program to provide insulation help for home owners who meet certain income standards.

Mayor LaRaia's $25,000 salary puts him well above the income standard but his house was chosen for its publicity value as a demonstration project.

The pictures of his house showed heat leaks - and gave him ideas.

"Energy conservation is the real solution to the high cost of living," said the Mayor, "particularly in city government where we spend hundreds of thousands of dollars on fuel for schools and other public buildings."

"This is one area where we can save quite a substantial amount of money."

"In the past we have had an energy coordinator in Quincy. This job is dormant now. I plan to direct certain people in the departments to be responsible for that, especially for the next winter season."

"I see a tremendous opportunity here for cutting down costs."

The South Shore Mosquito Control Project plans this week to begin aerial spraying of woodland swamp areas in the Quincy-South Shore area to abate the larvae of the spring hatch mosquito.

The operation is expected to be completed by May 10.

The project is important, a spokesman said, as the spring hatch mosquito, Aedes Canadensis, emerge in large numbers, last for a long period into summer and are considered one of the main vectors of the dog heartworm.

Both fixed wing and helicopter aircraft will be used. The spraying will be done in early morning hours between dawn and 9 a.m. During these hours there is less wind and thermal turbulence.

The communities to be included in this spray operation are Braintree, Cohasset, Duxbury, Hingham, Hull, Marshfield, Norwell, Quincy, Scituate and Weymouth.

Most areas to be treated have been treated at one time or another in past years. Persons having any areas, objects or desire to be avoided, are asked to contact the Project's office at 1120 Hancock St., Quincy, [773-9191].

If this notification has been made in the past years, it will not be necessary to report it again as such areas to be avoided are so recorded.

School Bus Reminder

City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr., chairman of the Public Safety Committee, has issued a reminder to motorists that they must stop when approaching a school bus which has its red lights flashing, no matter in which direction they are travelling.

They must come to a full stop and remain that way until the bus resumes motion or until the lights stop flashing or until the bus drivers signals them to proceed. The only exception to the law is when the two vehicles are on opposite sides of a divided highway.

THE $100,000,000 BUILDING.

This is what Quincy Cooperative Bank looked like in the spring of 1889. The address was 1431 Hancock Street and the total capitalization of the bank was $690.

Now, QCB has two offices in Quincy, one in Cohasset, one in Hanover and a brand new branch in Braintree. And thanks to people like you, over $100,000,000 in assets.

That means that in 87 years, we've gotten 144,000 times bigger. That's growth.

And that growth has allowed QCB to play a big part in the progress of the communities we serve. Which is what cooperative banking is all about. And what we've been all about since we took the name of Josiah Quincy, Jr. at our founding. Josiah was the originator of cooperative banking in Massachusetts, and a man who always put the best interests of the people of his community first.

That's a tradition we're proud to uphold. And although Josiah lived in a day when a $100,000,000 cooperative bank was just a dream, we know for certain...

JOSIAH WOULD HAVE LIKED THAT.

Early, Regular Prenatal Care Essential For All Pregnant Women

"Many people in Quincy would be shocked at the number of pregnant women here who don't receive prenatal care until they are in labor," says Dr. Arthur W. Trott, Senior Associate Orthopedic Surgeon at Children's Hospital and also the Mass. Bay Chapter-March of Dimes Medical Advisory Committee Chairman.

"But early, regular prenatal care is essential for every woman, no matter how well she feels, or how trouble-free her previous pregnancies were."

To inform every pregnant woman in Quincy of the importance of prenatal care is a major goal of Healthy Baby Week. The annual prenatal care education drive, sponsored by The National Foundation-March of Dimes, begins on Mother's Day, May 9.

"Babies weighing less than five and one-half pounds at birth are 17 times more likely to die before their first birthdays than babies who have a normal, heavier birthweight," warns Dr. Trott.

"And there is a much higher incidence of low birthweight among women who have not had early prenatal care."

Regular medical attention in pregnancy also encourages early diagnosis of problems. Certain disorders may be detected and treated before birth to prevent damage to the infant.

Court Matters Subject For Norfolk County Women Voters

The Leagues of Women Voters of Norfolk County will sponsor an open meeting at the Superior Courthouse, Dedham, Thursday, April 29, at 8 p.m.

The Quincy League Of Women Voters will host the program.

Issues to be considered will be probate, adoption and divorce laws, the family court, children's services, juvenile offenders, and the back-up in Superior Court. Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Delahunt and Registrar of Probate Paul Gay will speak.

Any citizen interested in changes in the court system is urged to attend. For further information contact: Alicia Coletti, 165 Samoset Ave., 773-4235 or Sheila Ward, 120 Putnam St., 471-2657.

Rent-A-Kid Program Resumes At Youth Commission

Any Quincy boy or girl interested in performing temporary part-time work is asked to call the Quincy Youth Commission.

The Youth Commission will then match a youth with an adult seeking such help. The matter of salary will be arranged by the two parties. The Youth Commission will only provide the matching service.

"The Rent-A-Kid program has been successful in the past, and with so many people doing spring cleaning, this will be a good time to restart it," said Thomas Mullen Youth Coordinator.

Elderly residents may call Speedy Senior Service for assistance, as they will be working with the Youth Commission to aid Quincy's Senior Citizens. Besides benefiting the younger residents of Quincy by giving them a temporary job, this program is also a way for youths and adults to work together, especially the Senior Citizens who are always willing to help out our Junior Citizens.

OF LICE AND MEN

According to the American Medical Association, lice infection has become epidemic. Three million people in the past year have been infected with head and pubic lice. The situation, states the AMA, has developed into as big a public-health problem as gonorrhea.

Although the tiny pests can sometimes be seen in the scalp and in the hair of the thigh and trunk, the easiest way to identify a lice invasion is if you or a member of your family has suddenly become prone to severe itching of the scalp, body, or in the genital area.

Treatment is effective and simple. The AMA recommends frequent, thorough washings with hot, soapy water and applications of Kwell Cream [available only by prescription]. Shampooing with Kwell Shampoo is also part of the treatment. Contaminated clothing, towels, and sheets should be dry-cleaned or boiled to prevent the infestation from spreading.

Intercepted Sign

Q. I was born in Boston, on Sunday, February 5, 1928 at 7:00 A.M. I read something that makes me feel my Ascendant is Pisces. Could you tell me if this is a possibility? I am not sure it was exactly at 7:00 A.M. that I was born but my parents and an aunt who was there at the time, said it was. I was born at home and the doctor has been dead for years.

I also wonder if I have my horoscope done, would it be better to use the 7:00 A.M., even though I am not positive of the exact moment, rather than 12 noon? I am anxious to know my Ascendant.

A. The Ascendant, sometimes called the "cusp" or the beginning of the First House, is the Sign of the Zodiac and its degree on the Eastern Horizon at the place and time of birth. Our Earth, revolving on its axis completely once every day caused all twelve Signs of the Zodiac to pass over the Eastern Horizon at Boston, your birthplace that day.

Since as little as two minutes of time can make a significant difference in a horoscope, the exact time of birth is essential to calculate an accurate chart. At 7:00 A.M. on your date of birth in Boston, 15 degrees of the Sign of Aquarius was on your Ascendant. However, the entire Sign of Pisces was in your First House [called intercepted]. That is why you feel your Ascendant is Pisces.

In your case, where the 7:00 A.M. is very close to being accurate, it should be used as a basis for "rectification" by events in your life to determine the exact moment of birth. Using a 12 noon time will not give you or anyone a viable Ascendant unless you or they were born at exactly 12 noon local time. It is far more difficult to rectify the time of birth by events in a life when starting with an arbitrary noon time than it is when starting with a time known to be close to the actual time of birth.

For questions to be answered through this column, mail the year, month, day of the month, city of birth, time of day if known and question to Ask Oscar, Box 114, Canton, Mass. 01021. Please sign your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered in this column.

$50 LaRaia, $100 Delahunt Fund Raisers

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Two political fund-raisers are in the works for Mayor Joseph LaRaia and Dist. Atty. William Delahunt.

The LaRaia affair is $50 per head and Delahunt's is $100 per.

The LaRaia event to be held Wednesday, May 5 at 7 p.m. at the Lantana in Randolph, seems to be causing the most interest.

It is not the dinner itself that is causing the commotion but a "Dear Friend" solicitation letter being sent out by the Mayor LaRaia Committee.

The problem is the letter isn't going to just LaRaia friends and supporters but somehow to others who did not support or even vote for him in last year's controversial election.

Some of the latter are quite miffed at the letter's inference that they were among the "generous supporters" or among those who gave "consistent help" to LaRaia last year.

One such person, a Republican and attorney, called a LaRaia committee member to protest the fact she received a letter and let it be known that she didn't vote for LaRaia last year and isn't going to vote for him next year.

Others are critical of the phrasing of the letter. They contend it leaves the impression that the money is needed by the mayor to get "his message to the public" and to "remove obstacles to open government."

Anyway, here's the letter. You be the judge:

"Dear Friend:

"I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for the support you have given in the past. It has been the consistent help from the people, like yourself, that has allowed Joe to achieve success in becoming Mayor. As you know, the election was a close one and the results of your efforts in support of Joe only became known after the recount.

"As Mayor, he is now striving to remove the obstacles to open Government which have been built up, and to make the changes which those who have supported him expect. While he is confident of his ability to meet this challenge, he is acutely aware that without the help of friends, like yourself, meeting this challenge will be that much more difficult. Foresight and good sense require that he begin preparing even now for the future. The funds which he was able to raise from generous supporters like you during his campaign were depleted, in order to achieve the victory for which we all worked so hard.

"On Wednesday, May 5th, the Mayor LaRaia Committee is sponsoring a testimonial in honor of the Mayor. It will be held at Lantana's in Randolph beginning at 7 o'clock, with a requested donation of fifty dollars per person. Once again, we are asking your support so that during the Mayor's first term he will have the resources to bring his message to the public.

A notation at the bottom of the letter says:

"City Employees please disregard this letter."

MEANWHILE, Dist. Atty. Delahunt makes no bones about the fact that he is organizing the $100 a ticket cocktail reception fund-raiser for himself to be held May 18 at the Chateau de Ville, Randolph. [Randolph seems to be batting well in the political big leagues].

Delahunt notes this is the first major fund raising event he has had during five years of elective office and "while fund raising is one of the least attractive elements of politics, it is nevertheless necessary."

He goes on to say:

"I have been a consistent supporter of public financing and have co-sponsored legislation in the past. This is a particularly difficult time to raise funds because of the general unemployment and economic situation.

"I look forward to a time when elected officials will not have to solicit private funds to conduct campaign activities."

He will formally announce his candidacy for election in the near future.

MORE HONORS ARE expected to come to School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Crendon. He recently, of course, was named "National School Superintendent of The Year" by the American School Counselor.

Now, reportedly, the Massachusetts School Counsel Association will name him "Massachusetts School Superintendent of The Year."

YOU CAN'T SAY that Lloyd Creighton, popular Quincy High School principal, isn't going all out to make the double sessions at his school this fall run as smooth as possible.

In a friendship gesture to make North Quincy High School students feel welcome at Quincy, Creighton had the letter "Q" created in North's red and black school colors and presented it to North Principal Peter Chrisom.

Then, Creighton strolled the corridors at Quincy High School carrying a North red and black banner, to demonstrate to QHS students that "we are all going to be together."

WELL, one boss didn't forget his secretary [secretaries] during National Secretaries Week. Mayor LaRaia last Friday presented the five girls in his office with a special cake topped with a typewriter decoration. And he sliced it for Denise Lord, his personal secretary, and the other office staff, Mary Hayes, Doris Cormack, Elaine Schroth and Virginia Barry.

A REGIONAL ECONOMY—By ERIC SWIDER

Fairy Tales Come True

We speak carelessly of a proliferation of new "rights": The right to food, housing, medical care, income, employment. And not just "employment", but "meaningful" employment at a "decent" wage.

What's wrong with providing necessities to those in need? Nothing. A compassionate society ought to make an effort to alleviate suffering.

But to speak of a "right" to economic goods and services creates a dangerous illusion, an illusion that these things are a part of our natural endowment. They are not.

Before food can be eaten, it must be grown; before housing can be occupied, it must be built; before wealth can be "redistributed", it must be created. These things do not happen by accident, Divine intervention, or act of Congress. They happen because people make individual decisions to risk their effort, their capital, or both, to produce something.

A society that denies its producers the rewards earned by their initiative and responsibility hazards both moral and fiscal bankruptcy. The producers will stop producing, and there will be little left to transfer to the non-productive.

The modern day revision of The Little Red Hen probably tells the story of stifling initiative as well as anything:

Once upon a time there was a little red hen who scratched about and uncovered some grains of wheat. She called her barnyard neighbors and said, "If we work together and plant this wheat, we will have some fine bread to eat. Who will help me plant the wheat?" "Not I," said the cow. "Not I," said the duck. "Not I," said the goose. "Then I will," said the little red hen, and she did.

The wheat grew tall and ripened into golden grain. "Who will help me reap my wheat?" asked the little red hen. "Not I," said the duck. "Out of my classification," said the pig. "I'd lose my seniority," said the cow. "I'd lose my unemployment insurance," said the goose.

Then it came time to bake the bread. "That's overtime for me," said the cow. "I'm a dropout and never learned how," said the duck. "I'd lose my welfare benefits," said the pig. "If I'm the only one helping, that's discrimination," said the goose.

Candidates Trying To 'Feel My Pulse'

Burke Retiring? Doesn't Sound So

By TOM HENSHAW
Congressman James A. Burke (D-Milton) managed to look both angry and amused at the same time.

"I can't get off the plane," he said, "without 25 potential candidates gathering around to feel my pulse."

It has become a favorite retort for the 66-year-old Burke as the time approaches for him to run for his 10th straight term as U.S. Representative from the 11th Congressional District.

Or will he?

Patrick H. McCarthy, 29, of Randolph, Danielle de Benedictis, 30, of Milton, and Robert H. Martinson, 53, of Quincy, are running whether Burke does or not. Others, meanwhile, wait anxiously in the wings.

Burke himself made a rare mid-week appearance in Quincy last week, primarily to recuperate from a bout with pneumonia and, not incidentally, to put down a few mounting rumors that he plans to retire.

"I have not announced my candidacy yet because I've got a lot of work to do in Washington," he told The Quincy Sun. "When I get through with the work of this Congress, probably in late summer, then I will announce my intentions."

"Of course, anyone has a right to announce his or her intentions right now."

"I have many close friends in the District, dedicated public servants, who would jump in if I were to step out. They have a right to know my intentions in time to make their decisions. They will know 10 days prior to the date of filing papers."

Then Burke started to sound like a candidate.

"People are circulating papers for me right now even though I have not ordered any," he said. "You need 2,000 names and I'm told that they have 20,000 so far. They say they are not getting any refusals."

"I have not yet started to campaign. I have too much to do in Washington. If I were running around the District making speeches and turning out position papers I would be neglecting my job in Washington."

"I am the second ranking member of the House Ways and Means Committee as well as chairman of the Social Security Committee and a member of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue."

"You have to keep in mind that Wilbur Mills, the only man ahead of me on the Ways and Means Committee, is retiring. His retirement would put me in the most powerful position in Congress outside of the Speaker of the House."

"Given the economic conditions that prevail in Massachusetts, the South Shore and Quincy, right now we need as much muscle as we can get in Congress."

"Some people in the District have political ambitions. They would like to start the campaign a little early. I am not going to pay any attention to them until the real campaign starts, probably after Aug. 15."

"I don't hold anything against the people who are running against me. Competition keeps you on your toes. There have been times when I felt mighty lonesome being on the primary ballot alone with no opposition."

"I feel that the rumors you hear about me not running have been started

"Then I will," said the little red hen. And she did.

She baked five loaves of fine bread and held them all up for the neighbors to see. They all wanted some, demanded a share. But the red hen said, "No, I can rest for a while and eat the five loaves myself."

"Excess profits," cried the cow. "Capitalistic leech," screamed the duck. "Company fink," grunted the pig. "Equal rights," yelled the goose. And they hurriedly painted picket signs and marched around the little red hen singing, "We shall overcome," and they did.

For when the farmer came, he said, "You must not be greedy, little red hen. Look at the oppressed cow. Look at the disadvantaged duck. Look at the underprivileged pig. Look at the less fortunate goose. You are guilty of making second-class citizens of them."

"But...but," said the little red hen. "I earned the bread."

"Exactly," said the wise farmer. "That is the wonderful free enterprise system; anybody in the barnyard can earn as much as he wants. You should be happy to have this freedom. In other barnyards, you'd have to give all five loaves to the farmer. Here you give four loaves to your suffering neighbors."

And they lived happily ever after, including the little red hen, who smiled and clucked, "I am grateful, I am grateful."

But her neighbors wondered why she never baked any more bread.

Finding the proper balance between charity and incentive is not easy, and the penalties for a mistake are heavy, as the British have discovered.

Thomas Jefferson made plain his own priority of economic rights in 1816. It's worth reviewing now.

"To take from one," he wrote, "because it is thought that his own industry and that of his father's had acquired too much, in order to spare to others who, or whose fathers, have not exercised equal industry and skill, is to violate arbitrarily the first principle of association—the guarantee to every one of a free exercise of his industry, and the fruits acquired by it." [Emphasis Jefferson's] deliberately. It is a trick as old as politics itself. They'd have you dead and buried if they thought they could get away with it."

Burke said his health is fine.

"I was in the hospital with pneumonia five days," he said. "I was home for another three days. It left me a little weak. I had to slow down some. I had to cancel some trips to get back on my feet."

"I saw predictions of cool weather up here so I thought I'd be better off breathing the clean fresh air of the 11th Congressional District for a while."

"There are only three Congressmen with better attendance records than mine. I had not missed a committee meeting for 17 years until I became sick. I might be 66 but there are fellows of 26 who are not present in Congress as much as I am."

"There are people we call the 'T and T Club'. They are the Tuesday to Thursday members of Congress. They go back to their districts early every weekend to campaign. If I had to join that club I'd retire."

"If I felt that my health was not good enough to give the people of the 11th District the same calibre of service they have been getting for 18 years, then I would not impose myself on them."

"As long as I am able to do the work, to meet constituents, to read my mail [up to 2,000 letters a week], to fight for the bread and butter issues, then I am going to stay in Congress."

"But I welcome the opposition and I am looking forward to debating the issues with them when the time to campaign rolls around."

QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS

April 29 - May 5, 1941 - 35 Years Ago This Week

Hattiemay Thomas Wins City Clerk's Post

By TOM HENSHAW

Hattiemay Thomas, a longshot candidate, was chosen City Clerk of Quincy on the ninth ballot of a marathon City Council meeting that lasted until 2 a.m.

She had only one vote [from Council President William Jenness] on the eighth ballot while her rivals, John R. Shaughnessy and William J. Callahan, had four apiece.

But on the ninth try she collected votes from eight Councilors to beat out Shaughnessy, 8-1.

Mrs. Thomas, who was assistant City Clerk for 18 years, succeeded the late Emery L. Crane, who held the top job for 30 years.

WORKER SHORTAGE

Public Works Commissioner Ezekiel C. Sargent complained that so many laborers are being hired by defense plants that it is difficult to fill temporary DPW jobs from the Civil Service List.

Only this week, he said, he had put out a call for 20 men for three months work in the highway department and only nine showed up.

"Men who we had previously hired for this summer work now have regular jobs and refuse to take temporary employment," said Sargent, adding: "I can't say that I blame them."

FIREFIGHTERS FOR QUINCY POINT

Ward 2 City Councillor Louis A. George demanded that fire trucks and equipment remain in Quincy Point while the area's old fire station is razed and a new one built at a cost of $50,000.

George, who cited protests from fearful constituents, suggested that the truck be parked on Fore River Field or in the Washington School yard with living quarters set up in the Fore River Clubhouse.

Retorted Mayor Thomas S. Burgin:

"Chief Sands has investigated every possible location and is convinced that Central headquarters is the logical place. There is hardly two minutes difference from Central headquarters to the Fore River yard and from the present Quincy Point station to Fore River."

SOUTH SHORE LEAGUE OPENS

Jeppy Saunders' veteran Fore River baseball team whipped George McCall's young Sagamore Plebes, 7-0, behind the shutout pitching of Fran Desmond and Farrell Ruppert as the South Shore Baseball League opened.

The Brookside's of South Quincy bowed to the defending champion Braintree White Sox, 10-5, at French's Common, Braintree, where a local boy, Lt. Gov. Horace T. Cahill, threw out the first ball.

LIVING TODAY

By DR. WILLIAM F. KNOX

The Total Man

To feel like a man, a man must act like a man and put himself into situations in which he can. But too many men just don't know how. No one has taught them ... or shown them, by example. When a boy grows up in a home without a father ... or an absentee father ... or an alcoholic father, how can he know what a real man is really like? Little wonder he founders, acts like a bully ... or a sissy ... or a timid little lamb. He's had no example.

Lots of magazine articles and books are written to help women know how to be real women and to relate to men. Much is being written to promote the idea that women need not be subjugated to men ... can stand as equals ... can make their own decisions.

But, who speaks for men? Who? The John Wayne movies? ... the Wayne Newton singers? ... the Robert Redford actors ... the Archie Bunker television shows? Are these our best examples?

Or ... are the fathers in families being adequate examples to boys on how to be men ... examples to girls of good relationships with men? What a boy or girl becomes in adult life is determined very largely by what relationships they have had with the first man in their lives. MANHOOD IS IMPORTANT.

There are valid distinctions between a father's love and example to his children ... and a mother's love and example. Eric Fromm in "The Art of Loving" points out that "unconditional" love is a mother's way ... saying in essence "O.K. honey, whatever you are I love you, no matter what". Well that's fine in measure. But without the balance of father love, which says to his boy ... "I love you, but you get out there and mow that lawn just as I told you," the child is likely to grow up with a lot of tenderness ... indecision and weakness. He is left unprepared to face up to the tough realities of life. The making of men is more than mother TENDERNESS or father TOUGHNESS. It's the combination of both if a man is to be a Total Man.

Marabee Morgan in The Total Woman is trying to teach women to relate to men more happily. Her efforts and women's attempts will be futile unless there are Total Men to whom they can respond. Otherwise, the Total Woman will find herself floundering in a relationship of uncertainty and confusion and rejection.

I am beginning a series of articles which hopefully will form a book entitled THE TOTAL MAN ... to help men to know how to be total men, so that they can respond to Total Women.

If my readers have suggestions and contributions maybe I can weave your ideas into the book. Write me.

Happy adults must be total adults ... not just warmed over children. So let's see what the Total Man really is and how to be one.

THE READER SPEAKS OUT

More Foot Patrolmen Needed

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I cannot see any reductions being made in services rendered by the city with increasing costs of taxation and problems of delivering sufficient services required by the citizens of this city.

If anything, we need more foot patrolmen who are kept in an area long enough to be familiar with it and its population. An officer known to all in the community is the best deterrent to crime and the best public relations agent of city government.

The vandalism, hot rodding, and noise between 1 and 3 a.m. last Saturday around Quincy Shore Drive, Atlantic, and Billings St., is one result of the elimination of a foot patrol. It isn't safe to walk the streets of the area at night.

Fire services are good, but recent fires at Squantum Gardens and multiple alarms in the city proves the need of all the forces that we can now muster.

Training can always be improved to increase efficiency. Notes, weakness in radiological responses recently, this had been noted recently by state officials.

As our city ages so does its physical plant which renders services to residents. Water and sanitation services are important to our health. Public works expansion has been almost nil with increased growth in the city.

The only logical alternative to paying for necessary services in a spiraling economy is more efficiency, modern methods of delivery, less demands for services, or more volunteers rolling up their sleeves and pitching in. Everyone could help our Civil Preparedness forces in their efforts to produce services for bargain prices. All could help keep the areas surrounding their residence and business clean and attractive for the bicentennial year. Fire prevention is everyone's business and a good neighbor reports all strange incidents to the police for investigation. Let us all get in the act of improving our city for less cost. If not then we have to be willing to pay for someone else doing it for us.

Special Gravestone, Markers For Medal Honor Winners

The Quincy Veterans' Services Department has been notified by the Veterans Administration that special memorial gravestones and markers will be provided to families of deceased Medal of Honor winners as part of the country's bicentennial program. There is no cost to next of kin for the special markers which will have an enlarged representation of the Medal of Honor in gold leaf on marble or granite headstones and in bronze on the cast metal markers.

The words "Medal of Honor" will also be highlighted by one of these methods. Present headstones and grave markers will be replaced with the memorial devices only with the written approval of the next of kin or the person listed on the cemetery's records.

The Medal of Honor was first awarded in 1863. Since that time 3,400 have been awarded.

Anyone knowing the location of graves of Medal of Honor winners from Quincy is asked to contact veterans service director Pasquale DiStefano. With the assistance of Mayor Joseph LaRaia's office and Quincy Heritage the special markers will be placed on Memorial Day. Relatives of deceased Medal of Honor winners may also contact the VA office, Kennedy Bldg., Boston for further information.

Wollaston Lutheran Nursery School Accepting Applications

Wollaston Lutheran Nursery School is now accepting applications for the fall term. Children four years old or who will be four before Jan. 1, 1977 are eligible.

Class sessions are held Monday through Friday from 9 to 11:45 a.m. Further information and rates may be obtained from the Wollaston Lutheran Church office at 550 Hancock St. Those wishing to visit the nursery school are asked to call the church office for an appointment.

The Information Gap

The public lacks sound knowledge about too many things . . . and funeral service is no exception.

Essays and posters should be submitted to teachers by May 28 or mailed to David J. Donaghue, Quincy City Club bicentennial chairman, 88 Wallace Rd., Quincy 02169.

James Bonomi On Wentworth Honor Roll

James R. Bonomi of 43 Grove St., West Quincy, has been named to the President's Honor Roll for outstanding scholastic achievement during the first semester at Wentworth College of Technology. Bonomi is a senior at Wentworth College.

The Cranch School is celebrating its 75th anniversary with an Open House on Tuesday May 4, from 7 to 9 p.m. The public is welcome.

The Cranch School opened Jan. 7, 1901 with approximately 250 students, transfers from the Coddington and John Hancock Schools. Cranch was built on land previously belonging to Richard Cranch, a distinguished citizen of Quincy. This year marks the 250th anniversary of his birth.

The Open House will feature classroom exhibits including a time line of Cranch School, historical events of the nation during that period, a floor map of the Cranch neighborhood in 1901, and a family tree of the Richard Cranch family.

"Memories From Grandma's Attic" is a re-creation of a scene from a Turn-of-the-Century home. "Three Moments in History" represents classroom scenes and activities from the periods 1700, 1900 and 1976. "Fun in 1901" will illustrate leisure time activities of early Cranch days.

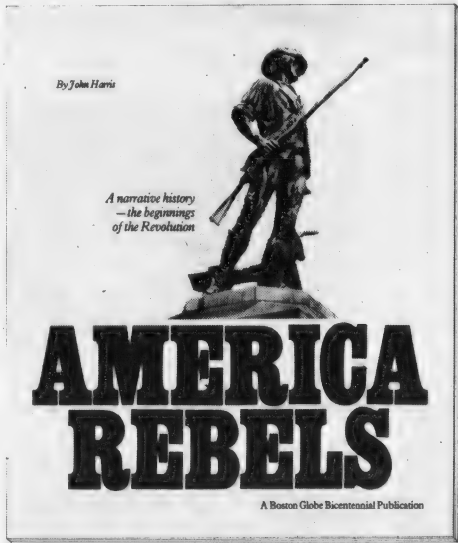

At 8 p.m. the Cranch Choir will sing several turn-of-the-century selections. There will be a reception area in Rooms 2 and 3 where guests will meet and greet former staff and students. There will be a "Nostalgia" exhibit of Cranch memorabilia and early Quincy pictures.

An anniversary booklet includes reminiscences by former principals and a feature article by former Mayor-Senator Thomas S. Burgin. Cranch class of 1915 and a resident of the Cranch area community.

Cranch students have been looking ahead to the year 2001 when Cranch's 100th anniversary will be celebrated. They have prepared a 1976 "time capsule" to be opened on that occasion. It will help students of that era look back to 1976 when Cranch celebrated its 75th anniversary.

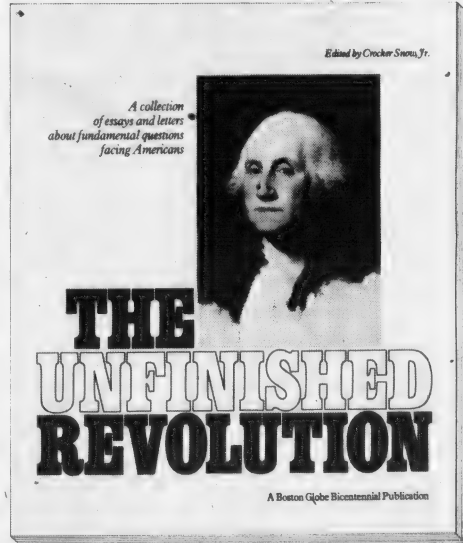

The American Revolution. Then and Now.

"This is a first-rate book, well researched, well written, and admirably illustrated. It recreates the confused and agitated days of the outbreak of the war with dramatic excitement.

"At a time when the celebration of the Revolution is being vulgarized for financial or political gain, it is good to have work so honest to put into the hands of those who want to know what actually did happen in and around Boston from the Tea Party to the siege of Boston, and its recapture."

— Henry Steele Commager
Historian
Professor Emeritus and Lecturer,
Amherst College, Amherst, Massachusetts
January, 1976

"The Boston Globe has made a most useful contribution to the Bicentennial. Our two hundredth anniversary offers an ideal moment for stocktaking. It is not enough to celebrate a remarkable past. We can better employ this landmark year to re-examine the philosophical, moral, economic and governmental premises underlying our Nation. How well will they serve us in our third century? The writers gathered here under the banner of 'The Unfinished Revolution' offer a wealth of wisdom as all Americans seek to answer that question."

Over 150 Get Bikes Tested, Engraved At Safety Clinic

FIRST STEP at the Bike Safety Clinic is over-all inspection for safety features. Here Quincy Police Safety Officer John Bartholomew inspects the seat and handlebars of Brenda McCormack's bike as Officer Lester Duggan looks on. The event, held at Central Junior High School grounds, was sponsored by Burger King in cooperation with The Quincy Sun, Quincy Police and School Department.

Cranch Celebrates Its 75th Anniversary

Happy 75th Birthday, Cranch School! For almost the whole school year, the children have been preparing for their birthday party on May 4. Miss Merrill's fifth and sixth graders have created a time line of Cranch's history. Miss Carlisle's fourth and fifth graders have created a huge floor map of the Cranch neighborhood as it was in 1901. Miss Hawley's second grade has been studying leisure time of children in the early 1900's. Miss McGettrick's first and second graders have recreated moments from Cranch's history. Mrs. Sokoloski's third and fourth graders have been digging into Richard Cranch's family tree and have found some direct descendants. Miss Flaherty's first graders have re-created a turn-of-the-century home. Miss Monro's third and fourth graders did an indepth study of the Cranch School as it was in 1901. And Miss Jensen's sixth graders have designed a time capsule of things the children feel will be important to the Cranch students in 2001. Happy birthday, Cranch School! Many happy returns.

What Will You Remember From

I'll always remember the teachers at Cranch. I'm going to junior high next year and I'm not nervous at all. I feel I'm well prepared. All the teachers have been very nice to me - especially my second grade teacher. I was her pet.

Cranch In The Year 2001

Press Release: Quincy Sun
May 4, 2001

By Susan Cook

The Franklin Brooks Company commences major changes in one of the oldest schools in Quincy. Cranch School was built in 1900 on land formerly owned by Richard Cranch, and occupied by children in 1901. For one century it has been a neighborhood school for the children of the Cranch Hill area. In the early part of the century it was the only school some children attended, but for most of the past hundred years it has been the first of one of the three or four levels of schools that children now attend.

One major change will be in the heating system. The existing roof will be redesigned to admit solar heat energy. Former students will be happy to know that the drafty windows will be no more as they are to be blocked out because light will come from the roof.

The basement area will no longer need an oil burning plant, and instead will house a neat, room-size swimming pool.

I talked with Miss Mary Barker of the School Board about why they were doing this. She said, "At first we thought of tearing down the whole building, but costs are so high we decided it was cheaper to remodel. Also the people in Cranch Hill have a fondness for the old building, as a school."

As I stood talking with Miss Barker we noticed some excitement as one of the workers appeared at a door carrying a box of fairly good size. I walked over to him to find out what it was. He said, "I must take it to my boss for it states on its cover. 'TIME CAPSULE OF 1976... DO NOT OPEN BEFORE 2001'. I don't know what it contains, but we'll soon know."

I followed him to Mr. Brown who was the supervisor of the construction job, but he felt that it should be given to the School Board. Miss Barker made a quick inspection and your reporter had a chance to see what was in it.

Time rolled back twenty-five years for the box contained items put there by children of 1976. There was a list of names of children attending the school in 1976, some photographs, a coin that reminded us that they were celebrating the Bicentennial of our country in that year, a stamp too, of the same year. Imagine, in 1976 they could send a letter for only thirteen cents! They had included a Sears, Roebuck Catalogue of the same year. This showed us how prices have gone up in the past twenty-five years. A twelve inch rule was included. They must have known we were going Metric and foot rules would be out. A page of math problems reminded us that children in 1976 did not use calculators in school as we do today.

I asked Ms. Barker what she thought of the box. Her answer was, "I think that the children of Cranch will have a lot of history to learn from these things in the box. Some will find their parents' names and pictures here. Prices are different today, and there are items we no longer use. After we have studied them, the objects within the box will probably be exhibited in Quincy's Historical Museum."

Make A Puppet From The Early 1900's

Miss Hawley's second grade tells us how people spent their leisure time 75 years ago when the Cranch school began.

It was around 1901 that the working day shrank to 10 hrs a day, 6 days a week. So now there was time to play.

People went to the theatres, to the beaches and the baseball park. They pedaled through the parks or down the streets on the latest bicycles. They read "Little Women" and "Uncle Tom's Cabin". They spent their only nickels on hokey pokey ice cream. Some went into Boston for a Swan boat ride and bought an apple from the apple lady. Some went to the symphony orchestras, the museums and had time to attend the universities. Some sat on porches or strolled down the streets while some others went on family outing. There was time to relax and enjoy.

The children even had time to make paper puppets. Here you will find a pattern and directions used by children 75 years ago. And you will find a drawing of the finished product by second grader Judy Lutts.

HOW TO DO IT:

1. Cut out puppet pattern. Trace it onto heavy paper and decorate it as if it were a clown; both sides.
2. Punch holes at the x's and fasten the arms [long side] and legs to the body with brass fasteners.
3. Cut three pieces of yarn, 10 inches long.
4. Take one piece of yarn and put it through the hole at the top of the head. Tie it in a loop.
5. Work on one side of the body at a time. Take another piece of yarn and tie one end to the hole in the foot. Put the other end of the yarn through the hole at end of arm and then tie this end to the knot of the loop at top of head.
6. Do the same with the other piece of yarn on the other side of the body.
7. Hold yarn loop with two fingers and move yard on sides to make arms and legs move.

A Turn-Of-The -Century Room

"How do you like our turn-of-the-century room?" Rory O'Driscoll, 7, and Mary Ann Crowe, 6, ask Mr. Steve Viegas, Vice Chairman of the Board of SGM Company. S.G.M. is an advertising agency and public relations firm which sponsored this issue of "Young Ideas". Mr. Viegas was fascinated by the beautiful antiques that Miss Flaherty's first graders had collected which includes an old grandfather's clock, a wicker rocking chair, an 1890 typewriter, a box camera, antique portraits and several other household articles.

Meet One Of Cranch's First Graduates

"Can you imagine using an old-fashioned desk like this with an inkwell that you had to fill with a pitcher with a pointed spout?" asks Steven Protasowicki, a second grader at Cranch School.

"Yes, I can, Steven," says Miss Marion Nilsen. "Because that was probably my desk when I was a student here at Cranch in 1909. Miss Nilsen attended Cranch from 1902 to 1910. She went on to be the secretary to the Superintendent of Schools of Quincy for 49 years. Miss Nilsen has lent Miss McGettrick's second graders stacks of her old school papers for part of their historical exhibition. Paul O'Leary [left] is fascinated by Miss Nilsen's stories.

Russell Hodgkins Receives Air Force Academy Appointment

Russell D. Hodgkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell D. Hodgkins of 37 Dixwell Ave., Quincy, has been notified of his acceptance to the Air Force Academy as a member of the class entering next June.

Hodgkins, who has been a cadet in the Air Force Junior ROTC unit at Quincy High School for three years, was nominated for entrance to the Academy last October by Principal Lloyd M. Creighton.

The principal of a High School which hosts an Air Force Junior ROTC unit may nominate up to three outstanding cadets who meet the qualifications and who are highly motivated toward an Air Force Officers career. Hodgkins also applied for the Academy through Congressman James A. Burke and the latter's primary nominee.

Hodgkins is currently the cadet commander of the Air Force Junior ROTC squadron which functions in cooperation with all three of the Quincy public High Schools. He holds the rank of cadet lieutenant colonel which is the highest rank authorized for that position.

In September 1973 he entered the program as an airman and has worked up through the ranks to his present capacity. His interim positions were those of squad leader and cadet sergeant, flight commander with the rank of cadet captain and deputy commander with the cadet rank of major. His decorations to date include the Son's of the American Revolution Award, American Legion Scholastic Award and the Outstanding Cadet Medal.

Academy acceptance culminates a long series of demanding aptitude tests which began last fall for Hodgkins, who reached his 18th birthday April 10. He is in the top 10 percent of his class and attained high scores in all of these tests and was in the 95th percentile of those testing for pilot training.

There were more applicants for entrance to the Air Force Academy this year than ever before and competition was particularly keen. Of 9,300 applicants 1,450 will ultimately be selected for this year's entering class.

Point-Webster Complex Flea Market Saturday

The Parent Advisory Board of the Point-Webster School Complex will hold a Flea Market, Saturday, May 1, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., on the school grounds, Lancaster St., Quincy Point.

Featured will be, Arts and Crafts, collectibles, home baked goods and refreshments.

The Parent Advisory Board comprises parents working toward maintaining effective communication between the home and school. Proceeds from the event will be used to support an honors dinner for junior high pupils who have attained honor roll status for three terms of the school year.

Serving on the committee are:

Mrs. Glenn McGhee, general chairman; Mrs. Richard Curtin, Mrs. Vincent Nicosia, Mrs. Frank McLaughlin, Mrs. Joseph Kahler,

Mrs. Patricia DiTullio, Mrs. Barbara Foley, Mrs. Angela Carroll, Mrs. Robert Hickey and Mrs. John J. Donovan Jr. They will be assisted by Mr. Long, principal, Mr. Hickey, assistant principal, and Mr. DeCristofaro of the school staff.

Additional dealers are wanted and may call 773-5569 or 773-4191 to reserve space. Rain date is May 8.

Health Department Auditorium May Be Converted Into Office Space

The John F. Kennedy Health Center may be called upon to sacrifice its auditorium in the interest of cheaper office space for the Council on Aging and kindred services.

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia said this week he has people looking into the feasibility of converting the auditorium into offices.

"I'd like to put the Council on Aging over there," he told The Quincy Sun.

"It is out of the heavily congested center of the city. It would be more appropriate there since the health services are there. Most of the seniors are familiar with the Health Center.

"Also we have been paying rent on the Maple St. offices where the Council on Aging is located now so there would be a financial as well as geographic benefit."

"We are just exploring the idea," LaRaia added. "Nothing has been decided yet. If we did anything about it, it would probably be in July."

The Council on Aging offices at the corner of Maple and Chestnut Sts., recently were remodelled at a cost of more than $8,000 with the money coming from a federal Community Bond Grant, said the Mayor.

"It was my intention from the start of my administration to centralize the Council on Aging and related agencies such as RSVP," said LaRaia.

"We were looking into another location in Quincy Square and we came to the point where we almost reached agreement but we had to cancel it."

ONE COUNCILLOR'S OPINION

By Paul Harold
Councillor-at-Large

In Support Of The Veterans' Budget

by PAUL HAROLD

At a recent meeting of the Quincy Veterans' Council, I voiced my support for the continued funding for veterans' posts rental supplements and parade monies.

The proposed cuts in this area would have the effect of forcing some of the smaller posts to disband, yet the savings to the taxpayer would be minimal - an estimated 2-3 cents on the tax dollar.

While we must attempt to cut city spending, this cut would result in a false savings because it could jeopardize many programs carried on by posts throughout Quincy: scholarships, hospital visits, processing of service claims, sponsoring athletic teams, parades and patriotic ceremonies.

A Busy Week

53 Youngsters From 'Quintsee' Visiting Pen Pals In 'Quinzee'

By TOM HENSHAW

If you've noticed a bevy of bright-eyed young strangers around the city this week, all talking kinda funny, don't be alarmed.

They are from Quincy, Ill. - pronounced Quintsee instead of Quinzee, which is why you may have thought they talk kinda funny.

The youngsters are returning a visit to Quintsee made earlier this month by a group of kids from Quinzee.

They arrived Saturday afternoon and will be touring the sights and sites - from Lexington and Concord to Plymouth Rock until their departure tomorrow [Friday].

The visits grew out of an exchange of letters that has been going on for the past three or four years between students at the Quinzee School and kids from the various other Quinzees and Quintzees around the country.

Chief planners were Daniel Malvesta, principal of the Quinzee School; his assistant, Gene Ronayne, and Charles Finch, a sixth grade teacher in the Adams School in Quinzee.

The 36 youngsters from Quinzee left for Quinzee April 7 for a tour of the land where Mark on the Mississippi and young Abraham Lincoln practiced law and debated Stephen Douglas.

Now it's Quinzee's turn to entertain Quinzee.

The week's schedule for the 53 visitors, most of whom are staying with host families with the overflow housed at the Holiday Inn in Randolph, goes like this:

Sunday - A visit to the New England Aquarium in Boston and a tour of the Freedom Trail with a box lunch on historic Boston Common.

Monday - A tour of Quinzee, including a meeting with Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia and visits to the Adams birthplaces, the Adams National Historic Site, the Quincy Homestead, Adams Academy, the Winthrop Iron Furnace and the Granite Railway Incline.

Tuesday - Tours of the Coast Guard Station at Point Allerton and the South Weymouth Naval Air Station with a cruise among the islands of Quinzee Bay and Boston Harbor, concluding with a splash party at the Lincoln-Hancock pool.

Wednesday - A visit to the State House in Boston to meet Gov. Michael Dukakis and then tour Lexington and Concord with a box lunch on Battle Green in Lexington.

Thursday - A trip to Plymouth for a tour of Plimoth Plantation, the good ship Mayflower and historic Plymouth with luncheon at Mayflower Pier.

A farewell evening will be held tonight [Thursday] at 7:30 p.m. in the Quinzee High School Method Center with talks by Mayor LaRaia, City Council President Arthur H. Tobin and Vice Chairman John J. Sullivan of the School Committee.

The kids from Quinzee will leave for home tomorrow [Friday] at 12:30 p.m. after brief goody ceremonies at the Quinzee School.

And in honor of the visit, Mayor LaRaia has proclaimed this week "Quincy Illinois Week" in Quinzee.

Clyde Goodman

'Outstanding Young Man'

Clyde B. Goodman of 68 Sea Ave., Houghs Neck, has been named an Outstanding Young Man of America for 1976, and his complete biography will appear in the annual biographical compilation, "Outstanding Young Men of America".

The program recognizes men between the ages of 21 and 36 for their outstanding civic and professional contributions to their communities, states, and their nation.

Senior High School Lunch

Monday, May 3 - Grilled frankfurter in a hot dog roll, baked corn, chocolate macaroon cake, beverage.

Tuesday, May 4 - Make your own chicken salad submarine sandwich, french fries, cole slaw, beverage.

Wednesday, May 5 - Spaghetti w/meat balls, buttered green beans, french bread and butter, italian cookies, beverage.

Thursday, May 6 - Institute Day.

Friday, May 7 - Grape punch, italian baked pizza w/cheese topping, potato chips, beverage.

N.E. Electric Pays $48.3 Million Tax Bill

New England Electric System [NEES] announces its subsidiary companies paid a total property tax bill of $48.3 million for 1975 - an increase over 1974 of nearly 7 percent.

New England Electric is the parent of Massachusetts Electric Company, New England Power Company, Narragansett Electric Company and Granite State Electric Company.

Unlike most industries, investor-owned electric companies pay taxes on personal property at the local property tax rate. In 1975, NEES companies paid property taxes in 325 cities and towns in four states: Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Vermont.

As in past years, the largest amount of taxes went to communities in Massachusetts. To those communities, Massachusetts Electric and New England Power paid a total of $37.8 million in property taxes. In New Hampshire, Granite State Electric and New England Power paid $2.5 million; in Rhode Island, Narragansett Electric paid a total of $6.2 million; and in Vermont, New England Power paid $1.8 million.

First Ladies Open 2nd Track Season With New Coach

The Quincy girls' track team opened its second official season Tuesday against Newton and Friday will go to Brockton to face the always-powerful Brockton girls.

The First Ladies have a new coach in Cathy Ilacqua, who moves up from Sterling Junior high and feels she has the nucleus of a team capable of having a winning season.

"We have a young team with only sophomores and juniors, but what they lack in experience they make up for in effort and team spirit," Miss Ilacqua said. "The girls in general are strong in all running events and also look good in the field events, especially the high jump, long jump and discus.

"Although we are taking one meet at a time, some eyes already are on the state meet in which we hope to have a large number of qualifiers."

The new coach lists the girls with their best events as follows: Ellen Caramanica and Karen Kimball, mile; Heidi Dolan and Dottie Irvine, half mile; Paula Constat and Julie Deery, 440; Lisa DeSantis and Joanne St. Pierre, 220; Donna Caporale, Sherry Craig and Patty Martin, 100; Lynn Walter and Maryann Caggiano, hurdles; Peggy O'Neill and Carol Gallagher, discus; Delores Connors, javelin; Kelley Tobin and Jody Yurkstas, high jump; Mary Ilacqua, long jump; Carol Hickey and Cindy Leaman, shot put.

Raiders 3rd In State Relays

The North Quincy track team, 4-0 for the year and 2-0 in the Suburban League, finished third in last Saturday's State Coaches Relays, trailing only champion Andover and defending champion Reading in Class B.

Lou Tozzi's Raiders, who hope to add the spring state Class B title to their cross country and winter track crowns, won javelin and 440.

Jim Hanrahan, Mike Nee and Peter Hemphill combined to win the javelin, while Matty King, Brian Doherty, Matty Constantino and Nee teamed up to win the 440.

North placed second in the pole vault, third in the distance medley, fourth in the shuttle relay and fifth, in the two-mile.

North, with several performers still under par physically, just got by Waltham, 74-71, earlier last week for its fourth straight win and second in the league.

North At Brookline, Quincy Hosts Waltham

North Quincy's baseball team, with a 3-2 record, and Quincy, with a 3-3 mark, will be in action Friday when North travels to Brookline and Quincy hosts Waltham at 3:30 at Adams Field.

Monday, North hosts Brockton at Adams and Quincy plays at Weymouth North and next Wednesday it will be Weymouth South at Quincy and North at Weymouth North.

The first meeting of the season between Quincy and North scheduled for Monday was postponed to Tuesday by the inclement weather.

Last Thursday Paul Vespaziani just missed a no-hitter as Quincy nipped Brookline, 1-0.

Vespaziani, in making his season's record 2-0 and his lifetime mark for the Presidents 5-2, threw only 64 pitches. With one out in the seventh and last inning Mike Spillane hit one of his fast balls for a clean single into center field for Brookline's only hit. He was aided by two outstanding defensive plays, leaping catch by second baseman Eric Carrera, who landed on his back but held the ball, and center fielder Jerry Martin's great running catch of a 350-foot drive by Bill Simmons.

Quincy had only three hits, two by Carrera, and scored the only run on a bloop single by Martin to score Dick MacKay, who had reached on an error and went to third when the catcher's throw went into centerfield on a stolen base.

North Quincy bowed to Cambridge Latin, 4-2, with all runs scoring in the first inning.

Mike Kelly lost a four-hitter as the Raiders also had only four hits. Walt McGilvary had two of the hits. Kelly struck out 10 and issued only two walks.

Earlier in the week North bombed Newton, 11-2, as Mike Holleran pitched 5 2/3 innings for the win and Pete Fallon worked in relief. They combined for a three-hitter.

The Raiders had a field day at the plate and featured a six-run sixth inning.

Quincy was held to one hit and dropped a 1-0 squeaker to Rindge Tech as Lou Fishman lost a four-hitter. Ed Daley's single was the only hit for Quincy.

Koch N.Q. Baseball League Registration

Registrations will continue through the week of May 3. Boys are assigned to teams according to age. Divisions include: 5 and 6 years Cadets; 7 and 8 years Juniors; 9 and 10 years Intermediates; and 11 and 12 years Seniors.

The Cadet Division is scheduled to play every Monday and Wednesday evening at Atlantic Junior High School, Hollis Ave., North Quincy. The Junior Division will meet every Monday and Wednesday evening at Cavanagh Stadium. Intermediates will also use Cavanagh Stadium Tuesday and Thursday evenings as their home field.

The Senior Division will play Tuesday and Thursday nights at Atlantic Junior High School field. All games are at 6 p.m.

With two convincing non-league wins, Coach Eileen Rowbotham looks for a successful Suburban League season for her North Quincy girls' tennis team.

The Raiderettes, 5-0 winners over Canton and 4-1 winners over Milton, hosted Brockton yesterday [Wednesday], will be home to Weymouth South Friday and will meet Brookline Monday at Longwood.

Ms. Rowbotham has a fine nucleus of veterans with eight girls returning from last year.

The veterans are senior captain Elaine Shea, juniors Cindy Driscoll, Jean LaCamera and Mary Ellen Meehan and sophomores Sharon Bortolotti, Donna Chiampa, Lisa Contos and Helena Lawlor.

Chris Bonoli is the only other senior. Betty Donovan is another junior, Linda Ayles, Rose Befera and Karen Pike are sophomores and Maureen O'Malley, Maureen Santry and Carol Watt are promising freshmen. Linda Tyler is the manager.

"The girls played fine tennis in the non-league matches and I think we should do well in the league this year," Ms. Rowbotham said.

Quincy Squirt B's Win 4 To Wrap Up Tourney

Quincy's Squirt B hockey team won four games in a row last week to win the title in the South Shore Invitational Tournament at the Youth Arena.

Excellent goaltending by John Palmer and Timmy O'Connell highlighted Quincy's performances.

In its opening game Quincy topped Braintree, 6-1. Paul Marshall, Mike McArdle, Kevin Greene, Mike O'Hare, Dennis Cronin and Dickie Tapper had the goals. Tapper, O'Hare, Greene, Marshall, Bobby McCabe and Brian Chase had assists.

Quincy then defeated the Quincy C team, 5-3, with Tapper.

and Marshall having two goals each and Brian Chase one. Marshall, Peter Quinn, Rick Reardon and Billy Campbell had assists.

Hyde Park was the next victim, 6-1, with O'Hare, Tapper, Greene, Marshall, Dennis Cronin and White having the goals. Costello had three assists, McCabe two and Chase, Greene, McArdle, Tapper and Cronin one apiece.

Quincy finished up with a 6-3 win over South Boston with two goals for Reardon and Greene and one each for Chase and Costello. Campbell, Quinn, Greene, Cronin, Reardon and Allan had assists.

Quincy Bantam B's Wear S.S. Tourney Crown

Quincy's Bantam B team won the South Shore Invitational Tournament crown last week, winning four straight games at the Youth Arena.

Quincy began with a 2-1 win over Braintree with Bobbie Currier and John Mullen having the goals and Currier, Mullen and Danny Sullivan assists.

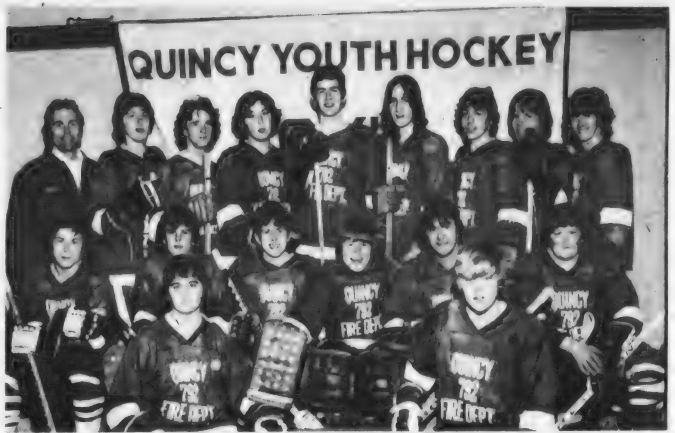

Next came a 4-0 decision over Brockton with two goals by Tommy Geary and one each for Mullen and Mike Walsh. Danny Cronin had three assists and Geary, Walsh and Chickie Milford one apiece.

Quincy then edged Quincy's other entry, 2-1, on goals by Mullen and Currier. Sullivan had an assist.

The fourth and final game went into double overtime with Quincy defeating Weymouth, 3-2. Mullen scored the winning goal at 1:30 of the second overtime with Currier and Freddy Palmer assisting. The first goal was scored by Steve White with Mullen assisting and Milford scored with eight minutes left in regulation time to tie the score. Geary and Cronin assisted.

Billy Oakes and Jackie Quigg shared the goalie duties and were outstanding throughout the tournament.

Midget A's Clinch First Place

The J. L. Club, the Quincy Midget A hockey team, clinched first place in the league with a 2-1 win over Hyde Park.

Quincy finished with a 25-3-2 league record. The playoffs began this week.

Marc Basch and Richard Horrihan scored the goals in the Hyde Park win, with assists for Sean Barry, Tom McGrath and Horrihan.

Earlier the Mite A's had defeated Norwell/Scituate Braves, 6-2, with Horrihan and Bobby Kane scoring twice each and Basch and Barry Milten once apiece. Jim Milano had two assists and John Reinhardt, Basch, Ted Hohman, Barry, McGrath and Kane one each.

Goalie Timmy Collins sparkled in both games.

3 From ENC On All-Star Team

The Eastern Nazarene college basketball team dominated the Naismith Conference all-star team with three starters, the co-Most Valuable Player and the coach.

The Crusaders, unbeaten in the conference, were led by outstanding freshman guard Peter Ribiero, who was named the co-MVP with Barrington's Pat Reed. Gordie Wetmore and Mike Barefoot also made the star team and ENC's Jim Smith is the Coach of the Year.

Ribiero averaged 14 points a game and had a league-leading 54 assists. Barefoot averaged 19.5 points a game and Wetmore had a 15.2 average.

Quincy Rugby Club Sporting 3-1 Record

The Quincy Rugby Club has a 3-1 record going into a tournament Saturday at Harvard Stadium.

19-Year-Old Coach

75 Turn Out For Sterling Girl's Track Team

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Sterling Junior High girls' track team may have the youngest coach in the state in 19-year-old Geoff Hennessy, a former North Quincy High star.

And Geoff, a member of the Quincy Track Club for which he not only runs but is manager, statistician and assistant coach, has created enough interest at Sterling to have 75 girls turn out.

"I simply tried to create interest by advertising the program with posters and announcements and was delighted with the fine turnout," said Hennessy, now a sophomore at UMass/Boston. "After two weeks of practice the squad is down to about 50 girls, all good prospects. Each grade has some outstanding performers."

In the seventh grade Sue Hanscom and Maryann Frazier are outstanding sprinters, Denise McCall is a gifted runner with speed and endurance who can run just about any event and is experienced in road racing. She will be the best bet in the 440.

Robin Ford and Kathy O'Shea are other good prospects and Terry Zerega could be a surprise if she recovers from a leg injury. Joanie Fantuccio and Vanessa Sisti are fine shot put prospects and Lisa Guglielmi looks good in the high jump.

Other seventh graders are Marie Campbell, Lisa Glynn, Ruth Kissel, Lynn LaPierre, Laura Signorini, Lee Stellberger and Donna Thomas.

The eighth graders are real "power runners, talented and very coachable," according to Hennessy. Lucia Fabrizio is a seasoned veteran in the 100 and high jump and Jane Righini, a Quincy Track Club standout, Donatella Fabrizio, Joan Eagles, Lynn McCarthy and Ruth Tanguay are all veteran sprinters.

"The half mile is owned by Patty LaPierre," Hennessy said. "She is an outstanding individual on and off the track. She is a true leader and is the type of person needed for a good track program. She has placed in several road races at Fresh Pond and I consider her one of the finest distance runners for her age in the city, if not the state."

Linda Hennessy, another runner with a fine attitude, Donna Ekblom, Carol Mavor, Jane Doherty and Rita Pasqualone are other half mile prospects.

Donatella Fabrizio and Patty LaPierre head the long jumpers and Daniela DiBona [28 feet in practice], Maryliz Belmonte and Joyce Boddie the best shot putters. Lucia Fabrizio and Lynn McCarthy are the best high jumpers and other eighth graders are Sandy Cahill, Mary Ciani, Nancy Colletta and Lisa Mackey.

Most of the ninth graders were in gymnastics until last week but Hennessy has hopes for Nancy McKinnon, Mary Staples, and Linn MacDonald in the mile. Other veterans are Lois Guglielmi and Sharon Zerega, both QTC members. Sue Milani looks good in the shot put and Lisa Ricci, Noreen O'Malley, Teresa McRudin and Lori Smith are fine runners.

Darlene MacDonald, Michelle Cocio and Mariellen Cedrone are the managers.

Hennessy takes runners to road races at Fresh Pond and will take them to various track meets in May and June.

Geoff hopes to register several of the girls in the QTC this summer and also plans a clinic for all sixth graders who will be going to Sterling next year.

The Sterling girls were to open their season yesterday [Wednesday] against Point at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

YMCA Aquathon Raises $8,800

A total of 331 swimmers took part in the Quincy YMCA's fourth annual aquathon which raised $8,800 to sponsor youngsters to YMCA camps in the United States and other countries through World Service.

The aquathon was kicked off officially by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia who fired the gun that sent representatives of the city, including his wife, Louise, splashing into the water.

Other celebrity swimmers included City Councillor Paul D. Harold; Fred Lane, director of Quincy Heritage; Claire Valle, YMCA board of directors; Bill Walker, aquatic director of the Lincoln-Hancock Community School.

Also Fred Reinsch, reporter for The Patriot Ledger; Richard O'Brien, a teacher at Montclair School; Ralph Koelsch, a teacher at Central Junior High School; and Holly Rendle, daughter of Jim Rendle of the YMCA staff.

Paul Harvey, senior program director, said the 18 Quincy public schools that participated raised a total of $1,500 in pledges.

Top contributors were Mass Fields $377, Central Junior High $230, Atlantic Junior High $82, Lincoln Hancock $161, Atherton Hough $117, Montclair $145, Parker $70, Sterling Junior High $115, and Quincy Point Junior High $50.

Sheri and Marilyn Mele and Cathy Cairnes of the Wollaston Credit Union raised nearly $200 while other companies supporting the YMCA effort included Burgin and Platter Insurance, Boston Gear, Gillette International and Quincy City Hospital.

Quincy Junior Baseball Opens 26th Season

Quincy Junior Baseball opens its 26th season this weekend with full slates of games scheduled for the 13-year-old Babe Ruth, the Junior, the Triple A and the Junior Farm Divisions.

The Babe Ruth Division will open on the weekend of May 22-23, and the Quincy team in the South Shore Senior Babe Ruth League will get underway on Thursday, June 3.

The openers this weekend include:

Saturday, 13-year-old Babe Ruth - Bruins v. Celtics at Adams Field, Lobsters v.

Patriots at Merrymount Park, and Red Sox v. Minutemen at Fore River Field.

Sunday, Junior - Colonial Federal v. Elks at Faxon One, Keohane's v. Kiwanis at Faxon Two, Rotary v. VFW at Faxon One, and Boston Gear v. Burgin-Platter at Faxon Two.

Sunday, Triple A - Mets v. Tigers, and White Sox v. Dodgers.

Saturday, Junior Farm - Dodgers v. Cubs at Artery Field, Red Sox v. Indians at Faxon One, Orioles v. Giants at Faxon Two, Yankees v. Tigers at Faxon One, and Braves v. Pirates at Faxon Two.

You get (1) An exclusive rust neutralizing penetrant that goes down to the bare metal and stops existing rust in its tracks. (2) A special aluminum sealant that keeps out moisture and prevents rust from ever starting again. That's why Tuff-Kote can guarantee its newer car rustproofing for five full years. And that's why only Tuff-Kote can effectively rustproof used cars, and guarantee them for two years. If you own a used car, Tuff-Kote is the only one who can effectively rustproof it. If you own a new car, Tuff-Kote is the only one who should.

LaRaia, Gillis Agree On Pay Hike For Election Workers

[Cont'd from Page 1]

Chandler, who is president of the Quincy Citizens Association, and Scherer will succeed Robert LeBlanc and Thomas H. Blacklock.

"I hold both Mr. LeBlanc and Mr. Blacklock in high esteem," said LaRaia. "It's just that I want to get others involved."

Mayor LaRaia was one of those most intimately affected by the 1975 election mixup.

He won election over then-Mayor Walter J. Hannon by a margin of 473 votes after a recount reversal disclosed that 300 votes in blocks of 50 had been erroneously credited to Hannon instead of him, a difference of 600 votes.

Early in February, before the inquest was convened by Judge Kramer, the Mayor told The Quincy Sun that he felt someone had tried to job him out of the election.

"I don't think that feeling will ever escape regardless of what happens in the final analysis," he said then.

This week he indicated to The Sun that his feelings had not been changed by the inquest.

"Everyone draws his own conclusions about the election and they are entitled to do that," he said. "I would just as soon let the inquest report stand. But I still have my own thoughts about it."

The report of the inquest, which heard 26 witnesses in six public and one private sessions between Feb. 19 and March 26, came to these conclusions:

● "The evidence refutes the hypothesis that there was an intentional error by some person other than the election workers."

● "No informant or witness reported any evidence that could substantiate a theory of a conspiracy between two or more of the election workers."

● "There is no reasonable basis to believe that any of the 12 election workers involved in the six 50-vote errors committed an intentional error or was guilty of a willful, criminal violation of the election laws."

● "The evidence does, however, clearly suggest that the arrangement of the tally sheet and the absence of a zero or other mark next to the top-listed candidate decidedly favors the top-listed candidate when errors occur."

Hannon's name was listed first on the tally sheets.

The inquest, however, showed up a number of flaws in the election procedures employed in Quincy.

"Chronologically," said the report, "the first error appears to have been a failure to appoint election officers in the manner prescribed by [law]."

"The appointive system used in Quincy fails to satisfy the requirements of the law in several respects."

"First, it does not appear that the statutory timetable was met."

"Second, it appears that the city committee chairmen were denied their lawful role in the process."

"Third, and perhaps most significant, it appears that the power of appointment vested by law in the Mayor was, in fact, exercised by the City Clerk."

The inquest report noted several violations of election law which were not connected to the six errors in question.

It said the warden at one polling place took a ballot out to a parked car to permit two elderly women to vote in violation of the law which says:

"No person shall remove any ballot from the space enclosed by the guardrail before the polls are closed."

It said another election worker distributed Hannon campaign material to fellow election workers in spite of the law which bans such material within 150 feet of the polling place.

It noted that some ballots were removed from ballot boxes when they became full without the legal safeguards being taken to supervise and protect them.

"The electoral process is a delicate process," said the report. "Voters will only exercise their franchise if they have confidence in the integrity of the system."

"The appearance of impropriety in the way election officers handled ballots and campaign material can only detract from that public confidence. Therefore, irregularities of this nature cannot be tolerated."

The report said, however, no charges would be brought against any of the election workers since they were granted immunity in testifying before the inquest and "there is insufficient evidence to indicate that the violations were willful."

It recommended that City

Clerk John Gillis implement the following corrective procedures:

● "Establish a uniform method of counting ballots which would clearly prohibit the use of the 'flash count' system [that is, counting votes in blocks of 50 for each candidate]."

● Establish a uniform practice for the tabulating and transposing process which would require that blocks of votes be entered on the total sheet in numerical order, that zeros be entered in the total column whenever a candidate receives no votes, and that all entries on the tally and total sheets be double-checked by the warden and clerk."

● "Prohibit municipal employees and members of the candidates' families from serving as election officers and providing badges to election officials so that they would be easily recognizable."

Gillis declined to comment on the report until he had a chance to confer with the other members of the Board of Registrars of Voters.

Hearing Continued

Proposed North Quincy Restaurant Runs Into Opposition

By TOM BRADY

The City Licensing Board Tuesday continued for one week a hearing on a request from Peter Prasinos for a license to open a new restaurant at 67 Hancock St. in North Quincy after more than 20 people expressed their opposition to the plan.

Prasinos, owner of Peter's Restaurant, a well known Quincy restaurant, told the board he planned to open a "Class A place" and that his lease of land next to the restaurant for parking would solve traffic problems which might be anticipated by area residents.

Several residents of the area told the board their opposition to the restaurant was based on a serious traffic problem they said would be created due to the restaurant's proximity to the Neponset River Bridge down ramp.

Ward 6 Councillor Dennis Harrington spoke in opposition to the plan saying the design of the Neponset Bridge "pretzel" was a compromise for the businesses in the area.

"To add any more traffic problems there would be a further compromise," Harrington said.

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald, saying he had just checked with the City Solicitor, surprised the board meeting when he said that Prasinos' plan to lease land for parking did not meet city zoning law requirements.

The land used for parking for a facility and the facility itself MacDonald said, "must be under the same ownership." He said a leasing arrangement was not sufficient and asked Prasinos what he would do with the cars if the lease were terminated.

MacDonald said the Licensing Board could not act to grant the license request unless a variance was approved to allow the lease plan.

Because the attorney representing Prasinos was not present at the hearing due to a court appearance, the board voted to continue the hearing for one week.

In another matter, Fire Chief Edward Barry informed the board a recent fire at M. Sugarman & Co., was fed by large amounts of unbalanced scrap paper stored in the company's yard at 299 Centre St.

Rubin Sugarman, the owner, told the board that the paper problem was caused by an early closing of the company that day due to the Passover holiday and added that in the future all unbalanced paper will be removed from the yard before closing.

The board took no action on the complaint, but warned Sugarman that any further problems of the kind would result in the revocation of the company's license to operate.

Another action by the board resulted in the temporary closing of Best Pals, a restaurant in Quincy Point which has been operating without a proper license for several weeks because the Health and Fire Departments have not approved the eating place's equipment.

The board ordered the restaurant owner, Michele Reed, to close until the departments approve the sprinkler system and dishwashing system and set the hours of the restaurant at 5 a.m. to 7 p.m. Rep. Robert Cerasoli complained of groups of youths taking harbor from police in the restaurant late at night on weekends.

The board also approve a request from Bethany Congregational Church for a license to operate a flea market in the church hall May 1 from 10 to 4.

In response to problems with vendors which have arisen at parades held in the city, the board voted to establish a policy "to restrict the sale of novelties to local non-profit organizations who appear before this board to gain approval prior to each parade."

Board Chairman John Gillis pointed out after the vote that the City Solicitor Thomas Williams advice was that this city restriction does apply to all persons whether they hold state peddlers license or not, and that a state peddlers license alone does not permit anyone to sell novelty goods at parades in Quincy.

LaRaia, Council In Closed Door Budget Meeting

prepared the budget this year and possible layoffs and cutbacks in services. I expect that the criticism will not diminish but I hope we can reach agreement."

One of the sore points between the Mayor and the Council is LaRaia's reported plan to lay off 18 policemen in an economy move.

To prevent that, the City Council passed an ordinance, complete with emergency preamble, that would forbid the firing of any permanent city employee until all temporary or provisional employees had been terminated.

The Mayor said he plans to veto it.

The tax rate for fiscal 1975 was pegged at $159.90 by the outgoing administration of Mayor Walter J. Hannon. It was the same in fiscal 1974.

LaRaia blames many of the ills of his administration's bout with the budget on the refusal of Hannon to submit a "realistic" budget in an election year.

The Mayor has said that at least $10 on the 1976 tax rate can be attributed to Hannon's failure to raise taxes to cover the costs of government.

NBC Pays $5 Million For 'Gone With The Wind'

TONY RANDALL will wind up on the stage of Symphony Hall Friday, May 7, when Ch. 2 turns 21. Randall will be the guest of ARTHUR FIEDLER and The Boston Pops during "Channel 2 Night at the Pops". The special will be televised live from Symphony Hall... The Hollywood chapter of the National TV Academy will honor MARY TYLER MOORE at this year's Academy Ball in November. The five-time Emmy winner will be recognized for "her outstanding contributions to the advancement of television." Mary is the fourth woman to be so honored. Previous winners include LUCILLE BALL, CAROL BURNETT and DINAH SHORE... NBC paid $5 million for this coming season's showing of "Gone With The Wind". They hope to turn around and charge their advertisers $7 million for spots during the evening. Advertisers are being asked for $234,000 per minute or $117,000 for 30 seconds of air time while CLARK GABLE and VIVIAN LEIGH romp through the Civil War... LOU GORDON fans will be glad to know that the talk-show host is returning to his show this weekend... Ch. 2's broadcast of "Zalmen And The Madness of God" was postponed last February to accommodate a Boston stage production of the same work. WGBH plans to reschedule their version of the powerful drama next Thursday, May 6. The play will be performed by JOSEPH WISEMAN and the Arena Stage Theatre of Washington, D.C... JOANNE WOODWARD has been signed to star in Lorimar Productions four-hour version of "Sybil" for NBC. The project is based on FLORA RHETA SCHREIBER's non-fiction work about a woman with 16 personalities. Miss Woodward will play a psychiatrist in the film... "The Adams Chronicles" continues to chalk up records. In New York, it drew the biggest audience ever for the public broadcasting station there. Estimates are that the show has been getting a weekly audience of almost four million viewers... FLIP WILSON, who left NBC to do a series of four specials for CBS will return to NBC later this summer to guest host "The Tonight Show" for one full week while JOHNNY CARSON is on vacation... Popular comedian DAVID BRENNER will have his own comedy series next season. He'll be playing a Cape Cod housewife in "Snips". His boss will be LESLEY ANN WARREN, who is seen almost every season in the repeat broadcasts of "Cinderella"... JACK KLUGMAN will also join the "Mystery Movie" line-up in "Quincy", yet another detective series... RAYMOND BURR is also expected to star in another series. However, he has his choice of two at the moment. At this writing, no final selection had been announced... HUEY LONG and JIM THORPE will both be the subjects of made-for-TV films next season on NBC... GLEN CAMPBELL is expected to arrive in Australia momentarily to begin work on his May 20 special, OLIVIA NEWTON-JOHN will serve as guest... The Census Bureau has announced that with approximately 71 million households in the United States, more than 94 per cent contain television sets, and 60 per cent are color. A similar sampling showed that only 71 per cent owned washing machines.

ANSWERS

Tips On Submitting News Items

Here are a few tips to readers and publicity chairmen who submit social, church, fraternal and veterans organizational news items to The Quincy Sun for publication.

Deadline for all such items is Monday noon. This means they should be in The Sun office, 1372 Hancock St., by that time.

Because of the heavy flow of news into the office and a space problem affecting all newspapers these days, we cannot guarantee publication in that particular week's issue. But items in first will be given priority.

News releases should be typed double spaced. If no typewriter is available, they should be printed. This is to avoid misspelling of names and garbling of information.

The name and telephone number of the person submitting the item should be included in case there are any questions pertaining to the information.

We are sorry but we cannot handle social-church-fraternal news items on the telephone.

Information should include the name of the organization, the event to be held, the date, place and time, name of speaker if there is one, full name of committee chairmen and committee members.

The Sun's policy is not to use nicknames.

Since The Sun is a community oriented newspaper, items concerning happenings in the city are given priority. But we are also interested in events outside of the city in which Quincy residents are participating.

We encourage you to submit news items regarding yourself or organization. That is what The Sun is all about.

But following the above tips will make it easier for us to do a better job for you.

Thank you.

'Heritage And Horizons' Theme

11th Annual 'Step Into Society' At Central Junior

By POLLY DREDGE

Central Junior High School's 11th annual "Step Into Society" is being held this week with the theme "Heritage And Horizons".

Main goal of the week-long program is to provide students with an opportunity to recall a rich heritage, to view their own position in a demanding society today, and to look to the future, with special emphasis on career awareness.

A career day will be held in the school's learning center today (Thursday) and exhibitors from several area schools and businesses will be present. Exhibitors include:

Students in the culinary arts program at Quincy Vocational Technical School will prepare lunch for the visitors, and members of the junior high's earlybird Breakfast Club will serve the lunch.

Hosts and hostesses for the day will be: Denise Romano, Robert Welch, Thomas Dunn, Margaret Burchill, Robert Harnais and Bruce Hiltunen.

Miss Kay Healey of the Division of Social Security will be present to help ninth graders file applications for their social security numbers if they have not received one.

Mrs. Olive Hodgkins will operate the computer terminal, Time Share, in the guidance office to provide college information.

On Friday parents and friends of Central are invited to an open house from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. Special activities have been planned including a gymnastics demonstration, jewelry making, a foreign film festival, an open rehearsal of the May musical revue, slide presentations, food sampling, or student speeches.

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia opened the week's activities by joining Central principal Vincent Moscardelli in presenting certificates to 27 ninth graders who scored above the 90th percentile on the National Development Test.

The Chapel Choir, under the direction of Mrs. Catherine Carnabuci, sang "Shepherd Me, Lord" and "Ave Verum" in a salute to the late Merle Sawyer, former principal of the Massachusetts Fields School. Many Central students attended the elementary school, and knew Miss Sawyer.

The school band, under the direction of Bernard Goldstein, played "A Patriotic Medley", and keys to the city were presented to the California exchange students.

Mistress of ceremonies was Kathleen Mahoney, president of the ninth grade class.

Guest speakers during the week included: Senator-City Council President Arthur H. Tobin, former Mayor-Senator James McIntyre, Sheriff Clifford Marshall, Quincy Heritage Director Fred Lane, William Flavin, Allen Wardle, Carolyn Donahue, Emma Hassan, Mary Ann Bender, James Kelley, Alicia Coietti.

International students who spoke were: Koufkin Mubandza of Swaziland, John Dayiaoulou of Nigeria, Joshua Sumitra of India, Staffo, Frederick of Trinidad, Imad, Aziz of Jordan, Samuel Yip, Hong Kong, Sandra Gordor, of the Virgin Islands, Central graduate Wendy Jacob who spent last summer in Germany, and Gretchen Mackay.

Three prizes will be awarded to poster artists whose work in the career art contest reflects a special field of work or a particular occupation.

Coordinator of the week's activities is Mary C. Iannoni, head counselor. She was assisted by counselors Carter C. Caudle and Joseph P. Ryan.

Student hosts and hostesses were: Thomas Veale, Ralph

Pickering, Amy MacLeod, Jeff Connerty, Bruce Tobin, Mark Roden, John Warner, Matthew Kenney, Lori McGrath, Scott Brennan, Tracey Maloney, Linda Morash, Janet Nolan, Kathleen Gray, John McKay, Elizabeth Blakeley, Peter Silverstein, Joseph Mullen, John Leone, Gerald Watts, Nicholas LaHue, Scott Affa, Stephen Robbins, and Ellen MacDonald.

Guides were: Amy Constant, Gary Fine, Diane Kiley, Ralph Pickering, Thomas Quinn, Elizabeth Raimondi, Irene Stevens and John White.

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS DEPT. OF PUBLIC WORKS

PUBLIC NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING

A Public Hearing will be held in Boston, by the Massachusetts Department of Public Works to allow comment on the Draft Environmental Impact Report for the Massachusetts Interstate Safety Program.

WHERE: The Massachusetts Department of Public Works Building, 100 Nashua Street - 4th Floor Auditorium, Boston, Massachusetts.

WHEN: Wednesday, May 5, 1976 at 7:00 P.M.

PURPOSE: The Public Hearing provides an opportunity for public comment on the General Report for the Massachusetts Interstate Safety Program. All views and comments offered at this Hearing will be reviewed and considered in the preparation of the Final Environmental Impact Report.

PROPOSAL: The Program's scope involves upgrading Interstate roadways, constructed prior to the inception of today's recognition of safety applications. Work consists mainly of the removal of fixed hazardous objects and an improvement in the methods used to protect the driver accidentally leaving the highway. In removing fixed objects, grading will be required adjacent to the present highway travelled ways; guard rails will be removed or improved, and signing, lighting, pavements, and traffic control devices upgraded.

The Draft Environmental Impact Report is available for review by contacting the Environmental Section of the Department of Public Works.

Written statements and other exhibits in place of, or in addition to oral statements may be submitted within 10 days of the date of this Hearing to Robert T. Tierney, Chief Engineer, Massachusetts Department of Public Works, 100 Nashua Street, Boston, Massachusetts 02114.

Plans will be on display with an engineer in attendance at the Department of Public Works Auditorium from 6:00 P.M. to 7:00 P.M. on the date of the Public Hearing.

John J. Carroll, Commissioner Robert T. Tierney Chief Engineer.

Pack 36 Dens 3, 8 Tour The Quincy Sun

Cub Scouts from Pack 36, Den 3, and Den 8, visited the offices of The Quincy Sun recently to view the workings of a newspaper firsthand.

The scouts sponsored by Blessed Sacrament Church, live in Houghs Neck.

Den 3 scouts were: Michael Farrand, Michael Dwyer, Thomas Gill, Thomas Boussy, Frank McArdle, and Paul McMillan.

Den mother June Farrand and mascot Marc Farrand also accompanied the scouts on their tour.

Den 8 scouts were: Tod Batson, Jerry Caldwell, Kenneth Christensen, William Gardner, Stephen McGee, and Stephen Richmond.

Den mother Lynda Batson also accompanied her scouts on their tour.

The boys first visited the editorial and advertising departments of the office.

They then toured the production department where they saw the story of their visit set into type on an IBM computer system. They also saw news headlines set on a Compugraphic 7200 photo typesetting machine.

They also saw a paste-up artist fix the story and headline into proper position on paste-up boards.

After a brief explanation of how The Quincy Sun is printed, the scouts asked questions about what they had seen on their tour.

Before leaving the office each scout received a complimentary copy of The Quincy Sun.

31 Schools, 129 Units

Over 3,000 High School Students In Music Festival Here Saturday

More than 3,000 senior high school students from 31 schools, will be visiting Quincy, Saturday to participate in the Southeastern Massachusetts Music Festival and Loyalty Day Parade.

This year's activities will be the largest of its kind in Massachusetts during the past 18 years, according to David Watson, co-chairman of the festival.

Watson and Anthony Ferrante have been organizing the event which is being sponsored by the Quincy Public Schools.

The 31 participating schools will present 129 musical groups which will engage in eight separate categories. The categories will include concert bands, vocal ensembles, instrumental ensembles, marching bands, orchestras, choruses, stage bands and majorettes.

The public is invited to attend both the indoor auditions, starting at 7:45 a.m. to 12:20 p.m. and the parade along Hancock Street in the afternoon.

The indoor auditions will take place at Atlantic Junior High School, North Quincy High School, the North Quincy High School Teale Building, Squantum School and the Myles Standish School. All categories, except the marching bands will participate in the morning auditions.

The marching bands will compete during the afternoon Loyalty Parade which will begin at North Quincy High School at 2 p.m. and will end at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The day's competition will include member of the music departments of various colleges throughout Massachusetts. They will prepare a written critique for each performance they witness.

Frame certificates will be presented to the winners of each competition, although according to Mr. Watson, the real purpose of the competition is the critique the performers will receive.

"The judges we will have are people who have a great deal of knowledge in music," he said. "Their criticism and advice will mean a lot to the kids."

Watson also said the day's competition will be "virtually self-sufficient." He said the festival is almost entirely financed by the various groups and individuals who will participate.

Food concessions are also being planned by the North Quincy Music Parents Organization. Watson said any profit that may result from this venture will go to a scholarship.

Participating senior high schools will be: Millis, Silver Lake Regional, Sharon, Sandwich, Mansfield, Scituate, Avon, Walpole, Wellesley, Quincy, Fall River, Martha's Vineyard, Stoughton, East Bridgewater, Weymouth North, Norwell, Bridgewater-Raynham, Norwood, Abington, Bourne, Wareham, Hanover, Rockland, North Quincy, Foxboro, Randolph, Swansea, Nantucket, Norton, Whitman-Hanson, Westwood.

Admission to the indoor activities will be $1 which will allow persons to visit all of the schools.

Loyalty Day Parade, Ceremonies

The city of Quincy will be host this year for the Massachusetts Veteran of Foreign Wars annual Loyalty Day parade to be held Saturday at 2 p.m.

The national president of the Ladies Auxiliary of the VFW, Mrs. Glenn Grossman, will participate in the parade which will begin at North Quincy High School.

Some 22 marching units will travel the parade route along Hancock St. to Veterans Memorial Stadium where Loyalty Day ceremonies will be held.

Residents of the city, particularly those who live along the parade route, are asked to raise the American flag in honor of Loyalty Day which has become an annual event since 1958.

The Loyalty Day ceremonies will culminate a full day of activities as Quincy will also be host in the morning for the Southeastern Massachusetts Music Festival featuring competition by more than 3,000 senior high school student musicians.

All of the competition, with the exception of the marching band competition, will be completed in the morning. The marching band competition involving more than 1,800 student musicians will be held during the parade and the winners will be announced during the ceremonies at the stadium.

The main speaker during the ceremonies will be John Tynan, former commander of the Massachusetts VFW.

Among the other speakers will be Mrs. Grossman; John Burnett, Massachusetts VFW Commander; Louise Barentine, President of the Massachusetts Ladies Auxiliary and Quincy Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia.

Quincy has received national recognition for its VFW events, according to Thomas M. McDonald, VFW Chairman of the Massachusetts Loyalty Day Parade.

The VFW provided the momentum for establishing Loyalty Day in 1949 during its national convention as a means to combat the Communist demonstrations traditionally held on May 1.

After many long hours of effort by the VFW, the Loyalty Day resolution finally reached Congress and was passed in 1955. However, it wasn't until 1958 that Loyalty Day became an annual celebration.

President Gerald Ford has also proclaimed May 1 as Loyalty Day in the United States.

Brownell Wants State To Pay At Least 50% Of MBTA Deficit

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell has asked Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia to support legislation that would require the state to pick up at least 50 per cent of the MBTA deficit to avoid "a dramatic impact on Quincy's property tax rate."

"It is expected," said Brownell in a letter to LaRaia, "that Quincy's assessment for the 1975 deficit will be about $1.7 million."

"Unless the state picks up at least 50 per cent of this assessment the city of Quincy will experience a sharp increase in property taxes this year."

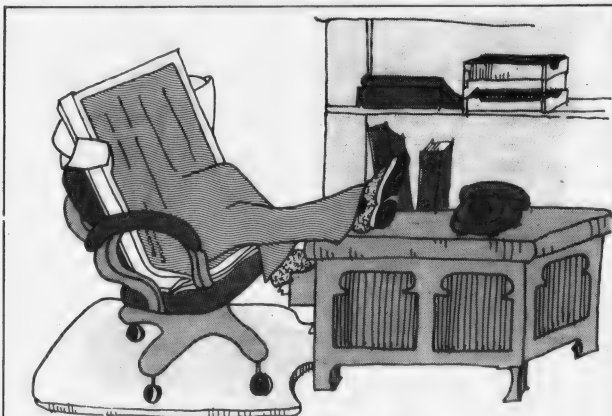

Brownell pointed out that the Joint Legislative Committee on Transportation was scheduled to hold a public hearing yesterday (Wednesday) at 10:30 a.m. on proposals to make the state responsible for large portions of the deficit.

One of the proposals is Brownell's bill requiring the state to take over 65 per cent of the MBTA's losses.

"The governor's 1976 budget allocates only $52 million toward the deficit," said Brownell. "However, it is expected that the deficit will be around $146 million. The governor's plan falls about $18 million short of paying 50 per cent."

"Unless the legislature approves a bill calling for at least 50 per cent funding, the assessments on the 79 communities of the MBTA district including the city of Quincy will experience a sharp increase."

Let's Talk

You've had a Checking Account for years. Right! Maybe you've wondered about or just took for granted the fact that you didn't earn interest with that account. N.O.W. has changed all that and added some things as well. So let's talk about The Weymouth N.O.W. account! First of all it's FREE. No service charge. Now that's a good beginning! But the big thing about N.O.W. is the interest, all 5% of it! It's like getting a savings account that acts like a checking account.

So why not change that old checking account for what's N.O.W.

School Officials 'Shocked' At Mayor's Action

Court Fight Looms Over LaRaia's Refusal To Sign NQHS Bond Issue

By TOM HENSHAW

The School Committee may go to court in an attempt to force Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia to sign the $16 million North Quincy High School bond issue.

Mayor LaRaia dropped a bomb on the City Council Monday night when he disclosed that he will not sign the bond issue because "I do not want to commit the taxpayers in our city to this financial burden."

School Committeeman Charles Sweeney, who was attending the Council meeting, immediately announced that "the School Committee is examining its legal resources to see what can be done to challenge the Mayor."

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon said he is "very disappointed by the action of the Mayor." He called it "a callous disregard of the educational needs" of some 1,500 students.

School Committeeman Christopher F. Kennedy described himself as "shocked" at this "strange action which brings first a crisis in the city's schools and second no relief to the new tax rate."

School Committeewoman Patricia M. Toland said she was "shocked, distressed and disillusioned" at this "ill-advised and short-sighted" decision... "the young people of this city are the real losers."

Work on North Quincy High School, which was scheduled to begin during the summer, is calculated to cost $15 million but the bond issue also includes a million dollars for

MAYOR LA RAI: 'I urge the Council to reduce this budget where possible. [But] unrealistic cuts will jeopardize the effective operation of our city departments.'

Council, School Meeting

Possible $40 Tax Hike Unless Budget Slashed

Unless the Mayor, the City Council and the School Committee can do some sharp pruning of the 1976 budget in the next 45 days, Quincy is faced with a tax rate increase that could be as high as nearly $40.

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia presented the budget to the City Council Monday night, a record high $78.7 million, up $10 million from last year, and he almost pleaded with Councilors to cut it wherever they safely can.

Councilors indicated they'd give it a good try.

No one in authority would predict the tax rate for 1976, although Councilors kicked around $24 and $26 in conversation, but calculated by the old rule of thumb that $265,000 in the budget equals $1 on the rate it would be about $40.

Or $38.70, according to Norman Forde, a Quincy businessman and long time political pot-watcher, who sat right down with pencil and paper and figured it out. The

Layoff Ordinance Checkers

LaRaia Vetoes, Council Comes Up With Another

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia has vetoed a hastily passed city ordinance that would have restricted his power to fire city employees but the City Council Monday night all but ignored him.

Instead of accepting or overriding the veto, the Council substituted another ordinance fixing the size of the Quincy Police Department at its current strength, which was the basic intent of the vetoed ordinance.

And then the whole thing was rendered academic when Mayor

LaRaia submitted his budget for fiscal 1976 containing none of the feared layoffs in the Police Department or any other city department.

The vetoed ordinance provided "that no permanent employee of the city of Quincy shall be terminated for reasons of economic necessity until and unless prior thereto all provisional and temporary employees of the city have been terminated."

Growth Policy Committee In Major Step

Public Hearing Thursday 'Into Quincy's Future'

Quincy's new Growth Policy Committee takes a most important early step tonight [Thursday], a public hearing into the city's future at 7:30 p.m. in City Hall.

Residents are invited to air their feelings on the past, present and future development of the community in order to help the GPC to prepare a statement of local growth problems and priorities.

The committee was created last December with passage of the Growth Policy Development Act by the State Legislature.

Members include Lars Norman Lundin, chairman, Rev. Bedros Baffarian, Dr. E. James Iorio, Dr. Peter V. Corea, Winthrop B. Wade, Catherine Roberts, Anneli Johnson, William A.

O'Connell, Jane Croke, Linda A. Simio, Timothy J. Reidy, Jan A. Rich, Jason Feldman, Beverly Zawacki, Peter O'Connell, Agnes Cooney and Robert Woodman.

The committee has been holding weekly meetings to hear such official speakers as Eldren Fagerlund of the assessors board, Rev. Mr. Baharian of the Planning Board and Robert Woodman of Massachusetts Electric.

Now it's the public's turn. Those who attend the public hearing will be asked to answer a small number of written questions. Any individual who has specific comments may submit them in writing to the committee.

Sample questions contained in a local growth policy questionnaire put out by the state to help the committees in preparing their statements include:

Has growth been encouraged or discouraged by: Changing birth rates? Local property tax rates? Rapid transit services? Recreational facilities? Local zoning? Nearby shopping facilities? Labor force?

Is the community concerned or unconcerned about: Jobs? Housing? Recreation? Shopping? Present available water supply? Wetlands? Open space and scenic vistas? Air quality? Mineral resources?

What has been the impact on the community of: Development in neighboring communities? State and federal investments in transportation? Efforts at conservation? Industrial and commercial growth and development?

Once the GPC gathers input from official and citizen sources, it will write the first draft of a growth policy statement by answering the 20 pages of questions contained in the questionnaire.

The draft will be submitted to a second public hearing, sometime in June, at which time members of the community can comment on the specific findings of the committee, with opposing views particularly encouraged.

The statement, with appropriate amendments to reflect comments gathered at the second hearing, will then be sent as a final report to the Metropolitan Area Planning Council, the regional planning agency for Quincy.

The MAPC will take the statements from its members cities and towns and link them together in a regional statement.

Then the regional reports will be collected by the State Office of Planning which will use the findings as a source of input for structuring land use planning goals for the state.

The Wetmore-McKinnon Commission of the State Legislature, which wrote the Growth Policy Act, will also use the regional reports as a basis for possible future legislative recommendations.

In this way, if and when the state develops a state-wide land use plan it is hoped that it will be responsive to the wishes of local communities.

Sunken Barge Near Town River YC Removed

It took the cooperative effort of a lot of people, including the U.S. Coast Guard, but a sunken barge that has menaced navigation near the Town River Yacht Club was finally removed.

The work was directed by Quincy Harbormaster Ray Giogrande.

He was aided by scuba diver Mike Mauramo, Corps of Engineer Inspectors Bill

Triantafell and Tom Coyle, Bob Moniz, project manager of Hydro-Dredge Corp., and his assistant Joe Pomeroy, and member of the yacht club.

The timely arrival of the Coast Guard with a 2-inch pump to add to the three pumps on the scene was just enough to raise the 15 by 34 foot barge to the surface.

'No Hire, No Fire' City Policy Proposed By QTA

Harry Roemer, executive director of the Quincy Taxpayers Association, has proposed that the city adopt a "no hire, no fire" policy for its employees "until the tax rate is stabilized."

"I am suggesting that no one be hired to fill a retirement vacancy unless the city's health or safety is in jeopardy," said Roemer. "And I am suggesting that no one be fired unless it is for just cause."

"We can start by not replacing Maurice J. Daly, who is retiring as assistant superintendent for vocational education."

Roemer said he called Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia with the suggestion earlier this week and John Salenius, the mayor's administrative aide, promised to pass the word along to His Honor.

"The city of Quincy has a Double A rating which makes it one of the best financially rated cities in Massachusetts," said Roemer. "This was done through good administration. I hope we can keep it that way."

Roemer said he would consider the tax rate stabilized "when it is lowered to or below the last four year average rate, which was $157.38."

He warned Mayor LaRaia to have "no excuses, the budget you are presenting is your budget approved by you and your administration."

The Quincy tax rate for the past 10 years, as compiled by Roemer, reads like this:

Year	Rate	% Change
1966	$ 88.20	-0.8
1967	93.10	+4.5
1968	98.90	+5.7
1969	116.40	+20.3
1970	132.20	+20.8
1971	142.50	+14.6
1972	155.40	+20.0
1973	154.30	-1.7
1974	159.90	+8.9
1975	159.90	0.0

How would you like to come in to some money today?

You can, you know.

Simply stop in at any of our 33 convenient offices and ask about a Customer Option Loan.

A Customer Option Loan—as its name implies—offers a number of options that make borrowing easier.

For one thing, you can take a "Payment Holiday" with a Customer Option Loan—actually skip a payment from time to time without paying a penalty. The payments on a Customer Option Loan can be made on whatever day of the month you wish. And change the day to suit your budget and convenience. What's more, you can earn a Preferred Rate by having your payments automatically deducted from your BayBank Norfolk Trust Checking Account.

When you add it all up, a Customer Option Loan is an ideal way to borrow. Moreover, a Customer Option Loan is based on simple interest, which can save you money in the bargain.

So come in . . . to some money today.

At Law Day Ceremonies

Atty. Edward Libertine Receives Alfred Malaney Award

Atty. Edward H. Libertine of Braintree, whose law office is at 1372 Hancock St., Quincy, was given the Alfred Malaney Memorial Award Monday at Law Day ceremonies in Quincy District Court.

The award was presented for the first time in memory of the late Atty. Alfred Malaney for distinguished legal service by an outstanding member of the bar in Norfolk County.

The Distinguished Service Award for Law Enforcement went to Sgt. Leonard I. Torrey and Patrolman Robert F. Devin, Braintree police officers who were wounded while foiling separate holdup attempts earlier this year.

The Community Service Award was given to the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

Judge Albert L. Kramer, presiding justice of the Quincy District Court, delivered the main remarks on the program, which was dedicated to "200 Years of Liberty and Law".

Other speakers were Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia of Quincy and William D. Delahunt, district attorney of Norfolk County.

Joseph F. Killion, president of the Quincy Bar Association, submitted the Law Day motion.

Invocation was by the Rev. John J. Tierney of St. John's Church, Quincy; scripture reading by Rabbi Jacob J. Mann of Beth Israel Synagogue; and benediction by the Rev. Chester Porteus, rector emeritus of Christ Church.

Institute Day Thursday, No Public School Classes

The Quincy public schools will not be in session today [Thursday] while the school system and the Quincy Education Association [QEA] hold their annual Institute Day.

Professor John T. Cheffers of the School of Education at Boston University and Mary J. Gilmore, President of the Massachusetts Teachers Association [MTA], will be the keynote speakers at the opening session for teachers at 8:30 a.m.

in the Vocational-Technical School gymnasium.

Dr. Cheffers is widely known in education circles for his books on teaching and Rhodesia.

Miss Gilmore, a past president of the Weymouth Teachers Association [WTA], is a graduate of Regis College and has done graduate work at Catholic University.

Theme of Institute Day is "Humanizing Education—Our Living Heritage", according to event coordinator Richard K. Chrystal, Director of Staff Development for the Quincy Public Schools.

Sheets Would Give 'Bombers' 10-Year Sentence

Rep. James A. Sheets [D-Quincy] is filing a bill that would provide a mandatory 10-year sentence "with no probation, parole or furlough" for anyone convicted of placing or trying to place a bomb in a public building.

"I hope the bill, if passed, will deter future episodes such as the bombing of the Suffolk County Courthouse," said Sheets.

As a late filed bill, it will have to be approved by the House Rules Committee before going to the Judiciary Committee and its subcommittee on mandatory sentences.

Forget To Pay Your Taxes?

Monday was the last day to pay the second half 1976 fiscal real estate and personal property tax bills to the City of Quincy without a penalty charge.

All tax payments were due in the Tax Collector's Office, City Hall, by 4:30 p.m.

All payments still owed will be charged eight percent interest from April 1, 1976.

Today's Women

Over 300 Attend 'Step Into The Future' Career Night

More than 300 attended "Step into the Future" held last week at Quincy High School.

The career night for junior high students and their parents was sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women and the Guidance Departments of the Quincy Public Schools.

Over 40 women representing 14 different career areas led discussions about job opportunities for women today and tomorrow. The most heavily attended workshops were animal services, education, health services and communications.

Workshops for girls in less traditional fields were held, however, and many interested students and parents investigated opportunities in law, dentistry, athletics, finance, law enforcement and private business.

The Commission, under the Education task force led by Christina Morrison, Carole Mahoney and Carol Leman sponsored this event to help young women become aware of the opportunities and challenges awaiting them in the world of work.

Interestingly, some of the most enthusiastic responses came from the participants, such as Mary Murray of WJDA, Dennie Daych of Channel 2, Cathy Conley of The Quincy Sun, Dr. Eleanor Shore and Barbara Morgan D.M.D. who felt that the young women showed such interest in future careers.

Many of the participants expressed a desire to volunteer their time again for such an event, saying that they wished such opportunities had been open to them to explore careers at an early age.

Participants and their career categories included:

ANIMAL SERVICES: Susan Fisher, veterinarian; Gini Brown, veterinarian nurse; Linda Wilson, dog groomer; Kathleen O'Rourke, children's zoo.

ARMED FORCES: Sgt. Phyllis Greathouse, Army; Lorraine Cazenave, Coast Guard.

ARTS: Rosemary Broton, art teacher; Cathy Traugott, art student-teacher; Louise Kalish, artist.

CO-CHAIRWOMEN of the Educational Task Force that planned the "Step Into The Future" career night were, from left, Carol Leaman, Carol Mahoney and Christina Morrison.

PARTICIPANTS in career night sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women, included from left, Rosemary Wahlberg, Mary Vallier, Ann Aronson and Mary Weafer.

ATHLETICS: Karen Viafore, gymnast; Mary Pratt, physical education instructor; Sue Kinney, swimming teacher; Dennie Daych, sports publicity.

BUSINESS/OFFICE: Rhonda Merrill, council-aide; Sheila Ward, computer programmer; Ronnie Masston, restaurant manager.

COMMUNICATIONS: Mary Murray, WJDA; Barbara Donelin, Channel 7; Cathy Conley, Quincy Sun.

DENTISTRY: Barbara Morgan D.M.D., dentist; Lynn Chapman, dental assistant; Jane O'Hara, dental hygienist.

EDUCATION: Carole Neitlich, early childhood specialist; Catherine Iacqua, recreation leader; Eunice Allman, teacher-aide; Wilma Shields, science teacher.

FINANCE: Joyce Baker, accountant; Loretta Philbrick, bank executive; Trudy Buckley, investment broker; Eleanor Tanofsky, real estate broker; Sarah Saccone, budget director.

HEALTH SERVICES: Eleanor Shore M.D., physician; Eleanor Veale, lab technician; Marie Sullivan, registered nurse; Jacqueline Roncarati, physical therapist.

LAW: Danielle deBenedictis, lawyer; Glenyes Connors, professional legal secretary; Marilyn LeBlanc, para-legal assistant.

LAW ENFORCEMENT: Diana Odell, probation officer; Barbara DiNatale, police officer; Diane McCarthy, security manager.

PRIVATE BUSINESS: Priscilla Johnsen, antique and craft shows; Barbara D'Andrea, plant shop; Cynthia Bouchard, printing business.

SOCIAL SERVICES: Rosemary Wahlberg, community leader; Mary Vallier, director of program for alcoholics; Ann Aronson, librarian; Mary Weafer, city planner.

Equal Rights Amendment Panel Discussion At City Hall

The Equal Rights Amendment [ERA] was the subject of a panel discussion by proponents of the proposed amendment Wednesday night [7:30 p.m.] in the Council Chambers at City Hall.

The discussion, which will serve also as an informational meeting for all interested persons, will deal with a wide spectrum of ERA issues.

City Council President Arthur Tobin and Councillor Paul Harold joined seven women, including Congressional candidate Danielle de Benedictis of Milton, on the panel.

Other participants Marge Schiller of the State Committee to Ratify the ERA; Shirley Dunbar and Carol Mahoney, both members of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women; Janet Poole, president of the Quincy League of Women Voters; Alicia Colletti, chairman of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women and member of the South Shore Women's Caucus; and Joan Simpson, a member of the Massachusetts Union of Public Housing Tenants.

Babysitting Cooperative To Meet May 10

The Quincy Babysitting Cooperative will meet Monday, May 10, at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Candy Warren, 74 Parker

AND LEAVE THE DRIVING TO THEM

Greyhound Lines, Inc., the largest bus line in the world, has just announced a new service specially designed to assist the handicapped when traveling by bus.

Known as the "Helping Hand Program", the service features a special fare that allows a companion to travel free to assist any handicapped person needing help in boarding, traveling on, and exiting from a bus. [All that is required for eligibility is a written statement from a doctor, stating that the bearer needs help while on a bus.]

Greyhound is also remodeling many of its terminals to more comfortably accommodate the handicapped traveler. New additions - such as wider doors, ramps, handrails and special restroom devices - are already being constructed. Greyhound is asking all other bus companies to join with them in this program and are also contacting organizations representing the interests of handicapped persons to obtain their support as well as their guidance.

Needs Help

Q. Perplexed daughter needs help! Perhaps the answer lies in the stars. My daughter was born on October 16, 1943 at 2:01 A.M. in Lynn, Mass. Is she destined never to marry?

She is a highly intellectual person with a master's degree. Active in sports, skiing, tennis, swimming, sailing [owns her own sailboat] and has traveled extensively throughout the U.S.A. and Europe. She is a supervisor of an industrial lab and paid an excellent salary.

Would you believe that she has had fifteen steady beaus since her college days? She would meet a fellow, go with him a short time then meet another person, drops one and ultimately finds that she did not make the right decision. At present she is in the same predicament with two beaus, one a Virgo, the other a Sagittarius [I do not know their birthdates]. She is afraid that she is going to make the wrong choice again.

Perplexed

A. All you write about her is clearly indicated in her chart. The planets Mercury conjunct Neptune in the Sign of Libra in very favorable aspect to Uranus in Gemini in the Tenth House [recognition, profession, etc.] shows her brilliant progressive mentality.

Her activity in the various outdoor sports is shown by the favorable aspect between Mars and Jupiter [found in the charts of most outstanding professional athletes]. The love of travel by Sagittarius on the Fifth House cusp [pleasure] and its "ruler" Jupiter in her Ascendant in Leo.

Her very romantic nature is shown by the Sun in Libra 22 degrees [Gemini Decanate] in aspect to Uranus in Gemini, indicative of perplexity. The Very favorable aspect of the Sun to Saturn indicates that AFTER her unsettled young adult life, eventually she is likely to settle down to a comfortable marriage. Compatibility cannot be accurately judged solely by the Sun Sign, like Virgo or Sagittarius, a comparison of both complete horoscopes is necessary and to do so required the full birth data.

Farley Sees Ford With Hoover Image

By HENRY BOSWORTH

James A. Farley who called many of the political shots for Franklin Roosevelt, thinks the 1976 Presidential election could be a repeat of 1932.

In other words, President Gerald Ford may be in the same trouble with voters now as Herbert Hoover was in 1932.

In a recent letter to City Councillor Paul Harold, the former Postmaster General, Democratic National Committee Chairman and "DR" mastermind, attached his assessment of the Presidential picture.

He sees Ford, like Hoover, "...a fine man, an honorable man...but his efforts seem half-hearted."

He thinks Ford suffers from the same image problem as Hoover: 'too remote, too distant, too Old Guard'.

Farley believes the Democrats have an excellent chance to regain the White House if there is no split between reformers and regulars within the party.

Farley, "Mr. Democrat" to many, lives in New York and is now honorary chairman of the board of the Coca-Cola Export Corporation in New York.

Why was he writing to Harold?

It was in response to a letter from Harold complimenting him on a letter Farley had written to a family friend, George Wells, on his retirement from the Worcester City Council.

Farley, incidentally, still signs his letters with his characteristic reek ink.

'HUMBNAIL THOUGHTS—

BY SENATOR SNUFFY

Not the least of New Hampshire's attractions to many is that it is a place where you can buy a case of beer on Sundays.

• • •

Confusion reigned on April 19th this year. For once it was celebrated on the correct day and date.

• • •

Massachusetts is in a financial bind, says Governor Dukakis, and, come to think of it, aren't most of us most of the time?

• • •

Added to the unpleasantness of paying bills is that now it costs more to mail them.

The Meanest Mother

Editor's Note: The following anonymous article first appeared in The Quincy Sun five years ago and from time to time since then we have had requests from readers to reprint it. Because Sunday is Mother's Day we feel it is quite appropriate this week to pay this tribute to all the "mean" mothers everywhere.

I had the meanest Mother in the whole world.

While other kids ate candy for breakfast, I had to have cereal, eggs or toast. When others had cokes and candy for lunch, I had to eat a sandwich. As you guessed, my supper was different from the other kids too.

But at least I wasn't alone in my suffering. My sisters and two brothers had the same mean Mother as I did.

My Mother insisted upon knowing where we were at all times. You'd think we were on a chain gang. She had to know who our friends were and what we were doing. She insisted if we said we'd be gone one hour that we be gone one hour or less—not one hour and one minute.

I am nearly ashamed to admit it, but she actually struck us. Not once but each time we did as we pleased. Can you imagine someone actually hitting a child just because he disobeyed. Now you can begin to see how mean she really was.

The worst is yet to come. We had to be in bed by nine each night and up early the next morning. We couldn't sleep till noon like our friends. So while they slept my Mother actually had the nerve to break the child labor law. She made us work. We had to wash dishes, make beds, learn to cook and all sorts of cruel things.

I believe she laid awake at night thinking up mean things to do to us.

She always insisted upon our telling the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, even if it killed us—it nearly did.

By the time we were teenagers, she was much wiser and our life became even more unbearable. None of this tooling the horn of a car for us to come running. She embarrassed us to no end by making our dates and friends come to the door to get us.

I forgot to mention, while my friends were dating at the mature age of 12 and 13, my old fashioned Mother refused to let me date until the age of 15 and 18. Fifteen that is, if you dated only to go to a school function, and that was only once or twice a year.

My Mother was a complete failure as a Mother. None of us has ever been arrested, divorced or beaten by his mate. Each of my brothers served his time in the service of this country.

And whom do we have to blame for this terrible way we turned out? You're right. Our mean Mother.

Look at all the things that we missed. We never got to march in a protest parade, nor to take part in a riot, burn draft cards, and a million and one things that our friends did. She forced us to grow into God-fearing, educated, honest adults.

Using this as a background, I am trying to raise my three children. I stand a little taller and I am filled with pride when my children call me mean.

Because, you see, I thank God. He gave me the meanest Mother in the whole world.

Council Considers New Ordinance For Junk Dealers

The City Council's Ordinance Committee is considering three proposed ordinances that would require junk and secondhand dealers to have scales on their premises and require hawkers and peddlers to have license plates on their vehicles.

The ordinances specify that: "Every keeper of a junkshop shall have on his premises scales capable of weighing at least 250 pounds. Said scales shall be annually tested and sealed.

"Every driver of a wagon or other conveyance used for the collection of junk, old metals, rags or secondhand articles shall have on said wagon or conveyance scales capable of weighing at least 50 pounds. Said scales shall be annually tested and sealed.

"Every vehicle or other conveyance used by a licensee as a conveyer for articles offered for sale by him shall have attached to said vehicle or conveyance a number plate, where it may readily and plainly be seen, to be furnished by the city with his license at the expense of the licensee, bearing the number and date of expiration of such license."

Fire Threat Closes Blue Hills

By TOM HENSHAW

The entire Blue Hills Reservation was closed due to extreme fire hazard as a prolonged drought continued to hold Eastern Massachusetts in its grip.

MDC Police Capt. Arthur E. Johnson said any person found in the Blue Hills woods would be arrested and motorists were advised not to stop their cars on roads in the Reservation.

Quincy firefighters were among those from 50 cities and towns fighting a forest fire that had raged out of control for days in Plymouth, destroying many summer cottages in an area of 18,000 acres.

All permits for outdoor fires were cancelled in Quincy and people were urged to keep garden hoses hooked up to outside faucets ready for instant use in an emergency.

The fire hazard was eased somewhat by 1.86 inches of rain that fell on the city over the weekend.

'SHOPPERSTOWN' URGED

Thomas O'Keefe, manager of the Sears Roebuck store in Quincy Center, warned that the new shopping plaza in Braintree and a resurgence Boston were dangers to prosperity in downtown Quincy.

"Quincy is right smack in the center of a two-way squeeze," he told the Merchants Association dinner of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

O'Keefe proposed that the merchants raise an annual $50,000 war chest to promote Quincy as "Shopperstown".

BROAD MEADOWS DEVELOPMENT

The City Council accepted two special legislative acts that could have a far-reaching effect on Quincy's future.

The first would permit the sale or lease of city-owned land in Broad Meadows, freeing some 80 acres of waterfront sites for development.

It was estimated that industrialization of the land, which was on deep water thanks to the dredging of the Town River, would add about $25 million to the tax base.

A second special act would allow Quincy to spend up to $5,000 a year to exploit its history or advertise its industrial and commercial possibilities.

Possible $40 Tax Hike Unless $78.7 Million Budget Slashed

Mayor LaRaia, in his budget address to the Council, blamed more than one-third of the increase, or $3,648,717, on the school department budget, which under the state law of autonomy, cannot be cut by Mayor or Council.

"This is totally unacceptable," the Mayor told the Council. "I will urge you to return this budget to the school committee for further review."

And the Council did just that, setting up a meeting with the School Committee for tonight [Thursday] at 7 p.m. in City Hall to discuss the budget.

Mayor LaRaia submitted a budget totalling $78,755,563, an increase of $10,062,275 over last year's total of $68,693,288.

He said the original requests by department heads were for $86,431,800 but he managed to trim it before presenting it to the Council.

In addition to the school budget, the Mayor attributed part of the increase to "overspending by the other city departments."

"The budget passed last year upon the recommendation of the former Mayor [Walter J. Hannan] will be approximately $2.5 million short of what the city departments will actually spend by June 30 of this year," said Mayor LaRaia.

"The short budget for fiscal 1975-76 will have the effect of increasing taxes in the next fiscal period beginning July 1, 1976.

"A third major area of concern is the City Hospital. At the present time it appears that the hospital will not reach its estimate of receipts this year. If so, a further deficit will be created which must be raised by increased tax revenues."

The Mayor said there will be no layoffs of city workers although "certain positions were not funded and department requests were not approved."

One of the posts not funded was that of assistant director of Quincy Heritage, occupied by Robert McCarthy, the Mayor's press aide during his campaign.

Mayor LaRaia said department heads requested that he fill 75 new positions but he approved only 15 new jobs, all of them at City Hospital. The jobs were deemed critical, he said.

"Positions becoming vacant during the year will be funded only if necessary," he said. "I have not closed the door of considering further personnel service cuts."

"Further action in this area is contingent on union demands for salary increases. I am alerting union representatives and employees to hold the line on salary increases this year in the interest of Quincy taxpayers."

"I have not approved a request for 21 additional firefighters pending a review of the utilization of departmental equipment."

He concluded his presentation with the plea:

"I urge the Council to reduce this budget where possible. [But] unrealistic cuts will jeopardize the effective operation of our city departments."

For a while it was touch and go whether the Council would accept the budget or send it back to the Mayor or split it in two and send the school budget back to the School Committee.

"The School Committee has no idea what the impact of its budget will be on the tax rate when it passes the budget," said Councillor Daniel G. Raymond, an old School Committeeman himself.

"Now that it knows the impact will be $12 or $13 I don't think it is unfair to send it back to them for another look."

Councillor Paul D. Harold also wanted to send it back to the School Committee, adding, "I certainly do not want to run for re-election on a $24 tax rate increase."

School Committeeman Charles Sweeney, given an opportunity to speak, said the committee "is willing to receive the budget back for a review. We don't want a confrontation with the Council."

The debate continued until Council President Arthur H. Tobin stepped down from the chair with a plea for cooperation between Council and Committee.

"I don't favor a $25 tax rate increase," he said. "I don't intend to vote for a $25 tax increase. The School Committee, I'm sure, doesn't intend to vote for such an increase."

"Given the opportunity, the City Council can sit down with the School Committee and the superintendent and reach an agreement. All I ask for is the opportunity. Let's not fight. We've had enough fighting in this city."

"If Dr. Kissinger can fly thousands of miles to the Middle East and get the Arabs and the Jews to agree to sit down together, why can't the City Council and the School Committee sit down and talk?"

Tobin's impassioned talk settled the matter.

Raymond's motion to send the budget back to the School Committee was defeated by a 6-3 vote, with Harold and Councillor Dennis E. Harrington joining Raymond in voting for it.

Then, by voice vote, the budget was sent to Finance Committee, chaired by Councillor John J. Quinn, the dean of the Council, and composed of the Council as a whole.

Another Payless Pay Day For Stephen Anderson

It's another payless payday for Stephen Anderson.

A request for $5,551 to pay Anderson's salary as assistant director of City Hospital through June 30 bounced in and out of the City Council for a second time Monday night. He has been working without pay for six weeks.

Anderson, son of former City Councillor Carl Anderson, was appointed to the post by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia March 29 but the Council refused to fund his salary until the Hospital Board of Managers reviewed both the job and his qualifications.

The salary request came back to the Council from Mayor LaRaia with the notation that the Board of Managers have agreed to meet with Anderson to review his qualifications and make recommendations regarding the appointment.

The Council agreed that the Mayor had done the right thing and then bucked the salary bid to the Board of Managers to hold while they considered Anderson's qualifications.

The Council's original objection to Anderson's appointment was that it had been made without consulting the Board of Managers, who were then considering a number of applications for the job.

John Salenius, the Mayor's executive secretary, said Anderson did apply for the job but he withdrew his application because his father, Carl, was then a member of the Board of Managers.

7 Cadets From Quincy To Receive Maritime Academy Bibles

Seven Quincy cadets at the Massachusetts Maritime Academy, Buzzards Bay, on Cape Cod Canal, will receive engraved Bibles at commencement ceremonies Saturday, May 29.

Bibles of three faiths will be presented by the 165-year-old Massachusetts Bible Society, one of the oldest in the world. Each Bible will be engraved in gold with the graduates name and be presented by Carl Stricklin, Executive Director.

The Society has been presenting Bibles to mariners for six decades. At a recent graduation, a member of the class of 1919 was found to be still reading his well-worn Bible which was nearly 50 years old.

The Quincy cadets include Francis Bradley Jr., Greenview St., Bruce A. Forbush, Brook St., Edward T. Rush, Woodbine St., Joseph A. Fleming, Hancock St., Michael J. Lorman, Gordon St., John P. White, Sterling St., and Anthony J. Abban, Harriet Ave.

Wollaston Congregational Church To Mark 100th Anniversary

By POLLY DREDGE

Wollaston Congregational Church will celebrate its 100th anniversary Saturday and Sunday.

Saturday, historical exhibits will be on display in the parish house classrooms from 5:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

An anniversary dinner will be served from 6:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. in the social hall.

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia and Rep. Joseph Brett are among invited dinner guests.

Rep. Brett will present a framed citation from the Massachusetts House of Representatives to Rev. Lloyd F. Martin, pastor.

The program to follow dinner will include a songfest, a musical show special, viewing of historical slides and presentations.

On Sunday, a special anniversary service will be held at 10 a.m. and will include anniversary greetings, special music and guests and a celebration of removal of the mortgage.

Rev. Louis Toppin of Old South Church, Boston, will deliver the anniversary message.

A coffee reception will be held in the social hall at 11:30 a.m.

The church was recognized as an incorporated congregational church on May 4, 1876, and the first new church building was dedicated on that day.

Twenty-one persons became the charter members.

The parsonage, still standing today, was built in 1891. The parish house was built and dedicated in 1915, and still stands as half of the current church building. The other half was built in 1925 and dedicated in 1926.

At least two mortgages have been burned in the church's history and another is about to be removed as an $80,000 renovation project nears completion.

Anniversary committee members are:

Robert B. Olson, chairman; Irene Olson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Foster Cleveland, Eleanor Wells, James Duncan, Herbert Fairclough Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Lofgren, Mr. and Mrs. E. Herbert Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Dixon, Margaret Sandahl, Herbert Davis, S. Frank Willard, consultants, and Rev. Mr. Martin.

Church Women United To Observe May Fellowship Day Friday Night

May Fellowship Day will be observed by Church Women United of the Quincy-South Shore area Friday at 8 p.m. at The Salvation Army, 6 Baxter St., Quincy.

Mrs. Major Moore from The Salvation Army headquarters will speak on the day's theme, "Valiant Women - Past and Present". She will discuss the lives of women in The Salvation Army who through the 111 years of its existence have fought to improve the social and economic conditions of life.

Her talk will follow a 6:30 p.m. dinner and a worship service dramatizing the "Valiant Women" of American history who, out of religious conviction, spoke and acted on behalf of the human rights of others. Mrs. Captain Geoffrey Banfield will lead the service.

Also taking part will be Mrs. Frank Ranstrom and Mrs. David Galbraith, both of Weymouth;

Mrs. Harry Maki of Faith Lutheran Church and Mrs. Kenneth Yoerger of Adams Shore United Methodist Church, Quincy.

All women of the community are invited to take part in the worship service, similar to that observed by Protestant, Catholic and Orthodox women in 2,000 local units of Church Women United across the country. Child care will be provided if requested.

Monitor Overseas Editor United Nations Council Speaker May 13

Geoffrey Godsell, Overseas News Editor of the Christian Science Monitor, will address the May meeting of the United Nations Council of the South Shore, speaking on "The State of the Great Power Game".

The last of this season's world affairs series, co-sponsored by the Leagues of Women Voters of Braintree, Canton, Milton, Quincy and Scituate, will be held in the Parish Hall of the Church of the Presidents, Quincy Sq., Thursday, May 13, at 8 p.m. Admission is free, and all may participate in the question period.

Educated in England, and serving in the British Navy, Godsell had major news gathering assignments in Europe, Africa, the Middle East, and America for the BBC [British Radio]. Affiliated with the Monitor, since 1956, he has traveled extensively in his many editorial capacities, and recently, has been a frequent commentator on Channel 2.

Godsell indicates that despite fears and criticisms, from many quarters, of America's role in foreign policy, he does not doubt the continuing capacity of the United States to meet the challenges ahead. He feels that all the recognized contenders for the presidency in 1976 understand the lines on which U.S.-Foreign policy must be based.

Members are urged to attend, and bring friends. The public is welcome, and social studies teachers and students are especially invited. In addition to the lecture there will be a brief business meeting for reports and election of officers.

A catered dinner at 7 p.m. will precede the lecture. Anyone wishing a reservation is asked to call Miss Eleanor Brown, 59 Andrews Rd., or Miss Vera Call, 1000 Southern Artery, or Mrs. Viola Ellis, all of Quincy. Students may have a reduced price.

Alcohol Awareness Program Continues At St. John's

St. John's Church, Quincy Center, is continuing the winter Alcohol Awareness program.

This segment of the program is designed to inform the public of the community resources available. The program also aims at helping persons understand the support systems -- ALANON, ALATEEN, A.A. -- that help, not only the person suffering from the illness of alcoholism but also helps the families to cope better with the effects of the illness.

At St. John's School Hall, 30 Phipps St., Tuesday, a member of ALATEEN and the Director of the Gavin House, will be the speaker.

On Tuesday, May 18 at 7:30 p.m. speaker will be a member of ALANON and A.A. There will be information concerning community resources on the South Shore.

O'Connell Suggests Organizations Preserve Records

It all started with a letter from Nantucket inquiring about the dimensions of a monument carved out of Quincy granite.

"Luckily," says William A. O'Connell, vice president of the Quincy Historical Society, "it just happened that the manufacturer had preserved that particular record and we had it in our files."

"I say luckily because most of the records of the old granite firms were thrown away."

It was then that the idea was born.

Why not have business firms, churches, fraternal orders and the like, appoint official historians to take charge of their old documents and preserve them for future generations?

"We don't pay adequate respect to those old records," says O'Connell, who is a former executive secretary of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce and describes himself as an environmental historian.

"The old statements of incorporation, the company bylaws, photos of outstanding events in a firm's history, they are all eventually thrown away. People don't realize at the time that they are part of the city's history."

"Every organization should establish an office of historian to see that they are preserved."

O'Connell has drawn up a set of responsibilities for such historians. They go like this:

"To act as spokesman on matters related to this institution.

"To recognize and preserve the history of this institution in a manner which will reflect the significant events of its past, present and future.

"To broaden its historical perspective in order to encourage greater historical awareness of business, industry and the professions.

"To appreciate that history, art, culture and environmental quality are necessary ingredients of our economy."

"Telling It Like It Is"--A New Marketing Idea?

By Philip J. Lawrence, President
Colonial Federal Savings
And Loan Association

of Quincy, Holbrook and Wareham
8 - 6 Weekdays 8 - 7:30 Thursdays

It is amusing to read in a national publication about something new or innovative that you have been doing for years. We had that feeling when we noted in the current issue of the Savings and Loan News that two S&Ls have undertaken ad campaigns that represent "a shift away from the traditional savings and loan message."

Instead of telling customers to save for the Great American Dream—a yacht or a cruise to Europe—these associations are now encouraging them to "Take Care of Yourselves."

The idea for the campaign, the magazine notes, grew out of a review of statistics by association executives. "The numbers were startling," the article reported. "For instance, the association's review indicated that the average wage earner will have an income of $400,000 during his lifetime, yet only five of every 100 savers would be able to retire in financial comfort."

"Disturbed by these facts, the association concluded that the average saver was not 'taking care of himself' and that its task was to help insure the financial security of its customers."

This is well and good. But where have these "realists" been all these years? Back in 1969, we were telling our customers and the general public:

"A crisis is looming in your life. How close it is relates to how old you are. Whether you will be ready for it depends on how you are preparing for it now.

"The crisis is that day when you [or your spouse] put on your hat and coat and, for the last time, walk out of the familiar surroundings where you have spent years of your working life. You are now retired.

"What will you do? Where will you live? How much money will you have to replace the regular pay check? Do you really know?"

We summarized figures from a U.S. Senate committee report on aging which showed that three out of ten people 65 and older were living in poverty in 1966, yet many of these aged people did not become poor until they became old. The situation, we noted from the report, would get worse. Americans living in retirement were suffering from an increasing income gap in relation to younger people.

As we have reiterated in succeeding years, inflation has worsened the picture beyond what was envisioned in the Senate report.

So now we read that dropping the American dream for the real thing is an innovative marketing idea, "telling it like it is." It would be amusing, if it were not highlighting a sad financial plight which many Americans are facing.

27 Central Students Receive NEDT Awards

Former Mayor Thomas S. Burgin was honored at the recent annual meeting of the board of trustees of the Quincy Savings Bank on the 50th anniversary of his election to the board as a youth of 24.

Burgin, who started with the bank as a teller in 1921, was presented by Bank President Charles A. Pearce with a framed print of an oil painting entitled "Atlantic Deepes", work of artist Charles Vickery.

"Our family has been closely associated with the Quincy Savings Bank for the past 80 years, possibly a record in the field of savings banking," noted Burgin, whose father, Clarence Burgin, was president from 1896 until his death in 1943.

The younger Burgin took a leave of absence from the bank in 1925 to found what is now Burgin, Platner and Co. Insurance Agency, one of the largest in the area south of Boston. He is now semi-retired.

Pearce displayed a reproduction of the treasurer's report of March 31, 1926, signed

Jack Conway Reports Residential, Commercial Sales Up

The South Shore and Cape Cod real estate firm of Jack Conway company has released sales figures for the first 10 weeks of 1976 which show interest in residential and commercial real estate in their area continues at an abnormally rapid rate.

Figures show an increase of 89 per cent over the same period last year, and 16.3 per cent ahead of the record 1973 year.

"This continued surge of sales is naturally great, but we continue to be amazed by it," said Vice President and General Manager John R. Reardon. "The only thing that we can tie to it is lots of mortgage money in the market, slightly decreasing interest rates, and a complete regaining of confidence in the mind of the buyer. The flirtation of the stock market with the magic 1,000 figure certainly has not hurt the buyers' feeling of confidence, and all we are hoping for is that it continues."

"All of the predictions from the major money market sources indicate that this trend will go on at least through the summer, and perhaps longer. We are able to get mortgages for our buyers with as little as 61 no money down in some cases and 10 percent down on many of the residential mortgages. And we are getting interest rates that range all the way down to 8½ percent for the very best of the residential variety," said Reardon.

Arthur Reed Receives CPA Achievement Award

Arthur Reed of 58 Holmes St., North Quincy, was awarded a certificate of achievement at the annual awards dinner of the Massachusetts Society of Certified Public Accountants for passing the certified public accountant exam at his first sitting.

Reed is a candidate for a master's degree in business administration on a teaching fellowship at Northeastern University.

He is the husband of Mrs. Ann Marie Reed, and the son of Mrs. Lois Reed of 56 Station St., West Quincy, and the late Arthur Reed.

He is employed by Stebbins & Stebbins of Boston.

DUTTON'S

To Seek Zoning Variance

N. Quincy Restaurant License Application Withdrawn On Parking

By TOM BRADY

A request for a license to open a restaurant at 67 Hancock St., North Quincy was withdrawn from the city Licensing Board Tuesday because the plans for parking at the site do not meet city regulations.

Atty. Nathaniel Sherman, counsel for Peter Prasinos, the restaurant owner, said he and his client would go to the city Zoning Board to ask for a variance from the law and would return to the Licensing Board to resubmit the request.

The restaurant, to be called Peter's Dockside, does not have sufficient parking for patrons on property owned by Prasinos. A leased parking lot arrangement Prasinos has worked out was held to be insufficient to meet city regulations by the city solicitor according to testimony at an earlier hearing on the matter.

About 20 people attended the board meeting to oppose the restaurant license request and several complained after the withdrawal that they have attended many such meetings without any resolution on the matter.

License Board Chairman John Gillis asked the board to act on the request at this meeting and "kill it right now."

"The people up there don't want it," Gillis said, "and I'm with the people. What's the sense of coming back here?"

Nobody's for it."

However, Sherman said he and Prasinos, who also owns Peter's Landing on the Southern Artery, were prepared to defend the new restaurant plan against the opponents and insisted on his client's right to a full hearing after the legal technicalities have been straightened out.

The License Board then voted to allow the withdrawal.

A second request before the board for permission to hold a rock concert May 24 in the Strand Theatre in Quincy Sq., was continued by the board for one week so Police Chief Francis Finn, who was not at the meeting, could hear the request.

The concert promoter, John Donahue, told the board about 1,400 tickets would be sold for the concert which would feature the James Montgomery Blues Band and a local group, the Dead End Kids. The concert is being staged for the benefit of St. Mary's Church, West Quincy.

Several members of the License Board expressed doubts about the value of the concert despite Donahue's offer to hire as many as 20 police officers for a security detail.

In another matter, C. A. Cox Rambler Sales and Service of 60 Beale St., was warned by the License Board to clean up their property within 30 days or face the revocation of their license to operate. Building Inspector Allan MacDonald cited wrecked autos, auto parts, and general disrepair of the building as reason for the warning.

The board granted a permit to the L. Antonelli Realty Trust to store 9,000 gallons of gasoline underground at 177 Willard St., West Quincy, subject to the direction of the Fire Department and granted a common victualer's license to Joseph F. McNamara owner of Waldo's, a food stand, Quincy Shore Drive, pending approval of the Health Department.

St. Mary's Parish, West Quincy, was granted a permit to hold tag days May 21-22, but a second request from the parish for a permit to hold a carnival later in the summer was continued for one week so more information on the hired carnival company can be forwarded to the board.

The board also heard from David Wolfe, a representative of Metrovond, a pinball company which has several machines in the Quincy area. The board asked Wolfe to submit the names of Metrovond's corporate officers and to see that $20 owed to the city by the company is paid.

Several scheduled hearings were continued to later meetings including requests from the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association for a cheese and wine festival in stores; Sea St. Auto Body for a license to sell second hand automobiles; Shore Taxi for two hackney licenses.

Court Fight Looms Over NQHS Issue

improvements to the Merrymount School. However, Crendon said the Mayor could sign the Merrymount issue separately.

In his budget address to the City Council Monday night, Mayor LaRaia said:

"The final and most crucial subject that I wish to address tonight is the proposed North Quincy High School addition.

"Many hours and money has been spent over this matter including the proposed plans to have double sessions [at Quincy High] for the next two years.

"The total cost to Quincy taxpayers will add over $10 million to the bonded debt and cost of double sessions.

"Not included in this total is the added cost of running this school which, if built, will be twice the size of the existing school.

"The decline in student population must also be considered.

"I do not want to commit the taxpayers in our city to this financial burden.

"I believe less extravagant renovations will satisfy some of the needs of North Quincy High.

"It is for these reasons that I will not sign the bond issue for the new addition at North Quincy High.

"This action is a big disappointment to some including school administrators as well as parents.

"It was equally difficult for your Mayor to reach this decision."

Dr. Crendon said:

"Any community that fails to plan for its future needs is doomed to disaster. We have been debating this issue for more than 10 years. It is ludicrous to suggest that it needs further study.

"The Mayor's own adviser, Dr. Earle F. Littleton, recommended as forcefully as he could that we go ahead. He pointed out that declining enrollment was not the issue. The issue is adequate facilities.

"So what if the enrollment declines to 1,500 students. Would we say that the 1,500 are not worth that much? It would be callous to disregard their educational needs. If 200 were added, would that make it more important?"

"The Mayor knows full well," Dr. Crendon added, "that the city would not be reimbursed 65 per cent by the state if we made modifications on the existing plan. We were the last school to get 65 per cent. The law runs out June 30.

"If Quincy doesn't want it then the state has a list as long as your arm waiting to take Quincy's money."

Dr. Crendon said he does not plan to halt preparations for double sessions at Quincy High. "They will continue until the School Committee directs otherwise," he said.

Sweeney said plans for renovation and addition to North Quincy High have "already cost $2 million and will cost the city $800,000 more on the cherry sheet [state reimbursement] it is not built.

"Already delays have affected one generation of high school students. If it is not built, no one knows how many more generations of high school students will be affected.

"It is the duty of the Mayor to sign the bond issue."

Kennedy, who also attended the City Council meeting and issued a hand-written statement to the press, noted that North Quincy High is threatened with loss of accreditation if the plant is not upgraded.

"Accreditation is very important," he said, "especially where we have two high schools. If one is accredited and the other is not the students from North will suffer from invidious comparison.

"It seems simple justice to allow all those students who wish to do so to attend the accredited high school no matter which part of the city they may reside. It may be necessary to float a bond to build an addition and renovation to Quincy High School."

He added that the "cost of the bond issue not signed is 69 cents on the tax rate while the $175,000 the School Committee cut from its budget two weeks ago represents 67 cents, a net cost of two cents to each taxpayer. A strange account..."

Mrs. Toland said she is "disturbed that the compromise our city officials worked out and agreed upon, an addition to North Quincy High School, has been wiped out too easily.

"Years of discussion and debate preceded this compromise. Nine homes were taken. Two million dollars was spent, not to mention the endless hours of detail work. Now we have nothing to show for this effort.

"The young people of this city are the real losers. They are being short-changed by inadequate facilities and thus a less than comprehensive program. Losing our accreditation will be another strike against the graduates."

New Honors For Dr. Crendon: State School Superintendent Of Year

Quincy School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Crendon has been named "Massachusetts School Superintendent of the Year" by the Massachusetts School Counselors Association [MSCA].

Dr. Crendon was also recently named as National School Superintendent of the Year by the American School Counselors Association [ASCA].

The MSCA award, made Monday in Hyannis, is the first of its kind established to recognize a school administrator "because of his encouragement of and contributions to the advancement of guidance and counseling," according to Albert C. Williamson, executive secretary to the organization.

Now in his eighth year as Quincy superintendent of schools Dr. Crendon holds bachelor, masters, and doctoral degrees from Boston University.

His work in the Quincy public schools spans 19 years involving the positions of classroom teacher, assistant junior high school principal, administrative assistant to the superintendent of schools, an assistant to the Superintendent and as Assistant Superintendent of Schools for Instruction.

Co-author of one book, "United for Separation", [Brice, 1959], he also was a chapter contributor to "Planning Urban Education", [Educational Technology Publications, 1972]. He has furnished articles concerning church-state relations to two separate encyclopedias and contributed some 40 articles to publications including "Journal of Education", "Massachusetts Teacher", "The Patriot Ledger", "The Pilot", and "Today's Education".

A co-founder and past president of both the Quincy Youth Football League and Survival, Incorporated, Dr. Crendon is presently general chairman of the Quincy Heritage Steering Committee.

Dr. Crendon's work in the field of education is also cited in "Who's Who in American Education", "Contemporary Authors", "Researchers in Education" and "Outstanding Young Men of America".

LaRaia Vetoes Layoff Ordinance

specifically excluded. In his veto message, Mayor LaRaia called the ordinance invalid for three reasons:

"It is an unauthorized restriction on my powers as the Mayor under Plan A government.

"It is an unauthorized abridgement of Chapter 31 of the Massachusetts General Laws concerning my powers as the appointing authority.

"It is a denial of the 14th amendment to the United States Constitution rights of city employees in that an ordinance cannot give preferential treatment to Hospital Workers as opposed to other city workers."

The new proposed ordinance, introduced by Council President Arthur H. Tobin and Councilors Dennis E. Harrington and Warren A. Powers, reads:

"A police department is hereby established which shall consist of a chief of police, and not less than five [5] captains, sixteen [16] lieutenants twenty-six [26] sergeants and one hundred eighty-eight [188] police officers [Patrolmen and Patrolwomen], or such larger number as are deemed necessary by the mayor;

"But in the event that any position in the police department, as hereby established becomes vacant because of death, resignation or retirement, it shall be the prerogative of the mayor to fill such opening or openings."

Just to make sure that no police officer was fired or laid off in the time between passage of the ordinance and its effective date, an emergency preamble was added:

"The deferred operation of this ordinance would tend to defeat its purpose, which is to make its provisions effective forthwith, therefore, it is hereby declared to be an emergency law, necessary for the immediate preservation of public convenience, to promote the health, safety and welfare of the residents of Quincy or of their property."

Councillor John J. Lydon Jr. noted that Mayor LaRaia's budget did not reduce the strength of the Police Department.

But the Council unanimously went along with Councillor Paul D. Harold's reasoning that "we need to put it in writing to remove the threat of layoffs that has been hanging over the Police Department for the past few weeks."

The proposed ordinance was sent to the ordinance committee for hearing.

New Typewriter For Cemetery Board

The City Council Monday night appropriated $363.75 for the purchase of a used typewriter and a new receipt machine for the Cemetery Board to replace those stolen in a break April 12 in the Pine Hill Cemetery office.

ENC, YMCA Construction Unaffected By Bricklayers Work Stoppage

The 227 members of Bricklayers Local 52 stopped work [for went on strike] this week but the action has no effect on projects currently underway in Quincy.

Carmine D'Olimpio of the Quincy Building and Construction Trades Council said the work stoppage began May 1 with the expiration of the Bricklayers contract. The dispute is in the hands of federal mediator John Sullivan, he said.

D'Olimpio said the union has balked at a bid by the employers' group to change the work rules and institute 20 per cent pay cuts in certain areas. The workers voted last week "no

Members of the employers group are the Associated General Contractors of Massachusetts, the Building Trades Employers Association and the Massachusetts Masonry Contractors Association.

D'Olimpio said the two major contracting jobs in Quincy are not affected. They are at Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston and the Quincy YMCA on Coddington St.

The contractor at Eastern Nazarene, Bersani Brothers, has signed independently. D'Olimpio said, and the YMCA job is being done with non-union help for Beverly.

Central Girls Track Team Opens With New Coach

The Central Junior High girls' track team was due to open its season yesterday (Wednesday) with a new coach, Ralph Koelsch.

He appears pretty well set in the ninth grade running events with Laurie Smith, Paula Church, Felicia Solito and Laurie Burke in the 100, Jeanne Burke and Ann Cleary in the hurdles, Ann Marie Nigro and Francie Maloney in the 440 and Jennifer Seamans and Patty Irvine in the half-mile.

"The relay team is not set as yet and the field events are up in the air, except that Marjorie Donlan will be in the shot put," Koelsch said.

The new coach is disappointed at the small turnout from the eighth grade and the relay and the field events are entirely unsettled.

Running in the 440 will be Linda Kelleher and Patty Miceli. The 100 is strong with Julie Stanley, Laurie Clarke, Karen McCarthy, Donna Picot and Patti Murray. Koelsch may move some of these girls to other events.

Central's strength may lie in the seventh grade, where Koelsch has both quantity and quality.

Leading the sprinters are Sue Clarke, Kathy White, Barbara Healey, Bridget McCarthy, Heather McNis, Sue Cahill and Lisa Morash.

The quarter-milers are led by Linda Morash, Lori Boyne, Kathy Behan, Tricia Sullivan, Kelly Gentile, Eileen Cleary, Liz Norton and Anne DeVarenness.

Other seventh graders are Lisa Stewart, Rose Shea, Ann Rice, Patty Buccella, Chris Keenan, Kerry Kiley, Beth Mahoney, Natalie Joubert, Kathy Shea, Nancy Marshall, Lisa Brick, Jane MacDonald, Erin Nolan, Joanne O'Leary, Karen Fredey and Marguerite Ladas.

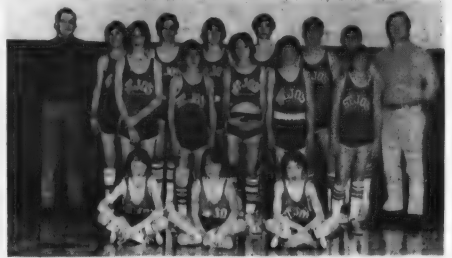

From this group expects to form a strong relay team and find some capable field event participants.

North 9th Grade Track Team Promising

Dave Hourin is now in his 27th year of coaching at North Quincy High and he expects his North ninth grade track team to do well in the city league.

"We have a good nucleus with three of the boys coming off a successful winter track season with the variety," Hourin said.

The three are Tim O'Neill, an excellent hurdler and high jumper; Dan McIntyre, a fine 440 man and long jumper, and Ted Koberski, who specializes in the shot put.

Steve Dunbar and Brian McGilvray are fine sprinters and McGilvray will also put the shot.

Bill Harrow and Rob Ferrera will join O'Neill in the high jump.

Peter Doherty and Craig Newton, members of the Quincy Track Club, are good prospects in the long jump and hurdles.

John Hermon will run the 100 and 440 and may also do some high jumping.

Others of the squad are Bob Gordon, Bill Murphy, Mike Bulman and Mike Edwards.

North, together with Atlantic, was due to face Central yesterday (Wednesday) and the next meet will be on May 19 at Cavanagh Stadium.

Hourin for the past several years has coached many boys whose fathers had competed for him.

QJC Outslugs B.U., 11-10

The Quincy Junior College baseball team has been having a hot and cold season and in its latest outing outslugged Boston University, 11-10, in two extra innings.

In the ninth inning singles by Paul Rooney, Vern Wilkins and winning pitcher Paul Craig (3-1) accounted for the winning run. Rooney had three hits, including a double, and Mike DePaolo had four hits, also including a double.

In its previous game the Jaguars had dropped an 8-7 decision to Harvard Freshmen and earlier had defeated Wentworth, 4-3, in another extra inning game, on Mike Devine's game winning hit in the eighth.

Craig was the winning pitcher as he went the route and pitched a five-hitter.

Today [Thursday] Dave Burke's Jaguars host Dean Junior College at O'Rourke Field. Friday will play at Worcester Junior, Monday will be at Bunker Hill and Tuesday will end their regular season at O'Rourke against Wentworth. All games start at 3:30.

Weatherman Jinxes Quincy Girls Softball Team

Barbara Webster's Quincy girls' softball team received a tough break last week when it was well on its way to a 4-1 record.

The First Ladies led Weymouth South, 6-1, only to have the game called in the fourth inning because of rain.

The teams replayed the game the following day and Quincy lost an extra inning 8-7 decision, dropping it record to 3-2.

Quincy tied the game in the seventh and final regulation inning but Janet Cassella drove in the winning run for Weymouth in the eighth.

In their previous game the First Ladies had lost to Waltham, 7-2, for their first loss.

Earlier Quincy had rolled over Newton, 18-9, as it combined a solid batting attack with 19 walks.

Lois Malvesti was the winning pitcher and also had a triple and an RBI. Pollie Albrecht had a double and triple, Cindy Tozzi a double and two RBIs and Kelly Sparks a home run.

The North Quincy girls' dropped an 8-6 decision to Weymouth South, which upped its record to 6-1.

Snug Harbor Wins Girls Bombardment Tourney

The Snug Harbor Center captured the third annual Girls Bombardment Tournament, defeating Atherton Hough Center, 4 games to 3 in the best of seven game series.

This is the third year of the tournament sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department. There were 11 teams of 15 girls representing centers which have winter recreation programs.

In first round play Snug Harbor defeated Squantum, 2-0, with Janet Rooney and Pam Harrington playing well for Squantum. Gridley Bryant was defeated by Parker, 2-0, with Beth Veneto and Kathy King outstanding in defeat.

Atherton won its first round, 3-0, defeating Quincy. Sally Griffin and Gail Jonatis sparked for Quincy.

In other games Beechwood Knoll was bested by tournament winner Snug Harbor, 3-1. Eileen Greehan and Janet Petkun starred for Beechwood Knoll. Mass. Fields defeated Montclair with Linda Foley and Lee Zinkus standouts for Montclair.

As action continued in the single elimination tournament Wollaston defeated Parker, 3 games to 1, to gain the semi-final round. Diane Johnson and Diane Flynn were Parker's outstanding two players.

In semi-final action Snug

Harbor advanced by defeating Mass. Fields, 3-2. Sheila O'Sullivan and Donna Woods worked hard in the losing effort for Mass. Fields. Atherton set up the city championship game by defeating Wollaston, 3 to 1, despite the play of the latter's Joanne Green and Janet O'Mara.

In the championship round Atherton Hough jumped to an incredible 3-0 lead in the best of seven series, before Snug Harbor ran off four straight wins to capture the city championship.

Recreation Director Robert K. Beniers presented awards to both Atherton Hough and Snug Harbor. Members and coaches of both team:

Snug Harbor girls, Coach Kathy Ilaqua, Gina Cascarano, Tricia Craig, Pam Shields, Kathy Magna, Gineen French, Maria Cascarano, Susan Whitman, Meg Goldrick, Theresa Donahue, Debby Keefe, Debby Spink, Maureen Flynn, Anne Quinlin, Nancy Bullis and Joanne Connelly.

Pepe's Express Women Merchant Champs

Pepe's Express won the championship of the Women Merchants Bowling League by four points over South Shore barber.

The final standings: Pepe's, 145-95; Barber, 141-99; The Body Smith Shop, 130-110; Ho-Jo's, W. Quincy, 124-116; Quincy Motors, 92-148; Mennymount Lanes, 88-152.

Ho-Jo's had the season's high team three of 1516 and Quincy Motors high single of 534. Ellie Iacobucci rolled the season's high individual three of 383 and Mal Adams high single of 143.

Noreen Mastroianni had the high average of 102.6, followed by Bev Putnam, 101.4; Elaine Rozanski, 100.1; Iacobucci, 98.5; Evie DuBois, 98.4; Edan Walker, 97.8; Adams, 96.3; Doreen Barrett, 95.3; Ann Casanova, 95.3 and Sandy Barrie, 95.0.

Scuba Program Opens May 11

The Quincy Park and Recreation Board announces an instructional SCUBA program will begin Tuesday, May 11.

The program will be co-sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department and The South Shore Neptunes Diving Club. Each person will receive four weeks of classroom instruction and four weeks of instruction in the pool at the Lincoln Hancock Community School.

This course is open only to Quincy residents and includes all the basics of safe scuba diving, but does not lead to certification.

Those wishing to register can do so by appearing at the Recreation Department office by today [Thursday]. Registration is limited and this is the last time this course will be offered until the fall.

North 2nd In Meet, Quincy Bows To Brockton

North Quincy's track team, unbeaten in dual meet competition [6-0], finished second to Rindge Tech last Saturday in the annual Catholic Memorial Invitational meet.

North scored 40 points to 48 for Rindge. Quincy could score only eight points.

Lou Tozzi's Raiders dominated the javelin with Mike Nee winning at 189-5 and Pete Hemphill placing third. Quincy's Charlie Gaziano was second.

North Quincy ace Bart Petracca was upset by Tom Mortimer of Pilgrim High, Rhode Island in the mile in a matching of undefeated state champions. Mortimer at 4:22.1, led Petracca by four seconds.

Other North scorers were Dave Lorman, third in the high hurdles, the 440-relay team, second, and the two-mile relay team, fifth.

Last Friday the Raiders, using mainly underclassmen, annihilated Cambridge Latin, 108-36, to make their record 6-0 [4-0 in the Suburban League].

North won 14 of the 17 events with Dick Kennedy taking the triple jump and 440, Paul McGuigan the high jump and 220, Lorman the high hurdles, Mike Colby the shot put, Steve Doherty the pole vault, Jim Hanrahan the javelin, Pete Donovan the low hurdles, Jim Gavigan the 880, Mike Morin the mile, Jerry Keyes the two-mile and both relay teams winning, the 440 team of Matty King, Hemphill, McGuigan and Mike Larsen, and the mile team of Tom Fennessey, Brian Balzarink, Lorman and Riccutti.

Although Joe Wessling's Quincy team lost to powerful Brockton, 82-58, the Presidents' brilliant sophomore, John Saville, easily broke the school record in the two-mile with a timing of 9:45.2. The old record was set four years ago by Bobby Ciano with a 9:50 effort.

Quincy did well in winning events but a lack of depth hurt them as Brockton piled up seconds and thirds. "While we can get about 40 or 50 boys out for the team, Brockton has about 150. How can we compete with that?" asked first year coach Wessling.

Assistant coach Joe Catalano, an outstanding runner who handles the distance events, was delighted with Saville's performance. "His potential is unlimited," Joe said. "He should be one of the finest in the state two years from now."

Other Quincy winners were Harry Williams in the 220, Paul Ladas in the 440 with his best time of 52.9, Kevin O'Brien with his best mile time of 4:34.9, Paul Ramponi in the low hurdles, Leo Barron in the high jump and Bill Pospie in the discus.

Earlier in the week Tozzi rested all his seniors and his North underclassmen rolled over Brookline, 105-40. "We were extremely pleased with the sophomores and juniors," said assistant John Lavery, who coached at North six years ago and is back for his first season as Tozzi's aide.

North again took 14 of the 17 events with Kennedy winning the 440 and triple jump, King the 100, Larsen the 220, Marty Levenson the half mile, twin brother Bob the mile, Keyes the two-mile, Pete Donovan the low hurdles, Kevin Doyle the high jump, Pete Bonoli the pole vault, Colby the shot put, Mike Gallagher the discus, Hanrahan the javelin, and the mile relay team of Kennedy, Marty and Bob Levenson and Phil Maloney also won.

Quincy was defeated by Newton North, 94-46.

3 Quincy Teams In TARO Division Playoffs

The playoffs in each of the three divisions of the TARO Basketball League have reached the finals with Quincy teams involved in each.

In the Russell Division the Palmer Pub Hotshots of Quincy will open the finals Sunday at 7 p.m. at Weymouth North High School against CCAC.

CCAC won the third and deciding game from Rich A.C. Sunday, 85-84, on Jack Maharis' foul shot with six seconds remaining. Maharis had 23 points, Kevin Shea 19 and Paul Maharis 18. Harry Barnes paced Rich A.C. with 29.

The Hotshots had eliminated Lum's of Hingham in two straight games with Ron Bradley averaging 33 points a game, Kerry Walker 24 and Kenny Boyd 21.

In the Sanders Division the Quincy Nets topped the Shamrocks, 74-67, Sunday in the opener of their final series.

The second game will be played Sunday night at 8:30 at Weymouth North.

Al Wolfe led the Nets with 20 points and Kevin Gibson scored 18. Fred Kelliher had 22 and Mark Sullivan 17 for Shamrocks.

The Palmer Pub B team of Quincy tied its series with the 76'ers in the Susy Division with a 73-58 win Sunday.

The third and deciding game will be played Sunday at 5:30 at Weymouth North.

John Mullins had 18 points and Wayne Carlson 16 for the Pub, while Roy Nagy scored 18 and Quincy's Ed Monti 17 for the 76'ers, who had won the series opener, 73-61.

Quincy Softball League Opens Season With 20 Teams

The Quincy Softball League, one of the area's most active leagues for many years, opened its season Monday night.

The league this year comprises 20 teams, 10 in the American League and the same in the National League.

Returning to the American League are defending champion Wells Grille, Rouillard's, Jonathan's and Walsh's Restaurant. Howard Johnson, Tom English and North Quincy K. of C. are in their second year and newcomers are State Street Bank, Sportlite Cafe and Noble's Sporting Goods.

Returning to the National League are last year's runnerup, Mr. Kelly's, Palmer Pub Hotshots, Beau's Place, County Line, Bill's Texaco and Alumni Cafe. New teams are Red Carpet, Wheeler-Dealer, Quincy Point Cong. and Quincy Eagles.

In the season's opener Monday Wells Grille opened defense of its league title with a come-from-behind 16-7 win over State Street Bank, sparked by Paul Ehrler's two home runs and one by Kenny McPhee.

Mr. Kelly's, last year's National League winners, annihilated Red Carpet, 27-5; Walsh's walloped Sportlite Cafe, 17-7; Beau's topped Alumni Cafe, 13-7 and Rouillard's routed K. of C., 13-0.

Jamie Doherty Wins 2nd Tufts Varsity Letter

Jamie Doherty, a junior from North Quincy, has been awarded his second varsity letter in basketball following Tufts University's 15-7 season.

A 6' 3" guard, Doherty appeared in 19 games and scored 87 points this season.

"Jamie is one of the most intelligent players we have. He made the transition from forward to guard this season and he handled it very smoothly. He has all the tools to become an excellent floor leader for us this season," said John White, Tufts' first-year head basketball coach.

A former Greater Boston League All-Star, Jamie is the son of Mrs. Ann C. Doherty, 117 Greene St. He attended North Quincy High.

Phil Robinson On Nichols Track Team

Phil Robinson of North Quincy is a member of the Nichols College, spring track team.

Robinson, a sophomore is in the discus events.

A graduate of North Quincy High School, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Robinson of 42 North Bayfield Rd.

Keohane's Defeats Kiwanis, 3-1

Keohane's opened its Junior Baseball League season Sunday with a 3-1 win over Kiwanis behind the pitching of John Balzano and Brian Real.

Balzano, who struck out six, just missed a home run when he hit the center field fence. Scott Thompson and John Keenan drove in the winning runs.

Shawn Martin was the losing pitcher despite a fine performance.

Patrick McCarthy Democratic Candidate For Congress

Patrick H. McCarthy, 30-year-old former top aide to Congressman Joseph Moakley, formally has announced he will oppose Congressman James Burke in the September Democratic Primary in the 11th Congressional District.

McCarthy, a decorated Vietnam veteran and Harvard Law graduate, listed his priorities as jobs, "fair share" utility rates, crime, and corporate and congressional conflicts-of-interest.

McCarthy offered his own three point program for more jobs:

- passage of the Humphrey "full employment" bill which sets as a goal a guaranteed job for every American and requires the President to prepare an annual budget designed to meet that goal

- establishment of a "job tax credit" that would motivate employers to hire those unemployed who have been laid off six months or more

- government subsidy of interest payments for developers and manufacturers willing to invest in job creating construction, industrial expansion, or new industry in high unemployment areas.

"My approach is to tie tax incentives directly to new jobs," said the Randolph resident.

He said that he in 1972 persuaded Moakley to run as an "Independent," and engineered his upset election over former Congressman Louise Day Hicks and for the past three years, has managed Moakley's five Congressional Offices, commuting weekly to Washington.

McCarthy attended Boston College where he was class president three years before enlisting in the Army. As an officer in Vietnam, he was decorated several times, wounded, and specially commended by his commanding general.

After his discharge, McCarthy completed his undergraduate studies at Harvard University and then went on to graduate from Harvard Law School.

McCarthy, a member of the Massachusetts Bar Association, has also served as anchorman for the past five years on the New England Beacon Sports Network's "Pro Football Report."

Central School-Home Association To Hear Culinary Arts Winner

The Central School-Home Association will hold its spring meeting Monday, May 19 at 7 p.m., at the Vocational Technical School.

Guest speaker will be Sal Serrecchia, an instructor in the culinary arts department and recent recipient of first prize in the Epicurean Club competition in the New England Hotel-Motel Restaurant Show.

Serrecchia's topic and demonstration will be "A Gourmet Dinner".

Those planning to attend should call the school office - 773-2260 or 773-2261 to reserve space. Since the presentation will be made in the kitchen area, space will be limited to the first 40 who call to reserve their spots.

On Tuesday, May 11, at 6 p.m., a Mothers Banquet will be sponsored and served by Mrs. Lillian Balasalle and the Early-Bird Culinary Artists. The dinner, a tribute to the mothers of club members, will be held in the Home Economics Room.

Also on May 11, a gymnastics demonstration and exhibition will be presented in the school gym at 7:30 p.m. Boys and girls will be featured as participants under the direction of Miss Barbara Donelin, instructor of physical education. The public is invited. Admission is free.

Robert Martinson Announces Candidacy For Congress

Robert H. Martinson of 60 Hughes St., South Quincy, announces his candidacy for Congress from the 11th District, the seat now held by Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton].

The 53-year-old Martinson, who is running as an independent, is a graduate of Bryant and Stratton Business School and is business manager of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Last fall, in his first attempt at public office, he was unsuccessful in his bid for the City Council seat from Ward 2.

Martinson says that as a non-lawyer, he believes that Congress should be more representative of the people. Over 50 percent of its 535 members are lawyers and 11 out of 14 members from Massachusetts are lawyers, he said.

If elected, he said, his concern will be America and its people first. He would recommend spending billions, if necessary, to find a cure for cancer which he says faces one out of four people in the nation today.

He said, in a statement: "We are faced with an unemployment problem that could be partially solved by a seven-hour day, 35 hour work week which will create more jobs. Stop eight million illegal aliens working in the U.S. The cost to the U.S. is $16 billion in welfare payments, unemployment compensation and educational services. These aliens send $3 billion dollars out of the country each year. If we closed our military bases such as the one in the Philippine Islands where 18,000 Philippine workers are employed at a cost to the taxpayers of $400 million a year we could keep our American bases open and employ American workers. "The potentially poor today are retired people and those preparing for retirement. The husband and wife who, through circumstances, require nursing home care will find the cost for both over $400 per week, more than $20,000 per year, and in five years an unbelievable total cost exceeding $100,000. Very few people can save that amount during their working years.

"Congress should not condone giving aid to other nations when so many of our people are in such dire need, especially our elderly.

Fiscal Autonomy Ultimate Target LaRaia, Creedon Spar Over Double Sessions, Bond Issue

By TOM HENSHAW

A week after Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia dropped his bombshell by refusing to sign the $16 million bond issue for improvements to North Quincy High School two fundamental facts are starting to emerge.

- The chief protagonists in the coming struggle are Mayor LaRaia and School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon.
- The Mayor's real target is the fiscal autonomy enjoyed by the School Department under state law.

The first direct confrontation was scheduled to come last night [Wednesday] at 7:30 p.m. in the Quincy High School Method Center when Mayor, City Council, School Committee and Superintendent met to hash over the School Budget.

The School Committee was prepared to ask the Mayor to sign the bond issue already approved by the School Committee and City Council to cover costs of an addition and renovation to North Quincy High School.

Said the Mayor prior to the meeting:

"I am sure the propaganda put out by the School Department will dominate the meeting but I'm not going to change my mind."

In a related development, students at North Quincy and Quincy High Schools threatened to walk out of class in support of the bond issue but they changed their minds apparently after a Tuesday conference with Dr. Creedon.

Nevertheless, Mayor LaRaia was scheduled to meet with the students yesterday morning [Wednesday] to discuss his refusal to sign the bond.

The School Department purchased advertisements in the Patriot Ledger and The Quincy Sun urging the Mayor to "follow through with his inaugural day promise" and proceed with work on North Quincy High School.

The Mayor's inaugural address of Jan. 5 was quoted in the ads as saying:

"An essential concern we have currently is the disposition of plans for the construction of an addition to North Quincy

Want Bond Signed

NQHS Student Walkout Threat Brings Meeting With Mayor

By TOM BRADY

A delegation of students from North Quincy High School was planning to meet with Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia, School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon Wednesday to discuss the Mayor's decision to reject the North Quincy High bond issue.

Student leaders from the three High Schools, principals of North Quincy, Quincy, and Quincy Vo-Tech were also expected to attend the meeting Tuesday with Dr. Creedon after rumors of a student walkout at the school became known.

Creedon said the students told him they planned to leave school at 9 a.m. Wednesday, go as a group to City Hall and ask the Mayor to sign the bond issue.

He said he suggested the students' goal might be reached by having a delegation of students meet with the mayor rather than by staging a walkout.

Creedon said it took him some time to arrange such a meeting with the mayor, but when he managed to contact the mayor both sides agreed to the meeting.

One person who attended the meeting between the student leaders and Creedon on Tuesday—a meeting which was also attended by school principals and a police official—said that the students were very upset at the Mayor's decision to refuse the bond to renovate North Quincy High School and build an addition.

In the meeting, students said the mayor was "insensitive" to the needs of North Quincy, according to the observer, and they indicated they really supported the move to build a new school and were frustrated when even the compromise reconstruction plan was halted by the mayor.

"We suggested to the kids that we are not in the business of disrupting school, he said, 'although we understand their frustration.'"

Creedon was satisfied that the meeting with the mayor was accepted as an alternative to the walkout by students although the influence the student leaders will have in stopping such a walkout is not certain.

$207,000 More From HUD For HN Project

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia announces the city has received an additional $207,000 from HUD for the Houghs Neck Community Development Program for rehabilitation of homes during June and July.

The loan program began in July, 1975, with an original funding of $65,000 but ended in December for lack of money.

Distribution of funds to loan applicants will be administered by William Huber, director of the Houghs Neck Community Program, who may be contacted by those interested in loans at his office, 1086 Sea St.

Raymondi Seeks Action On Nuisance Dogs In Point Area

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi has taken note of complaints that unleashed dogs are disturbing the peace in the Whitten Ave. and Lawn Ave. section of Quincy Point.

"I have received a number of complaints from residents who are disturbed by the activities of dogs in the early hours of the morning knocking over rubbish and, throughout the rest of the day, roaming down the streets and into yards," he said in a letter to Dog Officer Frank Bertuchi.

"Many senior citizens have expressed to me also that they are afraid to walk down the streets because of the situation with these dogs."

He asked that Berluchi take action to restrain the dogs.

'Constant Bickering'

Anderson Resignation 'Unfortunate' Says LaRaia

Stephen N. F. Anderson has resigned as assistant director of professional services at City Hospital, a post he held since March 23 without pay due to the City Council's reluctance to fund it.

Anderson, who is the son of former City Councillor Carl Anderson, was appointed by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia without consulting the Hospital's Board of Managers, which upset the City Council.

LaRaia described the resignation as "unfortunate."

"Here is a former Quincy boy who has traveled far and has come home," he said. "I asked him to go to work for our hospital. I saw that someone with his ability was needed in the administration of the hospital.

"He has left and I think his letter of resignation spells it out."

Anderson, in a letter to Mayor LaRaia, attributed his resignation to "the constant bickering between the Hospital Board and the Mayor's office due to my appointment, I can't see that I could be an effective administrator. I believe that my presence on the staff would be a constant irritant to the board."

Requests for $5,500 to fund Anderson's position through

Brownell Seeks Repeal Of 7.5% Income Surtax

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] has filed to repeal the recently enacted 7.5 per cent state income tax surtax because the crisis is over.

"The surcharge was sold to the legislature on the grounds that it would be a one shot deal to meet the extraordinary fiscal crisis of 1975," he said.

"Since we are told that the crisis has ended, it should be repealed.

"The state government cannot expect the Massachusetts economy to turn around unless it begins the process of unsaddling its taxpayers from one of the highest tax loads in the nation."

Brownell said the surtax was passed as a one year proposition but the law contained no automatic repealer.

He said Gov. Dukakis' office has indicated that there is a good chance there will be a surplus for fiscal 1977.

Library Compiling Community Referral File

The Thomas Crane Library is working with the cooperation of other city organizations to compile an up-to-date information referral file.

Purpose is to establish a centralized information source for the Quincy community. This file would comprise human services agencies, civic groups, fraternal and service clubs, business, professional, political, senior citizen, sports and recreation organizations.

Information sought is the names and addresses of the officers, a brief statement of purpose, and the time and place of meetings. Organization representatives may send this information to the Thomas Crane Library Reference Department, 40 Washington St., Quincy, 02169. They may call the library at 471-2400, ext. 32, Monday - Friday from 9 - 5 p.m., or go to the library and fill out information cards which will be available at the main library and all branches.

Officers of city organizations are urged to communicate with library staff members to provide this vital information. Effective referral services require accurate information about all aspects of the community. Community cooperation is necessary to establish and maintain these important lines of communication.

Project Conserve Questionnaires Available In Quincy

The Massachusetts Energy Policy Office announces that over 50,000 Project Conserve questionnaires have already been filled out and returned to Washington.

The questionnaires were sent to nearly one million homeowners in the state. Within six weeks of mailing it back, the homeowner will receive an individualized "Home Energy Report" containing suggestions for steps to reduce heating and cooling bills.

"The response to the questionnaire has been overwhelming," said Henry Lee, Energy Policy Office Director. "Before all the questionnaires had even arrived in Massachusetts homes, Washington had received over 25,000 replies. Obviously, Massachusetts homeowners are highly conscious of energy costs, and willing to do whatever they can to conserve."

Efforts to reach homeowners with the questionnaire go beyond the initial mass mailing. Foreign language questionnaires in Portuguese, Spanish, Italian, and Chinese have been prepared. Copies of questionnaires in all four languages will be available in Boston's Little City Halls.

Copies of the questionnaire are available in displays in Quincy at:

Quincy Savings Bank, Granite Cooperative Bank, Presidential Cooperative Bank, Quincy Cooperative Bank, Star Market.

License Granted For Rock Concert

By TOM BRADY

The City Licensing Board, Tuesday, approved a request for permission to hold a rock concert in the Strand Theater in Quincy Sq. on Monday night, May 24, although it expressed concern about security for the event.

The concert, which will feature the James Montgomery Blues Band and a local group, the Dead End Kids, is being promoted by John Donahue, a Quincy resident who said that the profits would be used to benefit St. Mary's Church in West Quincy.

In response to the Board's doubts about security at the concert, Donahue said he was willing to hire a security detail of 20 Quincy police officers in addition to 40 private security men inside the building to prevent drinking, smoking and rowdiness.

He also told the Board that tickets to the event would be sold locally and that the event would not be advertised outside Quincy.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn moved to approve the concert license although he said he was "squeamish" about it. He pointed out the Licensing Board's general policy of not allowing any rock concerts in the Quincy Center area.

"But I would go along with it," Finn said "and see how it turns out. He's taken all the necessary precautions."

After Chief Finn's approval, the rest of the Licensing Board voted to allow the concert provided the police detail is hired, two Quincy Fire Department officers are present and no advertising is done outside the city.

Finn warned Donahue, who said he had invested $3,000 in the concert, that there were no guarantees that such events would be approved in the future.

"If you ever plan one of these events again," he told Donahue, "come before this board before you spend a dime."

The Licensing Board continued indefinitely another request from St. Mary's Parish for a carnival fundraiser to be held June 3, 4 and 5 on the school grounds because the state's Department of Public Safety has not approved or inspected the equipment to be used for rides.

In other action, the Board approved a long running request from Shore Taxi for two additional hackney licenses. The proposal, which has been on the Board's agenda for several months, would increase the size of the Shore Taxi fleet to four.

Several representatives of other Quincy cab companies have opposed the licenses at other meetings, but Health Commissioner Dr. Samuel Solomon's testimony that Shore Taxi provides service for elderly people when other companies are delayed convinced the board that the licenses should be granted. They required, however, that the signs on the cabs be brought up to state regulation size.

The Board approved the transfer of ownership of the Texaco Gas Station at 200 Sea St. to Pantelis Michalakos who has been the manager of the station and recently bought the property.

The transfer of a lodging house license at 4 Berlin St. was granted to Wayne M. Keith after Keith promised to build an enclosed fire escape for the building, provide parking for the lodgers' cars and paint and upgrade the building.

The building's previous owner is Mrs. Katrina Warner who has run the house for 32 years.

The Board also granted all-alcoholic licenses for a fund raising dance for Rep. James A. Sheets to be held May 20 at 8 p.m. at the State St. South function room, and for a benefit for the Wollaston Yacht Club to be held at the club June 5 at 8 p.m.

Downtown Hancock St., Parking Areas To Be Swept

Hancock St. in downtown Quincy is to be swept once a day and the parking areas two or three times a week, according to street sweeping and cleaning schedule released by Public Works Commissioner Vincent R.

LoCicero.

The schedule:

Hancock St. - Mechanical sweeping once a day in the early morning hours. Night crew cleans and empties all waste containers. One truck and crew will police the area daily in the daytime. One man will pick up papers in the daytime.

Parking areas - Mechanical sweeping two or three times weekly.

Consumers Elected To South Metro Health Council

Ten area residents have been elected to represent consumer health interests in the first South Metro Health Council, a health advisory and review group sponsored by the Health Planning Council for Greater Boston.

Elected were:

Marjorie L. Crispin, Ethel Fitzsimmons and Margherita A. Grabosky, Braintree; Marilyn Gill Sweeney, Cohasset; Ann Marie Connor and Marian B. Katzenstein, Hingham; Daniel Driscoll and Rosemary Wahlberg, Quincy; Grace Joan Coogan, Scituate; and Bella Krovitz, Wollaston.

The South Metro Health Council is seeking 7 additional consumers as candidates for vacant seats. Six of the seats are slated for persons whose family incomes fall below median levels; one seat is to be filled by a representative of citizens over age 65. Persons interested in becoming candidates for the vacant seats may phone John Dick at the Health Planning Council's office in Newton at 969-4316.

The elected consumers represent a broad cross-section of the population in the 10 communities which make up the south metro planning area. The communities are: Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Quincy, Randolph, Scituate and Weymouth.

Within the next few weeks, the consumers will elect health "providers" [such as doctors, nurses, dentists, and administrators] to the South Metro Health Council.

Once all elections are complete, the South Metro Health Council will begin a wide variety of health planning, evaluation, and review activities. The Council's duties will include:

- Reviewing "certificate of need" applications filed by health facilities which seek to establish new health services or expand existing services;
- Make recommendations for the modernization, construction, or conversion of health facilities; and,
- To participate in special health studies conducted by Task Forces representing the entire greater Boston area on topics such as mental health, primary health care, and long-term care.

Martina Duffy Elected Sweet Adelines President

Martina Duffy of Braintree was recently elected president of the Quincy Chapter of Sweet Adelines.

Other officers elected were: Anne Ruell, vice president; Martha MacLeod, corresponding secretary; Barbara Fitzgerald, treasurer and Caryl Dennis, recording secretary.

Installation of officers will be held later this month at All Souls Church, Braintree. A covered dish supper will precede the installation.

Today's Women

At City Hall Panel Discussion

Tobin, Harold Join Women In Backing Equal Rights

As lead-off speaker in a panel discussion last week on the proposed state Equal Rights Amendment, Senator Arthur Tobin observed:

"We are created equal in the eyes of the creator, and it makes sense to be recognized as equals in the eyes of the law."

Tobin and the other panel members appeared before an audience of mostly Quincy residents in the City Council Chamber at City Hall. The discussion was sponsored by Quincy Heritage and the Committee to Ratify the State ERA.

Tobin, who is also City Council President said he supported successful efforts to put the ERA on the November ballot because of what he considered its essential justness.

The amendment reads in its entirety:

"Equality under the law shall not be denied or abridge because of sex, race, creed, color or national origin."

Danielle de Benedictis, a Milton lawyer and independent candidate in the 11th Congressional District, spoke on the practical, political impact of the ERA.

"We have many good laws in Massachusetts," she said, "but to protect them requires constant vigilance. They often are threatened by attempts made by special interest groups to repeal or amend them."

"A constitutional amendment will provide protection for existing laws and a measure for reform of those laws which discriminate against women."

City Councilor Paul Harold agreed existing laws needed protection saying, "Statutes accomplish reform, but by themselves, are not strong enough to ensure reform."

Carol Mahoney, a member of the Mayor's Council on the Status of Women, emphasized some of the things the ERA would not do.

"Many persons think women will be getting drafted, and that public toilets will become unisex because of the ERA," she noted.

"Actually," she said, "the state ERA will not change the draft status, since Massachusetts does not draft anyone, and the state does require separate toilet facilities because of the right to privacy act."

Similarly, she said, the proposed amendment would have no effect on abortion laws which biologically are excluded from the issue of equality.

The other panelists were Marge Schiller, director of training and development for the state Senate; and Janet Poole, president of the Quincy League of Women Voters.

The panel was moderated by Janice D'Avignon of Quincy, East Norfolk County coordinator of the drive to ratify the ERA.

Mrs. Schiller said that while the ERA "will not change our lives too much, it will change the future of our children concerning equality and choice."

Mrs. Poole told the audience that the state ERA had the backing of the American Association of University Women, the Massachusetts Labor Council, the Jewish Labor Committee, the Catholic Nuns Alliance, Church Women United and several state and municipal commissions on the Status of Women.

Among groups opposed to the ERA, Mrs. Poole noted, were the Ku Klux Klan, the Communist Party and the conservative John Birch Society.

"This is probably the first time that all three find themselves on the same side of an issue."

As moderator, Mrs. D'Avignon told the audience that, "ERA is not a new or radical idea. We have 15 states in the union with ERAs attached to their constitutions. Wyoming and Utah came into the Union in 1859 with ERAs."

She said, "In none of these states has life been disrupted by the ERA."

Citing the "confusion and fear" that surrounds the ERA issue, Mrs. D'Avignon said many women think the amendment would force them to contribute 50 percent financial support for their families.

"They do not know that in 22 states... that have equalized support laws, the courts consistently have defined 'mutual support' in terms of non-monetary 'as well as monetary contributions.'"

She concluded, "In these states, unlike in Massachusetts, the rights of homemakers are recognized under the law."

FISH GOOD FOR DIET

If you're on a diet - think FISH! Fish is lower in calories than comparable edible weights of meat. An average serving of fish furnishes about one-third of the usual daily protein requirement. And, despite the fact that fish contains less fat than beef, it is found to be more filling than meat. Many meat eaters who habitually snack at night report they can forego the snack if they have fish for dinner.

The amount of fat in fish ranges from less than 1 percent (in cod, haddock, whiting, striped bass, and sole) to 30 percent (in salmon, mackerel, lake trout, and butterfish). Unlike other animal fats, however, the fat in fish is mainly polyunsaturated and easily digestible.

The vitamin content in fish is also high. A single serving of cooked salmon or mackerel can provide about 10 percent of the RDA of riboflavin and 50 percent of niacin. Most fish are good sources of such minerals as magnesium, phosphorus, iron, copper, and iodine, as are shellfish (clams, crabs, lobsters, oysters, scallops, and shrimp).

S.S. Women's Political Caucus Awards Banquet May 24

The second annual Awards Banquet of the South Shore Women's Political Caucus will be held Monday evening, May 24 at the Adams Room of the Hollow Restaurant.

Chairwoman Joyce Baker will present certificates of achievement to persons or groups who have contributed to improving the role of women in society and she will also present the annual "Woman of the Year" award.

Officers for the 1976-77 year were elected at the April meeting and will be installed at the banquet. They are:

Jane Ford, chairwoman, Carol Mahoney, co-chairwoman, Terry Hamilton, secretary and Carol Leman, treasurer.

The dinner is open to the public. Anyone wishing to attend is asked to contact Mrs. Mary Carey, 95 Reservoir Rd, Quincy.

AAUW Invites Quincy College Women To Social Evening May 19

The American Association of University Women (AAUW) invites college women of Quincy to attend a social evening at the home of Maryalice O'Hearn, 105 Sea Ave., Houghs Neck, Wednesday, May 19 at 8 p.m.

RSVP or for further information, contact Jane Ford, 156 Connell St., West Quincy.

AAUW is a national organization whose principal aim is to encourage women to keep growing intellectually and culturally. The Hingham Area Branch encompasses the entire South Shore and has sponsored such public interest meetings as Women's Legal Rights, A Look at the 21st Century, Chapter 766 and ERA.

This branch has also established the Resource Center for Educational Opportunities, a unique facility which offers free counseling by volunteers familiar with specific career and educational information.

4 From Quincy To Attend LWV State Council May 20

Four women from Quincy will be among the more than 250 delegates from 113 local leagues attending the state council of the League of Women Voters next Thursday [May 20] at the Sheraton Tara in Framingham.

They are Janet Poole, president of the Quincy League, Janice O'Brien, Janet Sullivan and Elinor Thompson.

Included on the council agenda are discussions of a study into collective bargaining and fiscal autonomy for local school committees, and adoption of a proposed $150,000 budget for league operations in the coming year.

DAV Auxiliary President Honorary Quincy Citizen

Mrs. Marybeth Schulze of Alliance, Ohio, president of the Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary, is now an honorary citizen of Quincy.

She received the citation from City Councillor Paul D. Harold while on an official visit to the Greater Boston area for Loyalty Day ceremonies.

Harold also escorted her on a tour of the Adams Birthplaces.

S.S. Children's Council Forms 2 Separate Groups

The South Shore Council for Children has voted to form two separate councils in the South Shore area.

The South Shore East Council will represent Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Scituate and Weymouth, and West Council Milton, Quincy and Randolph.

The Councils mandated role is to advocate for children and youth's service and to monitor and evaluate existing services. The Councils are the Citizen Advisory Board to the Office for Children which is part of the Human Services Department of Massachusetts.

The Councils are open to any person who lives or works in the nine communities of the South Shore. The elected board members direct the activity of the Council and advise the Office for Children and other human service agencies on priorities and unmet needs.

The Council provides a forum where people interested in children and youth can meet, share ideas, and plan for services. The South Shore Council has been active in Chapter 766, the education law, state program budgets, and information and referral. The Council works together with other citizen parent associations, advisory boards, and human services agencies.

The Child Advocacy Office of the Council is located at 1354 Hancock St., Quincy. The staff includes Jack Hauck, Community Representative; Connie McConville, Child Advocate, and Claire Drain, Secretary.

Those interested in learning more about the Council are asked to call 472-4224 or 749-2719.

Good-And Great Scorpions

Q. Can you say something good about Scorpions? I almost hate to admit to being one because so many traits seem to fit me! I was born in Boston, Mass. on October 31, 1907 in the late evening. I was told it was near midnight but perhaps because of the date my mother stretched the truth a bit.

E.L.N.

A. Some very great folks were born when the Sun was in the Sign of the Zodiac Scorpio. Dr. Jonas Salk, microbiologist, used Scorpio's ability for research to develop the "Salk Vaccine". Madame Curie, chemist and physicist, also used Scorpio's research ability to collaborate with her husband to discover radium and polonium and was awarded the Nobel Prize for chemistry.

Scorpios are recognized for their great curiosity, zest for life, search for basic values, depth of perception, dramatic ability and magnetic personality. Mahalia Jackson, gospel singer; Rev. Billy Graham, evangelist; Katherine Hepburn, actress; Richard Burton, dramatic actor; these are only a few of the great number of Scorpio born who "made it".

Of course the Sun Sign alone does not tell the whole story but in the forty five years of study and research in astrology I have never met a dull or shallow Scorpio. All Sun Signs have possibilities, each in their own way. It is what they do or do not do with their talents that is important.

You are inclined to be your own worst critic, wishing to advance and excel and be at your very best. You are fully aware of all that is going on and can be very frank about your opinions. By being master of your inner urgings and desires, you can reach spiritual heights. If you have not already done so, learn how to relax and you can control your destiny.

QUINCY COOPERATIVE BANK CAN LEND YOU A NEW KITCHEN.

In fact, we can lend you money to improve any room in your home. Or for an addition.

Because we're a cooperative bank, we believe that it's our job to help people make their lives better by lending them money for the things they need.

It was just one of the good ideas Josiah Quincy Jr. had in mind when he founded cooperative banking in Massachusetts. It was one of the good reasons why we named our bank after him.

And it's the reason we lend money for just about anything that will make your life better. Although he lived long before improvement loans, we know for certain...

JOSIAH WOULD HAVE LIKED THAT.

Anti-LaRaia Coalition Seen Forming

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Some political observers think an anti-LaRaia coalition may be put together for next year's mayoralty election.

The idea would be to draft one strong candidate and unite behind him with both money and effort to defeat incumbent Joseph LaRaia in his bid for a second term.

Observers—at least some of them—don't expect to see a number of challengers in the ring. Just LaRaia and "Mr. X" whoever he may be.

The feeling seems to be that LaRaia's administration to date has been on a negative note and that the city of Quincy is standing still or inching backwards instead of moving ahead.

Whether or not LaRaia can get his administration on a positive course and out of the stormy waters he has been bobbing in for nearly five months is the big question.

Right now his administration projects a strong negative image. There has been little or nothing of a positive nature coming out of City Hall.

LaRaia has been at odds with the City Council, the School Committee, the Hospital Board of Managers, the Police Department, and other city employees to mention a few.

Of course, there are many pro-LaRaia fans who believe he is doing a good job — or trying to — and that he is fighting the establishment if not "the machine". And, everybody is picking on him, including the press.

But can one man always be right and all those who differ with him always be wrong?

Anyway, most political observers cannot remember a city administration getting off to such a turbulent start—and staying there.

The coalition predicted by some of those observers would include political figures, business and professional leaders, elected and appointed city officials city employees, and private residents.

The irony of it all is that a good chunk of LaRaia's vote last year was an anti-Walter Hannon vote.

Next year, if the observers are right, the coalition's goal will be a strong anti-LaRaia vote.

If nothing positive is accomplished during LaRaia's first term, they are going to put together a campaign geared to a question like: "Had Enough?" Or: "Can Quincy Afford Two More Years of This?" If LaRaia meanwhile can turn it around, and start moving the city ahead, it could, of course, change it all.

Most people are willing to give a mayor a second term "to get things rolling." But LaRaia could find himself a one-term mayor unless his administration starts to follow the lyrics of that popular song of the '40's: you've got to accent the positive and eliminate the negative. . .

★★★

IF YOU HAVE ever attended a City Council meeting or public hearing, you'll agree the acoustics in the Council Chamber are pretty bad. It's just hard to hear what's going on.

Well, Norman Forde, Quincy businessman and political observer, wants to do something about it. He's trying to interest various civic groups to chip in with him to buy a PA system for the Council Chamber. Approximate cost: $5,000.

The system would have swinging mikes so that the councillors could be heard as each speaks. And he'd have a jack for WJDA to plug in for live broadcasts if they wished.

Anyway, if you'd like to help you can send your donation to him at P. O. Box 90, North Quincy, 02171.

★★★

THOSE BLACK and blue marks that City Councillor Warren Powers has been showing around town can be blamed on fellow Councillor James Sheets. Seems Sheets introduced Powers to white-water canoeing on the Saco River in Maine last weekend. Damage to canoe: $250. Damage to Powers: negligible, since he was wearing a helmet, life jacket and wet suit at the time.

★★★

REP. JOSEPH BRETT will be installed president of the Massachusetts Legislators Association May 19 at the Parker House, Boston. Ceremonies start at 2:30 p.m.

★★★

IS IT MY imagination, or is downtown Hancock St. getting dirtier and dirtier? There seemed to be enough paper litter blowing around last Saturday to fill a dump truck.

★★★

THEY CAN'T BE making parking meters like they used to. Or maybe the dimes are getting cheesier.

Some shoppers think it's bad enough to have to put dimes into a parking-meter. But sometimes you can't even get 'em in—especially in the Hancock parking area. Push a dime in some of the meters and it pops back out. One woman has solved that problem by using the point of a hair teaser to force the dime in.

And then there are the meters that are really one-armed bandits. They gobble up your dime without giving you the time. Don't register.

★★★

OBSERVATION via the Quincy Kiwanis newsletter: "Following the path of least resistance is what makes men and rivers crooked."

Because of meteoric material falling from the sky the earth's weight increases by about 100,000 pounds a year.

LaRaia, Creedon Spar

High School...It is my desire that this project move forward with dispatch, and also with prudence.

"With dispatch" because unnecessary delays will add needlessly to construction costs which seem to be rising at about 20 per cent annually... and with prudence because we do not want to see the quality of education eroded during the period in which construction takes place."

The School Department also noted that Mayor LaRaia's own consultant, Dr. Earle F. Littleton, advised him to "sign the bond issue as soon as possible" and urged all parties to "forget the present inconveniences and consider the future advantages."

Mayor LaRaia sent a letter to Dr. Creedon urging him to halt plans already underway to hold double sessions at Quincy High School during the two or three years while North Quincy High is being renovated.

He called Dr. Creedon's decision to proceed with plans for double sessions a "bold action" on the Superintendent's part.

"He is not giving proper consideration to the people who are paying taxes for what will turn out to be an abortive action," said LaRaia. "He has a right to proceed but in view of the circumstances he is very bold in his action."

Dr. Creedon said the letter [which he called a "memo"] from the Mayor "is the first written action I have had from him that he is not going to go ahead with the bond issue. I can't go ahead simply on reports from the press."

"The jurisdiction is clear," he added. "The schools are under the School Committee and the superintendent takes direction from the School Committee as a body."

"If the School Committee directs me to cease planning for double sessions I will do that."

"If the School Committee directs me to continue planning for double sessions I will do that."

"If the School Committee directs me to take a dual approach [that is, get ready for either alternative] I will do that."

"I am taking no bold action; to do otherwise would be deficient as I understand the statutes."

In an exclusive interview with The Quincy Sun, Mayor LaRaia assailed the School Department's "fiscal autonomy" under which its spending cannot be challenged by either the Mayor or the City Council.

"Fiscal autonomy is the real croaker," he said. "No one wants to take away what is due our young people but it has come to the point where there has to be some checks and balances. Now there isn't."

"The City Council acts as a check on the Mayor. But, as a body, the School Committee acts as a rubber stamp. This is no reflection on any individual but as a body. It has been like that through the years."

"As I reviewed the budget, I had to consider the possibility of layoffs among city employees. This was one factor in my final decision on the bond issue. I don't think that non-school personnel should be penalized for the high cost of government."

"The people associated with the School Department are insulated by fiscal autonomy. Non-school personnel is vulnerable. They are the first ones to feel the effects of cutbacks. They are second class employees."

"Fiscal autonomy is the crux of the whole thing. Unless that is amended to put some controls on the school system we will be faced with the decision to penalize non-school employees by denying them the supplies and equipment they need."

The Mayor called the School Committee's help thus far in trimming its budget "tokenism."

"I am sure they are guided by the superintendent as well as by the senior members of the committee who have gone along with the superintendent," he said.

"They want the cake and the frosting, too, and I have reached the point where I am not going to accept it."

"It is getting so that we have two mayors; one is the mayor of the school system. I say that in jest, of course."

[Dr. Creedon, not seeing the jest, retorted: "I wouldn't dignify that with a comment."]

Mayor LaRaia noted that several bills have been filed in the State Legislature that would remove the fiscal autonomy granted to School Committees.

"I'll certainly be in there to speak for them," he said. "I hope I can get Sen. [Arthur H.] Tobin's cooperation. I don't think fiscal autonomy is proper. There has got to be checks and balances."

In the meantime, the Mayor suggested "public pressure would be a prime factor against those School Committee members who have a tendency to say 'yes' to everything that comes down the pipe."

Sheets Says Conflict Ruling Does Not Affect Him

A recent opinion by the Massachusetts Supreme Court will have no effect on his status as a member of the City Council, says James A. Sheets, but he's keeping a close eye on it just the same.

The opinion was handed down April 8 upholding the state's conflict of interest law by saying that public schools teachers elected to City Councils in Chicopee and New Bedford could not receive pay for both jobs.

Sheets, who is also a teacher, was challenged in 1974 when he was elected to the City Council but Suffolk Superior Court Judge Harry Kaus ruled that the law only applied to further compensation as a City Councillor.

Sheets pointed out that his case differed in that the persons involved in Chicopee and New Bedford were public school teachers while his school, Quincy Junior College, receives most of its support from student tuitions.

"My case is closed," said Sheets. "The final decrees have been filed. But that doesn't mean that someone can't challenge it."

In the meantime, Sheets has been elected to the State Legislature and has taken a leave of absence from Quincy Junior College. He still teaches two classes, however, on two-fifths time.

11 Quincy Residents Selected For Jury Duty

The following Quincy residents were selected to serve as jurors for the June session of civil and criminal courts of Norfolk County.

Robert K. Gardner, 40 Euclid Ave., George F. Kemissey, 14

Lois Terrace, Arnold J. Buonamano, 174 Whitwell St., Michael E. Huxson, 60 Lansdown St., Arthur S. Galvin, 87 Sims Rd., Evelyn A. Goodman, 156 Crabtree Rd., Edith M. Gardner, 41 Deerfield

St., Edythe Solod, 95 Puntan Drive, Charles Amorelli, 152 Liberty St., Robert B. McCullough, 45 Dickens St., Richard F. Weston, 4 Grand View Terrace, and Sybil C. Rodman, 24 Ferry Rd.

Residential Cancer Crusade Reaches $7,100 Mark

Richard J. Koch, chairman of the 1976 Quincy house-to-house Cancer Crusade, reports that $7,100 has been received to date. Goal is $8,000.

Volunteers unable to collect to date are requested to complete their area assigned by the weekend in order to close out the campaign by Monday, May 17.

Ward chairmen for the door-to-door crusade are:

Ward 1, Mrs. William V. Reardon, 70 Chickatabot Rd. Ward 2, Theodore DeCristofaro, 17 Murdock Ave.

Ward 3, Mrs. Howard F. Crowley, 139 Highland Ave. Ward 4, David J. Donaghue, 88 Wallace Rd.

Ward 5, Joseph E. Burke, 145 Willow St.

Ward 6, Mrs. Linda J. Bowes, 241 Newbury Ave.

Stephen Anderson

June 30 have twice been sent back to the Mayor's office by the City Council because the Hospital Board had not given its approval to the appointment.

His resignation came as a special screening committee was reviewing his qualifications and Dennis Ryan, a member of the committee, said it was looking into Anderson's two years as administrator of the Jamestown, N.Y. General Hospital.

Mayor LaRaia said he had spoken recently with a Congressman who was mayor of Jamestown while Anderson ran the hospital there and the Congressman "had high praise for his administration."

"They had problems at their hospital while Steve was there," said LaRaia, "but he gave him a high recommendation for his ability and foresight."

"The problems there were not to any degree in proportion to what is going on in our hospital now. It was a typical administrative problem there on a smaller scale. It is going on in a larger scale at our hospital."

The Mayor said the matter of compensating Anderson for his six weeks on the job would be up to the Board of Managers.

"The job was unfunded," he said. "I pursued what was the right and proper course by going to the City Council for funds. They threw it back and forth like a baseball. Unfortunately, it was a political situation that resulted in his resignation."

The post Anderson held had been vacant for more than a year since the retirement of Constance Lundy.

QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS

May 13-19, 1930 -- 46 Years Ago This Week

O.K. For Men To Wear Shorts Says Police Chief

By TOM HENSHAW

Police Chief Ernest Bishop ruled that it was all right for men to wear shorts in Quincy, a fad that was gaining considerable notoriety on the Dartmouth College campus in New Hampshire.

Said Chief Bishop:

"If Boston Police executives announced they would stand for the wearing of shorts on Tremont St., without doubt they have looked up that state law on the subject and the state law as it affects Boston, of course, affects Quincy similarly.

"I do believe, however, there may be a difference between a man coming out on the streets in those so-called 'shorts' and being brazen enough to appear in his underclothing, say for instance, his BVDs.

"Shorts are a wholesome and respectable garment and may perhaps be ideal for certain kinds of athletic sports."

JOHNSON DENIES EXPANSION

Howard D. Johnson denied reports that he had sold his "soda shop and tea room" in the Granite Trust Building to a large restaurant chain.

"Not only have I not sold the Quincy store but I am opening a new one at Nantasket Beach," said Johnson. "I also have several plans underway for further expansion of my business."

GOLF COURSE NIXED

Loretto D. Tocci, chairman of the Quincy Park Board, turned thumbs down on a proposal for a Quincy Municipal Golf Club because of the financial condition of the city.

But if the city ever has the money for it, Tocci added, "the location best fitted for such a golf links would be the third field at Merrymount and all the land surrounding it."

William M. Edmonston, president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, had proposed a municipal golf course either in Merrymount Park or Faxon Park.

GROWING QUINCY

The U.S. census for 1930 showed that Quincy was now the largest city in the 14th Congressional District with a population of 71,965, up 33 per cent from the census of 1920. Brockton was down to 63,695.

Mayor Thomas J. McGrath predicted a population of 100,000 by 1940.

"Big times are in store for the city industrially," he said, "and this factor alone will inevitably draw many people to the city."

'GARBO TALKS'

"Garbo Talks"! said the advertising and fans of Swedish screen star Greta Garbo who flocked to the Wollaston Theater to see her in her first talking role in "Anna Christie".

"Her voice...rich, full, deep!...thrilling with emotion!...vibrant with passion!...as alluring and enchanting as her glamorous silent self!"

A REGIONAL ECONOMY

By ERIC SWIDER

A Rising Tide Lifts All Boats

by type of economy.

In 1972, Gross National Product per person averaged $3,670 in industrial countries, $580 in centrally planned countries, and $280 in developing countries. In the United States, GNP per person was $5,590.

The point of all this is that our economic system has proven to be the best system in all of history for creating wealth - and wealth is critically important to human progress; to health, to welfare, to education, to a high standard of living, and to life itself. Wealth is the product of creative and imaginative economic activity.

There are those among us who argue for a redistribution of wealth - but there is ample evidence to support the proposition that the best way to advance the lot of the poor is to maintain a healthy and growing economy. A rising tide lifts all boats.

The poor in this nation have gained more from our economic growth than from all of our government aid programs put together.

Abraham Lincoln said, "You cannot bring about prosperity by discouraging thrift. You cannot strengthen the weak by weakening the strong. You cannot help the wage-earner by pulling down the wage payer. You cannot further the brotherhood of man by encouraging class hatred.

"You cannot help the poor by destroying the rich. You cannot keep out of trouble by spending more than you earn. You cannot build character and courage by taking away a man's initiative and independence. You cannot help men permanently by doing for them what they could and should do for themselves."

Lincoln makes it quite clear that redistribution of wealth would be self-defeating for both the wealthy and the poor.

I understand that this type of basic defense of the American enterprise system annoys many South Shore residents. Congratulations. As you know, heat is a natural by-product of light.

It annoys me too that I am not as financially adept as most of the businessmen who support the Chamber. But my frustration is with me - and my inability to come up with ways to achieve financial success, and not with them for doing it.

[Eric Swider is Executive Vice-President of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.]

THE READER SPEAKS OUT

Takes Issue With Dr. Creedon On NQHS Article

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

When I arose to speak some months ago at the Vocational Technical High School in front of my respected Councillors, who by the way invited me there, I certainly did not consider myself "tremendously fearful of metropolitanism or carrying vicious falsehoods" about a new high school that was being considered for construction out in the Squantum boondocks.

Our School Superintendent,

Dr. Creedon, found it necessary to travel out of town to utter this kind of remark. I believe Dr. Creedon owes me and people like me, who still believe in free speech, an apology for the above charges made against us. I would hope that what he was quoted as saying against our senior citizens was misinterpreted. If Dr. Creedon was not misquoted, then he has no idea as to what these senior citizens contribute to our city.

Perhaps in the future Dr.

Creedon should clear his speeches with the School Committee.

Lastly, may I remind Dr. Creedon that the people's representatives, namely, the city council, voted down the Squantum site and therefore he attacked them as well as me.

Rabies Clinic For Dogs, Cats Saturday

The Quincy Health Department will hold its annual Rabies Clinic for dogs and cats at the Public Works Department Garage, Sea St., Saturday, May 15, from 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

"Every animal, three months old or more, should receive the anti-rabies immunization every other year," advises Dr. Samuel Solomon, Health Commissioner. "Massachusetts has an excellent record in controlling rabies in dogs and cats, and that record has been made only through these annual clinics and the concern of the animal owners."

The "shots" will be given by Dr. Alan M. Morse, DVM.

Harold Seeks Repairs To Broad Meadows Walkway

City Councillor Paul D. Harold has requested that the Public Works Department and the School Department get hopping on repair work to the walkway behind Broad Meadows Junior High School.

"The walkway leading over the sewer bank to Sea St. is used as one of the main entrances to the school," said Harold, "and in recent years it has been slowly eroding away.

"Repairs are necessary because in its present state it creates a hazard for the number of young people that use it. I'm hopeful that the good weather will allow the city to make the needed improvements right away."

2 More Tennis Courts For Ward 2

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymond announces plans for two additional tennis courts in Ward 2 and the improvement of two existing courts at Fore River Field.

Fore River Field is too small to contain additional tennis courts without interfering with the softball or baseball fields or the playground area.

Raymond said he plans to proceed with renovations to the two existing courts, including scarifying, resurfacing, sealcoating and painting of the lines.

"It will also proceed with

The actions are a result of a study of tennis facilities in Ward 2 by the Park Department at Raymond's request.

The report indicated that plans to have installed a 12-foot high chain link fence at the Pollard School Natural Ice Skating Area on Southern Artery and two tennis posts and nets which will result in the Ward 2 area having two additional tennis courts," said Raymond.

"There will be ample space for the existing basketball court and the fence may even enhance the court."

Covenant Naomi Society Celebrates 61st Anniversary

The Naomi Society of Covenant Congregational Church, Quincy, held its 61st annual banquet recently in Person Hall.

Two active members represented the charter members who organized the society Feb. 17, 1915. They are Mrs. Robert Jacobson of Quincy and Mrs. C. Herbert Johnson of Milton. Unable to attend were three additional charter members including Mrs. Russell Sandblom of Milton, and Mrs. Hildur Burkett Baldwin and Mrs. Ruth Lindsay, now of Kissimmee, Fla. The organization continues to meet each month and conducts an active program of service and fellowship.

Speaker at the banquet was Miss Nancy Lund, Director of Volunteers at the Cromwell Children's Home in Cromwell, Conn. Toastmistress was Mrs. Robert Day of North Quincy. Head Counsellor Mrs. Frank Anderson of Merrymount welcomed the guests. Kenneth P. Carlson, minister of the church, gave the invocation and benediction.

Special music was presented by the Daybreak Trio of Eastern Nazarene College.

Outgoing' Counsellors Mrs. Arvid Bjelf and Mrs. Charles Bennett were presented gifts by incoming Counsellors Mrs. Robert Jacobs and Mrs. Charles Sylvester.

An "In Memoriam" honored three of the church women who, died this past year.

The banquet arrangement committee includes Mrs. John MacDonald, chairman; Mrs. Frank Anderson, Mrs. Kenneth Carlson, Miss Winifred Erickson, Mrs. Warren Hedin, Mrs. Robert Jacobs and Mrs. Stanley Nelson.

From the start the Naomi Society has been affiliated with National Covenant Women, which is also celebrating its 61st anniversary this year. National Covenant Women is the women's arm of the Evangelical Covenant Church of America with headquarters in Chicago. It was in Quincy on May 14, 1949, that Covenant Women of the East Coast Conference [60 churches] voted to join the National Covenant Women.

Communal Anointing Of Sick At St. John's Saturday

St. John's Church is planning a communal anointing of the sick of the parish Saturday, May 15 at 1 p.m.

An invitation is extended to all those who are seriously ill, who have been ill for a long time, or who feel they are failing because of advancing years.

Miss Joan Donaher, chairwoman of the Christian Service Commission of the Parish Council, is co-ordinating transportation and physical assistance. Persons who need either should call committee member Florence Capobiano [472-2210], Duncan McLean [471-6416] or Anna Sullivan [472-8022].

Medical assistance will be available during the anointing.

Rev. John Tierney, pastor, said he believes that many of the sick parishioners will feel more a part of the community if they have an opportunity to go to church. He said he hopes the rest of the parish will enjoy the privilege of supporting and encouraging the sick by being present with them on that day.

The communal anointing of the sick has already been carried out in some of the nursing homes in the parish. Members of the parish team, Fr. John Tierney, Rev. David Delaney, Sister Barbara Gianino and Sister Jean Mulloy have held services at the Robbins Convalescent Home, the Adams Nursing Home, and the Quincy Nursing Home.

Sister Barbara Gianino is available to answer questions relative to participation. She may be contacted at 472-1464.

St. Joseph's School Historic

Exhibit In Quincy Sun Window

A unique view of historic Quincy is on display this week in the window of The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St.

It consists of models of the most famous buildings in the city, constructed by the pupils of St. Joseph School, Quincy Point, out of cardboard covered with clusters of brightly colored tissue.

They were first shown during a recent bicentennial exhibition of their talents and knowledge of American history by pupils from 45 schools directed by the Sisters of St. Joseph at Aquinas Junior College, Newton.

The Quincy youngsters naturally chose for their theme "Quincy, City of Presidents". They also showed the Quincy Heritage film, "Gift to the Nation".

All 220 pupils at the Quincy Point school took part in the construction of the models under the direction of the school's eight teachers, coordinated by Sister Fredette.

Norfolk-S.S. MSPCC Annual Meeting Thursday

Rev. William Erat, Director of Children's Services of the Lutheran Service Association of New England will be the guest speaker at the annual luncheon meeting of the Norfolk-South Shore District - Children's Protective Services of MSPCC.

The meeting will be held today, [Thursday] at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

Children's Protective Service is a private United Way state-wide protective social agency serving families who are referred because it is believed the children are neglected or abused.

For almost 100 years the agency has been protecting children and helping parents who have such severe tensions that their children may suffer from abuse and neglect.

Goal of the agency is to help parents recognize their problems, discover their strengths and learn to be better parents. During 1975, there were 156 families referred for neglect, 36 for abuse and neglect, and 55 for abuse alone.

The meeting will be presided over by Mrs. Myron Lane, President. The meeting is open to the public and reservations may be made by calling 773-5162.

'Mortals And Immortals'

Christian Science Lesson-Sermon

NEWSPAPERMEN

The Boston Globe prints over 3,500,000 newspapers in an average week. To get a graphic idea of what that figure means, picture a wall made of stacked newspapers that's 8 feet high and over 19,000 feet long. Or long enough to encircle the Boston Common three times. That's a lot of newspapers. But they're all just about worthless if they aren't delivered on time.

Patrick Knight, John Dilorata, James Murray and Frank Nemeskal, Sr. are four of the people who make sure that The Globe is delivered on time to newsstands, newsboy distribution points and stores throughout New England. In an average week they, and the 190 other Globe drivers, will rack up over 60,000 miles of driving time.

If they're working the morning paper, their day starts at midnight. If they're working the evening edition, their trucks start rolling at 10am. In either case, if you want to know how to get around Boston, or Massachusetts, or New England, just follow one of their trucks.

They make it their business to know how to avoid traffic jams and unplowed streets, accidents and other obstacles that would stop most of us cold. They know to the minute how long any one of half a dozen different routes to any given newsstand or store will take. And they know every turn, every light and every shortcut along the way.

Because of their skill, their knowledge and the pride they take in getting the paper delivered on time, it's a rare day when The Globe isn't there when you need it.

The Public Record Of The NQHS Issue

IS THAT ALL THERE IS?

-- Is this all the City of Quincy will have to show for already spending over $1 million to take down homes to make way for the approved addition to North Quincy High School?

Dear Fellow Citizens of Quincy:

"An essential concern we have currently is the disposition of plans for the construction of the addition to North Quincy High School...it is my desire that this project move forward with dispatch, and also with prudence. With dispatch, because unnecessary delays will add needlessly to construction costs, which seem to be rising at about twenty per cent annually...and with prudence, because we do not want to see the quality of education eroded during the period in which construction takes place."

These words are those of Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia when he first addressed all of us as Mayor on Inauguration Day, less than five months ago. Now Mayor LaRaia says he is going to set aside his own recommendation as well as the unanimous action of the Quincy City Council [taken when he was a member of that body], and the Quincy School Committee by refusing to sign the $15 million bond so that the long standing issue of North Quincy High School can be resolved.

In so doing, he is not only disregarding the clear will of every other then serving elected official, but he is rejecting the judgment of his own paid consultant, Prof. Earle Littleton. He is rendering as insignificant the favorable action of the School Building Assistance Bureau, the Massachusetts State Board of Education and the New England Association of Schools and Colleges. In justifying his position, the Mayor has stated that a declining enrollment has lessened the need and that the cost is too much for the City to assume. Both points are categorically false.

Enrollment is not a prime consideration at North Quincy High School. Rather, it is the inadequacy of a school originally built as a junior high school to serve adequately as a high school today. All the authorities alluded to above have reached that conclusion. The issue is not one of numbers it is one of adequacy and equity.

Are not the young people in one-half of our city entitled to equal educational opportunity with their peers, not only at Quincy High and Quincy Vocational-Technical School, but also in every other self-respecting community in the Commonwealth?

The issue of extravagant cost and the City's inability to pay is also a false one. To stop the project now and to adopt another such as that previously proposed by the Mayor will cost more than going ahead with the already approved program.

In recent weeks the press and radio have devoted a great deal of attention to this critical issue and they are to be commended for doing so. However, when reported on a daily basis the information is received piecemeal, therefore we offer to you this more thorough analysis of several of the questions currently being raised. We ask that you take the time to read it thoroughly and see if you do not agree with us and the Quincy City Council that the solution to the well-documented need at North Quincy High School is at hand.

We urge the Mayor to close the debate and, in doing so, he will not only be respecting the unanimous judgment of every professional study of the matter undertaken in the past decade, but also heeding the advice of his own consultant and making good to the citizens of this City his Inauguration Day promise.

What follows is an analysis of many of the issues related to North Quincy High School.

INADEQUATE FACILITIES

A North Quincy High School student tries to get a drink of water out of a faucet designed for the convenience of a much younger student. Facilities such as this point out the fact that North Quincy High School was originally built for junior high school students.

● Question 1

Is There A Real Need At North? Should The Whole Project Be Reviewed Again?

That question has been a favorite delaying tactic for years. Each and every time it is asked and another committee or organization is directed to look at the matter, the same answer comes back:

THE NEED IS THERE, MOVE AHEAD NOW WITH ALL POSSIBLE SPEED FOR TO DELAY WILL BE IMPRUDENT AND COSTLY.

Mayor LaRaia offered that advice in his Inaugural Address in January and in order to confirm it, he hired a consultant directing him to once again assess the situation.

Professor Littleton did that and advised Mayor LaRaia to "sign the bond issue as soon as possible."

In what follows is the complete text of the conclusions and recommendations reached by Mayor LaRaia's own consultant, Professor Earle Littleton, Mayor LaRaia's Littleton Report has been endorsed by the City Council and the School Committee.

'Conclusions'

The meetings I have had with the people involved with the project, my own research, my personal knowledge of school construction and secondary school education, and the many factors pertaining to this particular project has led me to the following conclusions:

1. The size of the addition should not be reduced. It is necessary space to approach modern educational space requirements;
2. Any attempt to reduce the size of the addition would result in the City of Quincy losing support from SBAB;
3. Instruct Coletti Bros. to proceed as rapidly as possible to complete the construction or working drawings, and the specifications.
4. Retain a Construction Management firm to coordinate with the designer and expedite the project;
5. Prepare the pile driving operation as a separate contract;
6. Consider two separate contracts for the new construction and the renovation of the existing building;
7. Begin double sessions at Quincy High School in September 1976.

Recommendations

I recommend that Mayor Joseph LaRaia sign the bond issue as soon as possible. Any further delay may abort the entire project, and any attempts to reduce the size of the new construction will result in a loss of the approved 65% support. No reduction in the size of the project will save the City any money, but will result in a financial and educational loss. The additional space is necessary for the City to approach modern educational space requirements and provide equal opportunity for the students of the City of Quincy to compete with the students of other school systems.

Every effort should be made to hold the project within the budget, and the best protection for the City of Quincy is to retain Construction Management. I recommend that one of two firms, Turner Construction Co., of Boston, or Gilbane Construction Co., Providence, R.I., be retained. Construction should proceed as soon as possible and the new facility will be ready for 1978. The use of fast-track, as recommended by the construction manager will assure this.

The most important recommendation I can make is to urge the Executive Department, the City Council, the School Department, and the Quincy Teacher's Association, School Administration, and the citizens to cooperate and support the project. Forget the present inconveniences and consider the future advantages for the City of Quincy.

On March 10, 1976, the Mayor informed the School Committee in public session that he intended to act on the recommendations contained in the Littleton Report within two weeks and would appoint a contract management firm.

Shockingly, in the Friday, May 7, 1976 issue of The Patriot Ledger, the Mayor is quoted as saying that his refusal to sign the bond issue should come as no surprise to anyone as he had been leading up to it since January. The exact quote is:

"This decision should come as no surprise, because I've been leading up to it since January."

If that is the case, then why did the Mayor:

1. State otherwise in his Inaugural Address?
2. Spend additional tax money for the Littleton Report?
3. Tell the School Committee that he planned to move ahead?
4. Vote with all other members of the School Committee in adopting a policy for transporting North Quincy students to Quincy High School beginning in September, 1976 in order to implement Double Sessions?
5. Direct the architect to keep working and thus incur additional needless costs amounting to several hundred thousand dollars?

● Question 2

What About The City's Ability To Pay?

What of the Mayor's repeated statement that his "decision to scrap the North Quincy High School bond issue was based more on an unwillingness to commit the city to a large bonded indebtedness in years to come, rather than a firm figure on what the move would save on next year's tax rate."

[Patriot Ledger, May 5, 1976]

In response, at least two points need to be considered:

1. What is the bonded indebtedness of the City?
2. If the Mayor is willing to commit the City to other bonded indebtedness, why does he use a false bond debt issue against North Quincy High School?

As can be seen from the below chart, the city's bonded indebtedness is not going up, but rather down.

Schedule of Total City Debt Actual and Projected from 7/1/74 to 7/1/79

[Information obtained from the City Auditor's Office 5/7/76]

	TOTAL DEBT	SCHOOL RELATED	BALANCE
7-1-74	$28,885,000.00	$11,625,000.00	$17,260,000.00
7-1-75	24,975,000.00	9,915,000.00	15,060,000.00
7-1-76	21,325,000.00	8,310,000.00	13,015,000.00
7-1-77	17,690,000.00	6,715,000.00	10,975,000.00
7-1-78	15,150,000.00	6,060,000.00	9,090,000.00
7-1-79	13,155,000.00	5,475,000.00	7,680,000.00

Obviously, the city is not in peril due to its bonded indebtedness and recent actions of the Mayor in other areas support this. Since the first of May, the Mayor has placed three bond issues before the City Council totalling $1.5 million. They are:

- $1,000,000.00 in equipment for various city departments
- $300,000.00 for street construction and repairs
- $200,000.00 for sea wall construction

Bonds of this nature cannot be floated for more than five to ten years, thus they have a greater short term tax rate impact. School bonds are floated for twenty years and when coupled with 65% state aid, the impact on the annual tax rate is no more than that for such things as the construction of roads and seawalls.

Certainly adequate school facilities are as important as roads and seawalls.

● Question 3

Is There Another Acceptable Solution Other Than That Which Has Been Approved By The City Council, The School Committee And The State Board Of Education?

In recent days, Mayor LaRaia has indicated that he would support a more limited solution to the North Quincy High School problem. To suggest that the inadequacies at North can be solved by investing $500,000 is not coming to grips with the reality of the situation.

The Mayor need not go any further than a review of his own previous actions in order to arrive at that conclusion. Four years ago while serving on the City Council, the Mayor stated:

"During the next few weeks, we will have to consider a more critical problem and that is the site, location, and costs of building a new North Quincy High School which is estimated to cost a minimum of $15,000,000.00."

In 1974, he advocated the floating of a $5,000,000.00 bond to solve the North Quincy High School problem.

Early in 1975, Mayor LaRaia, as a member of the City Council, voted for a $12,000,000.00 bond for North and in April of 1975, Mayor LaRaia again with all other members of the City Council, voted to support a $15,000,000.00 bond issue for North Quincy High School.

If he originally recognized a need in the amount of $15,000,000.00, then advocated a $5,000,000.00 solution followed by voting, first for $12,000,000.00 and then $15,000,000.00 bond issues, how can he now responsibly suggest $500,000.00?

The following chart shows the comparative costs to the citizens of Quincy in moving ahead with the project as approved, as opposed to adopting Mayor LaRaia's $5,000,000.00 proposal which, on $500,000.00 proposal is something he himself said there would be absolutely no state aid and it is not recommended.

In stopping the present approved program a debt already incurred must be met. To date $1,350,000.00 to meet on-going architectural additional one acre of land upon which the one million of that amount has already been $15,000,000.00 bond issue is dropped, then citizens of Quincy.

To stop and adopt a previously proposed $1.70 on the tax rate for the first year. To stop will amount to $1.50 on the tax rate for the first year.

The final unavoidable conclusion is that the citizens of Quincy is to move ahead with unanimous approval of the School Committee, the School Building Assistance Bureau, the State Board of Education, and the Mayor's own counsel.

● Question 4

Has Commissioner Anrig Advised Mayor The Whole North Quincy Might Need Further

On May 5, 1976 in the Patriot Ledger, Mayor LaRaia stated that,

"he received a letter last month from Commissioner of Education, which indicated that North Quincy construction and renovation was further review and that that also had a bond issue."

The fact of the matter is that no such letter ever from the Commissioner's office clearly states.

Dear Superintendent Creighton:

Since I would normally have known of this matter, I discussed the matter with Commissioner John Calabro, Administrator of School Buildings, who would also normally receive a copy. Neither Mr. Calabro had any knowledge of the correspondence files in the seven years record.

I therefore conclude that the letter not exist, the Mayor is quoted as follows:

"Mayor LaRaia said yesterday that the letter was not a key factor

● Question 5
If The Present Approved Plan Does Not Go Forward As Planned, Is There Any Hope That Quincy Will Receive State Support For A Substitute Proposal?

The answer is simple: NO.

In support of that response the following communication of May 6, 1976 is offered from the Director of the School Building Assistance Bureau. Of particular interest is the fact that while this response is dated May 6, 1976, the Mayor knew of the position of SBAB as early as January 22, 1976.

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts

May 6, 1976

Dr. Lawrence P. Crendon
Superintendent of Schools
Coddington Street
Quincy, Massachusetts 02169

Dear Dr. Crendon:

This is in response to your letter to me dated May 5, 1976, in which you notify me that the Mayor of Quincy has informed the Quincy City Council that he will not sign the bond issue for the $15,000,000 construction-renovation project at North Quincy High School.

You ask about a different solution to the secondary space problem in Quincy. Records of this project show that it has been carefully studied and refined over time and eventually agreed to by responsible state and local officials including SBAB staff, the Quincy Public Schools Staff, the Quincy School Committee, and the State Board of Education, which voted formal approval of this project based on the jointly agreed upon program and plans for needed modernization of the existing building and an addition to the building. Funds for this project have been requested in the FY 1977 budget.

The solution approved in Quincy by the Board is viewed as minimal to meet the needed program to be put into place in the school.

The North Quincy High School was among the last projects to be approved by the Board of Education last spring. Because of financial constraints on the program, the Board has not approved any school building assistance projects since June 1975.

The School Building Assistance program is scheduled to terminate on June 30, 1976. H2067, a bill developed through joint action with the Committee on Education, the Office of Secretary Paul Parks, and the Department of Education, is expected to be the major vehicle through which the program will be both extended and amended. If enacted, a limited fiscal cap will be placed on the program and projects will be funded according to priorities. Project funding will be further limited by imposition of maximum unit costs. The state's share of interest for cities and towns will be cut in half and further reduced through imposition of a 1% cap to be lowered from 50% to 40%.
Additionally, on future projects voted under H2067, should it be enacted, the community will be required to deduct 75% of income earned on investment of bonds or notes from the final approved cost of the project. If Quincy elects to negotiate the already approved solution at this time, it will forego both the vote and the favorable funding it now enjoys and will risk denial of future funding should the proposed legislation fail to provide sufficient funds for a Quincy project in competition with forty others now pending or in planning.

In short, a different solution would constitute a different project and the process would begin de novo. It should be noted also that construction costs will probably continue to climb.

School Plant Specialist Joseph Bishop and I explained the foregoing to Mayor LaRaia when he and Mr. Salenius visited our office on January 22, 1976.

I would encourage Quincy to move forward with this $15 million dollar project and to accept the $16,145,870 grant in aid it has received from the Board of Education for this purpose.

Sincerely yours,

John A. Calabro

● Question 6
What Can Be Done At North By Investing $500,000.00 As Mayor
LaRaia Has Most Recently Suggested?

While granting that $500,000.00 is a significant amount of money in and of itself, it will not have any real impact on the needs at North.

To invest another $500,000.00 is to repeat the same short-sighted piecemeal approach adopted a few years ago when the Little and Teale Building annexes were built near North Quincy High School. Between them they cost approximately $500,000.00 none of which was reimbursable from the state and all of which had to be carried by the taxpayers of Quincy. To add another $500,000.00 is to throw more good money after bad. It will do nothing more than keep the flames of controversy raging over North Quincy High.

● Question 7
What Will Happen To The Accreditation Status Of North
Quincy High School If The Approved Plan Is Abandoned?

At present, North Quincy High School has a two year accreditation running through 1977. The normal one is for ten years. The limited two year accreditation was granted in 1975 based on the knowledge that the proposed $15,000,000 construction and renovation project had been approved by the School Committee, the City Council and the State Department of Education.

In order to get an up-dated opinion relative to the question of accreditation, the New England Association of Schools and Colleges was asked to respond.
Below is a complete copy of the text of the response.

COMMISSION ON PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Director of Public Schools
Quincy, Massachusetts
Quincy Public Schools
Quincy, MA 02169

May 5, 1976

Mr. Arthur Woodward
Coordinator of Secondary Education
Quincy Public Schools
Quincy, MA 02169

Dear Mr. Woodward:

I write to respond to the following questions which you raised during our telephone conversation yesterday.

What is the current accreditation status of North Quincy High School?

The Executive Committee of the New England Association of Schools and Colleges, at its December 11-12, 1975 meeting, voted to extend the membership and accreditation of North Quincy High School for two years through 1977.

The letter of notification to Mr. Chisom, Principal of North Quincy High School, stated: "The Commission commends school officials, the school staff, members of the city council and school committee, the Concerned Citizens group and the students for their efforts in bringing the problem of the facility to public attention. Certainly, the appropriation of $16,340,000 shows an exemplary concern for the educational program in Quincy."

What will be the reaction of the Commission on Public Schools if the Mayor does not float the bond?

While it is difficult to anticipate the reaction of the Commission, it would be reasonable to assume that, since the Commission's recommendation to extend the school's accreditation for two years through 1977 was based on the positive vote to provide $16,000,000 for North Quincy High School, a failure to carry that commitment would be construed as a lack of actual progress to resolve educational problems at North Quincy High School.

Can the two years accreditation be reconsidered or withdrawn?

Yes. There is precedent to indicate that membership may be withdrawn by the Executive Committee at any time on recommendation of the Commission on Public Schools. Any recommendation on a school's accreditation is based on the expectation that reasonable progress will be made to resolve problem identified by the Commission.

How will the Commission react to a piecemeal approach to resolving the problem at North Quincy High School?

Again, it is difficult to anticipate Commission action. It is evident in the case of North Quincy High School, however, that the pressing problems of physical space and the implications of program availability at North Quincy High School have been identified in a number of communications from the time of the last evaluation of the high school on April 25-27, 1972.
It is possible that the Commission may regard a "piecemeal approach" as an undue delay in solving the problems that continue to beset North Quincy High School.

I hope that these reactions to your hypothetical questions may be of some help to you.

Sincerely,
Robert J. O'Donnell
Robert J. O'Donnell

RJO'D:llr

cc: Dr. Lawrence P. Crendon, Superintendent of Schools
Mr. Robert O. Moulton, Chairman of the Commission

In short, there is a very real possibility that accreditation will be withdrawn if the program is abandoned and then Quincy would be in the position of having one fully accredited and one unaccredited high school.

In the case of North, the loss of accreditation would be a clear indication that the facilities continue to be viewed as being grossly inadequate to serve as a high school.

As a result and over a period of time, graduating students would find it difficult to compete favorably with students graduating from schools where facilities are more adequate.

While loss of accreditation is undoubtedly undesirable, that in and of itself, would not keep an individual student from being admitted into the college of his or her choice until such time as the inequities in program offerings due to inadequate facilities outstripped the ability of dedicated hard-working students to overcome circumstances that were beyond their control.

Please, Mr. Mayor:

As members of the Quincy School Committee we urge you to pay heed to your Inaugural Day promise, to act favorably on the recommendation of your own consultant including his appellation that we all work together to bind the wounds inflicted on our city as a result of this matter. In so doing, comments such as that contained in the lead editorial of the Patriot Ledger on May 5, 1976 will be heard no more.

Our city loses when actions of its Mayor are referred to as "baffling and irresponsible."

Let's get on with the job!

BayBank Reports Increase In Capital, Resources, Deposits

BayBank Norfolk County Trust Company reports an increase in the bank's capital, resources and deposits and a small decrease in earnings for the first quarter of 1976.

Earnings in the first quarter were $1,039,000 in comparison to $1,091,000 over the same period last year. These figures reflect a decrease in earnings of 5% or $50,000 from the previous year's income.

Total capital and reserves of the bank were $34,317,207 as compared with $31,825,501 in March 1975. This represents a gain of $2,491,705 or 8% when compared to the figures of a year ago. The comparison of Capital to Deposits reflects the same strong base of 9.8% when matched to last year's figures.

At the same time total resources were $399,223,054, representing an increase of $29,974,651 over the March 1975 figures.

Deposits at the end of the period reached $350,250,499; substantially higher than the $324,429,439 reported a year earlier.

Grossman, Moore, Sullivan, Re-elected Directors

Quincy Cooperative's Gross Assets $102 Million--Highest In Bank's History

At the annual meeting May 5th of The Quincy Co-operative Bank, shareholders re-elected Everett P. Grossman, Harold W. Moore, and John J. Sullivan as Directors.

Grossman is chairman of the bank's Finance Committee; Sullivan is chairman of the Security Committee; and Moore is a Security Committee member.

At the meeting, John R. Herbert, President and Chairman of the Board, announced that the bank's gross assets at the close of the fiscal year April 30th were $102,000,000, the highest in the bank's history. The bank went over the $100,000,000 mark March 8.

"Strength and growth," said Herbert, "are indicated in the fact that our assets increased by $8,572,693.85 over last year, a jump of 8.8 percent. Our ratio of surplus and reserves to share capital is 11.3 percent against a state average of 7.92 percent, and our ratio of surplus and reserves to total assets is 9.82 percent while the state average is 7.12 percent."

Herbert's report to the shareholders continued:

"Mortgages comprise 78 percent of our investments, and the overall return on this portfolio is well above average. The balance of our portfolio is in investments approved by the state.

"Because we are a strong bank with a good return on your deposits, we can continue to offer and develop services for you.

"During this fiscal year we have opened two new branches: one at 1000 Southern Artery, and the other on Grove St. in Braintree. The Southern Artery branch is especially interesting because it provides an in-house banking service for 1000 Southern Artery residents plus members of the senior citizens club meeting there. The branch is closed to the general public. By providing a branch at 1000

Southern Artery, we make it possible, with direct deposit of government checks, for senior citizens to do their banking without leaving the safety and comfort of their apartment house complex.

"Our relationship with our senior citizens grows stronger by the week. The Retired Senior Volunteer Program officers use our Board Room for meetings, and in December we made available to the organization, which operates under the acronym of RSVP, our entire executive conference area for a Christmas party for their membership. Recently the bank was given a Certificate of Appreciation by the South Shore RSVP group. Working with RSVP we are publishing a new brochure on safety for senior citizens, and this will be available in our main office and at our branches, in addition to providing a plentiful supply of the documents to RSVP.

"Your Board, working with the prestigious international management and accounting firm of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co., developed an internal management program for the bank, which we implemented last December with the election of a Vice President for Bank Operations; a Vice President and an Assistant Vice President for Lending Operations; a Supervisor of Branches; and a Manager for our Braintree branch. All of these promotions have been made from within the bank. Our staff now numbers 58 employees, plus 15 part-time workers. We are proud that one of our Assistant Vice Presidents is Miss Marjorie Caswell who celebrated 43 years with the bank this year and who serves as Assistant Vice President for Bank Operations. We have promoted two other staffers: Mrs. Doris A. Morford, who had been Savings Supervisor, was recently elected to Assistant Treasurer; and Mrs. Stella Collins was named as Manager of our Cohasset branch, thus becoming our first woman Branch Manager.

"During the past six months, and with much support from our customers, we have gradually restored the name of the bank to signs, advertising, and printed matter. The use of the name 'Quincy Bank' created considerable confusion, and your Board felt we should restore, without fanfare, the legal name of the bank to end any confusion over our public image.

"Part of this move has been to make known to our customers and the public generally that our bank was named for Josiah Quincy, Jr., the father of co-operative banking in Massachusetts. We engaged a new advertising agency, which caught the spirit of the program with the development of the phrase 'Josiah would have liked that.' The response to the campaign has gone far beyond our expectations.

"In December the bank instituted a Leeway Corporation, as provided by statute, to broaden our base of operations in the handling of real estate. We call it the Squanto Corporation. The Leeway Corporation was organized primarily to acquire and manage interests in real property and acquire, construct, rehabilitate, lease, finance, and dispose of housing facilities," Herbert said.

At Atlantic Center

Old Ironsides, Peabody Museum, Camping Trips Planned

Young people take center stage at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center next week.

A field trip to the USS Constitution (Old Ironsides) is planned for 30 children Tuesday [May 18] with the bus leaving the Center at 12:30 p.m.

The first 40 boys, ages 10-14 years, to register on Wednesday will be taken on a weekend camping trip to learn the skills of outdoor living. Registration for Atlantic boys starts at 3 p.m.

The first 30 youngsters from Atlantic in Grades 1-6 to sign up on Wednesday will be eligible to visit Harvard's Peabody Museum on May 25.

Other events on the Atlantic Neighborhood Center program for the week:

Monday - Energy information will be dispensed from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. to those who may be eligible for government aid in winterizing their homes.

Tuesday - Food stamp information will be given from 9 a.m. to 12 noon. Also a demonstration of the correct techniques for applying makeup will be held at 7 p.m.

Thursday - Norma Barriere, community educator, will impart information on women's health from 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon.

Friday - John Salenius, executive secretary to Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia, will hold a "Little City Hall" session to discuss city affairs and answer questions about them.

In the future:

A Well Baby Clinic, free to all Quincy residents with children up to 6 years of age, will be held May 27.

A nurse and a doctor will be on hand every fourth Thursday from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. to cover such areas as formula, diet, health checkup, immunizations for diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, polio, measles, mumps and German measles [rubella].

4-H Babysitting Course Underway At Squantum School

Young people, age 11 to 15, from Squantum are participants in a seven-week babysitting course presented by the 4-H Department of the Norfolk County Cooperative Extension Service.

Principal Ruth Haggerty, has invited resource people from Quincy to conduct each of the seven sessions, on Monday afternoons from 3 to 4 p.m. at the Squantum School, Huckins Ave.

Mrs. Deborah Kicked, County 4-H Coordinator kicked off the course at the first session with an "Introduction to Babysitting" from the viewpoint of what is expected of worker and employer. Quincy Fire Lt. Robert Kelly discussed fire safety for babysitters. Emphasis was on prevention of emergencies in addition to copings with emergency situations.

On May 17, Barbara DiNatale of the Quincy Police Department will discuss police tips for babysitters. The remaining schedule:

May 24: Mrs. Beatrice Matthews, R.N. and Nurse at the Squantum School will demonstrate methods of care for babies and young children. She will also give suggestions for nutritious snacks.

June 7: Dr. Luleen Anderson, Psychologist and the Coordinator of Quincy Elementary Guidance Services, will explain the growth and development of children at various ages.

June 14: Mrs. Judith Rochelle will help the babysitters plan a party for toddlers.

June 21: the highlight of the course—a party for toddlers—will be held. Students will bring a toddler and conduct the party they planned June 14.

Parents will be invited to a graduation program to be held Monday, June 21 at 7:30 p.m. at the Media Center. Each boy and girl completing the course will receive an identification card stating that he or she is a qualified sitter.

Questions concerning the course and other 4-H programs can be directed to Deborah F. Zigun, 762-8333 or Ruth Haggerty, 328-1027.

Proposes Clay St. Facility Be Named For Mayor Della Chiesa

Alphonse Papile, recently appointed member of the Quincy Housing Authority, says he intends to submit the name of former Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa for consideration in the renaming of the Clay Street Senior Citizens Housing Complex in Wollaston.

"Mel Della Chiesa, in his 12-year tenure as Quincy's first Italian mayor, indicated over and over again his concern for the senior citizens of the city," said Papile.

"I believe that it is only fitting that we honor Mayor Della Chiesa's many fine years of public service by dedicating the Clay Street project in his memory."

Montclair School PTA May Festival

The Montclair School Parent-Teachers Association's annual May Festival will be held on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

All booths will open at 9 a.m. and rides will be in operation by 10 a.m. At 1 p.m. there will be races, bike, doll carriage and costume parades. Refreshments will be available throughout the day.

Open House Week At New Diet Workshop Center

The Diet Workshop announces an Open House during the week of May 16 at its New Diet Workshop Center at South Shore Plaza, Braintree.

The new Center for weekly group meetings is located in the lower level of the Plaza, the stairway in the enclosed arcade area near Herman's.

The complete approach to dieting which includes nutrition information, behavior modification techniques, well-balanced diet, and mild toning exercises will be explained at each of the meetings. The public is invited to attend at no obligation and learn more about the program.

Featured guest speakers all week will be "losers" who wish to help others and include:

Sunday, 10 a.m., Men's Group, Manny Hamelburg of Braintree, who lost 75 pounds.

Monday, 5:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m., Elinor Goldstein of Peabody, who lost 185 pounds.

Tuesday, 10 a.m. noon, 5:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m., Shirley Haynes of Quincy, who lost 140 pounds.

Wednesday, 10 a.m., 12 noon, 5:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m., Joanna Shaw of Waltham, who lost 180 pounds.

Thursday, 10 a.m., noon, 5:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m., Betty Roach of North Grafton, who lost 320 pounds.

Friday at 7:30 p.m., Lea Allen of Randolph, who lost 55 pounds.

Saturday, noon, teen-age help, Marjorie Lombard of Stoughton, who lost 65 pounds.

BIG LOSER - Betty Roach, shown here with her "before" photo, has lost 320 pounds and will be one of the featured guest speakers during Open House Week at the new Diet Workshop Center at South Shore Plaza, Braintree. The public is invited to meet Betty at the Thursday meetings, May 20, at 10 a.m., noon, 5:30 p.m., and 7:30 p.m., or one of the many other "big losers" being featured at all of the meetings held during the week.

More details may be obtained by contacting The Diet Workshop Southeast

Quincy, North Swim Teams Defeat Faculty In Fun Meet

The Quincy and North Quincy High swim teams recently met the faculty with the Quincy swimmers hosting and officiating the North meet and the North swimmers doing likewise for the Quincy meet.

The meets were held at the Lincoln-Hancock School pool in an atmosphere of fun and April foolery and it is planned to repeat the events next year. A large number of faculty members took part and fine crowds watched both meets.

The students won both meets, Quincy by a 105-101 score and North Quincy, 87-78.

The North team was sparked by the co-captains, Cindy Burke, Linda Walker, Mike Braun and Jack Lydon.

Student winners were Kevin Green in the 25-yard butterfly, Donna Walsh in the 25-yard breaststroke, Jody Rich in the 25-yard freestyle, and Green in the diving. The teachers won the exciting watermelon game, scoring four goals with a greased watermelon. Sullivan won the 25-yard backstroke for the faculty. Other events were the 200-yard free relay, 200-yard side stroke relay and 100-yard dog paddle relay.

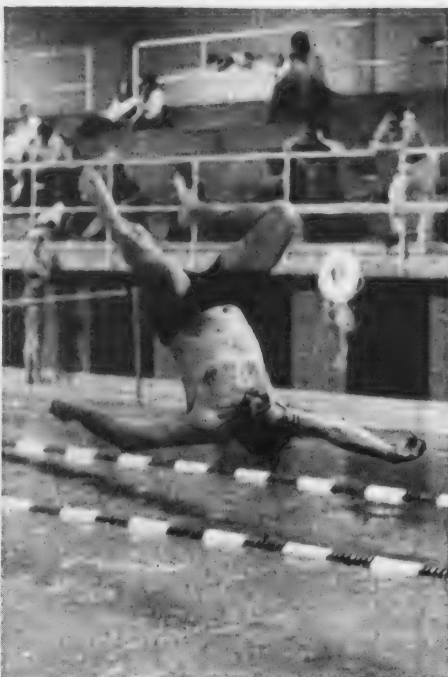

The Quincy swimmers officiating were Neil Rodberg and Mike Sullivan, starters; Val Collins and Pete Sullivan, announcers; Don Keene, Terri Finnegan, Kathy Ryan and Tricia Kussman, stroke and turn judges; Sue Tautvisus, scorer; Sue Murphy, David Ray, Ed Regan, Pete Sullivan and Tricia Kussman, diving judges.

The same events were held in the Quincy-faculty meet.

The high school team was paced by Co-Captains Neil Rodberg, Jim LaHive, Kathy Ryan and Kussman.

Kussman and the faculty's Walker tied in the 25-yard butterfly, Ed Penley won for the students in the 25-yard backstroke, Ray won the 25-yard freestyle for the students and Sue Murphy of the students won the diving. Joyce gave the faculty a win in the 25-yard breaststroke. The teachers won the watermelon game, 2-1.

The North swimmers officiating were Green and Lydon, starters; Barbara Toland, announcer; Janice O'Toole, stroke and turn judge; Lorraine Controy, scorer, and Ingrid Pagliaro, Green, Lydon, Scott Awed [of Quincy] and Kathy Gaselin, diving judges.

SAILING THROUGH AIR in diving competition in the recent Quincy High-faculty swim meet is the faculty's Bob Trott.

Montclair Club Couple's Bowling Banquet Saturday

The Montclair Men's Club Couples Bowling League will hold its annual banquet Saturday at the clubhouse.

A cocktail hour will start at 6:30 with dinner at 7:30 and dancing from 9 until 1 a.m.

The first half of the league was won by the Mercier Club, made up of Gerry and Dave Mercier, Phyllis and Don Noguera and Sally and Herb Baker.

The second half was won by the Savage Club, comprised of Mary and Stan Kovalski, Nancy and Pete Savage and Dotty and Wally Bereszniwicz.

The Savage Club won the rolloff, 1645 to 1595. After two close strings, the Mercier Club winning the first by nine pins and the Savage Club the second by three, the third string was taken by the Savage Club after some fine dutch bowling by Wally Bereszniwicz, who had a 141 for a three-string total of 341 and by Pete Savage, who rolled a 130 for a three-string total of 323.

Celeste Maloney had the high women's average of 99.9 followed by Sally Baker, 96.8, Elaine Brodie 96.0, Evelyn Parlee 95.9 and Maureen Connelly, 95.8.

Maloney also had high three of 358, followed by Baker 328, Parlee and Agnes Doyle 322, and Joan Doyle and Iz McCabe 320. Maloney swept honors with a high single of 139, followed by Connelly 129, McCabe and Baker 127, and Agnes Doyle 121.

Bereszniwicz had the high men's average of 113.8 followed by Bill Jacobsen 106.2, Bob Maloney 104.8, Bob Rice 104.5, and Dave Brodie 103.0.

Bereszniwicz also had high three of 382 followed by Bill Connelly 360, Steve Doyle 356, Brodie 355 and Savage 354.

Rice rolled the high single of 145, followed by Bereszniwicz 144, Connelly and Jacobsen 139, Brodie and Ed McCabe 135.

The O'Brien Club had high team three of 1807, followed by Locke 1794, S. Doyle 1772, Noyes and McCabe 1771.

The O'Brien Club also had high team single of 651, followed by McCabe 632, Noyes 628, Brodie 624 and S. Doyle 618.

Kovalski was elected president for the 1976-77 season with Mercier treasurer and George Hatfield Jr. secretary.

BaseballA-N Hopes To Regain City Title

The Atlantic-North Junior High baseball team hopes to regain the city championship this year after missing out last season.

The team had won the title the previous two years with 8-0 records and last spring was 6-2.

Coach Ron LaQuaglia has a fine nucleus with eight ninth graders who played last season and a number of other ninth graders with good potential.

"Pat Ennis, Dave King, Leo Doyle, Jack Dunn, Sean Donaghey, John McGuigan, Kevin Cobban and Dave Nagle from last year should bolster our squad," said LaQuaglia.

He also pointed to Gary Earle, Jim Holleran, Jim Flaherty, John Carley, John Sullivan, Brian Condon and Joe Waterhouse as players who should contribute enough to offset those players lost from last spring's squad.

LaQuaglia also expects three eighth graders, Paul Graham, Al Singh and Mike Scurti to see a lot of action.

The A-N managers are Pat McKenna and Rich Schaezel.

"I look for an interesting season, one in which all players

Junior Baseball LeagueRotary Bombs
Remick's, 20-0

Rotary bombed Remick's, 20-0, in the Quincy Junior Baseball League as it pounded out 19 hits off three Remick's pitchers.

John Keough pitched a three-hitter and had 12 strikeouts.

Pacing Rotary were Kevin Greene with four for five and three runs batted in, Steve Pecevich, three for four and four runs scored; Keough three for four and 3 RBIs, and Scott Matthews, who drove in four runs. Keough faced only 22 batters and Matthews starred behind the plate. Steve Sacchetti, Vic DiGravio at second and John Wahlberg at first stood out defensively.

Rotary also defeated Burgin Platner, 15-6, with 15 hits: Jim Kelly was the winning pitcher.

The key hits were turned in by Matthews, Pecevich, Sacchetti, Wahlberg and Glenn Houlihan.

Rotary is now 3-0 for the season.

Presidents Win Third In Row Raiders Bow To Weymouth S.

The Quincy High baseball team with three wins in a row, kept its slim hopes of making the Eastern Mass. tournament flickering Monday with a 4-3 win over Newton North.

The win gave Bud Mosher's Presidents a 6-4 Suburban League record and a 7-5 overall mark.

Dave Raftery was the winning pitcher, going all the way and surviving a last inning scare which saw Newton score twice. He allowed five hits, struck out seven and walked five.

Catcher Sal Coscia gave Quincy all its runs with a towering grand slam homer over the left field fence 356 feet from home. He also had a single to spark the seven-hit attack.

Quincy will play at Brookline Friday, Monday night at 7:15 will face North Quincy at Adams Field and Wednesday will host Brockton.

Charlie Bunker's North Quincy team, having a frustrating season, lost to Weymouth South Monday, 8-4, with Mike Kelley the losing pitcher.

Weymouth's Tom Thurberg, sought by the major league scouts, hit one of the longest home runs seen in Weymouth in some time and had two other hits.

The Raiders, with a 3-8 record [four losses by one run], hosts Cambridge Latin today [Thursday] at Adams Field, meets Quincy under the lights Monday and plays at Rindge next Wednesday.

Last week Quincy came up with two big wins, topping Weymouth South, 8-5, and walloping Weymouth North earlier in the week, 9-2.

A five-run fifth inning clinched the win over South as Steve Infascelli picked up the win and Dave Raftery was credited with a save.

The Presidents pounded out 16 hits, with Jimmy Duggan four for four, Lou Fishman three for four and Eric Carrera, Mark DeLuca and Paul Ferris each two for four.

In the earlier romp over Weymouth North, Quincy scored four runs in each of the fifth and seventh. Fishman pitched another fine game with a five-hitter.

Jerry Martin, improving all the time, sparked the attack with three hits, while Paul Southerland and Fishman had two each.

North Quincy dropped another toughie, 3-2, to Weymouth North, which won the game with two home runs in the sixth inning.

It was a heart breaking loss for pitcher Pete Fallon, who gave up only five hits but the homers by Paul DeVincent and Wally Bell [both only sophomores] sealed his fate.

North was held to six hits, three by Bob Stack and two by Cooper Jordan.

St. Moritz Horseshoe Tourney Opens To May 18

The St. Moritz Horseshoe Club, located on Bunker Hill Lane off Willard St., West Quincy, will host the third annual South Shore Amateur Horseshoe Pitching Tournament May 18-21.

The contest is open to all interested persons except past or present club members.

Qualification sessions will be held May 18 - 19 from 7 - 9:30 p.m. and May 20 from 7 - 8:30 p.m. Participants will be scored for total points accumulated while pitching 50 shoes. The 12 high qualifiers will be divided into two groups: Class A and B, and will compete for their respective championships Friday, May 21 at 7:30 p.m. Trophies will be awarded to the first and second place winners of each class.

The tournament is free of charge and horseshoes will be provided unless contestants prefer to use their own.

Curtain Call Theatre

Presents 'Follies' May 14-15-16

Curtain Call Theatre will present "FOLLIES" at Braintree Central Junior High School May 14, 15, 16, at 8 p.m.

Written by Stephen Sondheim, "Follies" is a sensitive, adult musical about former Broadway stars gathering for a reunion one last time before the theatre where they once performed is torn down. They reminisce about the dreams and hopes they once had and the realization that they were never fulfilled.

The play is under the direction of Norman Caron of Braintree. David Brayton of Weymouth is musical director and Ellen Kazan of Waltham is choreographer. Costumes are designed by Jack Dorley and Martin Potter of Quincy.

Cast members from Quincy include Ruth Ferrara, Rose Hathon, Eunice Allman and Joseph Carr.

Tickets may be purchased at the door or call Rosemarie Bonani at 843-0907.

'Operation Sail 1976' Film

At Quincy Historical Society

Those who have interest in sailing vessels and look forward to the arrival of the Tall Ships in Boston Harbor in July, had an opportunity to see the film, "Operation Sail 1976" Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Quincy Historical Society's Adams Academy Building, 8 Adams St., Quincy. The showing was open to the public.

The film catches the drama of the large sailing vessels that will be coming to Boston as part of Operation Sail 1976, a major event of this bicentennial year that reflects the maritime heritage.

Many of the scenes were taken in Europe last summer on board the large square riggers that will be part of the fleet of some 50 sailing vessels that will be led into Boston Harbor by the USS CONSTITUTION July 10 for a five-day stay. Included will be the large square rigged training vessels from many nations.

Operation Sail Boston 1976 is the organization that is handling the arrangements for the Boston visit of the Tall Ships.

Brass Ensemble Concert At ENC

Conductor is Jay Rizzetto.

The program involves works by Correlli, Ruggles, Grep, Bach and others.

The North Quincy branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library is exhibiting through May 31 the work of a group of photographers from Central Massachusetts. The members participating in the exhibition are: David P. Clark, Stephen Diardo, Lynn Masciarilli, Daniel M. Scott, and Dave Weston of Marlboro; Joyce Wedfine of South Lancaster; Steve Jusseume of Northboro; Dick Mason of Holliston.

They have been exploring the concept of portraits in the broader sense, such as portraits of a tree, etc., and the show centers around the theme of portraits of hands. Several different and unique approaches to studies of hands are offered. The balance of the show includes nature, portrait, and sports photography.

PART OF LARGE CROWD that jammed Quincy High School Method Center last week listens attentively to debate between Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia and the School Committee over the Mayor's decision not to sign the bond for renovations to North Quincy High School. Crowd, made up of both young and old, was heavily in favor of the North Quincy addition.

ANGRY REJOINER -- "That's a hell of a way to do business!" snaps John J. Sullivan, vice chairman of the School Committee, to Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia during last week's stormy discussion of the North Quincy High School bond issue. Sullivan charged that he was not told of LaRaia's decision not to sign the bond until the last minute. School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon sits grimly between the two antagonists while members of the School Committee look on. At far left is Senator-City Council President Arthur Tobin.

Will Go To Court If Necessary

Citizens Group To Fight For NQHS Project

By TOM HENSHAW

The Mayor, the City Council, the School Committee have just about talked themselves out on the subject of North Quincy High School.

Now come the Concerned Citizens.

Some 25 of them, most of whom have children who are destined to attend the school, met Sunday to form the Concerned Citizens for North Quincy High School.

"First, we are going to try to persuade the Mayor to change his mind and sign the bond issue," said Mrs. Beverly Ferrara, a member of the group.

"If need be, we'll go to court. Somebody has got to stop him before he fouls things up completely."

"We're going to get that high school anyway, even if we have to wait a year and a half to vote him out. We'll pay twice as much for it but we're going to get that high school."

Mrs. Ferrara said the group has scheduled a meeting with State Education Commissioner Gregory Anrig at 1 p.m. Monday in his Boston Office.

The state plays an important role in the situation since it will reimburse the city 65 per cent of the cost if plans for addition and renovation to the high school go forward by the end of June.

Mrs. Ferrara said the Concerned Citizens plan to raise money to take their case to court unless the Mayor "uses his intelligence" and signs the $15 million bond issue.

Their first legal step, she said, would be to obtain an injunction to prevent the state from withdrawing the 65 per cent reimbursement.

Meanwhile, other events in a week of turmoil:

• The City Council formed a committee, which Councillor Dennis E. Harrington called "a coalition of councillors", to wait on Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia and convince him to change his decision.

• School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, at the direction of the School Committee, was consulting lawyers to see what

Police, Fire Chiefs Warn:

Budget Cuts Expose City To Crime, Threaten Lives, Property

FINN:

Police Chief Francis X. Finn has issued an order reorganizing the Quincy Police Department as of June 1 to bring it within the limitations imposed by a $700,000 cut in his budget, including $222,900 in overtime.

"The Chief has reacted in a positive way," say Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia, who slashed Finn's requests from $6.1 million to $5.4 million. "I applaud him for it."

But the Chief wasn't looking for applause.

"The order you have placed before you is being forced upon me because I have no other choice," he said.

"While we voluntarily cut down overtime costs to do our share in economizing during difficult times, the Mayor has deliberately exposed our city to the criminal element by irresponsibly cutting from our budget $222,900.

"This cut directly affects our surveillance, court time, training time, overtime in traffic and the Police Boys Club.

"Indirectly, and equally important, the manpower needed to maintain the top priority of response time for emergency situations will have to be drawn from our drug, juvenile, traffic, detective and

BARRY:

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia trimmed a whopping $946,303 from the Fire Department's budget requests but the items that bother Chief Edward F. Barry the most are relatively insignificant--$21,377 and $14,964.

They represent funding for the jobs of master mechanic and motor equipment repairman, the two men who are charged with keeping the fire engines in shape to go dashing off on fire and rescue calls.

Under the Mayor's plan for fiscal 1976, repair work on the fire engines, as well as all city equipment, will be done at a Central Service Facility under the direction of the Public Works Department.

The prospect of sophisticated fire engines being repaired

To Head Florida ROTC Program

Capt. Cassani To Retire June 13 As S. Weymouth Skipper

The boy who learned to love the Navy and flying by watching planes from the old Squantum Naval Air Station circle his home in Quincy is calling it a career after 28 years in the service.

Capt. Henry Cassani, 46, commanding officer of the South Weymouth NAS, is retiring July 1 to take over the Navy Junior ROTC program at Port St. Joe High School near Panama City, Fla.

He will step down from command at South Weymouth on June 13, leaving the post he called "a dream come true" when he took charge of the base and its 35 officers and 350 enlisted men in August 1973.

"It's a good opportunity," Capt. Cassani told The Quincy Sun.

"Under Naval law I could stay in until 1983 but I made the choice because it is such a fine opportunity to head a Naval Junior ROTC."

"Besides, my wife is a Florida girl and we have always wanted to retire to the Gulf Coast."

Capt. Cassani, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis S. Cassani of 28 Churchill Rd., Quincy, was graduated from Quincy High School in 1948 and joined the Naval Reserve Unit at Squantum as a hospitalman the same year.

Two years later, the Korean War broke out and he went on active duty, winding up in Pensacola, Fla., as a Naval Aviation Cadet, flying the planes he so admired in the Quincy skies as a youngster.

"I have a soft spot for Pensacola," he says. "That was where I met my wife."

His wife is the former Florence Radford of Pensacola, who has followed him virtually around the world in the past 25 years, raising and tending to their seven children.

Capt. Cassani was commissioned at Corpus Christi, Texas, in June, 1952, and was immediately dispatched back to Pensacola for helicopter training. He was associated with helicopters for most of his Navy Career.

In 1954, he assisted in the filming of Walt Disney's award-winning picture "Men Against the Arctic", during which he spent hours chasing polar bears and walrus with a camera strapped to the pontoons of his helicopter.

He was also involved in the filming of the picture "Away All Boats" the following year, flying for aerial shots in the Free Glaucoma Clinics For Quincy Residents

Dr. Samuel Solomon, city health commissioner, announces a series of glaucoma screening clinics are scheduled for Quincy residents only.

The clinics will be held at the John F. Kennedy Health Center, May 26, June 2, June 5, and June 9, in cooperation with the Quincy Lions Club. There will be no charge.

The clinics on May 26, June 2, and June 9, will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. and on Saturday, June 5, from 1 to 4 p.m. by appointment only.

Dr. Solomon said anyone with a family history of glaucoma or over 40 years of age should have this test done on a yearly basis.

Appointments may be made by calling the Quincy Health Department, 773-1380, Ext. 219.

Congressman Burke Receives Gompers-Murray Award

Congressman James A. Burke [D-Milton] has been awarded the Gompers-Murray Award of Merit by the AFL-CIO at a recent dinner attended by more than 500 labor leaders in Chicago.

The award, named for Samuel Gompers, first president of the AFL, and Philip Murray, first president of the CIO, was presented to the Congressman by Joseph Sullivan, president of the Massachusetts AFL-CIO.

The citation made "sincere acknowledgement of your years of service...and your untiring efforts for the passage of progressive legislation."

QRTA Completes 'Looking Back',

A Book Of Reminiscences

Quincy Retired Teachers Association has completed "Looking Back", a 126-page book of reminiscences of teaching experiences submitted by members and friends of the association.

Many items in "Looking Back" have been included in the state's edition entitled "Where It All Began". A copy of Quincy's book will become part of the National Retired Teachers Association's book, "Pride in America".

Bicentennial committee members responsible for compiling the edition are Miss Mildred Harrison, chairman; Miss Ruth Meisner, Miss Helene Johnson, Miss Edith Johnson and Miss Theresa Harcourt.

Committee members were to distribute the book to association members at their semi-annual luncheon at the Neighborhood Club, today [Wednesday].

Students at Quincy Vocational Technical School collated and printed the book under the direction of Richard Chrystal.

Housing Badly Needed

Some People Have To Live In Cars, Trucks

Josie Mattina of Community Action Program [CAP] tells the story of a Quincy family of five that was offered an opportunity in Montana that promised to lift them out of their life of borderline poverty.

"They sold their furniture," she says, "and the husband drove out to Montana to start on the job and send for his wife and two kids later.

"But when he got there the company had folded. His truck broke down on the way back to Quincy. He arrived here flat broke."

By the time CAP found them, the family of four was living in the truck.

The story, says Miss Mattina, points up a crying need for temporary emergency housing in Quincy and around the South Shore.

"We can find housing for people like that," she says, "but it takes time. Meanwhile, there is no temporary housing to shelter them until we find it."

Miss Mattina is a member of an ad hoc committee set up by the Quincy Welfare Board to survey housing needs and problems.

It didn't take the committee long to survey emergency housing.

There isn't any, says she and her fellow committee member, Georgia Barioni of the South Shore East Council for Children.

Once there was a family of five who were evicted from a home in Quincy, then burned out of another house in Abington.

"There was no housing on the whole South Shore to handle a family that size," says Miss Barioni, "so welfare had to put them in a hotel.

"It was costing the state $20 to $35 a day, not including the hotel bill, just to keep them going while they sought permanent housing.

"The expense could have been reduced considerably if there was an emergency shelter for them."

Miss Mattina has a caseload of 84 families and 42 of them have housing problems. She is one of five workers with caseloads.

Miss Barioni, whose organization covers a wider territory, says she comes across about 36 families a month who are in need of some form of temporary shelter. About a third are from Quincy.

There have been four cases in recent days of families living in cars or trucks.

"We found," says Miss Mattina, "that the Quincy Salvation Army is allowed to put a person up for one night only.

"The Catholic Charitable Bureau in Boston can provide shelter for kids up to 18 years old but there is little for adults.

"And if we send people to Boston, how do we transport them? How do we work with them?"

What the committee is looking for, says Miss Barioni, "is a facility where a family with children can live in a housing setting for a month while a treatment plan is worked out for them.

"Sometimes we have to work with them that long to find out how to help them. If they are scattered around in different homes and towns there is no feasible way to help them."

The ideal, says Miss Mattina and Miss Barioni, would be four or five houses with a dozen or 15 apartments in different parts of Quincy where destitute families could live temporarily.

"There is community development money available for it," says Miss Barioni. "We just have to channel it that way."

Quincy, Ill. Students Exchange In 'Young Ideas' Spotlight

By CATHY CONLEY

"Kids are pretty much the same the world over" — is the conclusion our Quincy children drew from their trip to Quincy, Ill. in April.

The Quincy Exchange is featured in this week's "Young Ideas" starting on Page 15. In this issue sponsored by the Quincy School System, several of our Quincy children tell of their favorite sights in Quincy, Ill. — which range from Abe Lincoln's log cabin to Injun Joe's cave.

"What was your favorite sight in Mass.?" — our visitors were asked. Their answers include "The Presidents Adams birthplaces, the Adams homestead, First Parish Church, Old North Church, Lexington and Concord, the ocean and Plymouth Rock which one child thought would be "big as a mountain".

Guest editors of this issue are several of the Exchange students from both Quincy's assisted by Mrs. Marion O'Leary's fifth graders at Quincy Elementary School.

District Republicans To Caucus Sunday In Braintree

Republicans of the 11th Congressional District will caucus Sunday at noon in Sons of Italy Hall, 161 King Hill Rd., Braintree, to select delegates to the GOP National Convention in Kansas City in August.

The caucus will choose two delegates and two alternate delegates pledged to President Gerald Ford and one delegate and one alternate delegate pledged to former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Chairman John W. Sears of the Republican State Committee said any registered Republicans can vote in the caucus and any registered Republican who can produce a certificate of enrollment can run as a delegate.

$138,948 In Plumbing

A total of 76 applications for permits for plumbing estimated to cost $138,948 were received during the month of April, it was reported by James A. Erwin Jr., inspector of Plumbing and Gas Fitting.

The Department received

$1,136 in plumbing permit fees and made 140 inspections.

There were also 41 applications for gas fitting filed on work estimated at $8,600. Gas fitting permit fees totalled $132 and 88 inspections were made.

Local Secretaries To Attend New England Conference

More than 300 secretaries from the New England area will attend the 1976 New England Conference of The National Secretaries Association [International] at Wentworth-By-The-Sea, Portsmouth, N.H. this weekend May 21, 22 and 23.

Among them will be Miss M. Ann Winslow, Waltham, President of the South Shore Chapter, who will serve as delegate. The alternate delegate is Miss Mary-Jo Kilmain, West Roxbury. They will be accompanied by the following members of the South Shore Chapter:

Miss Dolores Almeida, Plymouth; Miss Bernice C. Brown, Miss Dorothy Ceriani, Mrs. Edna Swain, CPS, Miss Eleanor M. Fusoni, CPS, Miss Grace L. Giunchiglia all of Quincy; Mrs. Winifred E. Jarvelin, CPS, of Weymouth; Miss Helen Lincoln and Miss Ruth Davis, CPS of Norwell; Miss Roberta Carruthers of Braintree; and Mrs. Lucy Mercurio, Watertown.

Mrs. Mercurio, a member of the South Shore Chapter, is a candidate for the office of President of the Massachusetts - Maine - New Hampshire-Vermont Division, NSA.

"Spring Into Action" is the theme for the conference weekend. Robert P. Sylvester, Ph.D., New England College, Henniker, N.H. will speak on "The Truth About Hands". Miss Barbara Rechel, CPS, member of the New York State Division, NSA and one of the speakers on NSA's Research and Educational Foundation Seminar Team, will speak on the subject "So This Is The Thanks We Get?"

The program for the weekend combines business sessions at which new officers for each of the Divisions represented will be elected; speakers with ideas which will widen the horizon of secretaries; special entertainment at Open House and following the Banquet; and the opportunity to meet old friends and exchange ideas with those in the same profession.

The National Secretaries Association [International] is the world's leading secretarial organization with 36,243 members throughout the United States, Canada, and Puerto Rico, as well as affiliates in many foreign countries.

Membership is open to secretaries with two years experience who are currently employed in the secretarial profession.

Additional information may be obtained from Miss Alice Carron, 142 Barham Ave., North Quincy; Miss Grace L. Giunchiglia, 83 Edinboro Rd, Quincy Point or Miss Eleanor M. Fusoni, CPS, 42 Washington St., Milton.

'No Radical Departure'

'ERA Affirms Belief Everyone Should Have Equal Opportunity'

Recent bakesales at local supermarkets sponsored by supporters of the state equal rights amendment established rapport between ERA supporters and the community, according to Janice D'Avignon, East Norfolk county coordinator of the drive to ratify the amendment.

"The community is discovering that people who support the ERA are housewives and working men and women in many different types of jobs," Mrs. D'Avignon said.

"The ERA is not a radical departure from current practice. Rather, it merely affirms the belief in the idea that all people, regardless of race, creed, religion, or sex should have equal opportunity to pursue their goals."

"The state Equal Rights Amendment does not change anyone's right to privacy, including the rights of children to have separate sex bathrooms in schools. The state ERA does not change any federal laws or court decisions. It will not affect social security, women's immunity from the draft, or the abortion decision," she said.

"As the dialogue between people increases, more and more people realize the Equal Rights Amendment, while affirming everyone's rights, will not deny or destroy the family or the right of men to be courteous and thoughtful to women - and vice versa."

Alice O'Connell Elected State LPN's President

Alice O'Connell, LPN, of Quincy, was installed president of the Licensed Practical Nurses of Massachusetts at their 34th annual convention held recently in Boston.

Theme of the convention was "Independence...The Key to Our Destiny". More than 600 student practical nurses from several state schools attended.

COLD SURGERY

For many years doctors have known that cooling the body in a procedure called hypothermia reduces demands on the heart so that circulation of blood can be slowed or even stopped during an operation. Now it has been employed in cardiac surgery, even on very young infants.

About 11,000 babies are born in the U.S. every year with critical congenital heart defects, most of them potentially correctable. Until recently, the majority either died or underwent more dangerous and unsatisfactory surgery that did not repair the fundamental damage. Doctors have learned, however, that by cooling the blood to 68 degrees, vital circulatory processes can be stopped for one hour while surgeons make intricate corrections on babies no older than a day. At Boston Children's Hospital Medical Center, where pioneering operations have been performed, the fatality rate among 81 infants with correctable defects was only 12%.

Taurus Marries Leo

Q. Although our marriage has lasted twenty three years, most books and columns warn that we will never be able to make a go of it because I am a Taurus, born May 17, 1929 at 5:30 p.m. in Beverly and my husband is a Leo born August 18, 1927 at 2 a.m., also in Beverly, Mass. Ours is a full and happy life and we look forward to enjoying the rest of it together.

M.R.H.

A. Obviously "most books" based solely on the Sun Signs, the position of the Sun on the date of birth, do not and can not take the place of an accurate horoscope which takes into consideration the position and aspects of the Moon, the eight planets, the Ascendant and all the cusps of the twelve houses at the moment and for the place of birth. To judge compatibility between any two people requires a comparison of their complete horoscope.

Your husbands Mercury in Leo is close to your birth Mars and in Favorable aspect to your Moon's position. This indicates that you are able to stimulate him mentally and can fully understand him when he speaks, a sort of being able to "tune in" to his "wave length" when he communicates.

The Moon in a man's chart is important to his attitude towards women in general but towards a wife in particular. Your husband's Moon was in the Sign of Taurus at birth indicating that he would instinctively be attached to one who had the stabilizing influence of that Sign [as indicated by your Sun in Taurus]. His birth position of Venus was in very favorable aspect to your Sun and Jupiter. Venus is symbolic of love, pleasure and inner peace and he is capable of bringing all of these to you.

This is not to imply that there may not be moments of some irritations and or disagreements but on the whole your Libra Moon and Taurus Sun indicate that although Sun Sign books may classify you as being stubborn, you instinctively know how to cooperate and be agreeable in dealing with others. You take into consideration their opinions and feelings even when they differ from your own.

For questions to be answered through this column, mail the year, month, day of the month, city of birth, time of day if known and question to Ask Oscar, Box 114, Canton, Mass. 02021. Please sign your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered in this column.

IT'S A FACT!

The South Boston Savings Bank is the highest earning savings bank in Massachusetts.*

No other bank can compare to us!

Another reason why we are the Leader.

The fact is, to be the leader we have to keep one step ahead in the world of banking. Having the highest earnings of any savings bank in Massachusetts (Gross Income—Less Expenses) allows us to distribute more dividends than any other bank. There's always a concentrated effort by every member of our staff to anticipate your banking needs and service them promptly and efficiently. The South Boston Savings Bank is always the first to offer the highest interest rate allowed by law.

Once the facts are in there's no doubt why so many people follow the leader, the South Boston Savings Bank. Our every effort concerns keeping your banking dollar one step ahead... that's what being a leader is all about!

State Election Looks Like A Yawn

By HENRY BOSWORTH

This year's state election-right now looks as dull as a pile of old rusty razor blades.

Quincy's four state representatives and one state senator are up for re-election but no challengers have yet stepped forward.

Could they ride in unopposed? Could.

Senator Arthur Tobin might get some opposition out of Braintree or Holbrook but there's no challenger warming up in the Quincy bullpen.

Michael Peatridge, Mayor Joseph LaRaia's information officer, has toyed with the idea of running against Tobin. But his heart doesn't seem to be in it and it's now doubtful he'll even bother to pick up nomination papers.

Quincy's House delegation-Joseph Brett, Thomas Brownell, Robert Cerasoli and James Sheets don't even have rumored opposition yet.

They and Tobin are all Democrats. Republicans who once upon a time had all the political muscle in these here parts seem to have run out of Wheaties.

Will they let these seats go by forfeit?

Unless some hardy Republicans-or independents-get moving, the local "campaign" may put you to sleep quicker than summer television.

MEMORIAL DAY [May 31] in Quincy this year may also be Ernest Montilio Day. A resolve introduced by City Council President Arthur Tobin and unanimously passed by the council asks Mayor Joseph LaRaia to proclaim that day in Montilio's honor.

Montilio is winding up his term as commanding officer of the Ancient & Honorable Artillery which will march in the parade.

"But in addition to that," says Tobin "Ernie has made so many outstanding civic and charitable contributions to Quincy and the state, I feel it would be appropriate to have the day named for him.

ONE OF MAYOR LaRaia's most astute aides brushes aside the report here last week that an anti-LaRaia coalition may be put together to defeat His Honor next year.

The aide notes there was what he considers an anti-LaRaia coalition last year and that didn't work. The new one, says he, will probably have the same faces and won't defeat LaRaia next year, either.

Maybe. But there could be some new faces this time. We'll see.

CONGRESSMAN James Burke and former Mayor-Senator James McIntyre were among the head table guests and presenters at the Quincy Junior College Scholarship Convivium Friday night at the Harvard Club of Boston.

It's no secret that McIntyre has given thought to running for Congress if Burke decides to retire.

Anyway, McIntyre leaned over and borrowed Burke's eye-glasses to read off a couple of scholarship awards. "He really wanted them," quipped Burke, "to look up and down Washington."

PATRICK MCCARTHY, the Randolph Democrat challenging Congressman Burke, has opened Quincy campaign headquarters at 1661 Hancock St., Quincy Center. McCarthy reports his workers have already delivered campaign literature to more than 10,000 Quincy households and is getting ready to deliver more and collect nomination paper signatures.

FORMER Gov. Foster Furcolo, another scholarship presenter, had a nice tribute for Mrs. Maude Taylor Johnson, treasurer of the Community College Association and chairwoman of the scholarship committee. "She is," said he, "the First Lady of wherever she is."

THREE SCHOLARSHIPS were presented by the George Bryan VFW Post as memorials to the late James D. Asher, founder of station WJDA. Arthur McLean, who made the presentations, remembered Jim "for going out of his way to do all he could for everyone." And how Jim used to start the morning broadcasts patriotically playing the Star Spangled Banner.

REV. PETER COREA, a member of the Community College Association, mused that he once graded Judge Gertrude Halloran's paper at Boston University and not knowing at that time who she was. [She got an "A", he confided.]

FORMER FIRST LADY Mrs. Evelyn Della Chiesa, wife of late Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, is ill and a patient at Quincy City Hospital.

ALLAN JASPON, the Merymount druggist and brother-in-law of WJDA's Herb Fontaine, is "doing nicely" recuperating at home after a stay at Quincy Hospital.

CITY COUNCILLOR Warren Powers says he is now outranked by his wife, Holly. She was recently elected vice-president of St. Ann's Mariarians. He calls her "The Veep".

The Roman Appian Way is in better condition than some modern roads, yet it is more than 2,000 years old!

'The Total Man Loves Himself'

By WILLIAM F. KNOX

To be a Total Man means on the outset that a man loves himself. A big hoax has been pawned off on people that it's wrong, selfish, conceited and egotistical to love oneself. In the effort to raise money for all kinds of causes, well meaning "do-gooders" have urged people to give their money and services because this is unselfish and shows that we love others before ourselves. I suggest that the "good causes" may have fared better if we had been true to the theological and physiological principle "love your neighbor AS YOURSELF". That's the measuring stick of love for the heathen ... the cripples ... the orphans. When a man loves himself he respects himself, believes in himself, accepts himself, both his strengths and weaknesses. He is honest with himself, seeks to provide for his human needs, makes opportunities for personal growth, is able to forgive himself for his shortcomings and to learn from the experience. That's loving himself. With that kind of attitude toward himself, a man is constantly filling his life with love which overflows to other people. The Total Man loves himself.

Self-love and selfishness are opposites. The selfish person loves himself too little, snatching out of life whatever he can because he is so unhappy, so afraid he'll not get his share. His selfish actions are outward revelations of his inward feelings of failure to love himself. Some such men become brutish, cruel, hardheads. Others become servile ... will let themselves be used by domineering wives ... uncaring friends ... overbearing supervisors. They think by so doing they can buy the approval of other persons. Not so. They only reveal their lack of love for themselves, which costs them the respect of others. The Total Man loves himself.

Many people have never learned to love themselves. Many children grow up in homes where their parents did not love themselves ... or each other. So, there was no example of love of self. Parents ridden with hostility to life, slaves to conventions, hell-bent on making their children "good", create in children feelings of anxiety, guilt, tenseness, instead of secure feelings of love. In such a home children grow up saturated with the same negativism toward themselves, and toward others, which has marked their parents' unhappy existence. Love is taught by example ... love is learned when it is the way of life in the home. The Total Man is bequeathed a great blessing who grows up in a home that loves.

But ... one can learn to love oneself ... just as one can learn to play golf ... to drive a car ... or to meditate. How? First, by recognizing what it is to live without loving oneself ... selfishly, fearful, untrusting, negatively, weakly. Secondly, by daring to try out what it feels like to trust, to be free, to be forward looking, with a happy temper and an exuberant spirit. You see the difference.

Inevitably, the love yourself way will reduce your tension and anxiety, you will feel better physically, your relationships will improve. The choice will be clear. Dare to make that choice to love. Then, in everything you do, in every relationship, in every decision ask yourself, "Am I loving myself in this course of action?" Let it become a way of life. It's part of being The Total Man.

'Adams Chronicles' Billboard Proposal Sent To Finance Committee

Quincy Heritage made another bid to promote the city on a billboard off the Southeast Expressway in Boston Monday night and this time the skeptical City Council bucked the request to its busy Finance Committee.

The same request for $3,400 was voted down, 5-4, last month with Councillor Leo J. Kelly leading the assault. Kelly characterized billboards as "the lowest form of advertising."

Heritage Director J. Fred Lane told the Council that the billboard, which is already in existence, would promote Quincy as the city of the Adams Chronicles, which was viewed by millions on national television.

He said he had received letters from people as far away as California inquiring about directions to the Adams Birthplaces and the Adams National Historic Shrine and the billboard would be the most effective means of direction.

"Visitors spend money in the city," Lane reminded the Council.

But Lane's eloquence had

Moswetuset

Hummock Added To Historic Trail

Another stop has been added to Quincy's Historic Trail.

The latest brochure put out by Quincy Heritage includes as Stop No. 13 Moswetuset Hummock at the intersection of East Squantum St. and Quincy Shore Drive, which is said to have been the capital of the Massachusetts Indians.

It is the oldest recognized historic site in Massachusetts.

The brochure, which includes a brief historic sketch of each site plus a map and an outline of Quincy's history, is available free at the Quincy Heritage Visitors Center in the Quincy MBTA station or at the Heritage office, 1372 Hancock St.

little effect on Kelly, who recalled for the Council that the Adams family once told the city that it did not want an Adams statue in the newly created Freedom Park.

"What would they say if they rode through Andrew Square and saw their names all over a billboard?" he asked. "What would they say if they saw the Mayor's name all over a billboard?"

Councillors pricked up their ears at that.

"Would the Mayor's name appear on it?" asked Councillor Warren A. Powers.

"Possibly," said Lane in a hushed voice.

"Would his picture?"

"No."

"His name?"

"A small name."

"How would it be depicted?"

"Just a small signature," Lane assured him.

Kelly reminded the Council that it was he who "led the fight against having the windows bricked up in Adams Academy" when the Quincy Historical Society wanted to do that to create more wall space.

"I did that because I was concerned for Quincy's heritage," said Kelly. "Now my concern is not to let the Adams name be exploited. It's just not right to sink so low."

He derided Lane's contention that potential visitors had trouble locating Quincy.

"It's easy to find," he said. "Just go down to the Bay some weekend and see all the people from Connecticut and New York catching founder."

"People spend a lot of money in Boston and Plymouth," said Councillor Paul D. Harold. "Quincy should get some of it. It pays to advertise. A lot of politicians use billboards..."

But apparently not in Quincy.

"I never had a billboard in my life," asserted Council President Arthur H. Tobin and most of the Councillors nodded their agreement.

At the motion of Councillor James A. Sheets, the Heritage request was sent to the Finance Committee, which is currently putting in long hours on the Mayor's $78 million budget.

Shipyard Wins Contract For Jumbo Tanker

By TOM HENSHAW

The Fore River Shipyard received a contract to build a 29,250-ton tanker, the largest such craft it has ever undertaken.

The 644-foot ship would be capable of carrying 254,800 barrels of oil with a maximum speed of 16 knots.

The owner of the tanker was not disclosed nor was the value of the contract but unofficial estimates placed it at $6,250,000.

Meanwhile, the American Export liner SS Constitution left its berth at Fore River for company trials off Cape Cod.

Officials denied that she would attempt to break the record of her sister ship SS Independence which did 26.105 knots during trials off Rockland, Me., in December.

TEACHERS ORGANIZE

More than 60 teachers in the Quincy public school system voted at a meeting in Labor Hall, 28 Chestnut St., to apply for a charter from the American Federation of Teachers [AFL].

The meeting was addressed by Mary Cadigan, New England vice president of the AFT, and Walter Lockhart, chairman of the Quincy Central Labor Union.

Angelo Riccio, president of the Quincy Teachers Association, said his group had nothing to do with the meeting.

FINAL SPAN ADDED

The final span of the two-lane bridge between Moon Island and Long Island was dropped in place.

The $2.6 million bridge, 3,450 feet long, was scheduled to be completed June 15 and opened to traffic sometime in August.

QUINCY-ISMS

Theodore Fleming was elected president of the Hunting School PTA. George Deneen pitched a four-hitter to give North Junior High School an 8-2 victory over South Junior High School at Kincaide Park for the city junior high baseball title. Congressman John F. Kennedy [D-Boston] was the principal speaker at a joint meeting of the four Quincy service clubs in Cliveden Building Hall. Russell's Diner, 70 Adams St., had a fresh lobster plate with french fries and rolls and butter for 85 cents. Mrs. William E. Stewart of 145 Grand View Ave., Wollaston, was installed as president of the Wollaston Baptist Mothers Club. Pfc. John Morse Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Morse of 49 Island Ave., Houghs Neck, was en route to an eastern hospital to recover from wounds received when a land mine exploded in Korea. The Wollaston Glee Club, under the direction of Donald T. Gammons, won second prize in the grand competition of the New England Federation of Men's Glee Clubs in Lynn. John Munn, Robert Gardiner and Joseph Brigette were elected trustees of the Adams Shore Community Church. Brockton High beat Quincy, 2-0, as Dick Hoxie of the Presidents and Brockton's Phil O'Connell matched six hitters. Officer William T. Spencer narrated the color film "Quincy Police in Action" shown at the weekly luncheon of the Quincy Kiwanis Club. Mohican Market, 29 Chestnut St., was selling bacon at 49 cents a pound, Campbell's tomato soup at 10 cents for $1, and bananas for 15 cents a pound. Charles Riley was elected president of the Cranch School PTA. Adolpho DiBona of Quincy gave a stereopticon lecture on the subject of "microscopic photography" at a meeting of the Granite City Stamp Club in the YMCA clubroom. The body of Sgt. Francis T. Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pryor Hall of 232 Centre St., West Quincy, who died on a mission over Czechoslovakia in 1944, was returned to Quincy for burial. Quincy Market, 18 Chestnut St., had 86 proof Brandy whiskey at $2.98 a five and 80.6 proof Stokes London Dry gin at $2.69 a fifth. Old India Pale Ale was selling at 10 bottles for $1, plus deposit. Mrs. Nelson Lamont was elected president of the Wollaston Legion Auxiliary. Ted Olson, former Boston Red Sox pitcher and the only Quincy native ever to play in the American League, was listed as manager of the Granite Trust team in the Quincy Little League. The Art Theater was presenting the first Quincy showing of "Fury on the Congo" starring Johnny Weismuller. The second feature was "Pygmy Island", also starring Weismuller as well as Ann Savage and David Bruce. Judith Higgins, 12, of 24 Brook St., Wollaston, a member of Troop 69 at the Wollaston Methodist Church, won the Hilda Fay Goldberg award as the Quincy Girl Scout who best exemplifies the Girl Scout oath and laws. The special at the Maple Cafe, 6 Maple St., was roast stuffed turkey with giblet gravy, cranberry sauce, potatoes, vegetable, soup, dessert and coffee or tea for 99 cents. Archbishop Richard J. Cushing delivered the sermon at the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Irving L. Gifford, pastor of Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy, observed the 40th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. Claus Gelotte Camera Store opened at 1387 Hancock St. under Manager William MacMillan. Shirley E. Rich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Rich of 92 Sagamore Ave., Montclair, received the highest award in Interior decorating at her graduation from Moderne School of Fashion and Design in Boston. City Food Inspector Clarence L. Edwards proposed that the new Quincy Health Center be named for Health Commissioner Dr. Richard M. Ash, whom he called the moving spirit behind it. Ronald M. Weyand, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Weyand of 21 Waban Rd., Merrymount, won the trophy for the best performance of 1951 from the Boston Catholic Theater Guild for his role in the play "May We, Come In." Quincy Patrolmen Paul O'Leary, Frederick Tighe, William McAuliffe and Guido Pettinelli were cited for recent arrests. A three-family house in Wollaston was on the market for $13,000. Mrs. Emma Newcomb, 93, was honored at the 30th anniversary of the Quincy Adams Lodge, United Order of Independent Odd Ladies at Topsy's in West Bridgewater.

A REGIONAL ECONOMY — By ERIC SWIDER

Is That All The Pie There Is?

The so-called leaders for social justice in this area want to get a bigger piece of the pie for their constituency. Their contention is that there is only one pie, and the way it currently gets sliced is unacceptable to them.

The contention of the capitalists I work with is that if the conditions can be made better here, then we can bake more pies so that everyone can have just as much as they want.

The media helps perpetuate a myth that America, through its greedy multi-national corporations, is raping the world. We are told that while our nation has only 6 per cent of the world's population, we consume 40 per cent of the world's resources. That's a bold face lie.

The facts are that we buy about one-quarter of the world's output and produce one-quarter of the world's output. We haven't even discovered a fraction of the world's potential wealth and won't have done so 200 years from now. The media would have you believe that there is only one pie — it can't be made bigger or better, and the only unfinished business is cutting and devouring.

If the "social justice" crowd were more scientific rather than political about solving the problems of the poor and the hungry here and throughout the world, they would become boosters of the multi-national corporation. The intelligence, training, organization and financial techniques necessary for economic development are the real assets a multi-national corporation provides to an underdeveloped nation. These offer a greater hope of abolishing world poverty in the future than do all the pie-dividing schemes they can generate.

Our Founding Fathers were concerned about the technology gap of their era. Jefferson and others worried that America might never catch up with the advanced nations of western Europe.

Today the roles are reversed. And unlike the "closed" societies that some of our liberal friends would have us emulating, the fruits of our expenditures have been shared with the rest of the world — in space, medicine and basic science.

While we are experiencing some temporary difficulties and delays while developing alternate energy sources, it is important to remember that this world is not running out of fuel to fire the economic prosperity that everyone wants or will want. There is a billion years of energy locked in the waters of the oceans. All we need is the key to the lock. And we're going to find it.

The scary thing is that we here in Massachusetts, with the most to lose and the least to gain, could — with the urging of poorly informed pie dividers — be the first state in that nation to repeat the capitalist system as an acceptable form of economic development.

Telling you that your electric bill is atrociously high because the public utility is privately owned and operated and the capitalist needs to make profit is easy and catchy, despite the fact that it is wrong. Nobody likes the higher electric prices resulting from the temporary advantage foreign suppliers enjoy, so it's easy to believe that the oil companies, utility companies and God knows who else, have ganged up on the "little" guy. Convincing the average little guy that his best interests are being served and protected by the investor-owned utility versus a public power authority is not as easy and catchy.

But the handwriting is on the wall. If Massachusetts defects by adopting flat rates, graduated income tax or public power as they currently propose in this Fall's election, then the days for enterprise here are numbered, and perpetual economic sluggishness is assured. Then, what's next — banks, or insurance companies.

We can't afford to let that happen. Not because it will be bad for business. But because it will be bad for people. Once we adopt public policy that totally removes the potential to increase the size of the pie, or eliminates our capability to bake another, then the only thing that's left is cutting, devouring and fighting with each other over the crumbs.

[Eric Swider is Executive Vice President of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce]

THE READER SPEAKS OUT

Forget-Me-Notes

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Only 12 months ago the forget-me-not was made the official flower of Quincy. A resolve introduced by Senator and City Council President Arthur H. Tobin was unanimously passed by his fellow Quincy City councilmen. Present Mayor, Joseph J. LaRaia, as a city councilman, also voted for the resolve.

Let us have a look, now, a year after, and see what is going on in the City of forget-me-nots, the City of patriots and the City of Presidents. There is a hot debate going on between the Mayor and the City Councilmen as to whom to forget.

For those whose names would be stricken from the city payrolls, would be, for all practical purposes, forgotten men, forgotten people, if you prefer. For they plan to fire not only firemen and policemen, but also women "typists and luncheon matrons", and all those declared as "non-essentials", every single person considered persona non grata. In the abortion jargon "the non-essentials" are "the unwanted" men and women. They are those who already earn a degrading minimum, they are those who have no unions to fight for them, no associations to intercede, no politician to plead for them.

In view of the above, one cannot help wondering what meaning is left to our Pledge of Allegiance to the American flag, where we say that the United States of America is "one nation, under God, with liberty and justice for all?"

The patriots, whose memory we celebrate this year, pledged their lives and their property to the common good. Wouldn't it be appropriate in this Bicentennial year to rededicate ourselves and following in the footsteps of the American patriots to pledge our lives and our property to the good of all citizens?

If we don't, what meaning does the Bicentennial celebration have for those who are excluded, who are unwanted, who are "non-essential", who should be sacrificed so that the rest may continue to live in luxury and over abundance?

Obviously, we need to recapture the spirit of 1776 and live by it!

May I be permitted to urge my friends, Mayor LaRaia, President Tobin, and all City Councilmen, not only not to fire a single fireman and policeman, not a single "non-essential" City employee, but to make a plan to employ the unemployed, to find jobs for the jobless.

May I ask all of them to stand unanimously for every single citizen of Quincy as they unanimously stood for Senator Tobin's resolve to make the forget-me-not the official flower of Quincy.

Mayor of Quincy.

MDC Thanks Volunteers For Blue Hills Cleanup

Editor, Quincy Sun:

Just a short note to express my sincere thanks and appreciation to the many volunteers from Quincy who pitched in to make the Metropolitan District Commission's cleanup in the Blue Hills Reservation such a resounding success.

And a special salute to Senator Arthur H. Tobin and Representative James A. Sheets, who were out there with all the others and of whom, to paraphrase a bit, "io, their enthusiasm led all the rest..."

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Can Employer Require Lie Detector Test?

"Can my employer require me and my co-workers to take a polygraph [lie detector] test?" a caller asked the VOTER INFORMATION PHONE recently.

The ViPhone volunteer answered that this invasion of privacy is prohibited by state law. Under Chapter 149, section 19B of the General Laws of the Commonwealth, only law enforcement agencies can require polygraph tests of their employees.

This question is one of many now being received by the League of Women Voters VOTER INFORMATION PHONE, a statewide free public service of the Lotte E. Scharfman Memorial Fund. If you have questions about government-local, state or national — call the ViPhone Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. The number in the Boston area is 357-5880. Outside the Boston metropolitan area, dial 1-800-882-1649, toll-free.

George Hallisey To Do Missionary Work In France

George Hallisey of Quincy, a freshman at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, has been appointed to a summer of missionary service in France with Greater Europe Mission.

Hallisey, a French major, will spend the summer months on a construction team at a Bible camp operated by GEM missionaries in the French Alps east of Grenoble.

The assignment is a part of Eurocorps '76, a short-term program that gives college-age young people practical experience in Christian work at one of several locations throughout Europe.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hallisey Jr., and is a member of the Fort Square United Presbyterian Church in Quincy, pastored by the Rev. Robert Duncan.

Greater Europe Mission, a non-denominational Christian missionary agency, operates ten Bible institutes and a variety of church-related ministries in 13 European countries. Currently, more than 160 missionaries serve with GEM.

INVITATIONS -- Clockwise Tim Allen, Kurt Bergstrom, Nancy Senter, Eric Bergstrom and Dianne Senter are addressing invitations to the coming lecture to be given at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 20 Greenleaf St., Quincy, June 1 by Grace Bemis Curtis, entitled "Deathless Life".

Wollaston Baptist Church Bicentennial Service Sunday

The First Baptist Church of Wollaston will participate Sunday in a Bicentennial Program with the theme "Spiritual '76 - Speaks to Our Day".

At 9:45 a.m. church members dressed in Colonial style will meet at Grandview Terr. and form for a solemn walk to the church. They will proceed along Grandview Ave. to Warren Ave. to Prospect Ave., the site of the church.

The service will start at 10:30 a.m. A council meeting will consist of "Lining Out" of several hymns, directed by Robert E. Brown, Minister of Music; a talk on "Our Baptist Heritage" by Mrs. David L. MacDougall; a re-enactment of an actual "Standing Committee" session researched and written by Mrs. Albert Nickerson, General chairperson.

The Bicentennial Service will be authentic in Order of Service, Presentation of Music.

Ushers will seat the men on the right of the sanctuary, women and children on the left as was traditional.

Rev. Frank P. Parisi will comment following the reading of the Scripture by a Deacon.

Rev. Charles L. McEachern will speak on the theme.

Richard Weston will be custodian of the "Tithing Stick".

Other parishioners participating will be Bruce Randall, town crier; Gregory Mahn, Jeffrey Mahn, and David Rice, flag bearers; Mrs. Ida Monti, Mrs. Lynn C. Smith, Albert Nickerson and Robert Morgan, players.

Mrs. Albert Rendle is in charge of an historical display.

A luncheon following the service will be held in Fellowship Hall. Parishioners will bring a basket lunch, chowder, dessert and coffee will be served. Mrs. Robert Morgan is chairwoman.

Quincy Centre United Methodist Celebrates Bicentennial Sunday

Otis B. Oakman Jr. of Braintree, an authority on Massachusetts history, will be the guest speaker Sunday as the Quincy Centre United Methodist Church commemorates the Bicentennial and the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

The special celebration will begin at 10:45 a.m. with Rev. Gary Nettleton preaching at the service.

Music will be offered by the Senior Choir, under the direction of Carl Fritsche, and the Children's Choir, directed by Richard Peterson, all in colonial dress. Organist will be Virginia Lonie.

Valet service will be offered by David Troup while Gary Smith and Joanne DiMaggio will be greeters and Paul Carlson, Chester Peterson, Carl Kjellander and J. Ellis Gammons will serve as ushers.

Oakman, who is former principal of Pierce Junior High School in Milton and lay minister at All Souls Church in Braintree, will speak after the luncheon, which will be served at 12:30 p.m.

The Church School will present a brief skit entitled "Our First Flag", directed by Susan Ohman and Martha Smith. The cast will include:

Susan Rhines, Lisa Peterson, Shirley Smith, John Howes, Russell Forsberg, Lisa Cianfarini, James Duncanson, Joel Honig, Mike Tanner, Robin Lytle, Julie Farrell, Jodie Emerson, Dale Emerson, Roy Cochrane, Tracy Tanner and Karen Eaton.

The youngsters will be dressed in colonial attire and the program will conclude with a flag ceremony.

Arrangement committee consists of Paul and Agnes Carlson, co-chairmen; Richard and Judy Peterson, Helga Strong and Martha Smith. Luncheon will be prepared by Ruth Bubier, Doris, Linda and Sandra Forsberg, Carol Cochrane and Nancy Carlson.

A NEWSPAPER BY AND FOR THE CHILDREN OF QUINCY

All Aboard--From Quinsee to Quincee!!

They say "Quinsee". We say "Quincee". They have the Freedom Train. We have the Freedom Trail. They have The Arch - Doorway to the Western World. We have Plymouth Rock -- cornerstone of our nation. They have Injun Joe's Cave. We have the secret passages in Abigail Adam's home.

They have Abe Lincoln's log cabin. We have John Quincy Adams' saltbox. They have the Mississippi River. We have the Atlantic Ocean. They have Pete Rose. We have Fred Lynn. Despite the differences in language, despite the differences in heritage, all the "Quincee" children who visited "Quinsee", Ill. and all the "Quinsee", children who visited "Quincee", Mass. agreed on one thing: people, especially kids, are pretty much alike the world over. "I knew it the minute I saw a teddy bear fall out of my pen pal's suitcase," said Tricia Gibbs from Quincy, Ill.

All the children also agreed that travel is an excellent way to learn. "It sure beats books," said Jay Fisk from Quincy, Ill. "I can't believe that I stood where they fired the shot heard around the world."

"And I stood in Abe Lincoln's log cabin," said Michelle Bythrow from Quincy, Mass. "Now I want to learn all I can about him."

Thirty-six Quincee, Mass. children left for Quincee, Ill., April 7 and spent a week in the homes of their pen pals. Then 53 children from Ill., returned the visit and toured our historical landmarks.

"The only difference between us I could see was that you were rooting for the wrong team in last year's World Series," said Don Roush from Quincy, Ill.*

How Did You Like Y

The Plymouth Plantation is the thing I'll always remember. I really got a feeling of what life was like in the time of the Pilgrims. Everyone had to do his job or they wouldn't have survived. I was really surprised by Plymouth Rock. I thought it was going to be a huge mountain!

[at right] Sam Bartley, Quincy, Ill.

Sam, I'll never forget the Freedom Train. I liked the way you got on a conveyor belt and moved right through the train seeing all kinds of histories of sports, presidents and inventions like the telephone. Also there was so much flat open space in Ill. I felt kind of crowded when I got back to Mass.

Don Reidy, 12, Quincy, Mass.

Well, Jay, even though you sound kind of weird I really made some good friends here in Mass. I thought there would be a difference between kids from here and kids back home. There isn't. Except, of course, that we happened to be routing for the right team in the 1975 World Series!

I found family life is the same in Ill. as it is here in Mass. The minute they put Fruity Pebbles cereal on the breakfast table, I figured everything would be alright. I loved the city of St. Louis, especially Washington Park where they have an outdoor platform where the Lincoln-Douglas debates were held.

Jay Hidalgo, 12, Quincy, Mass.

I'll always remember seeing the ocean for the first time. It's beautiful, and you can smell the salt air so clearly. Also, I loved the Old North Church with its box pews. It's interesting that they still have services there even today. I'd like to come back to your Quincy, Nancy.

My favorite thing in Ill. was the Abe Lincoln exhibit in the Freedom Train. He's the character in history I admire most. And there was his chair, his suit, his speeches in his own handwriting. You certainly learn things in a different way when you can see first-hand. Thanks for inviting me to Quincy, Ill.

Nancy Coleman, 12, Quincy, Mass.

Guess Why Lincoln Had A Beard

Artwork by Robert Hagerty, 12

Michele Bythrow, 11, is one of our Quincy children who visited Quincy, Ill. Abe Lincoln is her favorite person in history. So when she had the chance to visit his first home, a log cabin in the woods, was she excited! The guide told the visitors that when Abe was President, a 10-year-old girl wrote to him and said: "Mr. President, you look too thin. I think you should grow a beard." Mr. Lincoln wrote back to the girl: "I have been clean-shaven for 25 years but if you think I should, I will grow a beard."

Color Huck Finn

Mark Twain was one of our greatest writers. He wrote about life on the Mississippi River where our children visited during the exchange with Quincy, Ill. Huck Finn is one of Mark Twain's most lovable characters. Fred Peterson, 11, has drawn his version of Huck Finn for you to color.

Your Trip To Quincy?

I guess I liked the trip on the Coast Guard cutter the best. Imagine! I had never even seen the ocean before. And then we got the chance to go out on the cutter. The waves were about 3 feet high and it was exciting. The ocean is sure cleaner than the Mississippi. I think I'd like to live here in Mass. just because of the ocean.

I liked the Mormon Research Farm that we visited in Ill. It was so clean. They experiment with different feeds for the animals to see which is best for them. We saw chickens, hogs, pigs and cows. I stayed with Amy. And her family was so nice to me. Also the chaperones from both Mass. and Ill. were very nice and, above all, fun.

Imagine! I stood at Lexington and Concord where they fired the shot heard around the world. I had always heard that sentence but it never meant very much to me before. We followed the trail where the British retreated. It was really something to be here in the Bicentennial year where our country started.

I'll always remember the cave where Injun Joe in Tom Sawyer got killed that we visited in Ill. There are 7 miles of deep, dark caves. Our guide turned off the lights. He said it is one of the rare spots in the world where there is total darkness. He said if you stayed in that darkness for three days, you would be completely blind for the rest of your life!

Kevin Burke, 12, Quincy, Mass.

My scallop dinner [pronounced sca-a-a-lop] at Jimmy's Seafood Restaurant was the highlight of my trip. I never had seafood before. That was fun. The serious thing I'll always remember is how proud Quincy, Mass. people are of their heritage. I loved seeing the Adams Houses and the Quincy Homestead with its secret passages. I felt I was living a page of history.

Amy Boeckelman, 12, Quincy, Ill.

I liked the Sunday we had free in Ill. Jay's family took me to Keokuk, Iowa and we saw a riverboat museum. When I stayed at Jay's house I found out what it was like to live with just older kids. Jay's the youngest in his family. When Jay stayed at my house, he found out what it was like to live with just younger kids. I'm the oldest in my family. He really liked my little brothers and sisters.

Bobby Waterman, 10, Quincy, Mass.

Meet Illinois Chaperones

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gibbs and their daughter Tricia opened their Ill. home to one of the Quincy, Mass. exchange students Kim Thomas. "Naturally we were a little apprehensive at first," Mrs. Gibbs said. "But the first thing that fell out of Kim's suitcase was a teddy bear. Tricia has one exactly like it! We knew everything would be fine."

Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs were chaperones to the Ill. children when they visited Quincy, Mass. "You have a fine school system, with extraordinary administrators," Mr. Gibbs said. "I can tell the parents respect it. And there is such closeness between the children and teachers."

Our School's Exchange With Quincy, Ill.

Artwork by Brian Reardon, 11

The sixth grade classes wrote letters to children in Quincy, Illinois about celebrating "The Bicentennial". The principal in Quincy, Massachusetts wrote letters to the principal in Quincy, Illinois. They thought it would be a good idea if some children from Quincy, Massachusetts would go to Quincy, Illinois and children from Quincy, Illinois would come to visit Massachusetts. When all the children heard they had a chance of going, they were excited. A committee picked twenty children, and nine adults volunteered to accompany the children.

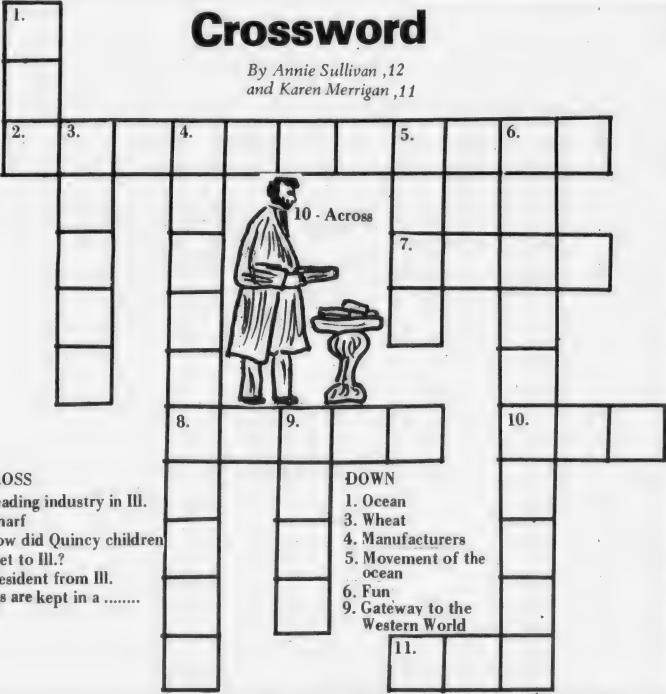

The children wrote letters to each other for a while. In our school the children going to Illinois started having meetings with Mr. Ronayne and Mr. Malvesta after school. Mr. Ronayne and the committee went around for donations such as pens, pencils, records, and pieces of granite to make a packet to bring to the children in Quincy, Illinois. The Quincy School had cake sales and raffles to raise money for the trip.

Reservations were made for them to go on Amtrak. They left on April 7, 1976 in school buses to take them to South Station. We waved good-bye and wished them good luck on their trip.
